GEN. BULLARD'S REMINISCENCES OF WORLD WAR

Chief of Second U. S. Army Tells Story.

BY GEN. ROBERT LEE BULLARD.

[He commanded the First Division, then the Third Corps, and finally led the Second Army of the United States.]

[As these are personal memories of experiences, the pronoun "I" can never be out of sight. I am not offering these memories as absolute fact, but as my impression and belief at the time.—R. L. Bullard.]

SECTION 1.

Our contingent of the United States army—one of the advance groups in the unprepared force which was destined to play its part in the blood and fire of the great war's closing years—arrived in the port of St. Nazaire, France, on June 28, 1917.

LIEUT. GEN. ROBERT LEE BULLARD.

We had left a peaceful country suddenly spurred to action, unready, as yet uninterested but now involved. After a zigzagging voyage, enlivened by target practices and finally an actual alarm of submarines, we found ourselves in a camp prepared by the French. To quote from my diary:

"The cantonment is very well fixed considering all things, but it is not and never will be such and as good as we have been accustomed to in the U. S. Water and wood are very scarce. Water is hauled fifty miles in boats and then pumped into tanks for our use."

The French were doing this for us. How little they with those simple and inadequate means foresaw, anticipated, the mighty American effort that transformed not only this small beginning, but half a dozen other ports, into mighty camps with everything essential to almost perfect functioning of life in war.

Meets Pershing in France.

Hardly were we settled in camp before Gen. Pershing appeared from his headquarters in Paris, whither he had gone some two weeks before from the United States to conclude arrangements with French authorities for our entry into the war in France.

Here, then, was the man destined to command the American forces in the war.

I had known him from West Point. I have heard that before coming to West Point he had taught school. I do not know whether this is true. If so, it probably accounts for the judgment and poise which appeared in him sooner than in most cadets, as well as for the prompt development of the right idea of authority and command; for he certainly developed these things.

GEN. PERSHING.

Of regular but not handsome features, broad shouldered, of robust, strong body, well developed, almost or quite six feet tall, plainly of the [illegible] type, while most of those about him were still boys, with keen, searching gray eyes and intent look, he inspired confidence but not affection. Personal magnetism seemed lacking. He had followers and admirers, but no personal worshipers. Plain in speech, sane and direct in action, he applied himself to all duty and all work with a manifest purpose not only of succeeding in what he attempted but of surpassing, guiding, and directing others in what was before him [illegible].

An Impersonal Commander.

His exercise of authority, even as a [illegible] and has always been of a [illegible] peculiarly impersonal, dispassionate, exacting, and firm. It did not [illegible] as in many give offense; the [illegible] was too impersonal, too given to business and duty. His manner [illegible] to the minds of those under [illegible] the suggestion, nay, the conviction of unquestioned right to their [illegible], no shadow of doubt about it. [illegible] he has carried through. It was twice questioned by subordinates: once by one who, as I heard, was convinced by Second Lieutenant [illegible] in shirt sleeves, and once, I

QUICK AND SURE PENALTY URGED AS CRIME CURE

Modernize Courts, Also a Remedy.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Here are a few suggestions of ways to reduce Chicago's bumper crop of murders, burglaries and stickups. They were gathered from various sources in the Criminal Court building during the last week and they represent the ideas of some of the most experienced members of the bench.

1. Cut down continuances, one of the great refuges of the malefactor on trial. Make trials as speedy as is consistent with justice.

2. Reduce the "waiving of the gun" by the machinery of justice. This, of course, will necessitate better collection of evidence.

3. Remodel the bail system. Change the law and the method so that after a criminal is sentenced for one crime he is not turned loose on the street to perpetrate new crimes.

4. Stiffen up some of the judges.

Would Improve Juries.

5. Work out some method for getting higher grade juries.

6. Cut out some of the sympathy racket worked by some of the uplift that is strong for flowers, sun parlors and squabs on toast for evil doers.

7. Keep the police out of the saloons and hootch dumps and gambling joints and keep them on the beat.

8. Give the police better instruction in the nature of evidence and in its collection.

9. Modify the attitude of the higher courts so that in reviewing cases less attention would be given to technicalities and hair-splittings.

10. Reduce the proneness of the Municipal court to send to the Criminal court minor cases that eventually are handled as misdemeanors. This clutters up the Criminal court.

Of course, this is not set out as a full and comprehensive program. But it's a big order, as is. It embraces some fundamental changes advocated for years, and if it could be carried out there are plenty of indications that violent crime would drop from its present peaks.

Crime's Greatest Barrier.

Inevitability of punishment is the greatest deterrent to the commission of sin. So the criminologists long have expounded. So the experience of other commonwealths shows. It is accounted the chief reason why, for example, the hazard of being murdered is six times greater for the average American than for the average Canadian. And in the suggestions garnered from the bench, the dominant idea is in the direction of making trial more speedy and the visitation of justice more certain.

As it stands, while the criminal element has modernized its methods to keep pace with the age of automobiles, radio, cabarets, and kitchenette apartments, the agencies for the protection of society are not keeping pace with the evildoers.

Family Influence Wanes.

One of the wisest and best judges on the Cook county bench remarked yesterday:

"As these cases stream before me, I am impressed with the apparent waning of the influence of family and church. The recruiting places of crime have changed. Scores of young fellows, well dressed, well appearing, from good homes, fellows between 18 and 24 years, who look like the young chaps you make welcome in your home, are brought in on charges of burglary and holdups. The old ideas of rectitude have not been implanted in them. Right and wrong mean nothing, the question in their minds is simply that of detection.

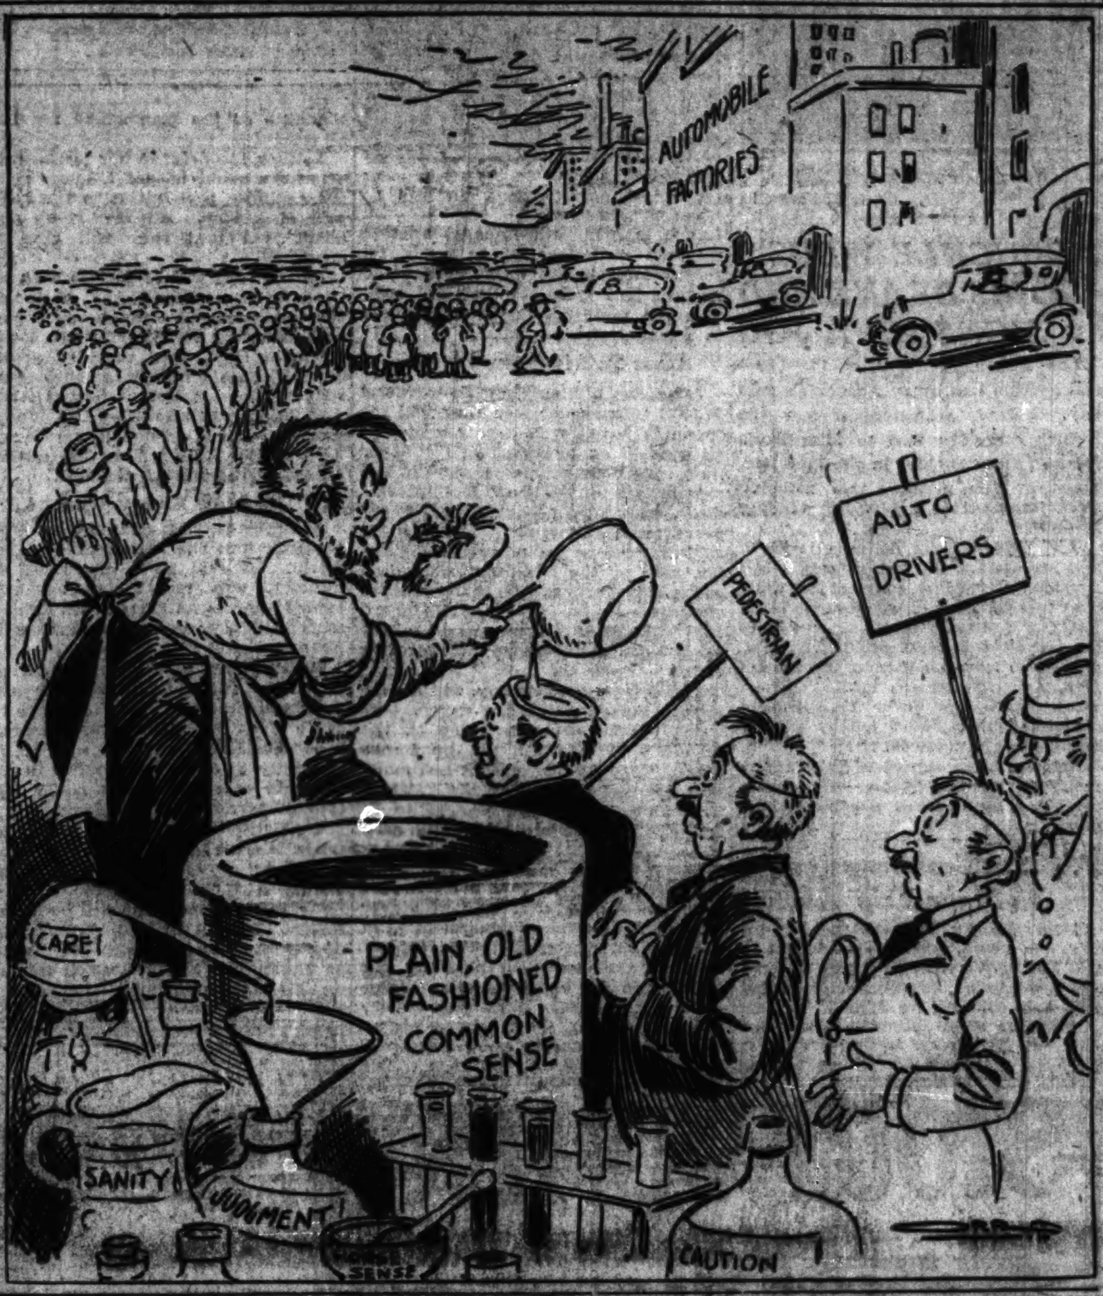
"Ten years ago, you'd visualize a hoodlum as a roughlooking tough you'd hate to meet in an alley. Nowadays the stickup oftener than not looks like a nice, decent citizen, with nothing about him to excite suspicion until he sticks a gun into your ribs.

Juries Are Sympathetic.

"If caught and brought to trial, this serves to aid him with the jury. One great trouble is that juries appear more likely to sympathize with the wrongdoer than with his victim. They hesitate to send a good looking young fellow to the penitentiary. From start to finish, the theorem of assumption of innocence until shown guilty is hammered into them until it overshadows other things.

"A jury of high grade men is exceptional. There have been juries of so low grade that they have acquitted men of whose guilt there has not been the slightest shadow of doubt. We've got to get better men in the jury box, and that is a matter of extreme difficulty with conditions as they are."

WHAT WE NEED MOST NOW IS A BRAIN DISPENSARY TO KEEP PACE WITH OUR AUTOMOBILE FACTORIES



Chicago Due for Chilling Blast Today

A temperature almost reminiscent of winter is due to chill Chicago today, following heavy rains and high winds which swept many sections of the middle west yesterday.

Just before the horses started on the track at Churchill Downs at Louisville a downpour drenched the 75,000 or more spectators at the Kentucky Derby and ruined a million dollars' worth of women's finery.

Among the casualties of the storm was a TRIBUNE airplane bearing pictures of the finish of the derby. The plane was forced to land near Indianapolis because of the gale.

Temperature Here Drops.

The temperature started downward in Chicago last night and was expected to reach a minimum of 45 degrees by this morning, Prof. Henry J. Cox of the weather bureau said. The temperature may rise as high as 50 degrees during the day, Prof. Cox said, and will be slightly higher tomorrow, although there is no warm weather in sight.

The storm, which came from the southwest, late last night was over Lake Huron and was headed for the St. Lawrence valley. The Western Union Telegraph company last night reported several of its lines down between Chicago and Cleveland, Chicago and Cincinnati, and Chicago and Louisville. The Postal Telegraph company reported lines down between Chicago and New York, between Indianapolis and Cincinnati and Indianapolis and Louisville.

Oklahoma and Missouri were hit by the storm, which interrupted wire service, greatly damaged crops and caused a heavy property loss.

Three Boys Lost on Raft.

Erie, Pa., May 16.—[A. P.]—Three small boys were reported adrift on a small raft on Lake Erie west of here tonight, while a coast guard cutter and three other boats were rushing to their assistance. The boys, inmates of the Elmwood Home for Boys, were playing on the raft when the storm broke. The storm descended on Erie without warning and within three hours the temperature dropped 30 degrees. Several houses were blown down.

Several Injured in Ohio.

Cleveland, O., May 16.—A thunder and rain storm, leveling farm houses, uprooting trees, and tearing down wires, swept through the lake region in Ohio tonight. The storm was the heaviest since the Lorain tornado of last June.

Heaviest blows were struck in the towns of Pittsfield and White Fox, in the vicinity of Oberlin, where several farm houses were demolished and a number of persons injured. Residents of Pontiac and Monroeville reported they saw a funnel shaped cloud. Barns in these places were demolished.

NABBED FOR GEM THEFT, ESCAPES FROM CAPTOR

George [Rabbit] Connell, under indictment for the $200,000 jewel robbery at the Parkway hotel on Christmas eve, and Irving [Sunny] Schlieg, said by the police to have been named by Connell as the head of that robbery plot, were taken into custody by Police Sergt. Alfred Fox in the loop last night. Schlieg escaped while he was being taken to the station, as a pal of the two previously had done.

While Schlieg was driving north in La Salle street under the direction of Sergt. Fox, he suddenly veered the car into a parked car, and fled west into an alley. Sergt. Fox was afraid to shoot lest he wound passersby. A pal of the two fled into the Great Northern hotel when Sergt. Fox dashed northward after his quarry preceding the arrests. Connell was held last night for investigation.

Both Connell and Schlieg are said to have long police records. The Parkway robbery case comes up for trial in the Criminal court tomorrow. Connell's attorney, Frank McDonnell, however, is in jail serving a sentence imposed by Judge Hugo Pam for contempt of court.

225 Missing, 8 Die, 30 Hurt, in Ruhr Blast

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, May 17 (Sunday).—(A. P.)—At least eight men are dead as the result of an explosion which imprisoned 235 miners in a shaft at Dorstfeld, near Dortmund, yesterday afternoon. Seven men had been brought out dead from the pits at 1:30 o'clock this morning. Another miner had died from his injuries.

[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, May 16.—Five are dead, thirty injured and about 225 are missing in the Dortmund mine explosion, which occurred this afternoon. A dynamite magazine in a dummy shaft on the lower level exploded and sent poisonous fumes through the workings as well as causing numerous cave-ins. More than 500 miners were in the mine at the time of the explosion. The rescue workers were able to bring 300 to the surface. The cause of the explosion has not been learned.

Spreads to Other Parts.

BERLIN, May 16.—[A. P.]—A terrific explosion occurred today in pit 5 of the Dortsfeld mine, near Dortmund, which subsequently spread to pits 2 and 3. Two hundred and fifty-five miners are missing.

Of the 289 miners working in No. 2, 99, including fourteen injured, had returned to the surface by evening.

Of the 238 miners working in No. 3 pit, 194, including four injured, returned to the surface.

SECOND BIG DISASTER.

This is the second great mine disaster to occur in the Ruhr within less than four months. On Feb. 12, 1925, an explosion in the Stein mine snuffed out 135 lives. There was hardly a family in the district that did not lose a relative.

Following the disaster there was considerable unrest, which even approached the point of violence, throughout the Ruhr over what the miners called criminal neglect by the mine owners. Only six lives were saved in the Stein disaster.

Britons Follow Yank in Shaking the King's Hand

LONDON, May 16.—[A. P.]—The recent incident at the Wembley exhibition of an American shaking hands with the king has proved infectious. The king and queen, the crown prince of Norway, and other guests tonight paid another visit to the exhibition and were proceeding around the grounds on the miniature railway when two of the king's own subjects thrust themselves through the cheering crowds and grasped the sovereign's hands.

80,000 CHEER MASTER JOCKEY IN GREAT RACE

Sande Leads All the Way; Capt. Hal Is Second; Son of John, Third.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Louisville, Ky., May 16.—[Special.]—Flying Ebony, from the stable of Gifford A. Cochran, New York, won the fifty-first annual Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs this afternoon.

Eighty thousand persons saw the race. This figure established a new attendance record. Most of those 80,000 persons, even those who did not bet on the winner, applauded the result heavily.

Flying Ebony was so lightly regarded by the track handicapper that he was grouped in the field betting with eight others who were not thought to have much chance. But Flying Ebony was ridden by Earl Sande, who established anew his claim of being America's premier jockey.

Public Flocks to Sande.

So, Jockey Sande, if not Flying Ebony, was so highly regarded by the general public that the mutuel machines early in the betting ran out of tickets and an emergency suppy was rushed into service. That is why a field horse, winning the Derby for the first time in its history, paid only $8.30 for $2, or slightly better than 3 to 1.

These odds, yielding backers of the winner far less than they had expected, were a tremendous tribute to Jockey Sande. Sande rode Zev to victory two years ago. He is a clean cut, intelligent youngster, always trying to win, against whom no breath of scandal ever has arisen. Regarded as the American ace among equine pilots last season, he sustained a fall and broke his leg. For a time even his life was in the balance. He returned to the saddle this spring in the east. This was his first important stake engagement in Kentucky. It proved that he has the Sande skill of old, with no timidity caused by his fall.

Tribute to the Trainer.

Sharing honors with Sande is Trainer William Duke. Condition of the horse and riding skill combined were responsible for the victory. It will be recalled that it was Duke who trained Coventry, another field horse which won the Preakness stake almost on three legs. Duke has recently returned from France, where he handled the Vanderbilt string, bringing with him his experience in preparing for long distance races.

The writer, in his enthusiasm, has proceeded thus far without telling those who depend on this report for their information that the mile and one-quarter route was traversed in 2:07 3-5 over a track made sloppy by a sudden brief deluge of rain just as the bugle sounded for the parade to the Derby post.

Likewise, those readers should be informed that Captain Hal, third choice in the betting, was a length and one-half behind Flying Ebony.

Son of John Is Third.

Captain Hal engaged in a nose struggle for second place with Son of John who was four lengths in front of Single Foot.

Quatrain, favorite in the mutuels at only $1.95 for $1.00, finished twelfth and was never prominent. Quatrain was backed by big money. The field, including Flying Ebony, caught the smaller play but in volume. Captain Hal was the real Kentucky choice, with some Bourbon race followers joining the Illinois Athletic club con-

Thunder Salvos Add Applause as Black Horse Gains a Big Victory.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky., May 16.—[Special.]—Flying Ebony won the Kentucky Derby's classic mile and a quarter by a length and a half in two minutes and seven and three-fifths seconds this afternoon to the heroic accompaniment of crashing thunder and forked lightning.

The scene transcended the dramatic. It was epic.

Considering the sloppy track, Flying Ebony's time was not discreditable.

Within ten minutes after he was led in triumph past 80,000 cheering men and women sunshine crowned the colt's victory and the evening sky was radiant.

His victory was not unexpected, although Quatrain was, and for days had been, the favorite.

Sande Rode Great Race.

Earl Sande rode Flying Ebony, and the most popular news of this history making day is the decisive comeback of the good and great jockey who was so cruelly trampled—almost killed, indeed—at Saratoga last August.

He rode a grand race, the outstanding attributes of his generalship being excellent judgment of pace at the start and fine maneuvering at the head of the stretch.

Cries of "Good old Sande!" filled the thunder shaken air, but Sande is 23 years young.

Sentimentally, this was as great a day in his life as the day of the Kentucky Derby of 1923, when he rode Zev to victory.

Sires Two Derby Winners.

And the point that makes this day's triumph doubly significant to rider and horse is that the same horse—The Finn—sired Flying Ebony and Zev.

Captain Hal came in second, a nose ahead of Son of John; Singlefoot was fourth. The Captain has for days been the favorite for second place. He is owned by five clerks.

Quatrain, son of the Derby winner, Omar Khayyam, on whom so many hopes were centered and so much money piled, finished in the twelfth place, thus continuing the mournful tradition that the son of a Kentucky Derby winner never wins a Kentucky Derby.

The Jockey Won.

And now you have the real essential news data of a very wonderful, changeful, and exhilarating day, of which the disgruntled—I mean the losers—are saying tonight, "Nothing but a jockey won the race."

Well, let the disgruntled grunt. They can do no more, nor take away from a brave, judicious race horse his $52,950 in prize money, his $5,000 worth of gold plate, and his glory that will ever stay as green as the Kentucky turf he honors.

Heaven above, what a get-away it was for the American classic of horse racing. The ancient poets tell us that the very gods on Olympia loved a race and understood a fine horse.

Olympians Still Like Races.

Well, if those crashes of thunder rolling in on Churchill Downs from the green and misty Kentucky knobs and those streams of lightning from a darkening sky meant anything special this afternoon, they meant that Olympians are still awake to the charm and color and glory of a supreme horse race.

For Jove released his thunders for the climax of this noble scene.

At 4 o'clock came the first shower of this hot afternoon of spanking breeze and cloud hung sky, but nobody scurried for home, for everybody knew that if they had to run that three-quarters of a million dollars' worth of twenty three year olds in mud they still would run them.

Crowds Are Drenched.

Exactly as the bugle's music called the entries to the barrier at 4:35 o'clock or thereabouts—for I got so excited I couldn't remember from one minute to another what time it was—came the second downpour. A drencher.

Through thunder, lightning and rain the colts paraded to the post. Everybody cheering madly. Everybody wet as he cheered madly and sincerely, because those entries, sniffing the wet air, waltzing and pirouetting over the streaming track and not fearing the Olympian cannonade, but taking it as salvos in their honor, represented the world's best epitomes of fire and grace and valor in three year old horseflesh.

Rain—they didn't hate it, they drank it.

A sloppy track, they didn't mince matters over it, but bent to their work, bent to it with the ardor that makes work joy. They bent to it with finest equine music there is in the world.

What a symphony and song. The thud of 80 hoofs pounding their way around a mile and a quarter of wet brown ribbon.

The horses loved it and we, peering at them through the slats of rain, loved it.

Was Supreme Test.

It was the supreme test of the day, this storm; the supreme test of the fine, valid open air lure of horse racing.

It was the supreme test because, rain or shine, a great horse race puts the gala note into life as nothing else does, and life is not so consistently gay that a hearty people can afford to banish and bar a note like this.

Whip and spur were little used throughout the race. Guts won it, physical and spiritual guts; besides, good jockeys don't like whip and spur. They don't like it because they love their horses and you cannot be a successful jockey without love.

Old Rosebud's Record.

Guts of course could not on that streaming track perform miracles, but even so the winner's time, 2:07 3-5, was not contemptible when you compare it with the record time of a Kentucky Derby, which was Old Rosebud's 2:03 2-5 in 1914, but that was under 114 pounds of jockey and today Great Sande weighed 126 pounds.

He rode, by the way, in four of this afternoon's seven races, wearing Gifford A. Cochran's colors of green and yellow.

And when after the victory, they lifted the great blanket of pink roses over sweating Sande and foam flecked Flying Ebony, a blanket so long that it touched the ground, I tell you the pair made a picture never to be forgotten.

A Feminist Affair.

There were no fillies i nthe fifty-first Kentucky Derby. Only in grand stands, paddocks, clubhouse and boxes was it a feminist affair.

And now I must tell you about the set up, for it was brilliant. Let me get it to you in half a dozen lines. It was like this:

Those rainbow riders—wearing the varied colors of America's premier breeders and our audaciously caparisoned women folk—some in coats of gold thread laced with peacock colors—made a huge bouquet moving set all around with garnishment of living green. I mean the trees that nearly encircle beautiful Churchill Downs.

And the bouquet was here and there set off with tossing flags. As for the rest of the picture it was teeming acres of humans, white and black, hot and happy, moving against the foreground of the oval infield with its long green hedges and its beds and urns of flowers.

Yellow and Scarlet.

The dominant note in the women's costumes was yellow and a kind of golden brown and scarlet—a scarlet that was as scarlet as sin—or as some of the profanity of the thug element on the scene. Worse I never heard, and when I heard it I thought to myself that horse racing, like war, brings out the worst in the worst men.

As to the color scheme of the day as a whole—the jockeys, the dames, and the flowers—I say call it harlequin on Bucephalus and let it go at that. 'Tis well enough.

And all afternoon long, while we flaunted and while we thrilled, band music floated undulantly to us on the spanking breeze across green acres—like feathers of music, and the tune all loved best and all hummed softly when the bands released it was "My Old Kentucky Home,"—that heart song of the south.

POLICEMAN, WITH GUN AT HIS RIBS, TAKES ROBBER

With one hand Policeman Herman Rosenthal of the West Chicago avenue station last night disarmed a robber who had attempted to hold him up in front of 2841 Cortez street. Rosenthal and a pedestrian then captured the robber.

Carrying his 8 year old daughter, Marian, on his left arm, and with his wife at his side, Rosenthal, in citizen's clothing, left a party at the Cortez street address. As he reached the sidewalk the robber jammed the muzzle of his revolver against the policeman's abdomen. Rosenthal with his right hand grasped the robber's wrist and turned the revolver away from him, gently dropping his daughter to the sidewalk.

A scream of Mrs. Rosenthal brought Oscar Siller, 1028 Mozart street, and he aided in subduing the robber, who later gave his name to the North avenue police as Bernard Scallon, 21 years old, 2127 Emerson street.

Burglar Hangs Woman, Head Down, from Hook

Philadelphia, Pa., May 16.—[A. P.]—Stood upon her head in a closet by a burglar after he gagged and bound her, Mrs. Elizabeth Tranchitelle was found early today by her husband, a hotel musician. The burglar, who obtained a small amount of money, had partially suspended her from a clothes hook. Mrs. Tranchitelle was not seriously injured.

ARBUCKLE WEDS DORIS DEANE AND SIGNS UP A JOB

Los Angeles, Cal., May 16.—[Special.]—This was Fatty Arbuckle's gala day. Friends who tonight saw the former comedian wed to Miss Doris Deane [Anita Dibble] in the Pasadena home of her mother, this morning were informed of a $100,000 wedding present.

The present was delivered with a few strokes of a fountain pen, when Arbuckle signed a contract to draw that sum from his chum, Roland West. Fatty will direct ten movie comedies for the Roland West productions and will begin work on them when he and Mrs. Arbuckle return from a honeymoon trip to New York. He will have completed his $100,000 job by December, it was announced.

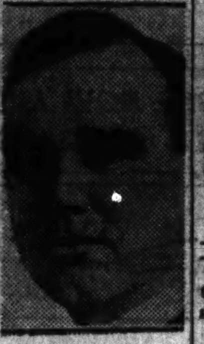
Arbuckle has signed a legal agreement to pay his former wife, Minta Durfee, $200 a week permanent alimony.

Y.W.C.A. Secretary Resigns to Make Trip Abroad

Miss Eleanor Richardson, for the past six years executive secretary of the Young Women's Christian association in Chicago, has resigned her position and will sail on June 27 for six months of study abroad, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Carl C. Bullock, president of the association.

CALL 100 EXTRA VENIREMEN FOR SHEPHERD JURY

Defense Wants No One Who Reads Newspapers.



JUDGE THOMAS J. LYNCH.

One hundred prospective jurors were summoned yesterday to appear tomorrow before Judge Thomas J. Lynch, who is to preside at the trial of William D. Shepherd. The hundred form a special venire in addition to the regular panel of jurors, so there will be on hand 155 men who will be examined as to their fitness to pass upon the guilt or innocence of the defendant.

Should that not be a sufficient number Judge Lynch said he will impanel another hundred veniremen to be ready for service later in the week. The attorneys on both sides say they will question the tentative jurymen carefully in a search for prejudice.

Want No Newspaper Readers.

Attorneys William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien declared they will try to select jurors who have not formed an opinion as to Shepherd's guilt or innocence through having read in the newspapers of William McClintock's death and the consequent "$1,000,000 germ murder charge." Mr. O'Brien said that failing to find men who have not read of the McClintock-Shepherd case their efforts will be centered upon obtaining twelve peers of Shepherd who will agreed to judge the defendant solely upon the evidence introduced in court.

The defense lawyers say, and the assistant state's attorneys agree, that much of the evidence given at the coroner's inquest will not be admissable. Considerable of that testimony was hearsay and under the rules of procedure will not be allowed to be repeated in the trial, the lawyers said.

Plan Exhaustive Tests.

Attorney O'Brien said his principal task will be to overcome whatever opinion the public in general have of the guilt or innocence of the accused. He said that so much publicity has been given the charges against Shepherd that the mass mind may be represented on the jury, consciously or unconsciously, and he and Stewart will have to search deeply into the hidden thoughts of the men called for jury service.

Neither the defense nor prosecution attorneys could hazard a guess as to the probable time given to the selection of a jury. All they were sure about was that they will take no chances.

As the trial will be replete with testimony concerning germs, their culture and their use, the lawyers have been studying bacteriology for a considerable time, they revealed yesterday. The state will place considerable reliance upon Assistant State's Attorney John Sbarbaro who has studied medicine and is an undertaker as well as a lawyer. He will be the medical expert on the prosecution side.

Tells of Expert Work.

Attorney Stewart related a bit of his research into the realms of the germ world. He said he is convinced McClintock was not inoculated with typhoid germs as Charles C. Faiman, who made a confession to Prosecutor Sbarbaro, said he had been.

Attorney Stewart said Faiman undoubtedly lied when he said he gave Shepherd the germs a year before the death of McClintock and that Shepherd kept them alive until he saw an opportunity to cause the youth's death. He said only an expert could keep typhoid germs alive that long.

That will be the main issue at the trial: Germs given with murderous intent or germs acquired naturally during a typhoid epidemic. Indications are that the trial will be a hard fought battle with Shepherd's life or liberty at stake and with the disposal of $1,000,000—the McClintock estate—awaiting the outcome.

SELDEN SPENCER, SENATOR FROM MISSOURI, DIES

Noted for His Rows with Woodrow Wilson.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Senator Selden P. Spencer [Rep.] of St. Louis, Mo., died suddenly tonight at Walter Reed hospital.

The death of the senator, who was 63 years old, came as a shock as he had been in good spirits today and his early recovery had been expected. He was operated on about ten days ago for hernia.

QUARRELS WITH WILSON.

Selden Palmer Spencer became nationally famous because of his quarrels with President Woodrow Wilson, during 1919 and 1920, when the President was trying to put the treaty of Versailles and the league of nations covenant through the senate without reservations.

From the rôle of mild reservationist, the Missourian became a "bitter ender" against the pact after he and the executive had broken over the latter's refusal to accept any modifications.

During the presidential campaign of 1920 the quarrel became acute, a question of veracity arising between them. Senator Spencer, running for reëlection, charged that Mr. Wilson had promised to send an American army to defend Roumania and Serbia.

Put Up to the Voters.

The President described that statement as a falsehood and asked the voters of Missouri to decide which was telling the truth. Senator Spencer was reëlected by 150,000 votes.

Mr. Spencer was born in Erie, Pa., on Sept. 16, 1862. He was graduated from Yale in 1884, and practiced law in St. Louis. From the state legislature he went to the Circuit bench, and in 1918 was elected senator by the legislature to succeed William J. Stone, who had just died. In 1920, he was reëlected for the term ending 1927.

Recently Senator Spencer was accused of appearing before a government department in behalf of private interests, as Senator Wheeler of Montana was accused. He denied the charges and said he welcomed an investigation.

TIME TO PAY UP, U. S. TELLS NINE DEBTOR NATIONS

Asks Funding Agreement to Replace Promises.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—Believing that the time has arrived when all war debts should be settled, the United States has advised nine European nations of its desire for an early completion of debt funding arrangements. The state department, it was made known today, expects that the French government will send a commission to the United States within the next few weeks with instructions to arrange for settlement of its debt.

Other governments which have been urged to arrange settlements, some of whom it was said have already begun negotiations leading to funding arrangements, are Italy, Belgium, Roumania, Greece, Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, Esthonia, and Latvia. The debt of these nine governments, if paid today, would amount to $7,100,978,695. This total is increased every day by interest computation.

What Nine Nations Owe.

The amounts owed by the nine countries, including principal and accrued interest to date, are as follows:

Country.	Total debt.
Belgium	$ 489,503,963
Czecho-Slovakia	117,679,095
Esthonia	17,794,039
France	4,210,556,948
Greece	17,625,068
Italy	2,138,543,852
Latvia	6,352,139
Roumania	46,508,661
Jugo-Slavia	65,414,997
Grand total	$7,100,978,695

Funding arrangements have already been completed by the world war foreign debt commission with Great Britain, Hungary, Finland, Lithuania and Poland.

Under present arrangements the commission is the only authorized agent in the United States with power to make settlements of war debts with foreign nations. At the state department it was explained today that it is the function of the commission to keep the subject of unsettled debts constantly before the nine nations and that this was being done.

Hope for Early Settlement.

For several months little was said to debtor nations, but within the last few months, as conditions have improved, the commission has begun to apply pressure. It was stated by officials close to the commission that it is their earnest hope that negotiations by all nine nations will be entered on promptly and brought to satisfactory termination at the earliest moment possible.

Although officials would not state which countries had already made overtures, it was authoritatively stated that tangible results had already been obtained by this latest move.

In the case of France, informal negotiations and private conversations between Ambassador Herrick and French officials have already arrived at the point where this government expects hourly to be notified when the Paris officials will be ready to begin negotiations. It is understood that Ambassador Herrick has already informed the French government that the United States wants a French commission sent to this country.

Period of Waiting Over.

For many months President Coolidge and administration leaders have been under constant pressure from members of congress and others opposed to any further delay in getting down to brass tacks with the principal borrowing nations. The debt commission has taken the view that the debtor nations should have plenty of time to get their finances in shape before being pressed for payment.

In this latest effort to effect settlements this country disclaims any effort to bring pressure on any government to make payments which it is not in a position to do. The main thing desired, it was said, is that all debtor nations put their promises to pay into definite funding agreements.

Termed by Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler of the Philadelphia police as the most desperate criminals ever captured in the east, two men said to be members of the Eggers gang of San Francisco, but whose names were withheld, passed through the city last night in charge of deputy United States marshals.

Because of a fear of a rescue attempt here, 25 United States deputies met the incoming train at the Englewood station and helped take the two men to a federal cell while awaiting a train leaving for the coast at 8:20 o'clock last night.

The names were refused, officials said, because their publication might cause a rescue effort. The men are charged with shooting a deputy marshal some months ago when they tried to rescue an Eggers gang member under capture.

The prisoners being taken back to San Francisco are said to be John Yeager and William Courier. They were arrested in San Francisco on a charge of bootlegging and escaped while being taken by deputy marshals from the county jail there to the federal building. In making their escape the prisoners are said to have shot and killed one deputy marshal and to have blinded another deputy with ammonia.

FRANCE MAY ASK U. S. TO CUT DEBT $3,000,000,000

Will Cite Big Slash in Reparations.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, May 16.—While the general pourparlers on war debts between Ambassador Myron T. Herrick and the French government have so far been satisfactory, THE TRIBUNE is informed that the French intend to make a final desperate effort to reduce the obligations materially.

MYRON T. HERRICK.
[Copyright: U. & U.]

A Quai d'Orsay spokesman indicated that France will propose the same proportionate reduction in the American debt as it consented to in the German reparations when it accepted the Dawes plan.

Under the 1921 schedule of payments the German indemnity was fixed at 132,000,000,000 gold marks ($33,000,000,000), but the Dawes plan based it at 32,000,000,000 gold marks ($8,000,000,000) total.

Want to Pay $1,000,000,000.

The French therefore argue that the United States should reduce its $4,000,000,000 claim to $1,000,000,000 in round figures, in order to compensate France's sacrifices.

It is realized that there is little possibility of the argument succeeding in Washington, however.

The French point out that they are receiving only 17,000,000,000 gold marks ($4,250,000,000) for reparations, instead of 68,000,000,000 gold marks ($17,000,000,000), and must pay Great Britain 8,500,000,000 gold marks ($2,125,000,000) on the English debt, besides additional annuities.

Call Part of Debt "Political."

PARIS, May 16.—[A. P.]—The part of the diplomats in the settlement of the French debt to the United States will be mostly a discussion of what are called here "political debts" as distinguished from borrowings catalogued as "commercial debts," it was said today in official circles. Frequent references have been made lately to the fact that the accounts between France and the United States have never been audited and that it is necessary to go over them and ascertain the exact amount France really owes.

Despite the tendency shown lately in official circles to recognize the total borrowings for which French receipts have been given as the total amount absolutely due, there remains a lingering idea that the money borrowed by France from the United States before the armistice was a sort of political aid by America, while the amounts advanced by Washington after the armistice must be considered as commercial debts. Some ideas still exist that the former may yet be subject to discussion.

Foreign Minister Briand is expected to deal with the "political debts" phase of the question, while Finance Minister Caillaux, who is obliged to find the money, will take direct charge of negotiations regarding the terms of payment.

HERO OF HOLDUP IS SHOT TWICE AS HE BATTLES PAIR

Joseph Hajic, 49 years old and married, the driver of a delivery truck for the Boston Store, played a heroic part in a holdup yesterday. Alone and unarmed he battled two Negro bandits who were holding up Louis Krotth, owner of a grocery at 3265 Cottage Grove avenue.

JOSEPH HAJIC.

Hajic was shot twice, once in the left leg and once in the chest. He was taken to the Lakeside hospital, where physicians say he will live. The robbers escaped with $200 of Krotth's money.

Hajic interrupted the holdup when he walked into the grocery to deliver a package. He grappled with the colored men, both of whom had revolvers in their hands. He took both guns in his unexpected attack but one of the bandits wrested his own back again and shot Hajic down. While he lay on the floor they fled. Hajic's home is at 1544 West 21st street.

PORTUGAL POLICE CHIEF WOUNDED IN RED AMBUSH

LISBON, May 16.—[A. P.]—Maj. Ferreira Amaral, commander of the safety state police, was attacked in a street here last night by members of a red organization and was severely wounded. His leg was broken and he was wounded in the hand, but he drew his pistol and returned the fire. He is in a hospital guarded by police to prevent another attack.

Maj. Amaral, who was cited for bravery while leading a Portuguese regiment in France, was ambushed by members of the "red legion," described as a bomb throwing organization.

Six shots were fired at Maj. Amaral, four of which took effect. The reds also fired upon a police squad which came to his rescue, wounding a police corporal. As a result of the attack it has been decided to continue martial law.

MAYOR AIDS WIFE GIVE PRIZES TO HEALTH WINNERS

One Baby Gets Free Milk for a Year.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Youth was served right royally yesterday over in the city council chambers when Mayor and Mrs. William E. Dever presented awards to the victors in the health contests of the national baby congress and health exposition held recently at the American Furniture Mart, under the auspices of the Illinois State Medical society.

Helen Marie Walton, 15 year old student at the Hibbard High school, winner of the girls' "healthy youth" prize, was awarded a $250 necklace. H. J. Kramer, 10 years old, pupil at the Eugene Field grammar school, victorious in the boys' class, received a $250 watch.

Betty Louise O'Hara, the 15 months old winner of the baby contest, is going to have milk delivered free at her home, 7711 Luella avenue, every morning for a year, through the award of a local milk company. In addition, the mayor handed to her yesterday a $500 bank account, the gift of a Chicago bank.

Mrs. Dever had charge of the other babies, twenty of them, whose high scores, as representatives from twenty different communities in the city, entitled them each to a $25 bank account in a neighborhood bank. The average score of these young healthy financiers is 94 per cent, according to Dr. C. St. Clair Drake, medical director of the baby congress.

Marie Walton's score was 98.0, and young Kramer's was 96.8 per cent. Helen Filkey, Marie's runner-up, made 97.7, and Arnold Sangerman lost the boys' contest by just .3 of one per cent.

Miss Betty Clarke, 609 Diversey parkway, who was elected "hygeia" queen of the show, received awards yesterday.

Norwegian Workers Strike in Sympathy with Danes

COPENHAGEN, May 16.—The Norwegian transport workers have begun a sympathy strike to prevent Danish shipping from being transferred to Norwegian ports. If the coöperation promised the Danish strikers materializes, the Swedish, Finnish, German, and Dutch transport workers soon will follow, boycotting all Danish ships.

President Von Hindenburg Urges Allies to Obey Peace Treaty and Liberate Cologne

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

COLOGNE, Germany, May 16.—For the second time since the election of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, Chancellor Luther spoke in the president's name on the important question of foreign policy when at Cologne today he demanded that the allies immediately fulfill the provisions of the treaty of Versailles and evacuate the Cologne bridgehead.

PRESIDENT VON HINDENBURG.

Dr. Luther took the occasion of the opening of the Rhineland's 1,000th jubilee to express the stand of the president and government on the point in question which Germany declares must be settled before further progress in European reconstruction can be made.

Demands Zone Be Liberated.

"I am able to speak in the name of the president, who especially charged me to bring his best wishes," Dr. Luther said. "I am able to speak also not only for the national government but for the state government whose territories are included in the Rhineland.

"When the government first gave its attention to attending the ceremonies of the Rhine we were able to expect that the opening of the exhibition would take place on ground freed from the occupation of enemy troops of occupation in accordance with the Versailles treaty. You know we have disappointments and expectations. We must again emphasize that the German people have a right to demand that the first zone of occupation be completely evacuated.

"However, even today we are still uninformed of the accusations against Germany on which the refusal to evacuate Cologne is based. We must recognize this with bitterness, especially today when the exhibition, representing peace in the best meaning of the word, is opened."

Shows Germany's Deep Feelings.

Dr. Luther's speech was the cabinet's first public expression of the deep feeling in Germany over the failure of the French and British to agree on a common course of action regarding Germany's violations of the military control clauses. The foreign office has expressed freely in private conversations its astonishment that so important a matter as this and the German securiy proposals should be left in the air for more than three months.

Neither Dr. Luther nor Foreign Minister Stresemann, however, expect an allied answer before the end of the next week, nor do they expect any progress toward a settlement until the fall.

Will Not Trouble Von Hindenburg.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 16.—The French government does not intend to interfere with President von Hindenburg's visit to Dusseldorf on June 19, in connection wit hthe Rhineland celebrations.

"Gen von Hindenburg figured in the list of war criminals which the allies handed to Germany, demanding the surrender of him for trial for the outrages he committed in wartime. But when the German government professed its inability to hand over the culprits, and offered the Leipsig court trials, they were accepted. Gen. von Hindenburg was acquitted at Leipzig, so the matter is a closed incident," a Quai d'Orsey spokesman said.

Beside the local German police at Dusseldorf, the French will give President von Hindenburg a military guard.

Monarchists Attack President.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, May 16.—Almost before Field Marshal von Hindenburg was firmly seated in the presidential chair, the extreme monarchist supporters, who were overjoyed at his election, began heaping him with sharp criticism for what they called the betrayal of the cause.

Count Reventlow, one of the strongest leaders of the extreme national party, the reichswart, writes:

"The reader is asked to follow closely excerpts from the speeches of Gen. von Hindenburg. They see at once that Gen. von Hindenburg has expressed opinions, and even positions, that every German nationalist, certainly many of the Volkische-Hitlerites, considered impossible for him to voice.

Objects to Tribute to Ebert.

"To his newest recognition of the treaty of Versailles as a binding document, there follows a warm recognition of Ebert at his hands; he considers Ebert a true patriot. Then follows an underlined expression of the people's sovereignty in the deepest meaning of the constitution. These are things which no German nationalist expected."

Dr. Stresemann, on the other hand, in his paper, Die Zeit, appears to support Gen. von Hindenburg's republican professions, and he calls the efforts of the extremists shameful exhibitions.

EXTENSIONS OF PLATFORMS REST ON "L" PILLARS

Dever Says They Must Be Moved or No Permit.

MAJ. R. F. KELKER JR.

Permits for extension of the elevated railroad's loop station platforms will be given only when the Rapid Transit company agrees to remove its loop structure pillars back to the curb lines, Mayor Dever declared yesterday.

The mayor's statement disposes of reports that the permits would be issued at once if elevated company engineers can convince Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr., the city's traction expert, will increase service. Mr. Kelker is scheduled to confer with the company's officials tomorrow morning.

A commerce commission ruling authorizing the extensions without the city's approval and before the city has secured the concession for which it is contending will be appealed to the courts, the mayor asserted. Elevated company attorneys told the commerce commission a few days ago that the city's failure to sanction the extensions which the state board already has approved prevented the operation of eight to ten car trains and the handling of from 20,000 to 40,000 more passengers per hour at each loop station.

Opportunity for Showdown.

"These applications for station platform extension permits provide an opportunity for a long overdue showdown between the Rapid Transit company and the city," declared the mayor. "It is high time that the traction companies in this town realize that the people have some inherent rights, and one of them, and an important one, is the free and untrammeled use of the streets."

LOSE WORK TIME

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Of the Dever administration, two construction seasons have passed. In that period the city has the power to have obtained forty-six miles of extensions of the surface lines. There was constructed only 10.2 miles and the companies claim they are not derelict in any mileage ordered built. It is the duty of the city council to initiate the extensions.

The city has not prepared its construction program for the present season. Two of the six months available for construction work will probably elapse before the companies will be given the final word to go to work. If the companies take as much time to order rails, ties, other material, and otherwise prepare to work as it will take the city to prepare the order for the work, there would be no extensions whatever this year.

Will Prepare Demands.

The council local transportation committee has appointed a subcommittee to prepare a list of extensions which the city shall ask be built this year. That subcommittee, composed of Aldermen Smith, McKinlay, Meyering, Fick, and Jensen, is scheduled to meet next Wednesday, May 16. After the subcommittee does what it thinks best that day it will have to go to the parent transit committee for approval. Ordinances must be prepared and they must be passed by the city council. That body meets next Wednesday and then probably again on May 27, which is possibly the earliest date on which construction work will be officially decided upon for 1925.

After that has been done the city must file a petition with the Illinois commerce commission asking for an order on the surface lines. That will take more weeks.

Despite the wide publicity which has been given the claim that the companies are required to build 23 miles a year, the fact is that the franchise ordinance requires the city to pass ordinances for the extensions and is limited to 23 miles in a year. The Illinois commerce commission has decided that to have a street car line built the city must supply the street in shape for construction.

Eleven Miles Last Year.

Last year the commerce commission ordered the Chicago railways to build 2.07 miles, the Chicago City railway 3.02 miles, and the Calumet and South Chicago 1.89 miles, which was all constructed. Another short line was ordered, but interested property owners obtained an injunction preventing it. The city asked for a double track on Fullerton avenue between Lotus avenue and North Central avenue.

BUSCH TO ATTEND TROLLEY HEARING IN SPRINGFIELD

Chicago will be represented at the meeting of the senate public utilities committee in Springfield Wednesday, at which the traction situation will come up. Corporation Counsel F. X. Busch is certain to attend the committee's hearings and Mayor Dever declared yesterday he might also appear.

"However, I don't know what else I can say to the senators," said the mayor. "I believe I have made myself clear that the city of Chicago and this administration is definitely opposed to the terminable franchise or permit plan contemplated in the pending Barr traction bill.

"We still believe, as we have said many times, that any legislation which purports to give the city authority to purchase its traction facilities, but at the same time fails to specifically provide the financial and legal means, is merely an idle gesture. Worse, it is simply granting the utilities a perpetual franchise.

"We have offered the senators, at their request, some amendments to existing statutes and suggestions for further legislation, which we believe will stand any test they may be put to and provide Chicago with a sane and logical solution of its pressing traction problems."

DARROW, MALONE OFFER TO AID IN EVOLUTION FIGHT

CLARENCE DARROW

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—Dudley Field Malone of New York and Clarence Darrow of Chicago will oppose William Jennings Bryan in the "Tennessee evolution" case providing Judge John Randolph Neal of Knoxville, Tenn., accepts their services, offered free of charge, in a telegram sent by them today.

"We are certain you need no assistance in your defense of Prof. Scopes, who is to be prosecuted for teaching evolution," they telegraphed, "but we have read the report that William Jennings Bryan has volunteered to aid the prosecution.

"In view of the fact that scientists are so much interested in the pursuit of knowledge that they cannot make the money that lecturers and Florida real estate agents command, in case you should need us, we are willing without fees or expenses to help the defense of Professor Scopes in any way you may suggest or direct."

NOMINATE FIRST BOY FOR CONTEST IN CITIZENSHIP

Week for Youths Opens with Sport Events.

Undaunted by the rules and regulations drawn up by the leading men of Chicago as a guide to distinguish the best citizens of 1950, 600 boys of Association house, 2150 West North avenue, yesterday presented the name of a boy they believe capable of living up to the standard set. He is Robert Carne, a clerk in the credit department of the First National bank. His name was the first to be registered with the Boys' Week federation as a candidate for the honor.

Carne is 18 years of age. He is manager of the Arden Shore clubs at Lake Bluff and is the second generation of his family to be a member of Association house. His mother, who was Miss Pauline Christiansen, belonged to cooking and sewing classes there years ago.

Expect 300 Entries.

Churches, schools, clubs, and other organizations are asked to select and send in the name of one of their boy members whom they consider possesses the characteristics named by the committee. It is estimated that about 300 names will be submitted.

The youthful athletes of the city yesterday refused to allow the weather man to interfere with Boys' day in athletics, the program for the first day of Boys' week. Competition for the fifteen gold and the fifteen silver medals that are to be presented to the winners was close. Semi-finals and finals of the meets will be run off at the Municipal pier next Saturday, when 60,000 boys are expected to compete.

Churches Hold Special Services.

Today is Boys' day in worship. Churches throughout the city and suburbs are devoting their programs to the interests of boys, and in many instances large groups of youngsters are attending worship in a body. In more than 200 pulpits the sermon will be directed at the lads in the congregation.

Dedicate New Pool and Social Rooms at Rosary

Dedication of the new swimming pool and social rooms at Rosary college in River Forest yesterday was attended by hundreds of girls from Chicago, Milwaukee, Bloomington, Racine, Maywood, Evanston, and Oak Park, who were guests of the college students. A water carnival was held in the new pool, which is 120 feet long, 60 feet wide, and roofed with glass. The pool and social rooms occupy a separate wing of the building. Members of the college dramatic club presented a play, "The Roomy Rumor," the work of several of the members.

Handful of French Stands Off Moor Hordes Ten Days

FEZ, French Morocco, May 16.—The relief of the garrison of Oulay, commanding the road to Fez, which was announced today in a communique and which was the only new action reported, discloses a story of heroism and courage reminiscent of the American pioneers in the Indian wars.

The garrison, commanded by Capt. Duboin, had a force of forty Senegalese riflemen, all of whom will get the croix de guerre. The story reveals the nature of the experiences of numerous other outposts isolated by the ingress of the Riffian tribes from the Spanish zone. The relief of Oulay leaves only one outpost, Babcherkj, seven miles away, where the siege has not been raised since the fighting began, although the rebels have surrounded several after the relieving columns were engaged elsewhere.

Bombarded by Moors.

Oulay, which was without artillery, was bombarded with three Riffian field pieces captured by Abd-el-Krim's troops from the Spanish. For ten days the garrison withstood a fierce onslaught by the rebels, who averaged 250 each in several attacks. Even after Lieut. Scharpnelle was seriously wounded, and Capt. Duboin was seriously wounded twice, while half the garrison was hors de combat, cheerful messages were signaled to airplanes which dropped requested supplies, even hand grenades, in the enclosure.

An airplane photograph discovered two of the cannons, which were silenced by French guns several kilometers away, whilst the third was bombed by an airplane. On May 3, noticing a concentration, Capt. Duboin arranged a large water supply, and his was one of the few garrisons which did not have to be supplied with water by the dropping of cakes of ice from airplanes.

On May 4, 250 Riffians attacked the garrison and captured the blockhouse, but they were finally driven out by hand grenades. The bombardment started shattering the walls about the inclosure, but the danger was minimised by the digging of trenches during the night. Barbed wire entanglements replaced broken walls.

The repeated attacks day after day were repulsed, the soldiers often leaving the garrison inclosure to follow up the retreating enemy.

Outnumbered Ten to One.

On May 10 the fighting was especially bitter, the rebels outnumbering the defenders more than ten to one. The Riffians broke through the barbed wire, but they were again driven back by repeated volleys and hand grenades.

Capt. Duboin in this battle was wounded twice, his lieutenant seriously wounded in the stomach, and many soldiers injured as well. Bringing their cannon close, the rebels resumed their bombardment, but the French artillery signaled a French airplane, which successfully silenced it with bombs.

On May 11 Capt. Duboin signaled an airplane: "If you do not want to relieve us, depend on us to defend the road to Fez." This with enemy cannon within 100 meters of the wall.

On May 12 airplanes dropped three croix de guerres, fleur de lys, etc. The Riffians retreated.

On May 13 the attacks were again repulsed.

Repulse Riffs Again.

On May 13, when Bibane Heights were taken by Gen. Colombat, the retreating Riffians again attacked the garrison, but were repulsed.

On May 14 Capt. Duboin signaled the airplanes: "Thanks, I do not need you any more."

Yesterday Gen. Colombat after a "violent combat" relieved the garrison.

Fez is quiet, with no sign of war except the presence of officers, although the wounded are being brought here. The wife of Gen. Chambrun, who is Nicholas Longworth's sister, is among those active in relief work.

CHICAGO VETERAN SHOT IN BATTLE AGAINST MOORS

[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

MADRID, May 16.—Corp. John Garrity of Chicago, a former member of the A. E. F. on the Rhine, and more lately fighting in the Spanish foreign legion in Morocco against Abd-el-Krim, hobbled into the American embassy here supported by one of his legion comrades, a former German enemy, and told the American officials he did not know enough Spanish to ask for his discharge.

Incapacitated permanently by a rifle shot in the knee, Garrity was without funds and decided to ask the ambassador's help to obtain his freedom. He was discharged in Germany and enlisted in the Spanish foreign legion at the consulate in Hamburg. He fought in Morocco in many battles.

The American Red Cross is furnishing him passage home, an American officer having accompanied Garrity to the hospital barracks and obtained his release.

Unlike other dining places—especially famous for their fish and sea-food items—the North American Restaurant keeps prices low. For instance:

Halibut and Peas 40c — an example of the North American's low prices for the finest fish and sea-food

The preparing and cooking of fish and sea-food is quite an art. Very few chefs master it. For that reason any dining place that knows how to cook such items soon becomes famous. When it does the prices usually go up. Yet the North American Restaurant—known far and wide for the quality and flavor of its fish and sea-foods—keeps the prices on the same low level as for all the other good things to eat.

Our Halibut with Peas is often commented upon as the finest portion of fish obtainable in Chicago. Cooked by a chef who specializes in fish it reaches you hot from the pan, juicy and tasty. Each portion is so big it is usually enough for two people. Yet the price is only 40 cents.

And this restaurant is equally noted for all its other specialties—fried Premium chicken, juicy steaks, crisp salads, real "home made" pastry. It makes no difference what you want to eat. By "serving yourself" here you get big portions of the finest food at low prices.

Among our other items are:

Whole Baby Lobster fresh from the sea, tender and sweet with melted butter and chili sauce. Boiled (cold) or Broiled (hot) 75c

Pork Tenderloin: 45c

Fried Chicken: Premium chicken with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce. Dark meat . . 55c White meat 65c

Tenderloin Steak: A thick juicy steak with French fried potatoes and lima beans 85c

And for Breakfast:—

Honey Waffles: With 3 strips of bacon or Mickelberry's Old Farm sausage, butter and pure maple sap or honey 25c

Pot of Coffee: A 2-cup pot of our famous coffee, with plenty of real cream 10c

Dusk was deepening. The Pequot's blinker flashed from the foremast head. Patrols and destroyers were ordered to steam by, put their powerful searchlights on the Pau so it could be photographed.

The Pequot lay to about fifty yards off the schooner's port quarter and the following exchange ensued through megaphones:

News men: "What do you think of the government's blockade?"

Rummy: "Time will tell."

"How are you getting along?"

"Oh-h-h-h, all right."

No Liquor, He Says.

"How much liquor you got on board?"

"Liquor! I h'aint got any o' that."

"What have you got?"

"Fish, that's all; see" (showed fish).

"We're a group of newspaper men who'd like to look you over. Mind if a couple of us come aboard?"

"O, no. Like to oblige you. But nope, I can't. Wouldn't be proper."

"What have you got in those boxes on deck?"

"Fish; I got rid of most of 'em. I hope to tell you."

"Got plenty of water?"

"I hope to tell you we have."

"Drinking it?" asked a facetious news man.

"Nope, not till the fish give out."

Come from Lunenburg.

He was asked where he came from, and answered:

"Lunenburg."

"Where's Lunenburg?"

"In Flatbush." [The accent was good Brooklyn.]

"Don't you want to go back to New York with us?"

"What do you want me to do, put a rope round my neck? . . . I'm enjoying your company."

"When you going to leave?"

"Not till I get ready"—this from the rummy—"and I hope you'll be ready, too."

"What's your name, skipper?"

"Huh, have you ever heard of the Maloneys?"

"Well, Maloney, have you heard the country's going blind?"

"Ha-ha, from drinking too much wood alcohol, eh?"

"No, from using too much bad fish."

Whisky was priced over the side at $20 and $25 a case, and champagne at $35, but none could be moved.

BATTLE OF WORDS

Washington, D. C., May 16—[Special.]—In an effort to protect the public from unwarranted holdups and illegal searches and arrests by prohibition agents, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment announced today that an effort would be made in the next congress to have all dry agents bonded.

WAYNE B. WHEELER.
[H. & E. Photo.]

"Heretofore there has been a number of cases where officers in their efforts to enforce the prohibition law have invaded homes without search warrants and have held up automobiles, subjecting innocent people to deep humiliation and oftentimes injury," said Capt. W. H. Stayton, head of the association.

"Such a condition should cease and congress should take steps to protect the public from unscrupulous dry agents, just as steps have been taken to protect the money in the treasury, by requiring the bonding of those in the prohibition unit who handles its appropriation."

Principal among other developments in the anti-rum war was the announcement by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, that if the organized attack on the eighteenth amendment cannot be stopped by the coast guard an emergency such as the "whisky rebellion" of 1794 may arise which will justify the use of the navy to suppress it.

Mobile, Ala., May 17.—With the arrival here today of the coast guard patrol boat CG-252, en route to Biloxi, Miss., and announcement that several other government boats of similar type are on the way to gulf waters, it is believed that the government blockade against rum runners will be extended to the Alabama and Mississippi gulf coasts.

ROBBERS' CHANCE OF PAYING FULL PENALTY 1 IN 21

12,800 Holdups in 4 Yrs.; 1,098 Punished, Report

BY JOHN HERRICK.

Law enforcers in Chicago have only one chance in seven of bringing to justice in the Criminal courts the robber armed with a gun.

The Chicago crime commission made that statement in their exposition of murder statistics. The commission gave out the figures to prove the statement, and to demonstrate that holdup men in this city enjoy an immunity undreamed of, probably, by the average citizen paying his taxes for the maintenance of law and order.

During the four years, 1921, 1922, 1923, and 1924, there were 7,722 robberies reported by the police, according to the statistics furnished by Henry Barrett Chamberlin and Frank D. Hanna, director and assistant director of the crime commission.

Robberies Near 13,000.

Basing their contention on a year's study, the commission asserts that this number of robberies represents only about 60 per cent of the robberies actually committed. So that the actual robbery figure for the period should be approximately 12,860.

As a rule a large percentage of robberies are engaged in by more than one person. On the other hand, one gang usually commits more than one robbery before its members are caught. For the sake of the estimate, it is figured that two premises about balance each other.

So with the police figures and the estimated actual figures—7,722 and 12,860—as a basis, the following statistics from the criminal courts establish the ratio of immunity the holdup man can look to enjoy, and with which the peaceable citizen must expect to contend.

What Follows Arrest.

During these four years 2,724 persons were tried for robbery with a gun in the criminal courts of Cook county.

Out of this number, only 1,098 received a penalty of any kind.

And below is the series of chances:

Chicago has one chance in seven of imposing any penalty on the robber with a gun on the basis of the police report of robberies. Chicago has one chance in about twelve of imposing any penalty on the basis of the estimated actual number of robberies.

It's not such a bad gamble for the robber, not such a good one for the community, the crime commission contends.

What deterrent effect has the example of punishment on the wouldbe holdup man, Col. Chamberlin and Mr. Hanna ask, when the figures show—based on the police report—that the gun bandit runs only one chance in three of ever being indicted?

And Another Question.

What is the peaceful man's percentage of protection, the commission inquires, when it is shown by the statistics that a man indicted and placed on trial for robbery with a gun has an even break of escaping without any penalty whatsoever?

Ten years to life is the punishment set by statute for the defendant convicted of robbery with a gun. In many cases, as the records of the Criminal court have shown, this penalty is lessened by waiving the gun charge or the entire robbery count, and the defendant is sentenced for simple robbery or grand larceny. Shorter terms in the penitentiary or reformatory are the penalties for these crimes.

But what chance has the holdup man of being sentenced to serve a term in either of these state penal institutions?

Little Chance He'll Serve.

The figures show that he has one chance out of slightly more than eight of being sentenced to such a term, on the basis of the number of robberies reported by the police. They show that he has one chance out of about fifteen, on the basis of the estimated actual number of robberies.

Take one more set of figures furnished by the crime commission. These show that only about two defendants out of five are actually tried on the full indictment for robbery with a gun. And they show further that only one defendant out of eight so indicted ever reaches the penitentiary for the full sentence of ten years to life.

What does that proportion show applied to the figures already set forth?

One Chance in Twenty-Two.

It shows that on the basis of the police report of robberies the man who goes out with a gun to rob faces only one chance in twenty-two of ever being sentenced to pay the full penalty prescribed by law for his crime.

DR. FRANK BILLINGS TO SPEAK ON PASTEUR AT M. E. CHICAGO TEMPLE

Dr. Frank Billings will speak this evening at 8 o'clock at the Chicago temple, Clark and Washington streets, on the subject, "Pasteur, a Great Benefactor of Mankind." Dr. Billings is chairman of the Pasteur Memorial and Research scholarship and heads a committee of prominent Chicago citizens who are raising a fund of $100,000 to erect a memorial monument here. The common practice of pasteurization of milk and the Pasteur treatment for persons bitten by mad dogs are some of the well known discoveries of the great scientist. At the service tonight George W. Dixon will preside and Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the church, will conduct the devotions.

NORWEGIANS IN U.S. TO CELEBRATE LANDING IN 1825

Norwegians and citizens of Norwegian descent in Chicago and throughout the United States will celebrate today the 100th anniversary of the landing of the first of their people in the country, just a century ago, on the little sloop Restoration. The main centennial will be held in Minneapolis and St. Paul, where representatives from all parts of the nation will take part in the national celebration.

Locally the celebration will open in Humboldt park. This will start with a parade of children in native costumes from the Association house at North and Hoyne avenues and to the park, where Judge Edgar A. Jonas is scheduled to make a speech.

Then all will proceed in an automobile parade to the Broadway armory, where the remainder of the program is to be given. The celebration will begin at 3 p. m. There will be music, drilling, singing, and speaking.

GEN. BULLARD'S REMINISCENCES OF WORLD WAR

Leader of Second Army of A. E. F. Tells Story.

know, by one who within forty-eight hours had paid with his life for his disobedience to Capt. Pershing—died of cholera. I buried him.

Of Cadet Pershing one memory more. He was a hop-goer, what cadets call a "spoony" man. He loved the society of women. That, too, like other early characteristics, seems to have held on to him.

On leaving the Military Academy Wiley Bean, an erratic, queer fellow of a classmate, seems better than any other of Pershing's associates to have divined what was in Pershing for development. By nature a politician's, Wiley's queer mind, seeing something unusually superior and promising in his classmate, jumped at political honors for him. "He will be President," said Wiley. He has not become President, but before the world he has risen almost as high as the presidency, and his place in history is as secure as most presidents.

Serving after graduation in the Apache country near him, I heard favorable comments of him as a chaser, with others, of the Apache Kid, and I met him at rifle competitions. Then my army associates talk of his having attracted the attention and friendship of the great American, Theodore Roosevelt, at the Battle of Santiago, or at least during the Spanish-American war. But, personally, I came no more in contact with him until 1902, in the Moro country, in Mindanao. Here he clearly showed the qualities that made his career.

Capt. Pershing and the Moros.

On account of the violently warlike, savage, marauding and aggressive disposition of the Moros their control had been left to the army when the rest of the Philippine islands passed under the American civil government. An American expedition into central Mindanao, in 1901 or 1902, resulted in the military occupation by the United States of the south shore of Lake Lanao. Thither Captain Pershing, on account of his special knowledge of Moro character, habits, customs and religion, was at once called by General George W. Davis, commanding the department, to be military commander and take charge of relations with the Moros there. He was given this duty when there were on the spot other officers many years his senior in age and service. This was accomplished, of course, by a species of military jugglery, but it was amply justified by the condition.

In his services in the Moro country I noticed his loyal adherence to the orders, plans, and wishes of his superiors. These were almost always contrary to the views and desires of brother officers and soldiers about him, and he was steadily and severely criticised for his strict adherence to those orders when he might have varied—all of no avail, he still adhered.

Loyal Acceptance of Authority.

This then became, or had already become; it has remained, and today stands out to me as the marked characteristic of the man—loyal acceptance and obedience to authority, no criticism or fault finding with the plans and conduct of affairs by his superiors. I saw him immediately after the fearful German drive, in March, 1918. The whole allied world looked black, everybody was laying blame.

"It looks bad," he said, "but I suppose it couldn't be helped; our authorities have seemed to do all they know how."

Such is the man as I saw him that came to command the A. E. F. in Europe—ambitious, fit, and intent upon his purpose; vigorous, firm, thoughtful, discreet, impersonal and dispassionate in requiring obedience, creating and holding confidence by this very efficiency, but nowhere arousing enthusiasm except upon success; not a personal leader; admirable, but not magnetic.

Almost two years later at the pinnacle of success I see him as he reviews and speaks to his victorious troops without stirring their enthusiasm. I write . . . "the lack-scandal and lack-discontent of this war as compared with others will make him one of the most successful Americans and would probably make him President if he but had a little more 'mixing' ability. He inspires no enthusiasm ever; respect, yes, but respect doesn't generally elect a President."

A visit to the camp, a brief talk stating his expectations as to the conduct and work of the first arrived American contingent and he was gone, for one of his most marked characteristics was the directness and simplicity of action. He has done his greatest deeds as simply and naturally as a man washes his face when he arises in the morning.

SCHOOLING AMERICAN ARMY

As soon as we came into the atmosphere of war and our training for war really began, the first thing that struck my attention was the fact that every soldier in this war was a specialist. Now that we were almost in contact with the enemy it seemed that little of our previous training, except discipline, fitted the special conditions that were before us.

We had trained infantrymen with the rifle and now we found that the infantryman was not only a rifle man, but a rifle-grenade man, a hand grenade man, a light machine gunner, a heavy machine gunner, a Stokes mortar man, a gas specialist, sometimes a signal man and sometimes half artilleryman for the accompanying gun. Soldiers of other arms of the service, artillery, engineers, signal men and even labor troops, were similarly required to be all sorts of specialists.

The teachings of previous wars could not cover all the subjects of this great war, whose lessons had not been allowed by our government to be studied. In the midst of war we had to prepare for war. We had new reason to thank God for our allies who stood between us and the enemy while we could with deliberation and under protection prepare to meet him.

Made Head of A. E. F. Schools.

On the [illegible] of July, I was selected from Gen. Pershing's headquarters, our highest here in France, as the head of all our schools to be established, and I was sent with the heads of our various schools, first to our Paris headquarters for orders and then all of us, in groups, out from Paris to visit various French and English schools in France for the training of officers and noncommissioned officers in the kind of warfare that we were to expect here.

AT THE END OF THE LONG, LONG TRAIL

Maj. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, whose reminiscences of the world war appear daily in The Tribune beginning today, taking leave of men of his command upon retirement from active service. He had commanded the First division, the Third corps, and the Second army in the A. E. F.; and many of the veterans to whom he said good-by had followed his fortunes since distant days in the Philippines. [Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

In the party which accompanied me visiting the French schools were two men who afterward took very leading parts in the American operations in France. They were Col. James McAndrew, afterward major general and chief of staff of the A. E. F., and Maj. Harold B. Fiske, afterward G-5 charged with the military instruction of the A. E. F., both graduates and instructors of the school of the line at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., and both types of the best and most advanced military students of the United States army.

It would be hard, however, to find two men of more opposite character and two men who, nevertheless, so completely understood each other and worked in unison. McAndrew had come to France in command of a regiment of infantry and Fiske as adjutant of my infantry brigade. When the urgency of instruction loomed before the eyes of the commander in chief both of these men were unhesitatingly separated from their commands and put to the work for which they were eminently fit, as was afterward shown in the establishment and the results of the entire school and instruction system of the American Expeditionary force in France.

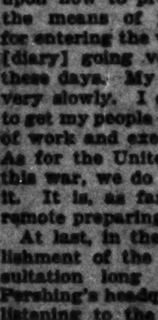
Heads A. E. F. Staff College.

McAndrew was of peculiarly agreeable disposition, always most careful and considerate of the military opinions of others, yet decided and firm in his own convictions, with the happy ability to avoid arousing opposition to them—a man of great tact.

Quite different was Fiske. A silent man, keeping his own counsels, very tenacious and uncompromising of his military opinions, of disposition almost morose, and so strong in his own convictions that there was in him always a tendency to override the opinions of others. McAndrew was preëminently a staff officer; Fiske a high type of instructed professional line officer.

To McAndrew fell later the establishment of the staff college for the whole American Expeditionary Force in France at Langres. This became the head school, a place where staff officers and instructors for all other schools, arms, divisions, and corps were hurriedly pressed through as they arrived in France. And Fiske became, at the headquarters of the American Expditionary Force, the officer charged with the field instruction and drill of that entire force. The skill of McAndrew and his great military knowledge established and made the Langres Staff college; the firmness in execution and skill in military instruction of Fiske held up the whole American Expeditionary Force, as its parts arrived in France, to the hardest, most uncompromising, and intensive system of drill that the American army has ever known or probably ever will know.

McAndrew, Fiske, and all of the officers engaged upon the work of establishing schools were under the direction of Col. Paul Malone, general staff, at Gen. Pershing's headquarters. He, like Fiske and McAndrew, was one of the most militarily educated officers of our service. Under his administration all of the schools of every branch of the service were established in France. When he was appointed to a line command, Fiske took his place and continued the work. In the training of troops it was Fiske's hand and his personality that were above all manifest.



BRIG. GEN. PAUL B. MALONE.

U. S. Slow to Get Into War.

Six weeks after the arrival in France the officers and men composing the troops had not yet got their bearings upon how to prepare themselves and the means of preparing themselves for entering the war. "Things are not [diary] going very much to suit me these days. My school work proceeds very slowly. I do not somehow seem to get my people down to the real thing of work and execution. They scatter. As for the United States getting into this war, we do not seem to be doing it. It is, as far as I see it, a very remote preparing."

At last, in the matter of the establishment of the schools, after a consultation long drawn out at Gen. Pershing's headquarters in Paris, after listening to the advice and suggestions and differences of opinion of many staff officers on the subject, I turned to the officer who was especially charged with the matter, Col. Paul Malone, and said:

"You are taking too much advice. Tell us what you want done and we will do it."

His answer was, in substance, "All right; go and establish the schools."

Within a week the first of them, at Gondrecourt, was well under way. The way to begin is to begin. This school was first started as a first division school, with a personnel of less than 100 men—teachers, attendants, cooks, laborers, and students—with some twenty tents and two little portable barracks.

Among the officers of the 1st division there largely prevailed our old idea that experience in war was the only proper teacher of war making, and that, war having come, schools should cease and we should take the field and learn war there. This explains the small beginnings of the first school. The division commander and many of his officers seemed to regard the school idea as puerility, a fad of schoolmen, very troublesome and irritating at a time when everybody was getting ready to fight.

These ideas remained among Americans until they had seen the front and real war. Then every commander wanted officers and men who had been through the schools. The demand for instruction in the schools soon became so great that it could not be met.

School Classes for Thousands.

A year later the 1st Division school had become the 1st Corps school, with a personnel of between 2,500 and 3,000 men. It educated and prepared for active operations against the enemy in the field thousands of officers, noncommissioned officers and specialists—machine gunners, automatic riflemen and bayonet specialists, grenadiers, Stokes mortar men, engineers, signalers, every kind of specialist in field artillery, platoon leaders, company commanders, battalion and regimental commanders—all for the special work which they were to do. This school and its sister schools that later were started may justly be regarded as the explanation of the success of the Americans in their warfare.

Our demands on British and French seemed to both at the time exorbitant. Neither had any just idea of how great the need of instruction was going to be in the American forces. We knew. These schools, whose establishment was begun at Gondrecourt, were to be the proof of the clear vision of the commander in chief and the officers working under his direction on the lines of the greatness of our subsequent development. Nothing in the whole American Expeditionary force in France came nearer filling the bill of American needs than these schools. And they were typically American—built in a hurry to meet just the needs of the hour and no more.

By the spring of 1918 we had dotted France with these schools, schools for everything for every branch and every specialty of the service, even to chaplains. The nation was going to war, and, inasmuch as it had refused in time of peace to prepare for war, it was necessary to do so in time of the war itself, for it had to be done.

TROUBLE WITH WASHINGTON

A long wait from the first until the last of September in daily expectation of arrival of some 700 American student officers showed to me a remarkable lack of coördination between our authorities in the United States and those in the A. E. F. Either the means of communication were lacking or men at one or both ends of the line were failing to coöperate.

The ordinary member of the American expeditionary force in France heard from time to time that the cablegrams and other demands of the commander in chief in France were piling up in Washington unacted upon for long periods. The indications were that this was true and the trouble was here. Of course, as the nation had entered upon the war unprepared it is probable that had the very best of good will obtained on both sides of the water there would still have been delays. It is also true that the American people, and probably the American government, was not yet alive to the urgency of the matter and to the fact that we were in a very, very serious war. But it is also true that it was at about this time that the chairman of the United States senate military committee declared that the "war department had ceased to function."

I could not help recalling the hesitancy and blockade of detail against proper organization which I had noted at the war department as I passed on my way to France—lack of organization and driving force, a lack of comprehension of "what we were up against." Some months later, with a new chief of staff, this condition ceased.

Meets the French Officers.

While with the schools I was sent by the commander in chief to attend a French officers' lyceum in the group of armies commanded by Gen. de Castelnau in Alsace-Lorraine. It was confidential. Officers of high rank, generals, and colonels of De Castelnau's armies attended—all that could be spared from facing the enemy at the time. The subjects touched were of high importance and the newest in the war.

I was impressed by the difference between the French officers' public show of confidence about winning the war and the private and confidential feeling that there was almost no chance of winning as the conditions then stood. The French newspapers and French official public utterances were very optimistic. France was ringing with cries of disorganization in the German people, of failure of German commerce and industry and the breaking down of confidence in the German government. Not so this session of high military officers. They frankly faced and acknowledged that there was at that time almost no chance of victory.

But the session, strange to say, instead of discouraging those who attended, seemed to have just the reverse effect. French officers left there with a better comprehension of the conditions that were before them and with a renewed will to face it out. They were perhaps encouraged by the recovering morale of the French army. This morale, from its low state of a few months ago resulting from the French defeats in the spring of 1917 and the treasonable pro-German efforts of the influential Frenchmen, Caillaux and Malvy, was now rising daily.

This I did not then understand. In time I better comprehended it. Gen. Petain has succeeded Gen. Nivelle. He found this low morale; he set to work to raise it; it had to be done. Better than any other French commander he understood his people. Knowing the French were in no condition to fight, he made little effort to have them do so, and when he did fight he was careful to take for each effort a very limited objective which he was sure could be attained. For the same reason he also begged Marshal Haig, says a credible post-war rumor from London, to put forth all effort to draw the Germans to the British front.

MARSHAL PETAIN.

Then French soldiers were bitterly complaining of not being allowed to visit their homes; that their wives and children were suffering, being neglected; that their affairs were going to ruin; that their food was bad; that their officers paid little attention to the soldiers' condition.

Red Cross Cash Helps France.

Leaves for the men and greater attention to their needs were ordered by Petain. But funds were needed at once. Just then, through the personal efforts of Gen. Pershing, the American Red Cross turned over to Marshal Petain some millions in cash. With this, I heard, the work of helping French soldiers began without delay. Once begun, the French government came to aid and in from three to four months the whole French army was a changed thing. Any one could see it.

This work of Petain endeared him forever to the French. Marshal Foch they admire for his great courage, military genius, and world prestige; they are proud of him. But Petain they love. He knew their hearts. He knew what they could do and when they could do it. Like Foch, he knew how to fight, but, unlike Foch, he knew when not to fight. His work in the summer and fall of 1917 saved the French from giving up under the despair of defeat and under the pro-German corruption of the times.

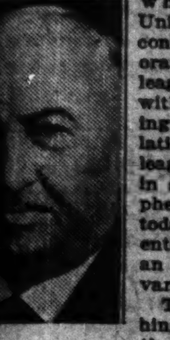
U. S. WINS TILT TO PREVENT LEAGUE CONTROL OF ARMS

Burton's Stand Threatens Crisis at Geneva.



T. E. BURTON.
[Harris & Ewing]

GENEVA, May 16.—[A. P.]—The first round in the fight to determine whether the United States can continue to collaborate with the league of nations without undertaking any official relations with the league was staged in a tense atmosphere in Geneva today and apparently ended with an American advantage.

The combat hinged on whether the central office for reception and coördination of statistics of the traffic in arms should be established by the league council. The draft convention says "yes," but the United States says "no," and today Representative Theodore E. Burton explained why it must be "no."

Burton Explains U. S. Refusal.

The burden of Mr. Burton's argument was that inasmuch as the United States was not a member of the league it was difficult for it to accept a treaty which institutes an organization which will be directed by the league. Countries adhering to the league countered this argument by proposing that the United States and Germany be added to the league council when it meets to appoint the central arms board.

The representatives of the other league states, who are believed to be straining every effort to maintain what they call America's friendly attitude to the league, suggested complete abandonment of the proposed central board.

In this way the delicate problem raised by the American delegation would cease to exist, the league members, who total 55, would not be asked to forsake their loyalty to the Geneva institution, and chances that the United States senate would ratify the proposed arms convention would be vastly improved.

Finally the whole problem was sent to a special committee of ten, of which the president will be Dr. Guerrero of Salvador, who is vice president of the conference. In view of the grave importance of the issue, the conference decided not to sit Monday morning in order to leave that period entirely free for the committee's deliberations.

Today's session indicated the conference's anxiety to please the United States and the existence of confidence that a formula would be found to satisfy American scruples without damaging the league itself.

Crisis in Conference Seen.

Yet it seems that the conference has reached a real crisis. As in the case of the central opium board at the opium conference, from which the American delegation withdrew, the delegates from the league countries desire to strengthen the league as an international institution by having the central arms board function under its auspices.

The league covenant itself makes this obligatory. The Wilsonian pact commits not only all the members to exchange information about armaments through the medium of the league secretariat, but declares that all international bureaus, on whatever subject, shall be operated under the league. Members, therefore, are in a quandary and are wondering how far they are entitled to go in trying to meet American objections. They frankly admit that observance of American wishes puts them to the disagreeable necessity of going back on the covenant to which they subscribed.

DEPUTIES QUIT MUSSOLINI ON ANTI-MASON BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, May 16.—Premier Mussolini tonight suffered a temporary setback when a roll call vote on his anti-secret societies bill, aimed to wipe out Freemasonry, disclosed the lack of a quorum. The vote was then postponed until Tuesday. The sudden disappearance of the deputies is variously interpreted, but it is now clear that there are many Masons among Sig. Mussolini's majority.

A speaker for the Catholic party said: "Freemasonry has exhausted itself in Italy after uniting the country in the war for independence."

An insurgent Fascist, Sig. Rocca, warned parliament that the bill empowers the police to arrest and crush any organization, even a business firm, and that they could also expel the Jesuit order.

"Before the war," Premier Mussolini said, "the Italian people were confronted on the one hand by predatory syndicates of Rome and on the other by men who ruled the Vatican. They were tired of a parliament which they saw wallowing in mediocrity and influenced by Masonry. Today we take action against this old Italy. It is a symbol of our courage, of our oath, and it is the emblem of our future."

The final proof of quality and satisfaction is the opinion of the owners. Here are a few extracts from letters we have received:

"The performance of my Hupmobile Eight is startling. Its operation is so quiet and smooth you are hardly conscious of an engine. It has a most remarkable get-away, with a world of power, and is as light as a feather in handling and parking, with no vibration at any speed. It truly makes motoring a pleasure."
F. T. Conley of the

"WONDERFUL CAR FOR WOMEN TO DRIVE!"

"I did not believe that it was possible to manufacture a car with the comfort, pick-up, economy, and retain the ease of handling and parking. My Hupmobile Eight Cylinder Coupe is the finest and most economical and easiest car to handle I have ever driven. It performs so wonderful that I am having my wife learn to drive."

One Day's Delivery of Hupmobile Eights for Chicago!

5963 Delivered to Date!

Chicago more than likes the Hupmobile Eight—it is enthusiastic and every day Chicago is demanding more Hupmobile Eights.

They are buying the Hupmobile because they know it stands up better and longer, because it outperforms and because it costs less to keep.

The great Hupmobile Straight Eight Compact Engine was a sensation to automotive engineers, now it is a proven wonder to owners who have driven thousands of miles.

Every man and woman who is familiar with the finest in motor cars should drive the Hupmobile Eight to see for themselves how far ahead of ordinary fine car performance it really is.

A phone call will bring the model of your choice to your door that you may drive it anywhere and as you like.

PROHIBITION AND SOCIAL HABIT.

The controversy over prohibition is at bottom the result of a difference in social habit. There are of course issues of principle involved and they are important, but the number of men and women who can be deeply stirred by an abstract idea or a principle which does not express itself in a tangible form pressing directly and seriously upon them is very small.

The stronghold of prohibition sentiment is in the rural west and south and it helps materially to understand that sentiment to realize that among the people of this region the moderate use of alcoholic beverages is and always has been largely unknown. The view of our people of the whole question of teetotalism is therefore bound to be very one sided. The use of alcoholic beverages which the dry has in mind is not reasonable use but immoderate use. The issue is pictured wholly in terms of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," the drunkard's brutalities, the miseries of his family, the cruel waste of the family resources, the destruction of the home, the selfish indulgences and vicious accompaniments of the grogshop and the den of vice.

Among the great majority of prohibitionists there is virtually no experience in the temperate use of alcohol to offset this dark and tragic reality and no personal sacrifice of a reasonable habit, a justified indulgence, is involved. Prohibitionists find it easy to demand that another shall give up something that has never been a part of their lives and, looking only at the abuse of strong drink, it is natural they should condemn bitterly any one who is not willing to make what to them is no sacrifice at all. To the conscientious dry, one who resists prohibition is merely preferring a negligible, if not deleterious, indulgence to the abolition of the bestiality and cruelty which he imagines are the principal effects of the use of alcoholic beverages.

On that ground wet and dry can never agree, for they are not looking at the same facts. The conscientious opponent of prohibition knows that the majority of those who have used wine or beer or even liquors have not abused them in any serious extent. He does not deny there has been abuse, but he does not concede that the existence of abuse justifies prohibition of proper use. He finds pleasure and, as he believes, benefit from proper use and he feels that it should not be denied him because another abuses the habit. He recognizes abuse and he favors such measures as may be practicable to check abuse, but he does not concede either the justice or expediency of a measure which for the sake of preventing abuse prohibits use.

If this were a full statement of the issue, agreement might finally be reached. But it is not. The trouble is that largely for the social reasons we have stated the dry does not really believe there can be any proper use of alcoholic beverages. He may not make this assertion, but it is at the base of his convictions. That is why he is willing to override the wet's argument for the right of personal judgment. He believes that he is acting for his opponent's good in the concrete and his opponent's abstract right to decide for himself what is good or bad weighs very little, if at all, in his theorizing.

This conviction that there can be no proper use of any beverage capable of producing intoxication is expressed in the dry argument that as we prohibit the use, save for medicines, of drugs we are justified in prohibiting liquors, wine, and beer. We quote a recent dry editorial: "If we are going to grant a personal liberty in the use of intoxicants, we might consistently go one step farther and grant the use of 'dope.' The difference is merely a difference of degree."

It is useless for opponents of law imposed teetotalism to reply to that argument that coffee also has toxic qualities and is considered poisonous by respectable physicians, and that therefore it would be also consistent and merely a matter of degree to go one step farther than alcoholic prohibition and prohibit coffee. The drys, looking solely at the tragic evils of drunkenness and the liquor traffic and refusing to consider that there is a proper use of alcohol and a right to enjoy such use, would simply consider the coffee analogy as flippantly exaggerated and unfeeling. Opponents of prohibition consider that the dry's effort to discredit rational use of alcoholic beverages by this analogy with "dope" is exaggerated and indicates a distorted and one sided view of the drink problem.

This assumption that there can be no proper or justifiable use of alcoholic beverages is indicated by the frequent reference in prohibitionist polemics to the enforcement of the prohibition of murder. To the prohibitionist there seems no important distinction here and the law against the taking of life and the law against the taking of intoxicants are viewed as on the same plane and as having about the same sanction. In any consideration of the problem of enforcement this confusion of thought, as we believe it to be, is especially subversive of practical judgment, but of that phase of the controversy we shall have more to say another time.

What we would emphasize here is that prohibition has confronted one very large fraction of the American people which has one social habit with another very large fraction which has another social habit, and it is this underlying fact which makes the prohibition issue the gravest in our history since the civil war. That conflict might and should have been avoided by foresight and the cultivation of understanding, and the different but hardly less deplorable effects of the prohibition controversy may be ended or at any rate greatly mitigated by the same means. It was the extremists on both sides that brought about the civil conflict of 1861 and it is the extremists on both sides of the prohibition issue that will bring about an internal discord as injurious to the nation's welfare as civil war.

TOLLS EXEMPTION UP AGAIN.

American ship owners, organized and aware of their own welfare, have presented to the President their views upon the sale of the government merchant fleet and its successful operation in private hands. We in the west recognize a substantial interest in the development of an American merchant service and the best opinion of this region has not been expressed by government ownership advocates, but favors a return to private enterprise, while realizing that some measure of government aid continues to be expedient, not to say necessary.

But in admitting the need for government aid, at least during a transition period, the west protests against bearing an unjust burden or accepting unjust and unnecessary discriminations. We object, among other things, to the proposal to exempt coastwise shipping from payment toward the cost and upkeep of the canal. That proposal is unfair to us directly and its result would be injurious to our commerce, our transport development, and to our industrial prosperity. Already the canal has embarrassed and injured midwestern railways and put our business at an unjust advantage with both coasts.

We hope midwest and western representation in congress will unite resolutely to resist this proposal, and let the eastern and Pacific coast interests know that if they expect our acquiescence in proper measure for shipping aid, they will not try to impose unjust discriminations and favors upon us. The midwest and west are not as conscious of its economic interests in national legislation as the east, and seldom unite for the common defense. It is time we woke up to our situation.

A JOB FOR HOOVER.

Largely through the influence of Herbert Hoover, the inquiry into the cost and practicability of the St. Lawrence seaway has been undertaken jointly by our government and Canada. Mr. Hoover has also brought about an inquiry into the project for an all-American seaway connecting the lakes with the Hudson. He is an engineer of attainments and secretary of commerce. He hates waste, and that is why he is deeply concerned with the development of outlets to the sea from the interior of the continent. He knows that one of the great wastes in our national life is our failure to utilize to the full the advantages which nature has given us. He is aware, also, of the economic waste in time and man power resulting from transshipping goods for export.

That is why Mr. Hoover is the man to address in connection with completing the middle west's southern gateway. The Mississippi route has been indicated to the middle west since the days of Father Marquette. For the better part of a century efforts have been made to develop it but without success.

We suggest that Mr. Hoover is the man to bring the waterway to completion. He has the technical knowledge, he has expressed approval of the project, he is powerful in Washington, and, above all, he has the gift for successful negotiation. Now, when the eastern projects are for the moment in no need of his attention, is the time to press upon him the leadership in the Mississippi development.

ADD GEMS OF PACIFISM.

At the recent convention of the National League of Women Voters, we are informed by the Illinois organ of that organization, an "outstanding" address was that of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, leading league of nations advocate. We cull only one gem from what is offered as Mrs. Catt's confession of faith, to wit:

"I believe the first cure (for war) is compulsory arbitration to which every nation on earth must voluntarily agree and to this end every nation must enter into solemn compact with every other nation not only to submit any dispute arising to arbitration but it must agree to abide by the award."

We may safely trust a pacifist to sow the flowery path of peace with more "musts" than there are spines on a cactus. We like especially this amiable peace evangelist's locution, "must voluntarily," and we have no doubt that compulsory arbitration of all differences, such as Asiatic exclusion, will be as warmly embraced by the nations as compulsory arbitration of industrial disputes by organized labor.

TELEPHONE DISCOURTESY.

Half a dozen men whose time is valuable are gathered in the office of one to discuss a business project or a matter of business policy. Each is a capable man, an expert in his own phase of the subject under consideration. They have been assembled with some difficulty and by specific appointment, because each has many duties to occupy his attention, and whatever time he uses is at the sacrifice of something else.

The telephone rings. It is peremptory in its demand for attention. Perhaps no call or sound in the world is more impersonally peremptory.

The man at the desk, who has arranged this meeting, begs pardon in a tone which assumes that it is already granted, and answers the phone. He talks for a minute, two minutes, ten minutes, as the case may be. The progress of the meeting is not only delayed but set back. The time of the six men in the room is wasted at what may be the casual whim of the outsider. A man who has made no appointment pushes himself ahead of others who have met by appointment. The man in whose office the meeting occurs aids and abets the discourtesy. The men whose time is wasted and whose thoughts are jumbled and nerves irritated by the interruption may rage internally, but they know nothing about the importance or unimportance of the call, and they are polite and silent.

Similar incidents in smaller and perhaps less important office meetings are innumerable. If the person whose phone rings has no secretary to keep such interruptions from him, there is a shadow of excuse, but only a shadow. In such case he may use his judgment as to the possible importance of the call compared with the importance of the matter in hand.

But too many persons ignore all such considerations in replying to the peremptory demand of the telephone bell, and too many persons take advantage of this fact to break in on the time of men who would not grant them an interview in person. The telephone is an invaluable factor in the modern conduct of business. But it is also a potential instrument of torture and means of flagrant discourtesy. Many men who would throw out an interloper who opened their doors and entered their offices unannounced will tolerate a similar interruption by phone.

Does the telephoning intruder ever ask if he is interrupting, and suggest that he might call at a more auspicious time? Seldom, if ever. Does the recipient of the call ever state that he is engaged with other men and will accept or answer the call later? Too seldom, if ever. It is merely one of the bad practices of our times.

The courteous, the efficient, and the intelligent man tries to arrange his business otherwise.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

Skyland, N. C. Even ten years ago and less the mountain roads were for horses and the man on foot. The stride of the Appalachian mountaineer has no apparent buoyancy or power, but it is tireless. He will hoist a sack of meal on his shoulders and the mountainside runs down under his feet.

Hard roads with easy grades now go in all directions. Less than ten years ago the traveler on horse took a week from inn to inn or from a farm in a valley to a group of cabins in a cove. Now a day covers the region. The car will climb Pisgah in less than an hour, circling by late azaleas and dogwood, laurel, and early rhododendrons.

It will run into the Sapphire lake region in a day. Lake Toxaway, the most famous of the man-made tarns of western North Carolina, went out in a cloudburst several years ago and the dam has not been rebuilt, but Fairfield and Sapphire remain.

Whoever likes a dip into the past will leave the hard surface road and take the bumps of a rough way up by a tumbling mountain stream, around coves, and above valleys to the clearing from which there is view of the blue misted ranges piling up to the far horizon.

There is the late eighteenth century still a part of the twentieth. The women work the looms and blankets and clothes come from the sheep out on the slopes. It is almost a self-contained life, but the stock is not driven to market down the trail. It goes in a truck.

THE PASSING OF CHIVALRY.

The intercollegiate conference meeting at Ithaca recently decided that something would have to be done to control college publications. Particularly the humorous ones. The conference thought that faculty censorship might do something toward eliminating the smut which, it was said, fills the college papers.

A generation or two ago there was no such problem. Sex was a matter for the biological laboratories and not for the funny papers. The American woman was on her pedestal and respect for her was instinctive, as all the travelers from abroad used to write in their memoirs. Since then a revolution in the status of woman has taken place in this country. She has definitely entered into competition with men in the world of affairs. She has all the opportunities for education which used to be reserved for men only; she is man's equal in political life. From an inferior she has become superior before the marriage law because he is forced to support her and she doesn't have to support him. She has abandoned her pedestal and is standing on her own feet. She goes farther; she tries her best to trample the toes of the men who are competing with her in industry, trade, the professions and the arts by insisting upon a code of conduct which presumes she is still a helpless inferior. Sisters abuse the male sex upon every occasion.

Chivalry was born when men possessing all the power and all the privileges volunteered to wait on and cherish the helpless. It was the finest moral development the world has known.

Feminism has killed it.

SAVING $300,000,000.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

Congress is the decisive factor in any thoroughgoing program of economy. And congress, we were reminded recently by Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee of the house, is not just about to start on a program of economy. It is all through economizing and headed in the opposite direction. Said Mr. Madden (March 15) in the course of a statement which has never had the attention it deserves:

"In my judgment the appropriations have practically reached the post-war low water mark, and from this year on we are likely to have increases in them rather than further decreases. The present congress has placed upon the statute books several new laws which will require increased outlays to carry them into execution."

That last sentence tells the story. How the "new laws which will require increased outlays" are going to be harmonized with a program of retrenchment to the extent of $240,000,000 we have yet to see. Meantime we may note this much: 1. There are people who regard themselves as great friends of economy in government who do not hesitate to pile huge expenditures on the government for the enforcement of such laws as the Volstead law. 2. There are more people who also regard themselves as great friends of economy in government who do not stop to consider how economy is affected by an endless demand for subsidies, bonuses, and federal aid for state and local projects.

In any broad definition of the term, "economy" is not a matter of a few discharged employés and a few hopeful "2-per-cent clubs," but of an attitude toward government.

Real retrenchment can only be effected through simplification of the responsibilities of government. The alternative is an ever-increasing "enforcement" activity on the part of the government and an ever-increasing bid for subsidies.

BACKACHE.

THERE are a few areas in the body that do the talking for many other areas. Pain, aching, and cough are the three great languages spoken by the body. There are a few others of lesser consequence, such as sensation of heat and cold, bad taste, flashes of light, vertigo, head noises, and nausea.

Of the three great dialects cough is spoken only by the lungs, vocal cords, and accessory apparatus. More than one organ located far away from the lungs calls on the respiratory apparatus to cough as a call for help coming from the distant area.

Comparatively few of the organs in the body can feel either pain or aching. When such organs feel the need of talking they must talk through some other organ. The organs in the abdomen are very poorly equipped with facilities of speech. The stomach is called on to do nearly all the talking for nearly all the abdominal organs. The expressions it uses are nausea, acidity, belching, loss of appetite, unnatural appetite, and pain.

The stomach is quite a linguist. Another loud speaker is the back. Its language goes by the name of backache.

Backache may be due to conditions in the back, but more frequently the trouble is elsewhere. Among the causes which may speak through the back in a language commonly called backache are fatigue, worry, anxiety, neurasthenia, constipation, pelvic disorders, infections and other diseases of the urinary organs and especially pyelitis, neuralgia, neuritis, muscular rheumatism, rheumatism of the vertebral joints, sacro-iliac sprain, and Pott's disease.

Dr. W. C. Danford says: "A careful and adequate physical examination is the right of every person who applies for relief of backache."

Let us say this emphatically: The belief that a woman with a backache necessarily has a pelvic disorder is frequently wrong. He calls attention to the frequency with which women with backache are operated on merely because they have a displacement. Most displacements do not cause backache and operation does not cure the backache. Just as frequently it makes it worse.

The same condemnation applies to operations to remove the tip of the vertebral column as a means of curing backache.

If muscular rheumatism is the cause the upper part of the back is liable to be sore as well as the lower. In many cases a fairly good guess as to the cause of the aching can be made by having the patient bend over, the body being bare. The sore area will not bend with the balance of the column. Or some of the backbones may protrude unduly.

At that, a diagnosis as to the cause of backache is not always easy.

HOPE AND COURAGE.

W. C. F. writes: Your writeup of Dr. Norman Bridge will give hope and courage to many sufferers.

1. But how did he cure himself?
2. When it becomes established that one's lungs are infected, what is to be done next?
3. Is it necessary or advisable to leave this climate in April with the summer coming on?
4. Is there any literature on consumption that one who is infected should read?

REPLY.

1. I do not know the details. He cured himself before I came here. I have understood that he went to Los Angeles and there took the rest-open air-feeding cure.
2. Go into a sanitarium; take the rest-feeding-open air cure; learn the rules of right living.
3. No.
4. Yes. You can get it from health departments and tuberculosis societies. There are many helpful books on sale.

SHE SHOULD EXERCISE.

A. H. writes: I have a relative who is a stenographer and has a position where she is practically confined to one chair. Some three years ago she developed a slight growth in the middle of the spine, which was removed. Now she is troubled with a pain which she definitely locates at the extreme base of the spine. It is too painful to touch and it is bothersome. I understand that is quite frequent among office workers. Will you please advise what this may be?

REPLY.

My guess is that she is tired and that the pain in the end of her spine is an expression of fatigue.

She should get more exercise and diversion.

HOW TO CHANGE ONE'S NAME.

Chicago, May 12.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have been considering changing my name. What are the necessary steps and how much does it cost?
E. W. R.

No legal proceedings are required to make a change of name valid. It is sufficient if you use a new name and give notice of the change to those persons to whom the information may be material. In transactions in which your old name appears we suggest that you continue to use it to avoid confusion. For example, if real estate records show title in you, when you come to sell you should use the recorded name.

MARRIAGE AFTER DIVORCE.

Chicago, May 12.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Just how does the Illinois state law read on the subject of a woman marrying a man one month after his divorce in this state? I am told that the couple could be arrested on bigamy charges. Would it make any difference if the couple married at Crown Point, Ind., and then came back to Chicago to live?
W. J.

Marriage immediately after divorce is permitted under the present Illinois law.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

USES ANOTHER NAME.

Chicago, May 12.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I married a lady in Oklahoma under the name of L——, which is not my real name but one which I have used for the last nine years. Is my marriage legal? I hope you will answer me, as I want to know this, but cannot afford to ask an attorney.
J. L.

The marriage is legal.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ON MAKING A WILL.

Chicago, May 13.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I wish to have a will made out, but do not know how to go about it. Will it be sufficient to take two witnesses and go before a notary public?
J. L.

We strongly advise you to employ an attorney in the drafting and execution of so important a document.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 17, 1865.

WASHINGTON.—The military court trying the conspirators to the assassination of President Lincoln visited Ford's theater and studied the premises that it might have a better understanding of the testimony. Everything remained undisturbed inside the building, being just as it was at the time of the assassination, except that the chair in which Mr. Lincoln sat when he was shot has been taken away and the blue flag in front of the box which caught the assassin's spur has been removed. Measurements showed that the distance Booth ran in order to escape after he fell upon the stage was about ninety feet. After viewing the premises, the hearing of testimony was resumed with Col. H. H. Mills, provost marshal of Alexandria, on the stand. His testimony fixed the guilt of Dr. Mudd as an accomplice of Booth beyond a doubt. John Miles, a colored employé of Ford's theater, testified that between 9 and 10 o'clock of the night Mr. Lincoln was murdered Booth brought a horse to the stage door and called three times for Ned Spangler, who is on trial.

NEW YORK.—A special to the Commercial from Washington says: "The evidence of the guilt of the prisoners at the conspiracy trial appears so conclusive as to check completely the current of sympathy in their favor produced by the proposed secret trial. It is said the prisoners have been warned by their counsel to abandon all hope."

CHICAGO.—The boilers of the tug "Success" blew up in the South Branch near the Old street bridge, killing one and frightfully scalding eight others, including two women who were in the pilot house.

CHICAGO.—At the first meeting of the new board of education C. N. Holden was elected president and J. H. Foster vice president. Superintendent of Schools J. L. Pickard was reelected.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 17, 1900.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Representatives of the Lake Carriers' association asked the secretary of war to issue an order requiring the Sanitary district of Chicago to control the flow of water through the Chicago river and canal under direction of the United States engineer at Chicago.

HAVANA, Cuba.—E. P. Thompson, postmaster at Havana; W. H. Reeves, deputy auditor of the island; and two clerks in the stamp department were arrested in connection with the Cuban postal frauds and lodged in the Vivac, the Tombs of Havana. It is considered now that Reeves is equally guilty with Charles F. W. Neeley who is under indictment. Postmaster Thompson confessed that being in need of money he took $435 from money order funds.

NEW YORK.—Guests for the wedding of Mrs. Clio Hinton Huneker, noted sculptress, and William Bracken, a lawyer, were gathered in the Church of Heavenly Rest for the ceremony when the Rev. Dr. D. Parker Morgan learned that Mrs. Huneker was a divorcée. He refused to officiate or to permit the wedding to be held in the church. The guests then went to Delmonico's where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Evans, pastor of Russell Sage's church.

CHICAGO.—Col. George H. Harlow, secretary of state of Illinois from 1873 to 1881, died at his home in Highland Park of paralysis at the age of 69.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 17, 1915.

LISBON.—Success of the revolutionary forces has been confirmed. The new government which will be presided over by Joao Chagas was proclaimed from windows of the city hall and the announcement was enthusiastically received. The casualties in the fighting two days ago numbered 67 killed and 300 wounded.

NEW YORK.—The liner Transylvania, carrying 879 passengers and a cargo of ammunition, arrived safely in port at Greenock, Scotland. It evaded the submarine fate of the Lusitania by taking a different route.

BERLIN.—Germany will not deviate one iota from its submarine warfare against Great Britain. This can be forecast as the answer to President Wilson's note. However, the answer will be couched in the friendliest of terms and it will breathe the most cordial spirit toward America.

LONDON.—Another Zeppelin raid has been made on England. At Ramsgate an air machine dropped forty bombs. It is also reported that bombs were dropped on Dover.

NEW YORK.—President Wilson arrived here to review the Atlantic fleet tomorrow. The maneuvers promise to be one of the greatest naval spectacles ever held in the United States.

CHICAGO.—A new Republican organization for Illinois, into which an attempt will be made to draw all the anti-Deneen forces which since 1904 have been fighting to put the former governor out of politics, was launched in Eagle Lake, Wis. Mayor Thompson is to be the visible head of the new coalition, Frank O. Lowden is to be its candidate for governor next year, and Fred Lundin will be the master mind in command of the forces.

CHICAGO.—Russell Pethrick, a grocer's delivery boy, was held by the police in connection with the murder of Mrs. Ella Coppersmith and her 3 year old son, beaten to death in the Coppersmith home. Police say his finger prints correspond with those found on the handle of the hammer with which the murders were committed.

EDITORIALS OF 1924.

Kansas City, Mo., May 4.—A good many booklets and reprints by way of advertising propaganda reach my desk. I read some; some I throw away unread. I am sorry to say that I acknowledge mighty few. I enjoyed reading the booklet of TRIBUNE editorials for 1924 because I agree heartily with every one of them. They are precisely what I would say if I had the wit and the opportunity. I am tired with over-regulation, with universal regimentation. I am tired of uplifters and censors. I am even tired of advertising vigilance committees.

I think it probable that my children will enjoy less personal liberty than I enjoy even now. I enjoy some small measure of liberty because I have acquired a certain technic in beating the law by obtaining here and there personal privileges. These evasions, which of course weaken the fibre of my citizenship, will soon be detected and deleted.

I enjoy finding support for my somewhat obsolete ideas of personal liberty. I have been a soldier, and I do not like war at all, but I don't like the pacifists either, because I prefer war to living under the rule of Japan or having the superiority of the black and brown races thrust down my throat. There are many other things in our "nagging wife" theory of social control that I don't like, and I am gratified to see that the uncouth person who writes TRIBUNE editorials and goes to good fights and smokes a pipe doesn't like them either.

Personally, I have always had a fondness and respect for THE TRIBUNE. I really believe it has what so many publications blurb about—namely: reader influence. Yesterday my tailor said he was doing a fine business. As most every one else that day said business was rotten, I inquired: "What do you attribute that to?" I looked for some revealing side light on economic conditions. But he said: "I guess it's because I am making good clothes." Good Lord—that was so simple. I then and there quit reading market reports and forecasts from the statistical bureaus. So I guess THE TRIBUNE is going along just by printing stuff people like to read.

I am writing this personally, because if I dictated it my stenographer would think I was wasting my time, and, anyway, there's no profit in it for me—and that's a bad idea to get around this office. However, thanks for the booklet. And tell the chap who writes the editorials I think he is all right, but I think he is in a frightful minority.
W. B. FINNEY.

A MONTANA VIEW.

Indiana Harbor, Ind., May 12.—I came from the west—Montana, to be exact—and have seen a number of rodeos and roundups, and in my opinion there is nothing vicious about them.

There are no animals killed and no bloodshed, and I never saw any one get hurt very seriously. They simply "buck" until they give up, and then the rider jumps off—if he is not already off.

To the many thousands of people in Chicago, who have never seen such a thing, the rodeo should be great, especially the bulldogging, and the steer riding is amusing.
C. ABBOTT.

"LET 'ER BUCK."

Maywood, Ill., May 12.—H. J. Streibert's article against the rodeo is like the wail of a pacifist. The rodeo is but a glimpse of the duties of the great American cowboy. The history of our western United States cannot be written without words of praise for their part in the making of it. Authors, poets, and song writers have penned their deeds. The understanding cowboys have of animals is above reproach. The spurs are only a part of their attire. Believe me, the "bronchos" ridden in contest need no artificial pep. "Let 'er buck."
JAMES A. RAMSEY JR.

PUBLIC LIBRARY EMPLOYES.

Chicago, May 12.—Some employés of the public library seem to possess an astonishing lack of knowledge concerning books and magazines. Especially is this true of the branch libraries.

Some time ago I asked an employé of a branch library to help me find "The Picture of Dorian Gray." To my surprise the librarian inquired of me the name of the artist who painted the picture.

SPECIAL DELIVERY.

Chicago, May 12.—Today at 11:30 a. m. I mailed a special delivery letter on the corner of Irving Park boulevard and Robey street, addressed to the 7400 block, Langley avenue, Chicago, Ill. The special delivery letter reached its destination at 7:30 p. m. How's that for speed?

BOY ORATORS.

Chicago, May 12.—As a teacher in Chicago Normal college and as adviser of student activities in Englewood standard evening high school, I find that I cannot agree with your editorial on boy orators. I speak from actual experience in training James Metcalfe, the boy who won second place last year in the contest in the middle west.

Young Metcalfe is the better for having taken part in the contest: (1) He has really studied the constitution as he would not have studied it under less emphatic stimulus. Not only has he studied the constitution, but he has done original thinking about problems growing out of it and the government for which it forms the basic law. Possibly he has done more thinking than those who talk loudest for study of the constitution wish him to do. His opinions are not borrowed from his elders. (2) He has developed his ability as a speaker to a degree impossible under less stimulus. That he has developed this ability is indicated by the fact that he, as an evening school student, entered the Loyola oratorical contest last week and won in competition with regular day school students.

Permit me now to answer your objections one by one. You object to the young orators having the nation as an audience. You think that he gets too much advertisement for the worth of the job. Is such a procedure not in accord with modern educational thinking? Does it not furnish the audience situation which is so much needed if we are to get man's thinking energy to function? Did you, the writer of the editorial to which I object, find the writing more interesting because you knew that you would have thousands of readers?

You say that the boy in question is too young to have original opinions. My experience with boys of this age is that they do have original opinions unless we old folks crush such opinions or ridicule them. You advocate that he talk about sports or college societies. How can you hope to get American boys to think of serious problems such as the constitution if you insist that they confine their thinking to these less serious subjects?
A. R. [illegible]

WHY THE FOG HORN ON CLEAR NIGHTS!

Chicago, May 12.—"Making night hideous" is an accomplished fact with the new fog horn off the Streeterville shore. The deep musical note of the usual horn is not only not unpleasant but lulls one to sleep and to dream of ocean voyages. The noises emitted by the new horn, however, suggest an elephant sick with a belly-ache; it is a composite of a snore, a grunt, a hungry lion, a seasick man, and a flat wheel. It might have a place on Cape Horn but the man who was responsible for placing it in its present position should be examined at the Psychopathic hospital. It is impossible to understand why it was necessary to sound it from one to seven a. m. on the 9th of May with a full moon and a cloudless sky. A captain who could not make port without that horn on such a night certainly could not be helped by it. Is there not something that can be done to protect the city dwellers from this contraption?
J. H. M.

AND WHY SO LOUD!

Chicago, May 12.—The foghorn has made it impossible for me and my family to sleep nights. I wonder if there could be any remedy to this by reducing its tone.
A NORTH SIDER.

IT'S A LULLABY TO SOME.

Chicago, May 12.—The idea of a fog horn preventing sleep is not so much the sound of the horn as it is the lack of power, in some people, to overlook trifles that bother them. They hear the horn and cry, "My peace of mind is being imposed upon." Consequently the disturbance grows in their mind. I (living near the Lawrence avenue crib) also hear a fog horn of two tones nearly every night, but to me it is a sound that causes thoughts of distance, mystery and adventure. Thinking thereof, I soon fall asleep.
SALLY FOR THE SAL.

AMERICAN INTERESTS.

Chicago, May 8.—I am so glad you wrote the editorial "Another Missionary Exhorts Us" and thankful also for the other good editorial, "Mr. Houghton's Remarks." Editorials of this character make us feel that, after all, we need not be ashamed to be Americans.

They also assure us (your readers, I mean) that there is one big and powerful paper in the United States which is alert constantly to defend the interests of this our dear land.

SPRING.

Spring has always been the most welcome season. Its returns have been greeted by youth and age, by devotion, by friendship and love. It has lent wings to the imagination of the poet and given life to the colorings of the painter. Even the most stolid feel its animating power.

It is the season when our liveliest feelings are enkindled—when we catch the life and joy of nature. Our affections, like the opening rivers just freed from their icy chains, are flowing in immeasurable channels.

Each one should endeavor to analyze and ENJOY ALL THE VALUES OF SPRING.

EXALTED HONORS TO BE PAID WHEN MILES IS BURIED

Tuesday Picked for Last Rites at Arlington.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—Military and civil honors will be accorded to the memory of Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, when his body is laid to rest at Arlington National cemetery Tuesday.

Arrangements for the funeral as made today by Maj. Gen. Rockenbach, commander of the District of Washington, provides for an elaborate military escort as the body is taken to the cemetery.

The services and procession will be fitting to the high rank of the distinguished army officer. A notable gathering of present and former officials of the government and army will participate.

To Arlington Mausoleum.

Short religious services will be conducted at the St. Johns Episcopal church. The funeral cortége will then proceed to the mausoleum at Arlington, where last rites will be performed.

The casket, draped with an American flag, will ride on an artillery caisson drawn by six black horses. Beside it will march high officers of the army, navy, and marine corps, followed by Gen. Rockenbach and his entire staff. The army band will march behind the staff officers, followed by a squadron of cavalry.

A battalion of the 16th Field artillary with guns draped in black, the third battalion of the 12th infantry, a battalion of engineers, the navy band, a battalion of marines from Quantico, and a battalion of seamen from Norfolk naval base will march next.

Express Official Regret.

Immediately behind carriages containing members of Gen. Miles' immediate family and close friends will march representative military and patriotic societies. The war department today issued a general order signed by Acting Secretary of War Davis and Maj. Gen. J. L. Hines, chief of staff, expressing official regret for the general's death.

"The secretary of war announces with deep regret, the death of Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, United States army, retired.

"In his passing the country loses one of the most heroic figures of the civil war, as well as one of the most potent instrumentalities in the pacification of the western frontier. As a subordinate commander he received the commendations of his superiors for his brilliant, able and gallant conduct in the many engagements of the civil war, in which he was wounded several times, and in the Indian campaigns which followed that war. As a superior commander in later life, he exhibited those qualities which marked him as a soldier of the highest type."

MARGARET FROST BECOMES BRIDE AT LAKE FOREST

Quiet dignity and charm pervades "Eastover," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Frost in Lake Forest for the marriage of their daughter, Margaret, to David Dangler at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Spring flowers were used in the decorations of the house where the Rev. George Roberts performed the ceremony. Miss Frost wore a gown of white chiffon and satin, embroidered in pearls, and her bridal head dress of duchess lace was trimmed with orange blossoms. A long train of satin depended from the gown, and she carried a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and white bride's roses. Her sister, Miss Virginia Frost, the maid of honor, was wearing a flowered chiffon frock of pale green and pink and her hat of pale green chiffon was trimmed with apple blossoms. Marvin Hughitt Frost Jr., who was train bearer, was garbed in white.

The bride's mother wore gray chiffon trimmed with gray lace and her hat of orchid shades was trimmed with violets. Assisting Mrs. Frost to receive was Mrs. Marvin Hughitt Frost, who wore a frock similar to that of the maid of honor's of flowered chiffon and a hat of golden brown trimmed with small yellow flowers.

Charged with Shoplifting, She Pleads Amnesia

Suffering, apparently, from loss of memory, a girl who says her name is Isabelle Calhoun, 18 years old and married, was arraigned yesterday on a charge of shoplifting before Judge Howard Hayes. She was charged with having stolen a coat and hat worth $56 May 7 from a loop store. She said she knew she had been married two weeks but couldn't remember the name of her husband or his home. Judge Hayes ordered her examined by Dr. William J. Hicksen, head of the city's psychopathic laboratory.

RAILWAY MAIL BODY MEETS.

The counting of ballots in the recent election of officers, conducted by mail, occupied the attention yesterday of the first session of the regular biennial convention of the Railway Mail association.

POLICEMAN IS SERIOUSLY HURT IN AUTO SPILL

No Deaths in the County During Day.

No automobile deaths were recorded yesterday, the county motor toll remaining 257 for the year.

TONY DIORIO.
[Killed Thursday.]

South Park Patrolman George Seabury, 60 years old, was probably fatally injured when an automobile in which he was riding, driven by Stephen Dawson, collided with a car driven by Milton Weiss, 1650 West Division street, at South Park avenue and 29th street. The patrolman was thrown from the car. He was taken to the Michael Reese hospital. Weiss is being held.

Mrs. Johanna Witzotzki, 85 years old, 1505 North Paulina street, was severely injured last night when she was knocked down by an automobile driven by Frank Kolcz, 1530 Emma street, while attempting to cross North Paulina street at Keenon. She suffered a scalp wound and bruises on her body. Kolcz was taken into custody by West Chicago avenue police. He is said to have been driving without lights.

The law allowing speeding motorists to furnish a personal bond of $400 was branded as dangerous by Judge Henry M. Walker. He issued capiases for Robert C. Dyer, 4603 Malden street, M. Kauffman, 4910 Drake avenue, and Maurice Weinzelbaum, 654 Roscoe street, who had failed to appear after giving bond.

Alva Crawford, car repairer employed by the Chicago, Indiana and Louisville railway, won a verdict of $25,000 against the company in Judge Philip Sullivan's court for injuries he sustained Feb. 23, 1923, in Monon, Ind. Crawford was going to work on a gasoline speeder when he was forced to leap from the speeder to avoid a collision with an automobile at a crossing.

Tony Diorio, 11 years old, 1065 West Polk street, was killed Thursday when two automobiles crashed, one of them being hurled upon the boy where he was playing on the sidewalk.

Policeman Shoots Youth as Mob Attacks Him

When a policeman late yesterday ordered a group of men standing at 85th street and Commercial avenue to move on they attacked him and he whipped out his revolver and shot John C. Wienikowsky, 20 years old, 8342 Houston avenue, who is in a critical condition in the South Shore hospital. Four men were arrested.

Name Bears to Be Given to Lincoln Park Zoo

They're going to be called "Billings" and "Beartooth," those two grizzly bear cubs whose nameless, but very sprightly selves came down from Beartooth National forest, Mont., to tarry a week at the third annual national outdoor show, which closes today at the Coliseum. Tomorrow the bears are to be presented to the Lincoln park zoo by Jim Shoemaker of Billings, who, with Dave Branger, Ed Ikerman and "Doc" Johnson, escorted the duet to Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hayes, 25 South Halsted street, sent in the winning names.

SKEELES-BIDDLE FUNERAL SERVICE IS DISTINCTIVE

In the arrangements for and management of every funeral entrusted to us, whether modest or elaborate in character, we put the expert knowledge gained from half a century of experience in the direction of not merely scores but thousands and thousands of funerals.

Thanks to the multitude of families whose confidence and support we enjoy, we have been able to provide ourselves with facilities and equipment that are the envy of all other funeral directors in Chicago. Nothing like Skeeles-Biddle undertaking service has ever before been known in this city.

Our unequaled advantages continue to win for us the preference of discriminating people everywhere, those who realize that criticism quickly attaches to obsolete methods in undertaking service as in other fields and professions.

One has only to see a Skeeles-Biddle funeral cortege passing through the streets to realize that many refinements have been achieved by this organization. A new degree of dignity and impressiveness is imparted by the big, high-powered and handsome flower-laden cars that lead the way before the new type Skeeles-Biddle casket coach that is so much more beautiful than the conventional hearse. Immediately following come the Skeeles-Biddle limousines—large, roomy, spick-and-span, richly upholstered palaces on wheels, the finest cars built expressly for funeral service, all of one kind and model. The entire ensemble is a revelation of what a funeral director can do when he devotes thought, study and ample capital to perfecting his facilities.

CASKETS As Low as $25.00

Just as sincerely appreciated are the very unusual accommodations furnished for all clients and their friends at the two famous Skeeles-Biddle memorial chapels, with their connecting rest rooms for members of the immediate family and their seating capacity for large gatherings.

When desired we provide a singer, take care of the reading of the burial service, asking no fees of any kind for this courtesy. No charge is made for the use of either of our chapels nor for the assistance of our lady attendant.

But while urging you to contrast Skeeles-Biddle modern undertaking service with that obtainable from others, we base our appeal to your consideration first and last upon our claim that we save our clients from one-third to one-half the prices usually demanded for caskets of every grade, from $25.00 up. All we ask is that you give us an opportunity to convince you.

A SOUTH SIDE SUBURB De Luxe!

Finest Suburban Transportation in the World—Bar None—By the Electrified Illinois Central Railroad

Never before has Chicago's South Side had a suburb that would compare favorably with what the North Shore of Lake Michigan offered. Today, such a suburb is an actuality. The South Shore Investment Company has made [illegible] the development of high class properties—particularly on the South Side. Its offerings are strictly confined to those that have every promise of quick increase of value. When a property is subdivided, all city improvements are installed, walks and pavement placed and everything done to provide for the comfort and convenience of the purchaser. Witness the manner in which the South Shore Park development was accomplished. Within two years a golf course has been built up almost solid with high class homes and apartment buildings.

We are about to announce the opening of another property on the main line of the Illinois Central, which will be, in every respect,

The Lake Forest of the South Side

It will be everything—and more—than that phrase implies. The home restrictions are the highest, although there will be plenty of room for the family of moderate income. Terms if desired.

Until certain formalities are undergone, we cannot publicly announce the opening of this wonderful tract. But we shall be glad to give you advance information so that you may inspect the property, be thinking over its possibilities as a home for yourself and your family, and possibly make your selection. Public announcement will be made at the earliest possible moment.

We still have a few choice locations in Flossmoor Park (at Flossmoor) that may interest you. Incidentally, that subdivision is an illustrious example of how we develop a property. We suggest that you motor out Western Avenue or the Dixie Highway—or take the Illinois Central—to Flossmoor and look over the marvels of Flossmoor Park. Office on the property—two blocks east of Flossmoor Station.

BUSINESS MEN TO O. K. POLICIES OF PRESIDENT

Trade Meeting This Week to Approve Stand.

BY ARTHUR W. CRAWFORD.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—American business interests, as represented in a huge gathering in Washington the coming week, are expected to evidence their substantial accord with both the domestic and foreign policies of President Coolidge.

Several thousand members of commercial organizations will be in attendance at the annual convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which convenes on Tuesday and continues until Friday.

Resolutions to be adopted, it was stated today, will evidence more complete approval of the Coolidge policies than has been accorded to any previous administration by this organization, which represents the various groups of industries in a more comprehensive manner than any other business association.

Will Dedicate National Home.

Government officials will figure conspicuously in the convention. President Coolidge has been invited to make an address and several of his cabinet members will appear on the program, including Secretaries Hoover, Jardine, and probably Kellogg. A number of bureau officials from the government departments also will make addresses.

An event of the week will be the formal dedication of the national chamber of commerce building, which is located across Lafayette square from the White House.

Harry A. Wheeler of Chicago, who was the first president of the organization, and who has been chairman of the financing committee for the building, will be one of the speakers at the dedication exercises on Wednesday night, along with Chief Justice Taft, Richard F. Grant of Cleveland, the present president of the chamber, and Charles Nagel of St. Louis, former secretary of commerce and labor.

Will Discuss Many Problems.

The principal domestic and foreign problems now before the government are listed for discussion at the general and group meetings of the convention. The main subjects on the program include the European situation, American business conditions, the commercial treaty policy of the government, the merchant marine, the federal trade commission, congress and the American public, and agriculture.

Following meetings of national councilors on Tuesday the first general session of the convention will take place on Wednesday morning at the Washington auditorium. W. E. Humphrey, the newest member of the federal trade commission, who has had a good deal to do with the recent change in policies and procedure of that body in an effort to carry out President Coolidge's purpose to make its activities less obnoxious to business, will be one of the speakers.

Group Luncheon Meetings.

On Tuesday afternoon there will be four group luncheon meetings. One will relate to civic development subjects, another to finance, another to manufactures, and another to natural resources production. Many prominent business men are listed as speakers.

The civic development group will discuss such subjects as housing conditions. The finance group will deal with the federal reserve system from the viewpoint of a banker, a business man, the governor of the federal reserve board and a federal reserve agent. The manufactures group will discuss such topics as incentives for individual production and employe training. The natural resources production group will deal with agricultural coöperatives, the lumber industry, and the coal situation.

Speakers at the general session Thursday morning will include John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company of Toledo, and John H. Fahey, American member of the council of the international chamber of commerce. Both will discuss the government's commercial treaty policy.

Thursday Afternoon Meetings.

Four group luncheon meetings Thursday afternoon will deal with domestic distribution, foreign commerce, insurance, and transportation and communication. At the domestic distribution meeting there will be a discussion of such topics as results accompanied by the national distribution conference, and marketing and distribution costs. Conditions confronting American exporters in Europe, the near east, the far east, and Latin-America will be reviewed at the meeting of the foreign commerce group.

Various phases of life, casualty, and fire insurance will be taken up by the insurance group. The regulation of motor common carriers, metropolitan traffic problems and various railroad questions will come up at the transportation and communication group meeting.

Secretary Hoover and former Representative Winslow of Massachusetts are listed as the speakers at a general session on Thursday night.

BUILDING A "BETTER HOME"

WALTER STEVENS MUST FACE TWO CHARGES IN SOUTH

U. S. Agent's Ruling Hits Gunman.

Walter Stevens, one of the most notorious of Chicago gunmen, must return to Miami, Fla., to face a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, if a federal justice tomorrow confirms a decision given yesterday by James R. Glass, United States commissioner.

WALTER STEVENS.

The Florida authorities charge that Stevens entered into an agreement to run from Bermuda all of the liquor required by the Tropical inn, a Miami roadhouse.

Forces Case to Hearing.

Commissioner Glass' decision came yesterday when he forced Stevens' case to a hearing after the gunman had obtained seven continuances.

Then Stevens, forced to show his hand, reluctantly took the stand.

"I was not employed in the Tropical inn," said Stevens. "In fact, I had no dealings with any one there. Where I was employed was at a gambling house next door. Place called the Casino. I was social secretary there."

This apparently stirred up Commissioner Glass.

"Social secretary?" he said. "Can you tell me what they can possibly want of a social secretary in a gambling den?"

Judge to Review Decision.

"O," said Stevens, "it was just a sort of name, you know. It was my duty to investigate the social and financial standing of those who patronized the club. A matter of protecting the club, that was all."

"Well, a social secretary in a gambling place is certainly something new," Commissioner Glass remarked dubiously.

After making his decision the commissioner announced that there are many legal technicalities in the case, that he wishes to be sure of his decision and therefore will submit it for review to one of the local federal judges tomorrow. If the judge sustains the commissioner Stevens goes back to the south.

Stevens was arrested two months ago as he stepped out of Joliet penitentiary after serving a sentence for manslaughter in connection with the shooting of an Aurora policeman. He has since been out on bond.

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD: FISKE O'HARA WED TO PAT CLARY IN 1908

New York, May 16.—[A. P.]—After being married for 17 years, Fiske O'Hara, whose Irish songs are features of the comedies in which he plays, is just announcing his wedding secret. Miss Pat Clary, his leading lady, is now revealed as Mrs. O'Hara.

Invitations have been issued for a formal announcement from the stage Sunday afternoon at the theater at which he is playing. A clause in his contract hitherto has forbidden revelation, it is explained.

OPEN CHICAGO'S $60,000,000 NEW UNION STATION

Chicago's new Union station, on whose structure and adjoining properties just west of the river opposite Quincy street, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, the Chicago and Alton, and the Pennsylvania railroads spent $60,000,000, will be officially opened at 6 o'clock this morning.

The moving started at midnight, when the offices in the little, old, red brick station structure, were quietly closed up and their occupants went into the massive new pile of gray stone and steel. It was good-by to the old station after forty-four years of service. The old building is to be closed at once and ultimately torn down. When it was opened it was called the "finest railroad station in the world."

The new structure, including train sheds is half a mile long and covers thirty-five acres of ground.

FIRST BRICKS OF A MODEL HOME LAID BY WOMAN

Mrs. Edward S. Bailey, the only woman's club president with a membership in the bricklayers' union, laid the first bricks yesterday afternoon of the exhibition "Better Homes in America" dwelling which the Chicago Federation of Woman's Organizations, of which she is president, is building in Park Ridge as a stimulus to home ownership.

Before the ceremonies began Assistant Secretary Charles Wilde of the bricklayers' local presented Mrs. Bailey with an honorary membership card in the union which has similarly welcomed the late Theodore Roosevelt and John L. Sullivan.

Then Mrs. Bailey, with a specially made silver trowel, spread the mortar, while hundreds of Chicago clubwomen cheered. Miss Harriet Vittum, head resident of Northwestern University settlement and speaker of the day, urged the necessity of more homes and fewer tenements. She cited many moral tragedies resulting from overcrowding in the congested district in which her settlement is located.

SEEKS TO FIND WHY MUSEUMS BORE VISITORS

An investigation as to why museums bore many people will be undertaken by Prof. Edward S. Robinson of the University of Chicago at the request of the American Association of Museums, it was announced yesterday.

Investigators will be stationed at the Art institute to note the routes taken by visitors, the number of pictures which they view and the time spent in viewing them. Laboratory experiments will also be conducted.

"It is well known," said Prof. Robinson, "that the casual tourist comes out of an art gallery ready for bed and retaining little actual information about what he has seen."

VETERANS CLASH IN REDISTRICTING FIGHT THIS WEEK

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Two of Illinois' most picturesque characters, both well past 80, are expected to lock horns at Springfield this week when the legislative reapportionment battle is renewed.

John B. Fergus, stalwart old champion of Chicago, will be back on the stamping ground to continue his fight for a redistricting measure that will give Cook county the five additional districts to which it is entitled under the constitution.

Ex-Gov. Joseph W. Fifer of Bloomington will be on hand to urge a constitutional amendment that will definitely limit Cook county's representation in the general assembly.

Fifer Leads Opposition.

"Private Joe," whose daughter, Mrs. Florence Bohrer [Rep., McLean], is Illinois' first and only woman senator, was a member of the last constitutional convention and was one of the leaders in the memorable battles there over Cook county restriction. With Louis A. Jarman of Rushville, Mr. Fifer took the lead in the convention fights to fix a hard and fast limitation on Cook county.

Mr. Fifer and Mr. Jarman are understood to have collaborated with Representative Bancroft [Rep., Cumberland], sponsor of the limitation proposal now pending in the house reapportionment committee. Only the resolution creating a special committee to draft an amendment has been offered so far, but Mr. Bancroft intends to move this week for adoption of the resolution and will immediately follow it up by presenting the proposed amendment itself.

Seek Action in Senate.

While the limitationists are busy in the house efforts will be made in the senate reapportionment committee to obtain action on one of the two redistricting bills pending there. One drafted by the Chicago Home Rule league and introduced by Senator Van Lant [Rep., Chicago], presents a whole new reapportionment plan. The other was taken to Springfield by Mr. Fergus and introduced by Senator Haenisch [Rep., Chicago]. It is a skeleton bill offered in incomplete form so the committee can fill it in if things ever get that far.

Former Gov. Fifer was in Springfield to address the committees last week, but all action on reapportionment was deferred until next Tuesday. Meantime, Mr. Fergus and his attorney, John A. Watson, have been working on a plan of action against legislators who have refused to reapportion the legislative districts despite the constitutional mandate.

Await Adjournment to Act.

None of the contemplated actions will be started until after the legislature adjourns, they said yesterday. Mr. Watson said quo warranto proceedings probably will be brought to make the eighty-three defiant downstate legislators defend their right to hold their offices after disregarding their oaths.

MONEY PROBLEM TROUBLES NEW SCHOOL BOARD

Two important problems—finances and acute housing shortage—confront Chicago's new school board which is scheduled to tackle the administration of school affairs in earnest next Friday.

The new trustees must find a solution to the finance problem which is fast approaching a crisis. The administration finds itself faced with a deficit of $20,000,000 in the educational fund with the prospects of the board's borrowing power being at an end by 1928.

Can Accept Past Action.

To meet this situation the new board members can accept the action of the old board and seek an increase of $1 in the tax rate for educational purposes which will enable the board to wipe out the deficit in a reasonable time and carry out the increased salary schedule recently adopted. The present school body will most likely have an opportunity to decide this question as Trustee J. Lewis Coath has announced his intention of seeking reconsideration of the salary scale and the proposal to obtain by popular referendum increase in tax rates.

Names Business Men.

That President Edward B. Ellicott is determined to delve into school finances thoroughly is evidenced by his selection of a finance committee. The committee appointed is made up entirely of experienced business men and includes Julius F. Smietanka, chairman; Charles T. Byrne, Theophilus Schmid, and Dr. Victor Schiller. Smietanka is a banker and a lawyer. Mr. Byrne is an officer in six corporations and Schmid is a retired druggist and a bank president.

The housing situation also will receive the attention of the new school head. At present it is estimated 100,000 pupils are without satisfactory accommodations.

PROTESTS MORE TAXES TO PAY THE TEACHERS

Further protests against increasing school taxes to pay salary raises to school teachers recently voted by the board of education were made yesterday by the Chicago Teachers' federation at its weekly meeting. A formal protest was drafted which will be presented to the new board.

The federation is opposing the raise on the grounds that it is an unreasonable demand upon the purse of the taxpayer and asserts the new schedule is designed to divert the teachers' organization attention from the campaign against tax dodgers to increase school revenue.

NEW YORKER TO SPEAK HERE.

Marcus L. Bell of New York, general counsel for the Rock Island lines, will be chief speaker at the annual dinner of the Western Railway club to be given at the Hotel Sherman on Friday evening, May 22. Fred H. Hammill, executive vice president of the Rock Island, will be toastmaster.

G. A. R. COMPLETES MEMORIAL DAY PLAN FOR COUNTY

The Grand Army of the Republic Memorial association last night completed plans for Memorial day programs here and also for observances in 325 public schools. Graves of soldiers in 45 cemeteries of the county will be decorated.

Flowers donated by children will be collected by a committee headed by Mrs. Glennola Sills, and James Buggie, a veteran of the civil war, will have charge of the distribution to the various cemeteries. Gen. James E. Stuart will be in charge of the Memorial day celebration and parade.

It was reported that three flags have been sent the mayor of Lwow (Lemberg) Poland, to be placed on the graves of three American aviators, who died there in action with the Poles against the Russian bolsheviki.

HUSBAND HELD AS FORGER; WIFE TRIES SUICIDE

Grief over the arrest of her husband as a passer of forged checks and his removal to Battle Creek, Mich., to stand trial, last night prompted Mrs. Catherine Smith, 28 years old, to attempt suicide by swallowing poison in her room at 934 Winthrop avenue.

The husband, Charles R. Smith, who married under the alias of Ernest McAnley, is the son of the president of the Tilden national bank, Tilden, Nebraska. He had been working here as sales manager for a local corporation under still another alias, that of a fellow employé in a former position in Dayton, O.

By accident an official of the Dayton concern betrayed him to the president of the Chicago company and Smith was charged with having passed checks totaling $1,500. Thefts of $11,000 had recently been cleared by payments by Smith's father. The wife will recover.

HALF OF GREY'S $3,000,000 IS GIVEN CHARITY

Probate the Will of Late Philanthropist.

Nearly one-half the $3,000,000 estate of the late Charles Frederick Grey, philanthropist, art collector and pioneer banker, is to be devoted to charitable and educational purposes, according to the will filed yesterday before Assistant Probate Judge Frederick W. Elliott.

Mr. Grey died a week ago at his home, 1508 Forest avenue, Evanston, which he had occupied for fifty years. He was 96 years old.

Will Aid College Students.

In the will filed by Attorney John H. Coulter, Mr. Grey outlines the philanthropic interests which occupied most of his time since his retirement from business a few years ago. The income from $1,350,000 is to be given to charity and to the following three classes of persons:

1. Persons of good character who are in need and are loath to complain of their poverty.
2. Young men and women who wish a college education and have not the means to obtain one.
3. College students who need transportation between their schools and homes.

Two grandsons of the banker are named executors of the trust fund. They are Charles F. Grey II. and Newton Fox Grey, who are to have absolute discretion as to the distribution of the income.

Children Given $100,000 Each.

Specific bequests of $100,000 are made to his son, Howard G. Grey, real estate manager, and a daughter, Mrs. Ethel Grey Scott, wife of Robert L. Scott of the Carson-Pirie-Scott company. They are also to share one-half of the income from the trust estate after specific bequests have been deducted. This income, it was estimated, will amount to over $20,000 for each.

Mrs. Anna L. Grey, his wife, was also mentioned as receiving a similar bequest and income, but her death two years ago causes this money to be given to the children.

Small bequests are made to distant relatives and the following charities are to receive specific bequests and a share in the income from the trust estate:

The Chicago Orphan asylum, 5120 South Park avenue, $5,000; the Chicago Foundlings' home, 15 South Wood street, $1,000; the Home for Destitute Crippled Children, 1653 Park avenue, $1,000; the Infant Welfare society, $1,000; the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, $1,000; the Chicago Woman's Shelter, $500.

Y. M. C. A. Will Benefit.

The Young Men's Christian associations of Chicago and Evanston are especially mentioned as among those who must share in the trust fund income as distributed by the grandsons.

Most of Mr. Grey's valuable art collection is to be divided among relatives. The Evanston public library is given "The Fountain" by Bouguereau.

Mr. Grey came to Chicago 76 years ago and engaged in the hide and leather business. He founded the Hide and Leather National bank and was prominent in financial circles until his retirement. He presented the University of Chicago with property worth $100,000 and gave Evanston the park at Ridge avenue and Main street.

TESTING THE CHARM OF MUSIC

Perhaps it was because she played "The Little Gray Home in the West"; perhaps it was a vindication of the old belief that music hath power to charm the savage breast; anyway, this mother buffalo and the baby paid close attention when Miss Leona Fay invaded their inclosure yesterday. Miss Fay will describe her experiences at the convention of music tradesmen of America to be held at the Drake hotel June 8 to 11.

2 AMPHIBIAN PLANES FOR M'MILLAN POLAR DASH O. K.'D IN TEST

Mitchell Field, N. Y., May 16.—[A. P.]—Two Loening amphibian airplanes were tested successfully today and were officially accepted by the navy for the MacMillan expedition to the North Pole which will start next month. Lieut. Commander R. E. Byrd, who will command the navy unit on the Arctic dash, pronounced the tests satisfactory.

The planes were tested for weight carrying, maneuverability, and speed. Each carried 2,200 pounds useful load, and attained a maximum speed of 122 miles an hour.

After the test flights the amphibians, piloted by Lieut. A. M. Schur and Chief Boatswain Earl Reber, left for the naval aircraft field at Philadelphia, where they will be outfitted with special equipment. Later they will fly to Boston to be loaded on the Peary, the auxiliary vessel which will steam northward with the schooner Bowdoin under MacMillan's flag on June 17.

Loyola Plans Annual Show for Scholarship

Loyola university alumnae and students of the Loyola school of sociology will give their annual entertainment Tuesday evening in Orchestra hall. The proceeds will be used to establish a scholarship fund for the training of social workers.

AMUNDSEN WAITS ON WEATHER MAN FOR HOP TO POLE

OSLO, Norway, May 16.—[A. P.]—The Shipping Gazette here says that Roald Amundsen, the explorer, will start his air dash to the north pole whenever meteorologists think that a period of good weather has set in.

Amundsen will not wait until the end of May or the beginning of June, as he previously planned, but will start direct for the pole from Spitzbergen without landing at Danes island.

Low temperature prevails and snow fell today at the base at King's bay, Spitzbergen. Other weather reports from Spitzbergen say there has been only one clear day all week, the others being made impossible for flying by fog and snow.

What Is a Co-operative Apartment?

Do you understand co-operative apartment ownership? Do you know that it is far less expensive to own an apartment than a home? We can prove to you that a home similarly located to Park Manor will cost you twice as much and give you about half the convenience.

Park Manor offers first an exceptional location—facing Indian Boundary Park, a fourteen acre beauty spot, with no street between. It is absolutely away from all dangerous street traffic and yet convenient to steam and elevated lines, surface and bus. The formal sunken garden in the wide court is without question the most beautiful in Chicago.

Park Manor apartments are run like a small business. In reality, it is a carefully selected neighborhood under one roof with the rights and privileges of each family as thoroughly protected as though they lived in a row of bungalows.

Park Manor provides greater convenience than most homes—eliminates chores, insures selected neighbors, and saves forty to fifty per cent of the cost of living quarters.

Park Manor is the most conservatively priced co-operative building in Chicago. A reasonable down payment buys four or five rooms, with exceptional closet space at about half what it would cost to buy a home.

Twelve thousand five hundred other people live in and like co-operative apartments. Can you afford not to investigate Park Manor when it means so much to your pocketbook? Let us send you illustrated booklet with floor plans explaining all about Park Manor, the 100% co-operative building facing beautiful Indian Boundary Park.

Write, phone or come out today.

This beautiful building is located at 2415 Greenleaf Avenue, seventy hundred north, and twenty-four hundred west.

TRUSTEES SOLD ASTOR PROPERTY FOR 21 MILLION

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—The first accounting by the Farmers' Loan and Trust company as trustee under two deeds of trust executed by the late William Waldorf Astor, Lord Astor, on Aug. 15, 1919, shortly before his death on Oct. 18, 1919, at Hever castle, whereby the bulk of his estate in this country was put in trust for his sons, Waldorf, the present Lord Astor, and John Jacob Astor, was filed in the Supreme court today.

Sales Brought $21,073,983.

The accounting shows that the principal received by the trust company from the sale of Astor real estate embraced in the two trusts totaled $21,073,983, and that the increase during the period of accounting was $249,860. The trust company made payments aggregating $12,292,854, leaving a balance of principal of $9,029,989.

The income earned by the trust estate was $14,369,202, in addition to which the trust company received $262,985. The trust company is credited with $12,396,252, leaving a balance of income amounting to $2,235,934.

Money Paid to Heirs.

The statement of payments made to Lord Astor shows that he received $300,000 each in 1920, 1921, and 1922, and that $500,000 was paid on Dec. 31, 1923, and $250,000 each on July 28 and Dec. 31, 1924.

The trust company paid to John Jacob Astor $300,000 in 1920, 1921, and 1922, $500,000 in 1923, $405,500 in 1924, and during 1923 and 1924 paid interest of $139,500 on a mortgage to the Mutual Life Insurance company, covering the property at Broadway, Vesey, and Barclay streets, part of which was the site of the old Astor house.

HULL HOUSE PLAYERS PLAN 5-DAY MEMORIAL IN FOUNDER'S HONOR

MARY AGNES DOYLE.
[De Gueldre Photo.]

Hull House begins Wednesday a five day memorial to Mrs. Laura Dainty Pelham, founder of Hull House players, who died more than a year ago. The players will honor her memory with a production of "The Whiteheaded Boy" to be given at the settlement theater, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings. Miss Mary Agnes Doyle, interpreter of Irish literature, will act the rôle of Aunt Ellen.

All of the proceeds go to the fund sustaining the Laura Dainty Pelham memorial cottage to be opened Sunday at the Hull House summer camp, on the grounds of the Joseph T. Bowen Country club, Waukegan.

The cottage, which is to be used for mothers sent out by the settlement, is to be dedicated Sunday following a luncheon at the club by Hull House trustees to many old friends of Mrs. Pelham and contributors to the fund.

SEEK MINNESOTA HEIR MISSING ON CHICAGO TRIP

Austin, Minn., May 16.—Larry O'Keefe, Austin packing house employe, who recently inherited an estate in Ireland said to be worth $170,000, left here for Chicago May 4, and has not been heard from since Mrs. O'Keefe received a letter from him May 6.

Mrs. O'Keefe said today that her husband left Austin on May 4 to see A. L. Eberhart, a Chicago broker with whom he has been negotiating for a new home. On May 6, Mrs. O'Keefe said she had received a letter stating O'Keefe had arrived in Chicago, and had seen Mr. Eberhart. A communication from Mr. Eberhart confirmed this information.

"Just as homey as it looks, Mary, —it's heated by a Holland Furnace"

THE beauty of every real home is a lot more than "skin deep." It extends to the very heart of the home—the heating system.

Without comfort and healthfulness a house is nothing but a shell.

But the house that is filled with clean air, warmed and moistened and circulated, all to the right degree—that is a home of congeniality, of inspiration and of health.

It is easy to be well and happy in a home heated and ventilated by a Holland Warm Air Circulating System.

And it is strictly economical to heat your house the Holland way. The Holland uses less fuel than any other system—by actual test.

And buying the Holland for your home is the very easiest thing of all. A trained factory representative measures up your home with reference to its various heat requirements, and tells you exactly what the complete installation price amounts to. It is with this same responsible factory representative that arrangements for payment can be made. Cash with an attractive discount, or time payments, whichever is preferred.

The New Air-Moistener

Only within the last year there has been the development of the Holland Air-Moistener. Simple, efficient, permanent, and therefore highly appreciated.

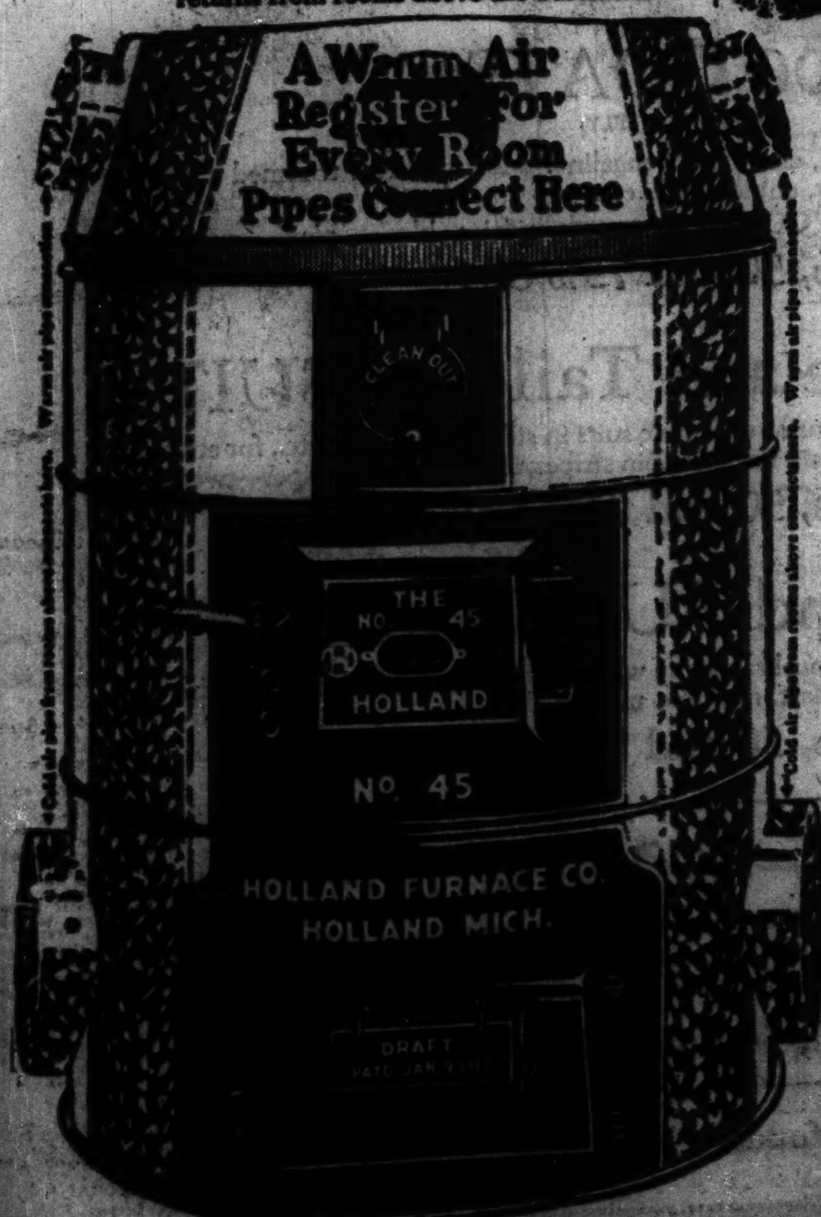
The results from the Holland Humidifier in health and economy (it dampens the ashes, too) are worth the price of an entire heating system. Yet the additional cost is almost nothing.

Does your present furnace need a little fixing? If so, let a Holland expert take care of it for you at the fair Holland prices.

Investigate today. You will be happier for doing so, always. Just incidentally, you will enjoy the call of a Holland Man—a heating expert and a gentleman.

GGL

The Holland is not a pipeless furnace. It is a complete pipe system, with cold air returns from rooms above the basement.



FREE BOOK

"The Whole House Comfortable and Clean" is an attractive book—a guide you should have in furnace buying. Send the coupon to us or get in touch with the nearest Holland Branch today. No matter how many furnaces we make, their installation depends entirely upon the number of trained men available.

JUDGESHIP RACE IN COUNTY JARS G. O. P. HARMONY

Four Tickets May Be in the Field.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

JUDGE OSCAR HEBEL.

Republican harmony in Cook county has gone on the rocks. This seems certain following the refusal of all camps to concede the county judgeship nomination without a fight.

As a result Superior Judge Oscar Hebel virtually has been agreed upon as the Crowe-Barrett-Brundage candidate for the county court. The Deneen forces have not disclosed if they have decided who their candidate will be or whether there will be an alliance with the Lundin-Small combine.

Senator Deneen is in Washington on a mission which is understood to include efforts to bring about a shakeup in federal patronage in Illinois as a forerunner to 1926 when Senator McKinley is a candidate for a second term with Republican State Chairman Frank L. Smith as a primary opponent.

Consider Two for Post.

The Lundin-Small crowd is said to be considering both Superior Judge Harry B. Miller and former County Judge Frank S. Righeimer as their candidate for the county bench. The Thompsonites, under whose banner former United States Senator William Lorimer may act as generalissimo, in an attempt to return to power, probably will enter former Municipal Judge Bernard Barasa for county judge if they decide to test their strength before the 1927 mayoralty.

During the harmony gestures a state administration lieutenant said the Lundin-Small camp might be satisfied if it could name the candidate for sheriff. It was understood that George B. Arnold, director of labor in Gov. Small's cabinet and former member of the Lundin school board, was mentioned.

Under some circumstances governing a harmony slate the selection of the candidates for sheriff might be left to Lundin and Small if they didn't ask for too many other places on the ticket because the Republicans, regardless of faction, know they would have a battle on their hands to keep the sheriff's office out of the hands of County Treasurer P. J. Carr, a virtual certainty as Democratic candidate.

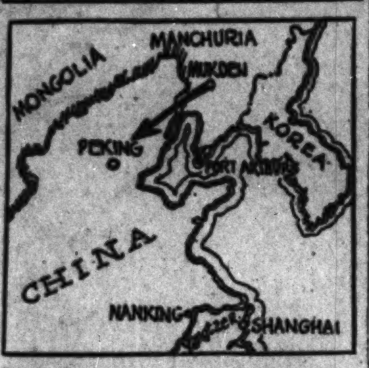
May Be Four Slates.

As matters stand now the coming county primary will see at least two, perhaps three, and maybe four slates with the prospects favoring a contest between the Crowe-Barrett-Brundage wing and a Deneen-Lundin-Small combination all the way down the line from United States senator to the foot of the ticket.

Meantime rumors have been floating around that Senator McKinley would like to put his close friend and neighbor, Charles A. Gregory, back on the job as federal prohibition commissioner for Illinois in place of Maj. L. P. Owen, who has broken the records for holding this federal post. Gregory would like to make another start for state treasurer, but in view of McKinley's own candidacy and the fact that they reside in the same community it is understood that under the circumstances Gregory would be perfectly willing to have his old prohibition job back if the change can be made without friction.

Garrett Kinney of Peoria, former Republican state chairman and downstate Deneen lieutenant, is a virtual certainty as a candidate for state treasurer on the slate with Smith for senator.

FENG QUITS PEKING



PEKING, May 16.—[A. P.]—The troops of Feng Yu-hsiang, the "Christian general," are withdrawing from Peking to the north, but their evacuation of the capital is not yet complete. Although it has been reported that large forces of Chang Tso-Lin's Manchurian warriors were moving on Peking, none has yet arrived. Feng's withdrawal, however, leaves the road open for Chang.

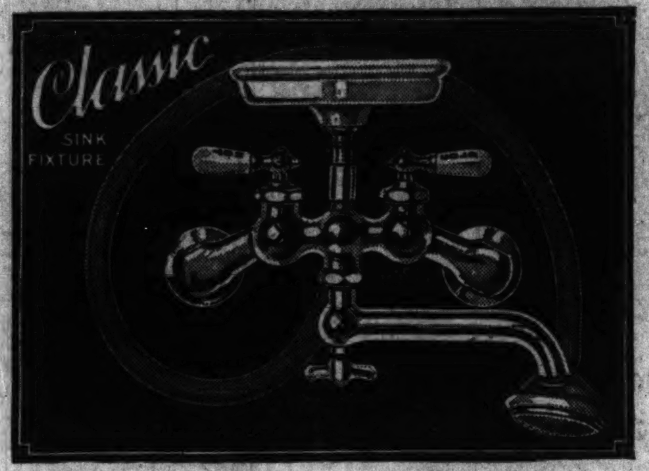
[Peking advices Thursday morning said apprehension existed owing to reports that Gen. Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian war lord, was moving troops toward Peking. It was generally believed, the dispatches added, that Feng Yu-hsiang would allow Chang to occupy the city without fighting.]

FOIL BOLSHEVIK PLOT TO KILL JUGO-SLAV KING

LONDON, May 16.—[U. P.]—Police discovery of a communist plot for assassination of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia and members of the cabinet, as well as dynamiting of the royal palace, is announced at Belgrade, according to a Central News dispatch. Seventeen bolsheviks, according to the dispatch, arrived recently to carry out the plot, and several of them were captured. Another Belgrade message said twenty-five alleged Red plotters had been apprehended with plans for dynamiting public buildings and "assassination of politicians."

U. of Illinois Co-Ed Wins $150 Essay Prize

Helen Werner, a student in the University of Illinois, yesterday was announced the winner of the annual Harris political science essay contest, open to undergraduates of the universities and colleges of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, and Minnesota. The judges met yesterday afternoon in the City club. Miss Werner's essay on the "Constitutionality of Zoning Regulations," won $150. Second prize, $100, was won by No Yong Park of Corea, a student at Northwestern university, who wrote on "Japanese Exclusion." Max Swiren, a student in the University of Chicago, was given honorable mention for his essay on "Our International Judiciary."



Handy—As Handy Can Be

The Classic has our Quaturn Renewable Unit. As easy to manage as an electric bulb. Standardized for all Chicago Faucets upstairs and down. The reason why Chicago Faucets can never wear out.

Everything about the Classic Sink Fixture puts the accent on doing the hardest and most disagreeable things in the easiest, pleasantest way.

Washing and rinsing dishes with a Classic is play compared with the old way. And the water is always tempered just right for tender hands or fragile glass and china.

Cleaning meats and vegetables, spraying plants, filling vases, filling the washing machine or baby's bath—these and dozens of other handy uses occur to you at once.

The long swinging spout, the self-draining soap dish, the hose-and-spray attachment are features that win instant liking, for they help to lighten the tasks that make the day long.

Ask your plumber to show you a Classic and have him put one in your kitchen. Price $15.00.

Over 30,000 Honor Bilt Homes in the U.S.A.

They Are Good Permanent Homes Sold at Prices That Save You Money!

"HONOR BILT" Homes are, in every way, just what the name implies—good, permanent homes, built on honor. They are the result of over 20 years of thoughtful planning. Every important detail—design, convenient arrangement of rooms, strength and durability of construction—was carefully considered.

Quite likely you have many times admired "HONOR BILT" Homes not knowing that they were "HONOR BILT." (Many have been built in our better suburbs.) Of course that isn't surprising because the only noticeable difference between "HONOR BILT" Homes and other high grade frame buildings is that "HONOR BILT" Homes cost less, and that's a desirable difference.

Our Ready-Cut System (the very same labor-saving system used in the construction of modern skyscrapers) saves one-third your carpenter's labor and means a big saving in material. This system of cutting the material at the factory makes for more accurate cutting and as a result gives you a stronger, warmer home.

Then, too, you buy direct from the factory at wholesale prices. You don't pay a middleman's profit. That's why "HONOR BILT" Homes are today being built by men and women in every walk of life—men and women who demand the best—and get it! Come and inspect our completely furnished bungalow and judge for yourself. (Experienced contractors are ready to serve you.)

Our Low Price Includes

Lumber, lath, shingles, roofing, millwork, flooring, finishing lumber, building paper, eaves trough, down spout, sash weights, hardware and painting material. In other words, we furnish all necessary material with the exception of cement, brick and plaster, to build these homes. See Free Book for details. Full information as to cost of building on your lot, any of our homes, complete, with plumbing, heating and electric lighting will be given, without obligation, if you call at our office.

Colossal Sale

caused by the recent fire!

$250,000 stock of finest DRESSES ~ COATS SUITS and FURS to be disposed of at 33⅓%–50%–75% off

Here's the Story!

$250,000 of the best merchandise was damaged by water and smoke very recently. Many of the coats, suits, dresses and furs were scarcely touched. A great many, however, were sent to the highest class cleaners . . . Kraus Brothers Loewy Company, Fashion Cleaners, David Weber and North Side Cleaners.

The entire stock is wearable and will be placed on sale at ridiculously low prices for the purpose of disposing of the entire stock immediately, and preparing this store for a permanent re-opening.

We ask the public's kind indulgence for the appearance of this store during the sale and to remember that the interior of the store is not as desirable as we would like to have it be . . . but we believe the values will make you quickly forget your surroundings.

This fire, occurring in the midst of our season, made it necessary to close down the busiest time of the year when our stocks were most complete with only the very newest, the finest, the rarest merchandise obtainable in New York and in the foreign markets. You can easily realize the newness of the stock when we advise you that 85% of the stock was not in our house over twenty days at the time of the catastrophe.

Immediately after the sale the store will be closed again for complete reconstruction . . . to make F. B. George & Co. . . greater, finer and more beautiful than ever before!

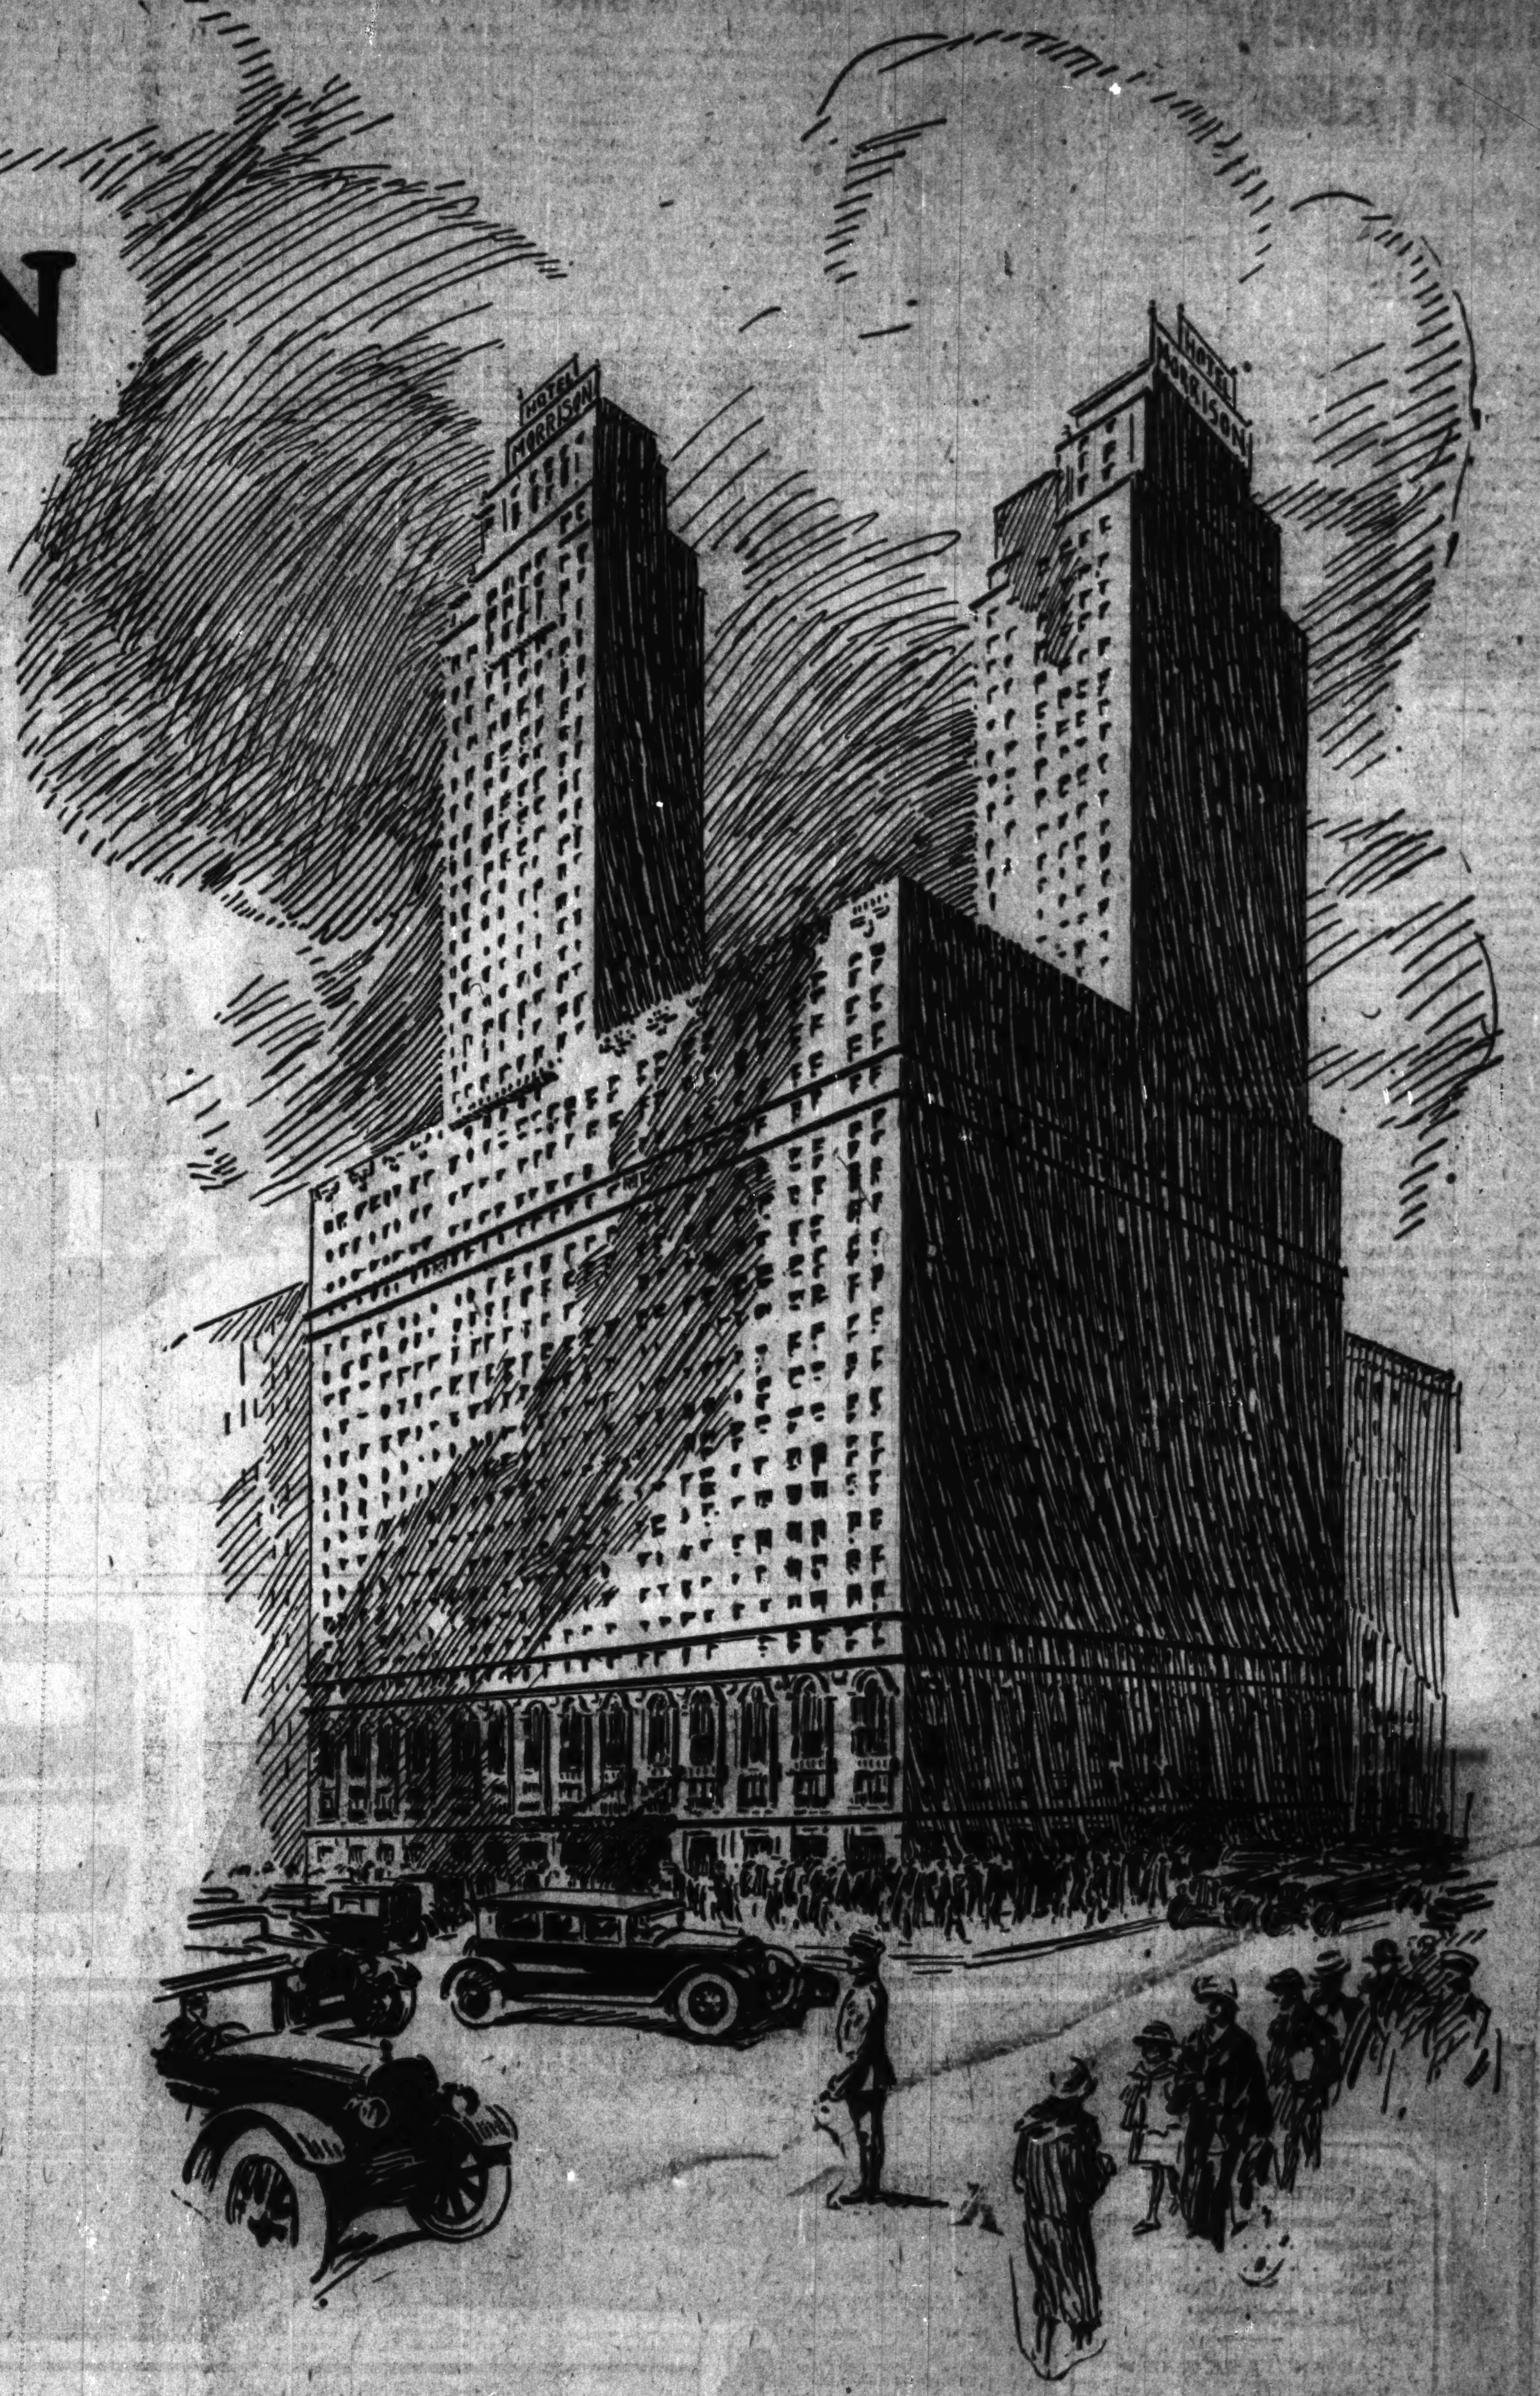
THE NEW MORRISON HOTEL

Harry C. Moir's Superb Contribution to the Progress of Chicago

AS the steel frame of the Morrison Hotel's new section rises skyward, the scope of Harry Moir's lifelong purpose becomes more plainly visible.

The Morrison's record of service—the timeliness of each enlargement to meet the needs of the growing city—is no new story to Chicago. It culminates in the largest and tallest hotel on earth—a building worthy of a city which now leads the world in the volume of its building projects.



SAVING MONEY

For Guests—and Investors

But behind the beauty and stateliness of the new structure is another story—a program of practical economy in operating cost. Its purpose is to protect the pocket of the traveler who stays at the hotel, and of the bondholder who has invested money to finance its construction.

Every detail of running expense has been worked out in advance. Dollars and cents will be saved at every point, wherever the saving is consistent with faultless hotel service. And one conspicuous illustration of this program of economy is the substantial saving that will be accomplished in the annual water bill.

Watrous

Duo-Jet Closets and Flush Valves

Will Be Installed in Every Bathroom of the Morrison's New Section

The Watrous Duo-Jet Closet and Flush-Valve, used in combination, consume less than two-thirds the water used by the least wasteful of all other closet-combinations.

Even with a limited installation of closets, the Watrous Combination accomplishes an annual money-saving which no building owner can afford to ignore.

No Clogging or Overflowing

Owing to its efficient design the Watrous Closet cannot possibly clog or overflow. The consequent elimination of repairs to bowl, flooring, etc., adds substantially to the economies named above.

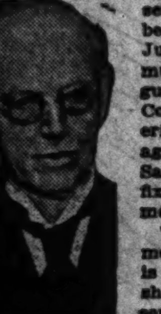
COLORED KILLER'S SHOUTS ANSWER GIBBET DECREE

Tells Court White Slayers Escape Noose.

Willie Sams, colored bad man, was yesterday denied a new trial by Judge Hosea Wells, who sentenced him to be hanged on June 19 for the murder last August of Patrolman Cornelius Broderick. Two weeks ago a jury found Sams guilty and fixed his punishment at death.



JUDGE WELLS.

"I don't ask for mercy; all I want is justice," Sams shouted after the sentence had been passed. "In the last year three colored men have been hanged, two for killing cops. But not long ago when two white men killed a policeman the color of their skin won them life imprisonment."

Took Two Lives.

Sams, still shouting, was led away by bailiffs. After the excitement in the courtroom had subsided Assistant State's Attorney William McSwiggin, who gained the death verdict, pointed out that Sams' statements were erroneous.

"Sams is a cold blooded murderer," Prosecutor McSwiggin said. "His vocation in life was robbery and if any one interfered with him he would kill. He has taken two lives already. He killed Meyer Oppenheim, and he killed Policeman Broderick. He didn't give either a chance for his life. He wounded Policeman Edward Mulcahy."

Policeman Mulcahy was Broderick's partner. They were about to search Sams when he shot them down. Sams was captured two days later in a rooming house wounded from one of the officers' bullets.

Kills Uncle Aiding Niece.

Oppenheim was killed when he came out of his house after hearing his niece cry for help, while Sams and Hugh Truvillion, also colored, were robbing her and Art Goldblatt. Sams shot Oppenheim without a word. For this murder Sams was sentenced to life imprisonment. Truvillion was given thirty-five years.

The two white men Sams referred to were Raymond Carroll and George Meade, who pleaded guilty to participating in a pay roll robbery that resulted in the death of Policeman Frank McGlynn. Their defense was that two other men, who have not been apprehended, fired the fatal shot.

J. A. O'CALLAGHAN RESIGNS TO TAKE SPECIAL U. S. JOB

Assistant United States District Attorney James A. O'Callaghan yesterday tendered his resignation to District Attorney Edwin Olson. It is to become effective June 1, when Mr. O'Callaghan becomes special trial attorney for the internal revenue department at Washington. Mr. O'Callaghan has been a government prosecutor here for two years. In that short time he has handled approximately 2,000 cases, most of them matters of injunction.

JAMES A. O'CALLAGHAN.

INVOLVE SECOND DRY SLEUTH IN $1,000 SHAKEDOWN

When Prohibition Agent Frank Hassett returns from a two-day sojourn at the Kentucky Derby he will find himself confronted with a warrant in the hands of Patrick Roche, special agent of the intelligence unit, department of justice, which charges him with conspiracy to obstruct justice, suppressing evidence, and violation of the prohibition laws.

Hassett was named with Prohibition Agent Burgner, arrested Friday, in which they are charged with extortion in connection with a shipment of ale where an innocent victim was "shaken down" for $1,000 to have his men and trucks released.

Agent Roche and Assistant United States District Attorney James L. McDowell announced yesterday there would be no further arrests in connection with the bribe, but said they would go before the federal grand jury next week to seek indictments.

M. V. L. INDORSES KOZUMPLIK TO VOTERS OF 23D

Voters in the 23d ward will hold a special election on Tuesday to fill the vacancy in the city council caused by the death of Alderman Joseph O. Kostner. John Toman, democrat and former alderman from the district, is opposed by Frank Kozumplik, also a democrat and editor of a Bohemian daily newspaper.

"The choice," according to the Municipal Voters' league, "is between Kozumplik, an intelligent newspaper man of independent and progressive views, supported by labor groups, and with little experience, on the one hand, and Toman, on the other hand, an energetic man, a loud speaker, well versed in all the ways of practical politics."

The league recommends the candidacy of Kozumplik.

Son of Mother Who Admits Poisoning Leaves Hospital

David Cunningham, poisoned with arsenic which his mother, Mrs. Anna Cunningham of Gary, is charged with administering, has been taken to the home of his cousin, Mrs. Dorothy Williams, 734 Barry avenue, after being in the Columbus hospital for several weeks. Cunningham is paralyzed and will be for at least a year, physicians said yesterday.

Give Up Hope of Rescuing Entombed Montana Miner

Butte, Mont., May 16.—All hope of rescuing alive Gus Bolden, Butte miner, entombed by a fall of ground in the 200 foot level of the West Colusa mine last Monday, was abandoned today by rescue workers. Work will be continued, however, until the body is located, mine officials said.

IRAK'S QUEEN, IN MODERN TOGS, IS SHOCK TO KING

LONDON, May 16.—[A. P.]—King Feisal of Irak (Mesopotamia) received a great shock lately, says the Daily Express, when his wife returned to Bagdad from a visit, thoroughly inculcated with European habits and fashions.

Instead of traveling homeward by the ancient caravan route from the court of her father-in-law, King Hussein, where she had been staying, she took passage on a liner to Basra. Then, disdaining offers of palanquins and other ancient vehicles, she sped to Bagdad in a fast automobile, arriving at the court in European dress. Feisal, after recovering from his surprise, gave his approval.

An Enclosed Car of Striking Distinction

G-R-A-C-E! The classic symmetry of the Victoria's long, low-swung body is deftly emphasized by the high sides, low-curving roof, and sweeping rear deck.

T-R-A-V-E-L E-A-S-E! It has the stability and delightful steadiness of weight properly poised, of spring construction special to Nash that absorbs all shocks, and of chassis design that achieves the final degree of rigidity with five rugged cross-members, three of tubular design.

S-E-L-E-C-T F-I-T-T-I-N-G-S! There's a silver-finished vanity case done in chaste Old Empire design; the deep upholstery is of fine mohair velvet; there are reading lights; and generous provision for packages is made with a compartment directly behind the driver's seat.

In addition you'll find a large luggage chamber concealed in the beautifully sloping rear deck.

Included in the price as standard equipment are Nash-design 4-wheel brakes, full balloon tires, and five disc wheels.

FILIPINOS THINK ECONOMIC BARS KEEP FOES AWAY

Captor Couldn't "Make It Pay," Quezon Says.

[Second of two interviews with Manuel L. Quezon, president of the Philippine senate and leader of Filipino nationalists in their campaign for independence.]

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MANUEL QUEZON.

MANILA, P. I., May 16.—"I tried in our first talk to explain that Philippine independence would not be a menace to any country," Manuel L. Quezon, president of the Philippine senate, said as he resumed discussion of the status of the islands. "It therefore remains that the only reason any nation would seek to take the Philippines would be the advantage they would hope to derive from possession of the islands. I hold that if that nation's reason for taking us is selfishness, it will first measure up the posible advantages with the possible costs, and from that viewpoint the islands would not be worth the taking.

"The first cost of taking the Philippines would be a war with some other first class power. The second cost would come from the resistance which the 12,000,000 people of these islands would offer and that resistance would continue to our last man. We would defend independence at any cost. We would keep up the war and the invader unable to develop and exploit the country would not find it a paying proposition.

Yanks No Aid.

"I have spoken of reasons concerning our national security. From an economic standpoint the reasons for Philippine independence are equally strong. It is more than 25 years now that America has maintained soverignity over the Philippines. So far no economic development of this country has been accomplished on a large scale. Where our trade has increased in the last quarter of a century, these increases have been natural and not due to American promotion.

"No American capital has come here to develop the country. Most American business in these islands has grown from small capital. There have been no millions of American dollars brought here for investment. There has been no American built lines of communication, no establishment of new shipping.

"The railroad lines in the Philippines represented English capital until they were taken over by the Philippine government and guaranteed by revenues from the Filipino people. The only exception to this statement is the small road to Panang and Cebu which is American capital and which is not paying. We, the Filipino people, are paying the interest on the money invested.

Development of Sugar.

"The development of the sugar industry has been accomplished with local capital out of the Philippine National bank with only a few and rare exceptions. The tobacco industry remains practically in the hands of the same people who held it before America's arrival, except for several new Philippine companies. The hemp industry is all in the hands of Filipinos. What of our natural products have been developed solely by American capital—none."

Mr. Quezon did not mention the Philippine land laws, enacted by the American congress for the purpose of protecting the Philippine people from exploitation by foreign capital interested in land products. These American made laws are to a large degree responsible for the absence of greater American capital.

"True," agreed the speaker, "American laws have prevented such exploitation. We believe they are good laws and that congress enacted them with the intention of protecting us, but the point remains that no big American capital has been brought into this country by America. Would it come in, if we were independent? I don't know, but if it didn't we would be no worse off than we are now.

Wants Foreign Capital.

"If we were independent and did not have the present limitations on our powers, we could offer iducement to foreign capital to come. The United States congress is too busy to interest itself in our problems and limited as we are over here, we are in no position to extend our external conomic development."

"But under the American flag, Mr. Quezon, the Filipinos have a high priced market for sugar, tobacco, and cocoanut oil which go into America under the protection of the American tariff?"

"True," replied the speaker, "and the observation is easy to answer. Take our sugar industry, for instance. If we remain under the American flag, we cannot be sure there will always be a tariff on sugar in the United States.

"Under President Wilson, America came near putting sugar on the free list. We may lose that protection under the American flag at any time. We have no guarantee its particular benefits will remain to us. Further than that, we have no assurance that your protective tariff might not be applied against our sugar at any time.

"In fact, it is quite probable that the American tariff will be applied against Philippine sugar, whether we are independent or not. That will happen just as soon as we begin to produce sugar in sufficient quantities to be a serious competition to the beet sugar interests in the United States as well as Cuban sugar, because Cuban sugar is largely American owned.

"If we start underselling Cuban and beet sugar, back will go the tariff against us. If that should happen, then American products would be coming into our market free while we would be paying duty on our products entering the American market. The gist of the matter is that the market advantages of the United States are not permanent to us, and we have no assurance of their permanence whether we are independent or not."

"Give Us a Chance."

"There is a certain sentiment in America for the eventual independence of this country. If eventually, why not now? For our economic interest it is better that its hould be now. First, for the reason that the United States is not developing us now and we would like to try and do it ourselves.

"Secondly, better give it to us now so that our developing industries can gauge themselves to world markets rather than lead our now protected industries up to the crash that will follow the eventual promised independence and the withdrawal of the tariff dence and the withdrawal of the tariff benefits.

"Thirdly, if we continue under the protection of this tariff, the time will soon be when we cannot get along without it without destroying everything that has been built up under it.

"American protection of our industries is a growing chain around our necks, intended either to keep us in the United States forever or to wreck everything and put us back where we started.

Denies Ingratitude.

"These are some of the practical reasons why we Filipinos want our complete and absolute independence. We are not unmindful or ungrateful for all that America has done for us, all that she has given us, and we are prepared upon independence to carry into the family of nations a new member with a government based on the high ideals and free institutions that you have taught us. Under independence we would constitute ourselves and our nation a living monument to these institutions and ideals."

Does Mr. Quezon honestly believe all these sentiments which I have reported above? This is a curious question and one that I did not dare to ask the senate president at the conclusion of his remarks. As I did not voice such a question, which might have been taken as a reflection on his sincerity, Mr. Quezon spoke it himself, after the fashion of a clairvoyant who could have been reading my thoughts.

"I am sincere," he said. "In Manila you will hear, and probably you have heard, that my independence sentiments are expressed only for political effect and that my real sentiments are quite the opposite. Such a statement is an infamous lie."

Mr. Quezon is a politician.

EARN AND SPEND AND PROSPERITY IS SURE, JAMES M. LYNCH SAYS

Indianapolis, Ind., May 16.—[A. P.]—General prosperity will be promoted by free circulation of money provided the money is earned before being spent, is a conclusion reached by James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union, after a study of data gathered by the union in an investigation of living costs. Mr. Lynch recently warned workers against mortgaging their future too heavily.

"Results of our investigation," he said, "show that elimination of excessive taxation and injudicious installment plan merchandising would clear the way for prosperity of a permanent character and a vastly improved standard of living."

In commenting on the effect of taxation Mr. Lynch said that high state, county and municipal taxes constitute the most difficult obstacle in the path of general prosperity.

Salesmen! (Top Notchers Only)

$500,000 Commissions In 3 to 6 Months Time

We are about to pull off the most spectacular of all subdivision campaigns—the significance of which has already doubtless been recognized by the veterans in this business, men who can smell a tremendously big operation a mile away.

¶The few big men to whom this ad is properly addressed will understand what we are talking about and all that this matter-of-fact statement implies.

¶Their pulses will quicken as they read this news, for red-blooded men whose hearts are in the game thrill at the hint of battle, and long to take a hand.

¶There are many excellent super-salesmen in the Realty game who are not merely satisfied with earning big commissions. They want money, but they want something above and beyond it, as well.

¶THE BRANIGAR BROTHERS know what you men want. It is the same identical thing which BRANIGAR BROTHERS COMPANY demand of the Real Estate business.

¶Profits? Yes! But in addition thereto—prestige, pride in true accomplishment, and great satisfaction.

¶These things are worth a lot to any man. We know.

¶Through faithful service to our clients, through sympathetic and democratic co-operation with our associates in the office and on the firing line, we have quickly grown from humble beginnings to the point where we can today offer the biggest opportunities in the Real Estate field to good men.

¶No Real Estate selling connection can hardly offer more in point of earnings than the openings we now desire to fill. None afford a wider latitude and freedom of action. There are no hide-bound policies in effect here. There are no proud traditions here.

¶There isn't any red tape or work-to-rule practices. This is an office for big men—tremendous workers—who go and come as they please, who are invited and even urged to put their own ideas and inventions into practice, with this single limitation only to wit—that every plan and act and statement must be as true and clean as a hound's tooth.

¶Clean, ambitious, resourceful men who can thrive in such an atmosphere will here find their big opportunity. For Branigar Brothers Company has just started to grow. The men who join us now are getting in on the ground floor. The sky's the limit—for a few good men.

¶Our long and carefully-arranged plans for marketing of IVANHOE are rapidly maturing. We are almost ready for the first assault. Our big preliminary campaign in the newspapers begins next Sunday. But already, the advance inquiries are pouring in on us by the hundreds. There is every indication that this will prove to be what we have promised—the most spectacular and the most successful subdivision campaign since the World's Fair days. There is certainly every reason why it should be. No parcel that was ever offered in Chicago was blessed with half such favorable conditions as IVANHOE, as you yourself probably very well know.

¶There will be ample steam put behind the operation. We have both the finances and the vision necessary to go through. You will be proud of your part in this operation. You can make bigger money than ever before. And you ought to get a brand new kick out of the thought of being one of the family of

Finally—(you "Build-an-Ad" fans)
The Latch-string that opens wide the big door!

We have told our story. The sequel to it will be written by the people of Chicago—investors and home-builders—within the next few months. Already the public is tremendously stirred regarding "IVANHOE."

It now only remains to open up this rare investment opportunity to the thousands who are waiting—to set the date for the Opening Sale—and be off in the biggest, swiftest Real Estate selling campaign in Chicago's history.

We are far from ready for the Opening Sale. Too much of the vast improvement work at "IVANHOE" remains to do. But while this gigantic task of building 30 miles of Cement sidewalks, 15 miles of Concrete streets, laying sewer and water mains, planting thousands of shrubs and shade trees, etc., it preceding with feverish activity—we want to prepare to give the early investor the chance to get in ahead of the big movement.

This we shall do next Sunday by publicly inviting Advance Inquiry. In other words, within another week the Latch-string will be out to the enterprising and the foresighted who want an opportunity to obtain all the facts weeks ahead of our regular operations. And the purpose of the present premature announcements is to halt some who may be on the verge of making less attractive Real Estate Investments and who may therefore be glad to wait to see our property, get our prices and make comparisons before they do actually buy.

SCIENCE ADVISES EAST OF DANGER OF EARTHQUAKES

Maps Program to Cut Life and Property Loss.

New York, May 16.—[A. P.]—Earthquakes must be added to the risks of life in cities of eastern United States, is the conclusion of the Engineering Economics' Foundation of Boston, a survey of whose studies, covering several years, will be published tomorrow by the New York Times.

Eight distinct shocks have been felt in this section of North America since Sept. 30, 1924, indicating that this region is in the grip of a periodic readjustment of the earth's surface, in the opinion of Dr. Mirtley F. Mather, professor of geophysics at Harvard university.

Expects More Quakes.

Dr. Mather says that there have been earthquakes in this region of "No. 8 intensity" nearly equal to that of San Francisco in 1906, and there is no reason to believe there will not be others.

The foundation has prepared a description of the probable effects of a No. 8 earthquake in the "made ground" sections of cities like New York and Boston.

It says that houses built poorly probably would collapse; elevators and other stationary machines would be jammed; pipe lines of water, oil, and gas would be liable to rupture and fires break out; oil freed from reservoirs would add to the fire hazard and the population would suffer from shock, panic, death from fire and wounds, disease, exposure, and famine.

Education Only Insurance.

Measures preparatory for such an emergency have occupied the special study of the foundation, which holds that public education is the only insurance against confusion and greatly increased death tolls. Dr. Thomas A. Jagger, one of the world's leading seismogologists, estimates that at least 75 per cent of the loss could be eliminated by the foundation's program.

The foundation proposes to have earthquake maps prepared for each city of the northeastern area and to stimulate seismological research. Its staff also is working with such problems as how transportation could be carried on in an earthquake emergency when subways and elevated roads may be put out of business; what buildings are safer under conditions of shock and how new buildings should be put up; the whole relation of oil stores to earthquake hazard; the best ways to prevent panic and check it; the functions of the army, navy and police in such an emergency; how disease might be checked and food and shelter brought to a stricken population.

Maps Quake Regions.

Dr. Jagger also says there are geological reasons for considering the Watchunk ridges of New Jersey and the Palisades of the Hudson liable to earth failure. Dr. Jagger has mapped the earth's surface on graduations of "quakiness" on a scale of one to ten. Tokio, Hawaii and such volcanic regions being No. 10.

On this scale, New York and New England rate at No. 8, the same as central and southern California, with other parts of the country rated lower; Michigan at No. 3; Ohio and the Mississippi valley, No. 5; North Carolina and eastern Canada, No. 6; the district from Washington to Philadelphia, No. 7.

MOTORISTS FOR LICENSE LAW, AGAINST GAS TAX

The proposed automobile drivers' license bill was endorsed and the proposed gasoline tax was opposed by organized motorists of Illinois, members of clubs affiliated with the American Automobile association, meeting yesterday at the Chicago Motor club.

The license bill, if it becomes law, will drive the careless and unfit driver off the streets and highways without imposing a financial burden upon motorists and without setting up a political czar, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, declared at the meeting.

If Illinois adopts a state gasoline tax the state automobile license fee should be removed, State Senator Harold Kessinger of Aurora asserted at the meeting. Charles M. Hayes pointed out that while the gasoline tax might benefit landlord farmers, it would put an additional burden on the tenant farmer.

MRS. H. M. WISE, NURSE DIE IN FIRE; CHILDREN SAVED

Park Ridge, N. J., May 16.—[Special.]—Trapped by flames early today on the second floor of her beautiful home at Woodcliff Lake, N. J., Mrs. Henry M. Wise, wife of the New York lawyer and mother of two children, lost her life. Mrs. Henrietta Danfield, a trained nurse in attendance on Mrs. Wise, also was burned to death. The two dead women were found clasped in each other's arms.

The children, Frances, 8, and Andrew, 6, were carried to safety by Albert Groestin, a caretaker. Groestin was powerless to aid the women, however, for after rescuing the girl and boy he found flames had cut off the stairway. He had not ladder.

Wise, who is a member of the law firm of Lee, Smith, Aron & Wise, is on his way to Mexico. Mrs. Wise was convalescing from an operation for appendicitis.

HARVARD RIVAL EDITORS ENGAGE IN FISTICUFFS

Cambridge, Mass., May 16.—[A. P.]—A fight and a riot call to the Harvard college police force took the place yesterday of the traditional annual baseball game between the editors of the Harvard Crimson, student daily, and the editors of the Lampoon, undergraduate humorous publication. Although the keg of beer which formerly reposed at each base has been abandoned, the game has been continued and each side always claim the victory.

This year the Lampoon team arrived at Soldiers field to find newsboys offering copies of a Crimson baseball extra giving a complete account of the Crimson's "victory," under the headline, "Low minded humorists are suppressed by Crimson baseball team."

The Lampoon men started for the Crimson building. While one group burned the offending Crimsons in the front yard and plastered the facade of the building with mud, another contingent sneaked up a fire escape, burst into the editorial sanctum and precipitated a fist fight.

Body of Man, Woman Lost in Norman Found

Memphis, Tenn., May 16.—[A. P.]—The bodies of two more victims of the capsizing of the Norman at Coahoma Landing, Miss., eight days ago, today were taken from the Mississippi river several miles below the scene of the disaster, according to a wireless message received here.

The bodies found today were those of Mrs. Lydia Hidinger, 78, of Memphis, and Charles Shearer, consulting engineer, Memphis. Sixteen persons still are missing.

THIS IS A STUDEBAKER YEAR

Bunge Bros. Coal Co. Has—

Plenty of every size of fresh mined Pittston and Scranton Anthracite Coal.

Standard best grade—third vein Pocahontas Smokeless Coal.

Hercules—the strong, long lasting coke for homes and bakeries.

Standard Oil Co.'s Petroleum Carbon Coke—"The ashless fuel"—let us tell you about it. (Every user of this Standard Oil product is a booster.) We are exclusive dealers for the city of Chicago.

In soft coal we have the genuine famous Quaker Sootless, for house use—holds fire well—you can bank nicely with the ashes.

Our prices are right—we make deliveries near and far.

Take our advice; do not wait—get your coal in now—it will pay you well to do so.

Coal and coke make the safest and cheapest fuel.

And Now—A Super Barber Service—In a Shop as Sanitary as a Clinic!

A New, Standardized Service—
The Same at Each of Our 20 Chairs—
Constantly Supervised by the Proprietor

A Shop as Different from Others as a 1925 Model 12-Cylinder Car Differs from the Old Fashioned One-Cylinders!

THE CRYSTAL is a 20th century barber shop for 20th century people. A first-class, absolutely sanitary shop, where thousands of dollars' worth of new, specialized equipment guarantees sanitation; a shop where only expert barbers, specially taught, are at every chair; a shop, in short, of experts, conducted as a business enterprise by a business man, who knows that every man wants his money's worth.

And you get it at The Crystal—no doubt about that! All barber shops are not alike—nor is all barber service. Come down and find out about Crystal Super-Service!

The Only Barber Shop of Its Kind in Chicago!

No. 1. A boiling geyser of water sterilizes every razor before it touches your face.

No. 2. Individual lather brush, comb and hair brush, in sealed package—opened before your eyes—for your use—then to the sterilzer before they are used again.

No. 3. Dustproof towel compartment.

No. 4. Shaving soap in tubes—no insanitary mug. It can only be used fresh—and once for you!

Expert Manicurists on Duty.

"Hursen" Funeral Autos

The Finest in America

It costs not a cent more to ride in one of Hursen's superb, specially designed, private, noiseless funeral-limousines than it does to ride in any of the usual unlovely public funeral conveyances. Hursen's automobiles are recognized as the most beautiful in America.

Each has been specially designed by Hursen himself. Each required a small fortune to build. Each possesses those traits of unusual beauty, comfort and always appropriate loveliness which distinguish all things "Hursen."

The interior of "Hursen" cars is perfection in drawing-room elegance, and in arrangement for roomy comfort. The exterior in contour, in finish and in equipment represents a development far in advance of many of the highest-priced automobiles of the day.

"Hursen" cars are noiseless, vibrationless. Each rides like a Pullman coach. Each is under the supervision of a Hursen-trained, always correct, liveried driver. It is small wonder that a fleet of "Hursen" cars, wherever seen, always excites such universal admiration.

The new "Hursen" idea, the "limousine-hearse," is also something entirely new to Chicagoans. It is a revolution in hearses. It does away with the much overdone and gloomy ornamentation always heretofore used on hearses. Hursen "limousine-hearses" follow the same general lines of elegance and simplicity which have the "Hursen" funeral autos for passengers famous in America.

The elegance of "Hursen" funerals to the last detail is unsurpassed. Yet the charge for "Hursen" funerals is from one-third to one-half the charges usually asked elsewhere. It is this policy that has made "Hursen's" the greatest undertaking establishment in America.

Know Quality by the Company It Keeps

BERRY BROTHERS' varnishes, enamels and stains are used in famous buildings the world over. In Chicago the Tribune Tower, Straus and Hartman Buildings, and the luxurious new Barry Apartment, are a few of the many outstanding examples.

New York knows Berry Brothers' products too. The Cunard, Equitable, Westinghouse, Park-Lexington and Federal Reserve Bank Buildings, the Times Square and Alamac Hotels, the International House and scores of palatial new apartment buildings have Berry Brothers' finishes in them.

In World Centers

The same is true in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Athens, Madrid, Buenos Aires, Tokio and Hong Kong. Wherever fine buildings are built, Berry finishes are used!

Practically all of Europe's most famous motor cars are finished the Berry way. There is scarcely an automobile produced in America that does not carry some Berry finish. Even the telephone you use, the airplane you see overhead and 1001 articles of daily use familiar to everyone, are finished, all or in part with Berry products.

Chicagoans admire the wonderfully finished metal trim in the Tribune Tower. That's Berry's Lionoil Metal Trim Enamel.

The fine walnut woodwork throughout the Straus Building in Michigan Boulevard shows the beautiful effect obtained with Luxeberry Wood Finish, the original Hard Oil of 50 years ago.

Nowhere in the world will you find finer enamelwork than in the Barry Apartment Building at 3100 Sheridan Road, Chicago. And this is an example of the finish you can have in your own home or apartment if you use Berry Brothers' Luxeberry Enamel.

Something Worth Seeing

Look at the piano floors in Lyon and Healy's, finished for more than a quarter of a century with Berry Brothers' Liquid Granite Floor Varnish, because experience has taught that no other varnish can stand so much punishment!

For skyscraper, apartment building, house or cottage, Berry Brothers' varnishes, enamels and stains are the most durable and economical finishes you can use. Some of them cost a little more but all of them cover a greater area per gallon and last twice and three times as long as ordinary finishes.

There are Berry dealers everywhere. They are reputable merchants who know their business. Put your finishing problems up to them and cut redecorating costs in half over a period of five years.

Mt. Vernon, Ia., May 16.—[Special.]—This community is so small that it does not afford a hotel. Yet for twenty-seven years Mt. Vernon has had an annual music festival, and for twenty-three the Chicago Symphony orchestra has been coming to play in the course. The festival is the event of the season, not only to Mt. Vernon, but to the country for a radius of sixty and eighty miles. There were automobile visitors in town today from Waterloo, from Des Moines, from Grinnell and Iowa City and many little communities roundabout. The Chicago Symphony orchestra players are old friends and Frederick Stock is an esteemed and highly honored guest.

Important in Iowa, Too.

Perhaps it is not surprising that the orchestra should be taken as something considerable more important here than in Chicago, where the wonders that it works several times a week during the season come to be regarded as almost matter of fact.

The festival closed tonight making a feature of the final performance of an extended choral number. This was the "Mystic Trumpeter" by Hamilton Harty, sung by the Cornell Oratorio society and conducted by E. H. F. Weis, director of Cornell college conservatory of music.

The "Mystic Trumpeter," which, to the best of my memory, has not been given in Chicago, was written recently enough and in an unconventional enough idiom to classify as a modern work. It has points of great difficulty for any choral organization that desires to give it. When, however, it is sung as well as it was tonght it repays the trouble.

Cornell Oratorio Society Praised.

The Cornell Oratorio society, as nearly as one can estimate, is entirely composed of students of the college. That gives it the enormous asset of young voices.

Mr. Stock was as enthusiastic about it as any one in the audience.

"There you have it," he said. "That is real tone. That is what every chorus ought to have and what a good many of them never attain."

Raymond Koch, Chicago baritone, was the soloist. At one time and another, he has done some first class singing in Chicago, but out here he sang like a star.

The afternoon concert had Jacques Gordon, concert master of the orchestra, as soloist and Vaughan Williams' London Symphony as the chief orchestral number. It was a first appearance for both and both made a hit that approached a sensation.

MEMORIAL FOR PATRIARCH.

A memorial service for the late Patriarch of Russia, Tikhon, will be held today from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. at the Holy Trinity Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic cathedral at 1121 North Leavitt street.

Have you ever seen 3 STATES at once?

You can see three states and America's second city from the Observatory now open in the Straus Building Tower, more than 425 feet above the corner of Michigan and Jackson Boulevards.

The Observatory is finished in Italian Loggia style, with leaded glass windows and doors, and artistic rough plaster surfaces.

The outside promenade—more than 425 feet above street level—is protected with ornamental steel wire, the mesh just large enough to stop one's hat from blowing through.

The admission charge is only 25c, and it includes the use of powerful binoculars. Be sure when

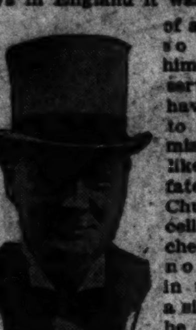
STOP TAX ON SILK STOCKING, CRY OF BRITISH WOMEN

Factories Aid Fight on New Excises.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]



WINSTON CHURCHILL.

LONDON, May 16.—In the good old days in England it was the privilege of a peer who had so misconducted himself as to deserve hanging to have a silken rope to cheer his demise. This seems likely to be the fate of Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, who is now floundering in the meshes of a silken net which he wove himself in the new silk taxes of the budget.

All the opposition to the budget ties, the fight on the new insurance, the McKenna duties and the gold standard being forgotten in the hope that a new cry will succeed in bringing down Mr. Churchill, who is hated by both the old fashioned Tories and the Liberals.

Affects Every Woman.

It seems as if he has made a tactical mistake, for the silk duties affect not only every woman in the country, but powerful business interests. The tax includes artifical silk, which is a material of which many stockings are made. And no woman in England these days would think of encasing her nether limbs in other than shimmering silk or its imitation.

And artificial silks also have become the backbone of the decaying cotton and woolen industries, giving promise of new prosperity.

Churchill Sticks to Guns.

The textile interests of Lancashire and Yorkshire are opposed to the new taxes. They do not, of course, object to a tax on imports of artificial silk goods, but they are fighting the excise tax on domestic goods and the import tax on artificial silk yarn, of which, in spite of the enormous domestic production, 4,000,000 pounds were imported this year.

Mr. Churchill is sticking to his principle on the taxes, although he has expressed a willingness to make a few adjustments to meet the objections.

ROBBED BY TAXI PASSENGERS.

Joseph Schoeman, 921 South Paulina street, a taxi driver, was robbed of $27 early yesterday by a man and woman, both passengers.

New York Woman Again to Head Junior Leagues

Boston, Mass., May 16.—[A. P.]—Mrs. Charles S. Brown, Jr., of New York, was re-elected president of the Association of Junior Leagues of America at the business session which closed the annual convention here today. Other officers elected were Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly, of Pittsburgh, and Miss Helen Campbell of Washington, D. C., vice presidents. Nashville, Tenn., was chosen as the place for next year's meeting.

Coolidge Invited to Tiny Town of Missouri Children

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[A. P.]—President Coolidge took under consideration today an invitation to attend an exhibition at Tiny Town, Springfield, Mo., May 25 to June 6. The invitation was extended by Hazel Wilhoit, 14, and Gordon Cummings, 15, mayor and city manager, respectively, of Tiny Town, which is run by the children of Springfield on the basis of a city.

GEORGE F. NIXON BUYS W. H. COLVIN ESTATE

Buys 140 Acres Near Glen View Golf Club; Price Is Given at $400,000.

George F. Nixon has purchased the 140-acre estate of William H. Colvin adjoining the Glen View Golf club on the north. The property adjoins the right of way of the proposed extension of the Chicago North Shore and Northern Electric line. In view of Mr. Nixon's purchases along the Niles Center extension his latest acquisition is regarded in some quarters as confirming reports that the extension from Niles Center to Lake Bluff might be undertaken shortly. The Colvin estate is one of the finest in the Glen View territory. The purchase price is said to have been $400,000. H. LeRoy Evans took title from Mr. and Mrs. Colvin, transferring it to Mr. Nixon.

A prediction come true

Construction of the new North Shore Line from Niles Center to Lake Forest has begun

"Niles Center Profits" for First Investors in George F. Nixon & Company's

Forest Preserve Addition to Glenview

WERE you too late for Niles Center? Did you postpone and procrastinate until all chance for the long profits that go with early investing were gone?

Here is a bigger opportunity because, in addition to the transportation that made Niles Center, you have the natural beauty that has made such places as Wilmette, Glencoe, Highland Park and Lake Forest home localities as desirable as those through which this new line will pass.

The Forest Preserve Addition to Glenview is right alongside the new North Shore Line right of way (now being built).

It is right in the heart of one of America's finest golf club regions—with three golf clubs within a few minutes walk and 600 permanent Forest Preserve acres practically adjoining.

Glenview is the first community of importance north of Dempster Street on the new right of way. Naturally express station facilities can be expected. And as usual—as was true at Niles Center—the Nixon properties are again the choicest to be had.

But don't think you can wait awhile. You will have to pay the fortunate first investors a profit if you want to buy property in the Forest Preserve Addition to Glenview later on.

Buy now. There is no time like today. A moderate down payment will secure you your property and the profits it will surely pay you before many months go by. Write or telephone at once for prices, plats and information.

RUSSIA DEMANDS SOFIA BOMBERS ESCAPE HANGING

MOSCOW, May 16.—[A. P.]—Communist Russia is aflame with indignation against the projected execution at Sofia, Bulgaria, of the men recently sentenced to death as responsible for the bombing of the Sveti Kral cathedral in which 160 persons were killed.

KING BORIS.
[Copyright: U. & U.]

Great public demonstrations of protest against the executions are being held in Moscow. Delegations of peasants and working men today called at the British, French, and Italian missions and urged them to protest against the proposed public hangings. The bolshevist newspapers are making violent threats.

The Pravada says: "Bourgeois Europe, with a smile on its face, indorses the horrible sight. While these executions are occurring we ask the workmen and peasants to listen to what we tell them. We tell them in civil war there can be no mercy. The time will come when the whites and the representatives of the bourgeois will be in the hands of the workers. Therefore, remember today's lesson from Sofia—no mercy!

"We know that these communists in Bulgaria will perish with the belief that from their bones will rise a victorious revolutionary army. We swear we shall revenge them. Our workmen will settle accounts with their hangmen."

The railway and river transport workers of soviet Russia today presented the Moscow government with a fleet of thirty-one airplanes, the cost of which was defrayed by popular subscription among the workers. The squadron has been named the "Djerjinsky Escadrille."

Believes Men Won't Hang.

VIENNA, May 16.—[A. P.]—The Sofia correspondent of the Allgemeine Zeitung telegraphed his newspaper that it is doubtful whether the men sentenced to death for the Sveti Kral cathedral bombing will actually be executed. This dispatch points out that King Boris always has resolutely refused to sign death warrants and that the Bulgarian government hesitates to apply the death penalty without his confirmation.

CREDIT MEN TO RE-ELECT BURGESS TO PRESIDENCY

The Chicago Association of Credit Men will hold its annual meeting and election Monday night in the La Salle hotel. There is no opposition to Ernest H. Burgess, present first vice president, who is running for president.

E. H. BURGESS.

Other officers to be elected are: A. H. Fabbri, first vice president; J. S. Cox, second vice president; F. M. Forrey, treasurer; Charles Buresh, H. W. Clausen, M. L. Doty, G. H. Johnstone, J. M. Judson, George McAninch, P. F. Shock, P. J. Silberstorf, A. V. Willett, and J. E. Penny, directors.

J. Adam Bede, former congressman from Minnesota, will be the chief speaker.

TAKE MY THRONE; ALL I WANT IS A BUNGALOW FOR 2

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 16.—Prince Cyril, the younger brother of King Boris, is being invited by the Bulgarian government to visit Sofia for a few months. It is flatly denied that King Boris is thinking of abdicating, but the attempt at his assassination and the bombing of St. Nedelia's cathedral has deeply depressed him.

Prince Cyril, who is of strong character and who has been a close companion of his, may take over some of his more disagreeable duties.

"I am desperately unhappy," King Boris confided to a foreign visitor recently. "I dream of having a sweet little wife and a bungalow somewhere with flowers, but instead I am constantly menaced. I had at least 100 of my dear friends torn to pieces at St. Nedelia's, my people are fighting among themselves. We have foreign enemies, and there is no end of our trouble. I suppose I shall be assassinated some day, although I am not responsible for the government or its policy.

"My father was accused of ruining Bulgaria, so I have reigned but never ruled. I would prefer to abdicate, but I promised my father I would keep the throne, and I cannot break my word."

King Boris is a lonely figure, for he has decided that it would not be fair to ask any princess to sit on such a shaky throne. So he lives alone in the big castle in Sofia in which former King Ferdinand, known as "The Fox of the Balkans," broke his mother's heart by baptizing him in the orthodox instead of her Catholic faith.

King Boris has a kind and gentle nature. When the government sends him death sentences to sign he almost breaks down at times. He is greatly beloved by the Bulgarian people, army officers, and diplomatic corps, but he has never exerted any real political influence. He was only 24 when his father abdicated after the armistice. M. Stamboulisky was killed before he could decide what to do with the monarchy. He is liked and respected by the Zankoff government, but his suggestion months ago that some moderate agrarian leaders be taken into the cabinet was vetoed.

CHRIST CHURCH TO OBSERVE ITS 90TH YEAR TODAY

The Very Rev. T. De Witt Tanner is rector of Christ Episcopal church, Joliet, which will celebrate today its ninetieth anniversary. The Rt. Rev. Campbell Gray, recently consecrated bishop of the diocese of northern Indiana, will preach the anniversary sermon. Christ church is the second oldest Episcopal church in Illinois, St. James, Chicago, being the oldest. The church was organized by the Rt. Rev. Philander Chase, then bishop of the diocese, on May 16, 1835. The first church building cost $10,000, and on the subscription list are the well known Chicago names of John H. Kinzie Jr., and Mahlon D. Ogden. The Rev. De Witt Clinton Locke, who was later rector of Grace church, Chicago, was rector of the Joliet church from 1856 to 1859. The present rector is completing his fourteenth year.

ROCKEFELLER'S DAUGHTER AND BRIDEGROOM SAIL

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Davis Merriwether Milton Jr., daughter and son in law of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr., sailed on their honeymoon trip to Europe today on the liner Paris.

The simply attired bride and her young husband found a battery of cameras awaiting them at the pier. Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller accompanied them to their stateroom and were with them when they faced photographers.

"Dont' be nervous, dear," said Mr. Rockefeller to his daughter, "these gentlemen are your friends."

He and his wife smiled as they surveyed the array of photographers. But the young couple were not at ease. But they submitted quietly. When the party reached the steamship it became known that the young couple have been living since their marriage on Thursday afternoon at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Their stateroom on the Paris is costing them $905. It is on the D deck and is one of the cheapest on the vessel. The French line called Mr. Milton on the phone after the reservation had been made and told him that a better stateroom was availible at an additional cost of $300. Mr. Milton is reported to have replied that the stateroom reserved was satisfactory.

Hague Gives Poland Mail Delivery Right in Danzig

THE HAGUE, Holland, May 16—[A. P.]—The permanent court of international justice today rendered an opinion to the council of the League of Nations regarding the Polish postal service in the free city of Danzig. The court held the Polish postal service is entitled to install letter boxes and to receive and deliver postal matter outside of an area previously specified and that Polish postal service in Danzig is for public use.

BAKING POWDER
CALUMET BAKING POWDER CO.
CHICAGO, U.S.A.

One Spoonful

of Calumet Baking Powder will do the work of two spoonfuls of many other brands. It goes farther—lasts longer because of its more-than-ordinary leavening strength.

That's why it is most economical of all leaveners.

CALUMET
THE WORLD'S GREATEST BAKING POWDER

If you have been using some other brand in a recipe that calls for two spoonfuls of baking powder — try it with Calumet and use less baking powder.

You will notice a big improvement in the quality of your baking—it will taste better—be lighter and more easily digested. You'll decide then and there in favor of the "best by test" leavener — the baking powder that millions have been buying and using daily for years.

Make Note of This!

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 ounces. Some baking powders come in 12 ounce instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

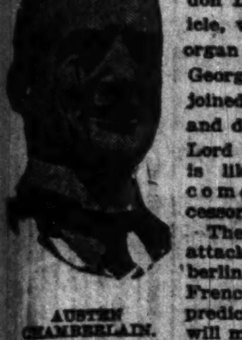
ARES INTRIGUE TO OUST BRITISH FOREIGN CHIEF

Lloyd George's Faction Hits at Chamberlain.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 16.—The intrigue to get rid of Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, came into the open today when the London Daily Chronicle, which is the organ of the Lloyd George Liberals, joined in the cry and declared that Lord Birkenhead is likely to become his successor.



AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN.

The Chronicle attacks Mr. Chamberlin for his pro-French policy and predicts that he will make a fight, although, it says, a large section of the cabinet is against him.

The intrigue has brought together some strange bedfellows in modern politics, although it is largely in the hands of the group who figured in control of the Lloyd George coalition. In the background is Lord Beaverbrook, who is a close friend of both Lord Birkenhead and David Lloyd George, and who was the power behind the throne in the Tory party under the late Andrew Bonar Law. He has never forgiven Mr. Chamberlain and Prime Minister Baldwin for refusing to allow him to continue his dictation.

Expect Chamberlain to Win.

Lord Birkenhead is a constant contributor to Lord Beaverbrook's paper for which he was criticized in parliament last week for it is contrary to English political traditions for a minister in office to write to the press.

The indications are, however, that Mr. Chamberlain will win out. He is believed to have the support of Mr. Baldwin and an open attack by the Lloyd Georgian organ is likely to help rather than to hurt him with the Conservative party. In the meanwhile Mr. Chamberlain is going on steadily with his policy of restoring the Anglo-French entente.

While conditions make difficult the restoration of the general coöperation as it was before and during the war, he is concentrating on coöperation on various questions as they arise. Instances are the French security demand and the Paris attitude on the alleged German defaults on disarmament.

France Using New Guns.

Now he has taken a hand in the Moroccan question and he not only has resisted pressure in parliament to interfere on behalf of the Riffians, declaring this is purely a domestic question for France, but he has gone further and is bringing pressure on the Spanish government to induce it to agree to allow the French to enter the Spanish zone in Morocco in order to clean up the job.

France by employing new guns and other material which were prepared during the great war but which were not used owing to the end of the conflict, is easily annihilating the invading force which Abd-El Krim sent into French territory.

WOULD BUILD DAM NEAR SITE OF SHOALS PLANT

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—Two applications have been filed with the federal power commission for license to build a large hydro-electric power dam on the Tennessee river 30 miles below Muscle Shoals, one by the Mississippi Power company in Mississippi below the mouth of Bear Creek, and the other by the Muscle Shoals Hydro Electric Power company at Riverton, Ala.

Each applicant seeks permission to construct a dam one mile long and 50 feet high, to develop initially 70,000 horse power with an ultimate installation of 240,000 horse power. The dam and the power house are estimated to cost about $22,000,000.

It is understood there is no conflict between the two applications, the proposed sites being only about ten miles apart and the dam will be built on the site the federal power commission determines is the most feasible.

DODGE VOYAGE IS DELAYED BY BOOZE ARREST

Batavia, N. Y., May 16.—[A. P.]—State troopers here announced today that they are holding, pending payment of $3,500 bail, Ralph Herrington, of Detroit, who described himself as chauffeur for Horace Dodge, automobile manufacturer. Herrington is charged with illegal transportation of liquor, which the police declare they found in the car he was driving. The car also contained a quantity of baggage belonging to Mrs. Dodge and her sister, who were on their way to Europe.

The two women were to have met the manufacturer in Syracuse Thursday, according to the police, obtain the baggage and continue to New York by airplane. The meeting took place but the baggage was held here, necessitating a hurried trip by Mr. Dodge to this city.

Not a Pocket Edition Six

But a big, roomy 120-inch wheelbase, easy riding, six cylinder motor car—custom built quality, appearance and detail. The sensational buy of today's market.

CLOSED MODELS—The Auburn Six closed bodies are similar in design to the remarkably beautiful Auburn Eight; lacquer finish, Brewster windshield, centralized control on steering wheel, all instruments under one panel on dash, metal roof quarters on top, four extra wide doors, rear seat 48 inches wide, ample room for three passengers, leather finish in Brougham optional at slight extra cost.

ROADSTER—The most up-to-date smart roadster design. Room for six passengers, three in front and three in rear. A racy looking and performing sport type with many improved new features, including the convenient rear door which eliminates necessity of climbing over to get into the rear seat.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 16.—[Special.]—Bill Killefer's flip flopping Cubs had another first inning spasm today and another ball game went to smash. Due to the ineffectiveness of Tony Kaufmann, the boisterous Phillies duplicated their trick of the day previous by scoring four runs at the very start and with this handsome advantage they didn't have much trouble copping by 7 to 5 and making it three out of four on the series.

Kaufmann's dismal inaugural round was due solely to the fact that he could not fool the enemy, and not to any blunders by his mates. The Phils simply walked up in that chapter and hammered the ball for five safe smacks. Tony aided them a bit by plunking another batter in the ribs and when the locals started to climb him again in the fourth he was sent on his way. Vic Keen followed and prospered delightfully for four innings and in the eighth Guy Bush took a hand only to be plastered for two runs that made the Phils' triumph a certainty.

Gabby Makes Tenth Homer.

About the only thing that can be said in behalf of the Cubs are that the dynamic Gabby Hartnett plastered another home run into the seats and that a rally in the ninth made the Phils feel thankful for the two runs slapped against Bush in the eighth. The belated rally in the final frame produced two runs and put two more on the bases with two out, but the last hope went to smithereens when Bob Barrett, batting for the pitcher, missed a lusty swipe at a third strike.

Hartnett's homer, which was labeled No. 10 of the season, was paraded before 11,000 fans in the seventh inning. "Gabby" was the first batter and he lifted the ball into the left field seats in emphatic fashion. That was only the Cubs' fourth hit off Jimmy Ring, but the big right hander quit right then and there and Johnny Couch succeeded him. The latter also had to retire in the ninth in favor of Decatur, who fanned Barrett to end the show.

Grimm's Bat Helps Cubs.

Hartnett had to share the home run honors of the day with Charley Grimm, who has been having a big time with his bat in recent engagements. The former Pirate first sacker took a toe hold in the second inning and drove one of Ring's offerings over the fence in right center. That four ply wallop gave the Cubs their second run, Heathcote having scored in the first inning on his own double to center and a single to left by Hartnett.

Two men had flied out in the ninth before the Cubs gave any evidence of a dying kick. Then Griffith singled and was permitted to run to third without drawing a play. Friberg's double scored him. Grimm survived on a fumble by Fonseca, and Miller, batting for McAuley, hit the first pitch to left for a single, Friberg counting. This made matters looks serious to the Phils' pilot, so he recalled Couch and it proved a wise move.

Keen hurled four innings without allowing a hit, but when Bush appeared on the slab in the eighth, the Phils [illegible] themselves in a different [illegible]. With one out, Hawks doubled and Sand scored him with a similar [illegible]. The latter took an extra [illegible] on Statz' wide return throw and [illegible] the final Phil run on a [illegible] by Huber.

Badgers Wade to Victory in Midway Meet

BY TED ISERMAN.

J. Pluve did his best to call a halt to the four cornered track meet at Stagg Field yesterday, athletes of Wisconsin, Ohio State, Chicago and Northwestern splashing through an interesting program with the Badgers winning with 66¼ points. The Buckeyes were second with 55¼ tallies, Maroons third with 31¼, and the Purple scored 23¼ for last place.

Though the track was slowed and the turf made soggy by a downpour the night before and another which delayed the start of the meet, the competition in most of the events was keen and the marks were surprisingly good, despite the handicap. The early events were run off through pools of water, but the track was fairly dry and firm as the competition wore on.

Guthrie High Score.

High point honors went to George Guthrie of Ohio State, who won first in the high and low hurdles, and in the broad jump. The thirteen points netted by Mc Andrews, Badger sprinter and broad jumper, gave him second place. Schwarze, Wisconsin's giant weight man, garnered 11 markers.

The Buckeyes and Badgers showed balance and strength which should put them well up in the conference meet June 6, both teams placing in all events but the javelin, where Chicago scored thrice, Beard of Northwestern, winning with a heave of 168 feet 6½ inches.

Chicago placed in twelve of the sixteen events, the Purple getting its counters in seven.

Badgers Show Power Early.

Though Ohio State drew first blood by Guthrie's win in the high hurdles in 15 3-5 seconds, Wisconsin showed its strength early in the meet, holding a safe advantage after every event.

Some of the notable work of the day was done by Schwarze, who tossed the shot 48 feet 3½ inches and who heaved the discus 134 feet 6 inches. Another nice stunt was the work of McGinnis of Wisconsin, formerly of Hyde Park High, who beat Justin Russell of Chicago at 6 feet 4 inches in the high jump.

Jimmy Cusack of Chicago, leaped to the fore as a miler, leading the distance and finishing in a trot to beat both Arnold of Ohio State and Vallely of Wisconsin in 4:28 2-5, giving Chicago its only first. Alva Martin, the Purple middle distance man, finished first in the quarter, in :50 3-5.

Kennedy Wins Two Mile.

For thrills the mile run and two mile grind were headliners, Kennedy of Ohio State winning the latter in 9:50 2-5 after a hard battle with Bourke of Chicago. The one mile relay event went to Wisconsin in 3:26⅕. Summaries:

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Kennedy, Ohio State; Bourke, Chicago, second; Edgar, Ohio State, third; Perry, Wisconsin, fourth. Time, 9:50 2-5.

HIGH JUMP—Won by McGinnis, Wisconsin; Russell, Chicago, second; Tuhtar, Wisconsin, third; Campbell, Northwestern, fourth. Height, 6 feet 4 inches.

220 YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Guthrie, Ohio State; Snyder, Ohio State, second; Canning, Northwestern, third; McGiveran, Wisconsin, fourth. Time, :25.

ONE MILE RELAY — Won by Wisconsin [Flueck, Hill, Hilberts, and Kennedy]; Northwestern, second; Chicago, third; Ohio State, fourth. Time, 3:26 1-5.

BROAD JUMP—Won by Guthrie, Ohio State; McAndrews, Wisconsin, second; Snyder, Ohio State, third; Harvey, Chicago, fourth. Distance, 22 feet 10½ inches.

HAMMER THROW—Won by Bunker, Ohio State; Murphy, Ohio State, second; Tressler, Wisconsin, third; Schwarze, Wisconsin, fourth. Distance, 150 feet.

120 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Guthrie, Ohio State; Snyder, Ohio State, second; McGinnis, Wisconsin, third; Roberts, Wisconsin, fourth. Time, :15 3-5.

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Cusack, Chicago; Schutt, Wisconsin, second; Arnold, Ohio State, third; Vallely, Wisconsin, fourth. Time, 4:28 2-5.

SHOT PUT—Won by Schwarze, Wisconsin; Murphy, Ohio State, second; Limberg, Wisconsin, third; Hobscheid, Chicago, fourth. Distance, 48 feet 3½ inches.

440 YARD RUN—Won by Martin, Northwestern; Kennedy, Wisconsin, second; Spence, Chicago, third; Ruszkowski, Ohio State, fourth. Time, :50 3-5.

100 YARD DASH—Won by McAndrews, Wisconsin; Irwin, Ohio State, second; Stackhouse, Chicago, third; McKinney, Chicago, fourth. Time, :10 1-5.

POLE VAULT—Krueger, Wisconsin, and Bouscher, Northwestern, tied for first; Webster Chicago third; Schmidt Wisconsin, Burg, Chicago, Cramer, Ohio State, and White, Northwestern tied for fourth. Height 12 feet.

DISCUS THROW—Won by Schwarze, Wisconsin; Nessler, Northwestern, second; Schroeder, Wisconsin, third; Zeigler, Northwestern, fourth. Distance, 134 feet 6 inches.

HALF MILE RUN—Won by Ross, Ohio State; Bergstresser, Wisconsin, second; Carter, Wisconsin, third; Hegovic, Chicago, fourth. Time, 2:00 3-5.

220 YARD DASH—Won by McAndrews, Wisconsin; Francis, Wisconsin, second; Kerswein, Chicago, third; Irwin, Ohio State, fourth. Time, :23.

JAVELIN THROW—Won by Beard, Northwestern; Harrison, Chicago, second; Russell, Chicago, third; Caruso, Chicago, fourth. Distance, 168 feet 6½ inches.

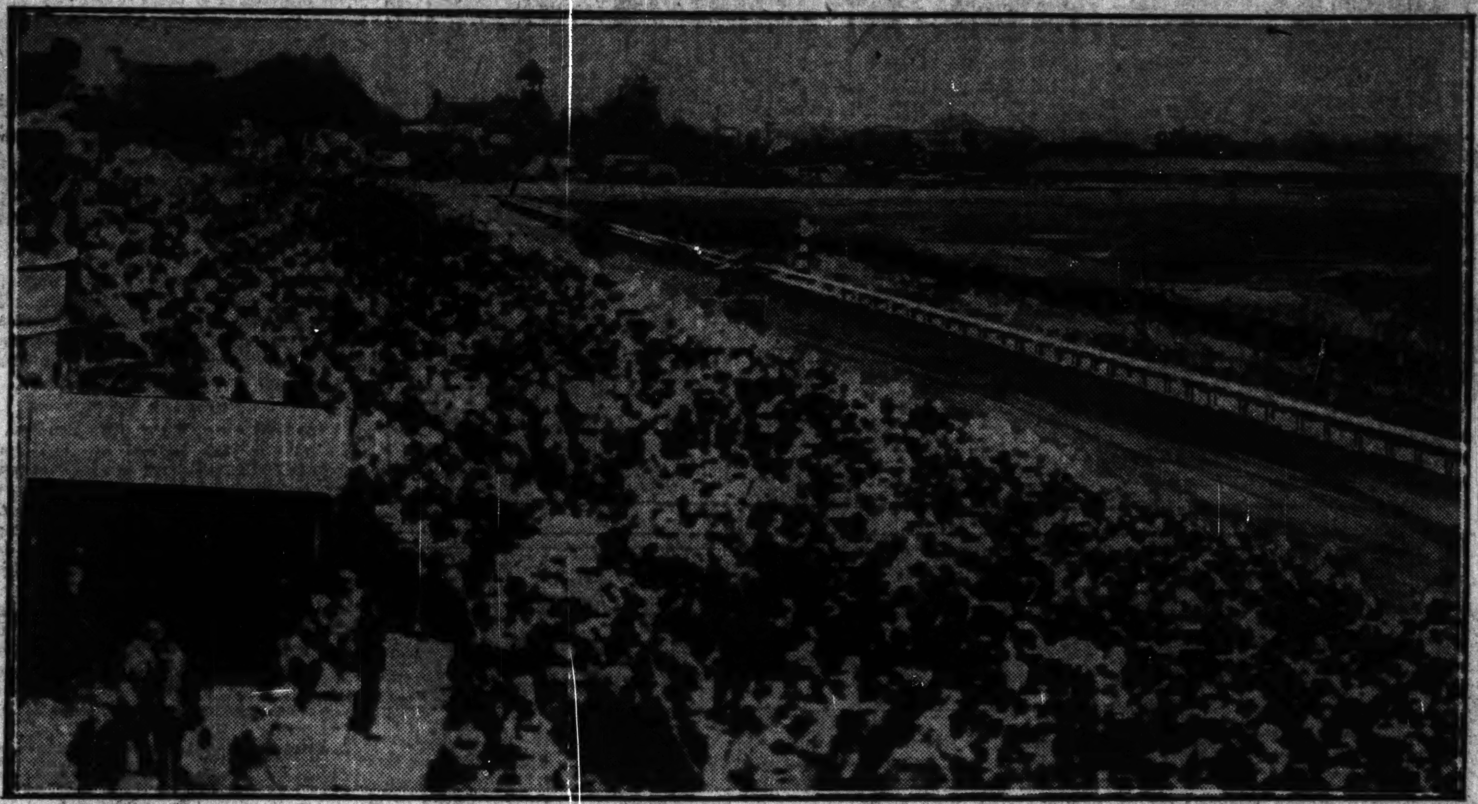
MICKEY WALKER KAYOS COOPER IN FIRST ROUND

San Francisco, Cal., May 16.—[A. P.]—Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion boxer, knocked out Lefty Cooper of Minneapolis in the first round of a scheduled ten round bout in an outdoor card here this afternoon.

Lefty did not have a look-in, though he tried gamely. Mickey, wading in Dempseylike, floored the challenger quickly. Cooper got up at the count of nine and rushed into the champion. Walker sent in another series of terrific jolts to the face, adding a right hook, under which Cooper fell again. He was trying to rise at the count of ten and there were boos from the ringside when Larry McGrath, the referee raised Walker's hand.

The title was not involved, both men weighing over the welterweight limit, Cooper, 154; Walker, 151.

80,000 WITNESS BLUE GRASS CLASSIC



The greatest crowd that ever saw the running of the Kentucky Derby was present yesterday, according to General Manager Matt Winn. The picture gives an idea of the crowding and pushing, and every story indicates that there were thousands who never saw the finish of the shortest and most thrilling show in the world. This picture was sent to The Tribune over telegraph wires by Telepix, giving The Tribune a 24 hour picture beat on the Derby.

Champaign, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Eldorado Township high school from way down in Saline county, and Danville battled to a tie for championship honors of the Class A division in the big state interscholastic track and field meet of the University of Illinois in the Memorial stadium here today. Each team scored 17 points.

Senn led the Chicago high schools, placing next to the leaders with 15 points and Tilden Tech was next.

Hinsdale won the Class B championship, for schools with less than 400 pupils, with 28 points, Carlinville being its only serious rival. The two teams outdistanced the rest of the big field.

Wind Clips Preps Speed.

The meet held in the stadium for the first time, was the largest in point of contestants and attendance in the 30 years of its history. A stiff wind blew down the track and, coupled with the newly built track, was too much of a disadvantage for the runners. Only one record was battered, the quarter mile, which Borgia Orlovitch, sturdy lad from Joliet High school, covered in 51 3-5 seconds. The former record was made by Martin of Oak Park in 1908. Orlovitch undoubtedly would have made even better time if the wind had not been so stiff against him on th back stretch.

Eldorado, groomed by Coach Bland, had four scoring athletes: Bridenstine, first in the shot put; Murphy, first in the broad jump; Wiggins, second in the high jump, and Tyson, third in the javelin.

John Thomas' Preps Win.

Danville, coached by John Thomas, former University of Chicago football star, triumphed by virtue of three athletes: Howrey, first in the mile run; Whitlock, first in the javelin, and Mason, first in the 220 low hurdles and fourth in the high hurdles.

Hinsdale's points were scored by Borson, first in the 220 low hurdles and broad jump; Homer, first in the 50 yard dash, and second in the 100 yard dash; Schuett, second in the high hurdles.

Miller of Elmwood and Wachowski of Harrison Tech cleared 5 feet 11 ¾ inches in the high jump, within an

Here we have the two winners—the man and the horse—who surprised the turf world, with the exception of a few fans who stacked their coin on the Cochran horse, by coming home in front. Equivalent booking odds—Flying Ebony, field, 315 to 100 straight, 90 to 100 place, 40 to 100 show; Captain Hal, 175 to 100 place, 120 to 100 show; D. W. Scott and F. M. Grabner entry, 175 to 100 show.

Winner—Blk. c., by The Finn—Princess Mary, by Hessian [trained by W. B. Duke; bred by Mr. John E. Madden].

Went to post at 4:32. At post 4 minutes. Start good and slow. Won easily; second and third driving. FLYING EBONY, well ridden and away forwardly, set the early pace, then followed CAPTAIN HAL closely and, after a sharp drive through the stretch, outstayed the latter and won going away. The latter showed fine speed and raced into a good lead, but tired slightly and appeared to have suffered some interference when FLYING EBONY came over in the last eighth. SON OF JOHN raced prominently all the way and was in close quarters through the last eighth. SINGLE FOOT raced well all the way. STEP ALONG closed a considerable gap. SWOPE raced well. QUATRAIN began slowly and was far back all the way. ALMADEL was always outrun. KENTUCKY CARDINAL was always beaten. NEEDLE GUN ran fairly well.

Scratched—Reminder, 126; Chantey, 126; Reputation, 126; King Nadi, 126; Elsass, 126.

VICTORY PROVES SANDE AMERICA'S PREMIER JOCKEY

Earl Sande, who scored his second Kentucky Derby victory at Louisville today, is the most popular jockey on the American turf and one of the greatest race riders ever produced in this country. It is necessary to go clear back to Tod Sloan to find a jockey whose prestige has even approached that of the tall candy-haired boy from Idaho.

Honest and game to the core, Sande is idolized and lionized wherever thoroughbreds run in this country.

Last August, to save another rider, Sande, the courageous, took a fearful fall at Saratoga and the turf mourned. It was said that he would never ride again, but with his leg strapped up in a plaster cast, Earl laughed at the doctors.

Doubt He'd Come Back.

"I'll be out there next spring winning races," he told them. But the skeptical shook their heads. Even if it became physically possible for Sande to accept mounts again, they feared that his old skill and nerve would be gone. Spring came and with it word that the tall jockey was exercising horses and getting ready to ride.

"Now watch what we told you," warned the skeptics. Then came the announcement that Sande had severed his connection with the powerful Rancocas stable and the anvil chorus grew louder than ever.

Sande went to the post for the first time on Sarazen and won. He went to the post on Worthmore in the Paumonok on the opening day of the metropolitan season and won in a driving finish. Time after time Sande rode and always the horse beneath him got an honest capable ride. The Preakness came and Sande on Swope was crowded out of the running.

Sande's Critics Crow.

"Didn't we tell you," crowed the critics, "he can't do it in a big field. It takes an iron nerve to pick holes and ride through them in a field like that."

Sande went to Kentucky to ride in the Derby. W. Ziegler Jr., who holds a second call on his services after Joseph Widener, had a horse entered in the race. Sande rode him in a trial event and found him wanting.

Ziegler told him to go and get another mount if he could. Sande wanted to ride Quatrain, then ruling favorite, but Benny Breuning had a contract calling for the mount; Breuning was the jockey Sande saved at Saratoga. Sande offered him $2,000 and the winning jockey's fee to let him ride the Johnson colt for the honor alone. Breuning refused.

Gets Flying Ebony Mount.

But Sande was not daunted. He does not easily take "no" for an answer. He went to Gifford A. Cochran, who had a comparatively unknown and certainly untried black colt in the Derby. This colt had never gone further than six furlongs in a race, but Mr. Cochran and Mr. Duke, the colt's trainer, told Earl they thought he had a chance.

The colt was a son of The Finn. It was on another son of this same sire, Zev, that Sande scored his other Derby victory and rode some of his greatest races, notably against Papyrus.

Sande took the mount. The colt was Flying Ebony. He won. Such is Earl Sande.

tingent of Chicago, under the banner of Kentucky Cardinal.

Quatrain drew number 20 position from the pole in the twenty-five overnight entries. Even with the five scratches, which reduced the number of starters to twenty, second largest in Derby history, this left only three horses beyond him toward the outside rail. It was not a good place for a colt, outfooted in the early going as was Quatrain.

When Sande urged Flying Ebony to the front and came past the stand the first time with Captain Hal and Son of John in close attendance, Quatrain was back in the second flight. Jockey Breuning took Quatrain toward the inside going around the clubhouse turn and was well back in the ruck. Unless he had good racing luck, it was a precarious position from which to move forward.

Then Quatrain began to move up. He improved his position materially in the run down the back stretch and seemed to be getting ready to challenge for the lead. Breuning had so bettered his position that this seemed possible. Then another contender quit in front of the favorite and the boy had to take up and go round. When called on, Quatrain lacked that great finish which captured the New Orleans handicap. He never again appeared even remotely dangerous.

Master Does His Stuff.

Meantime, Sande, with consummate skill, was nursing his mount, keeping him first or second, judging the pace to a nicety and holding something in reserve for the drive down the home stretch which meant $52,950 net to the winner.

So Sande went by the stand and around the first turn on the rail. He did not urge his mount at this stage, but allowed Captain Hal to take the lead down the back stretch. At the pole half a mile from home, Captain Hal was a length and a half before Flying Ebony, with Son of John at his saddle girth.

Ten around the far turn Sande let loose and Flying Ebony drew alongside as they swung for home. Here Captain Hal carried wide the ultimate winner, but Flying Ebony came away like a good colt, and even as far out as the sixteenth post there was no doubt of the result. Flying Ebony finished on the outside of the track with Captain Hal next in, and Son of John on the rail.

Ovation for Man and Horse.

As Sande cantered back to the judges' stand after the finish to receive the garland of roses for the winning jockey, and Flying Ebony pranced while the floral blanket was thrown across his withers, the great crowd accorded the pair a mighty roar befitting the occasion. Then former Senator Camden in behalf of the Jockey club presented the gold trophy to Owner Cochran.

Previous to the Derby was another feature which gave the crowd a chance to voice its approval. Black Gold, popular winner of the 1924 Derby, cantered in parade the full length of the stretch with colors up. Jockey J. D. Mooney, who rode Black Gold just a year ago today, was astride. Mrs. R. M. Hoots, his owner, who this morning unexpectedly appeared on the scene of her former triumph, viewed the spectacle.

What had been ideal weather conditions all day were wrecked just before the Derby. A heavy cloud suddenly jumped out of a fleecy sky after the fourth race and spilled its contents.

Rain Spoils the Event.

There was a driving rain as the horses paraded past the stand. It continued while they passed down to the starting post, then stopped. Within twenty minutes the sun was out again.

As the rain fell many scampered to cover, others on the brick lawn and in the infield raised umbrellas, while at least half of those exposed to the storm stood their ground and took a drenching rather than relinquish points of vantage which never would be regained in their rush back to positions as the rain abated.

The fifty-first Kentucky Derby has earned its place as the greatest spectacle of all such races, and Flying Ebony, in his future engagements, will carry the wish of Kentucky race followers that he prove himself a worthy wearer of his unexpected honors.

Expectations that withdrawals would reduce the field from the twenty-five named in the overnight entries were realized early in the day. Owners are allowed until within forty-five minutes of post time to declare out their nominations. Reputation, the first to go, then Elsass, then came Reminder of the H. P. Whitney stable and the Greentree stable's Chantey, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney. King Nadi, owned by J. J. Troxler, also was taken out.

The record number of entries previously was twenty-one, in 1921. Nineteen went to the post last year.

The Throng Comes Early.

This Derby crowd came early, as is wont of Derby crowds, especially the vast majority which has none of the comparatively few reserved boxes. This vast majority comes early to be assured of transportation and to preëmpt points of vantage, which become increasingly rare as the big race approaches.

First the unreserved seats, then the benches, then any empty boxes which may be secured, any source upon which to stand, then the standing room, and finally "any place," go in the order named. One pessimist today observed that 80,000 attended the Derby and 20,000 saw it. It was not quite as bad as that.

FLYING EBONY'S VICTORY DUE TO SKILL OF SANDE

French Lane Gives Jockey Full Credit.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Louisville, Ky., May 16.—[Special.]—Earl Sande, the wizard rider, aboard a horse in condition to run, tells the story of Flying Ebony's victory today in the fifty-first Kentucky Derby. Had Capt. Hal, Son of John, Single Foot, or even Chicago's Step Along been guided by a Sande there might have been a different story to tell.

Only Sande, a Sloan, or an Archer could have won today's Derby on Flying Ebony. And it would have taken a Sloan or an Archer at his best to have outridden this red haired lad from the plains of Idaho in this afternoon's struggle. From the lift of the barrier to the final flying leap past the wire it was Sande and his horsemanship, his ability to keep Flying Ebony running which brought the verdict in today's conflict.

Single Foot Sets Pace.

It was Art Johnson, old Exterminator's jockey, who all but beat the Derby barrier with Single Foot and for a few short strides was today's first leader. But, quick as was Johnson's getaway, Chief Uncas, Flying Ebony, Capt. Hal, and The Bat were soon at his heels. When Sande started riding and before they had reached the stands, he all but picked Flying Ebony off the ground and sent him to the front as they raced past the stands.

As they circled the first turn he was hugging the rail, running smoothly with Captain Hal a length and a quarter back, Son of John a half length back, and trailing in their wake came Needle Gun four lengths back of Son of John, Single Foot, Step Along, Lee O. Cotner, Swope, Prince of Bourbon, Kentucky Cardinal, Boon Companion, Broadway Jones, Sweeping Away, Quatrain, eleven lengths back of the leaders, The Bat, Voltaic, Chief Uncas, Backbone, Almadel, with Elector trailing the field.

Captain Hal Gains.

Before they reached the half pole Jockey Huepel moved with Captain Hal and it took him but a dozen strides to pull up on even terms with Flying Ebony and a second later Captain Hal's nose was in front. He increased his advantage to more than a length, but Flying Ebony, hardly urged by Sande, was running in even stride a length and a quarter ahead of Son of John. There was but little change in the positions of the others. Swope had replaced Lee O. Cotner in seventh place, Kentucky Cardinal dropped back to eleventh place, giving way to Prince of Bourbon.

They were turning at the three-quarters pole when the battle started anew, Sande and Flying Ebony starting it, and they were within a head of Captain Hal in two dozen strides. Son of John continued in third place and Single Foot was fourth, but Frank had shaken up Lee O. Cotner and he was fifth. Back of them the field was strung out, Step Along, Swope, Prince of Bourbon, Needle Gun, Kentucky Cardinal, Broadway Jones, Almadel, Quatrain and the others, all apparently out of it except the first half dozen leaders.

The Battle in the Stretch.

As they reached the stretch Captain Hal and Flying Ebony were still fighting it out and at this stage of the race Jockey Heupel on Captain Hal, whether intentional or not, carried Flying Ebony almost to the outside rail, and a faint hearted rider, probably any rider in America but Sande, would have lost his race then and there. But Sande, by his miracle riding, kept Flying Ebony on even stride, shook him up briskly and swept on past Captain Hal, eased his way back to the rail and had swept to the front by a length. Son of John was still third and he saved ground by clinging to the rail when Captain Hal and Flying Ebony swerved to the outside. Single Foot was fourth, Step Along fifth, Swope sixth, Prince of Bourbon seventh, Kentucky Cardinal had rallied and was eighth, Needle Gun ninth, Boon Companion tenth, Lee O. Cotner, faltering, was eleventh; Broadway Jones, twelfth, and Quatrain, in a pocket, was thirteenth.

Sande Steers Safely.

It was hardly a contest from then on in except between the three leaders.

The Memoirs of General Bullard

"CADET PERSHING at West Point was a hop-goer, what cadets call a 'spoony man.' He loved the society of women. Yet only twice was his authority questioned by subordinates; once by one who was convinced by Lieut. Pershing in his shirt sleeves and once by one who died of cholera for his disobedience to Capt. Pershing."

but Sande on Flying Ebony steered a straight and safe path while Capt. Hal and Son of John, fighting desperately for every inch of vantage, bumped and swerved toward the rail.

Son of John was the sufferer and it cost him second money for a length and a half back of Flying Ebony finished Capt. Hal, a nose back was Son of John, who was four lengths in front of Single Foot and a length back was Step Along, and as he failed to rally to Pool's frantic riding Chicago's last hope in this year's Derby faded. Back of them came Swope, Prince of Bourbon, Needle Gun, Kentucky Cardinal, Boon Companion, Broadway Jones, Quatrain, Almadel, Back Bone, Sweeping Away, Elector, The Bat, Lee O. Cotner, Voltaic, and Chief Uncas.

Quatrain in a Pocket.

Quatrain was away thirteenth and finished twelfth. Bruening moved but once with him at about the three quarters pole and had him running in fine stride, but a second later he was back in a pocket. Sande on Quatrain might have dodged that pocket.

It was Earl Sande's day, almost Sande's Derby and brought one ride that finally puts him in the same ranks with the once great Tod Sloan and alongside the finest jockey of all time in the immortal Fred Archer of England.

DERBY DAY NOTES

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—[Special.]—Many Chicago parties went direct to the Downs from their trains at an early hours. There were numerous breakfast and luncheon parties in the clubhouse dining room. One party, from the Chicago A. A., took in the territory along the backstretch where the derby colts were quartered and later had breakfast at the stable kitchen.

Chicagoans were everywhere. They occupied prominent places in the stands, clubhouse, on the lawns and in the big ring where the pari-mutuel machines were clicking off the records of the thousands of wagers. Among the boxholders from Chicago were Fred M. Grabner, owner of Step Along; Sheldon Clark, Patrick J. Carr, John J. Ahearn, Frank J. Farrell, E. J. McCabe, T. W. Parke, Aaron Strouse, Elbert Gary Sutcliffe, E. L. Vaughn, Edward S. Beck, Joseph E. Bidwell Jr., Frank J. Birk, John D. Black, Julius W. Butler, J. M. Chamberlain, Gerald C. Cudahy, F. S. Currie, John B. Drake, B. M. Eastman, Alfred K. Foreman, Walter Gibbons, George W. Gould, W. S. Harvey, John Hertz, E. M. Holt, John Irwin, O. Cromwell Jones, Patrick H. Joyce, Thomas F. Keeley, Frank J. Kelly Jr., Robert E. Kenyon, Foreman N. Leopold, E. C. Maher, George J. Mason, John H. McGeary, W. J. McMurray, J. A. Oliver, S. Peabody, A. D. Plamondon, Charles T. Essig, W. P. Redmond, Myron H. Spades, A. W. Straus, Mont Tennes, John R. Thompson Jr., and Charles A. Wright.

The secondary feature of today's Derby program was the debutante stakes for two year old fillies worth more than $8,000 to the winner. Epsonite, owned by Herbert G. Shimp of Chicago, was the winner. The victory proved extremely popular with the thousands of Chicagoans. She looks like one of the best two year olds in Kentucky.

Jockey Earl Sande's gift from Owner Gifford A. Cochran is said to have been ten per cent of the Derby purse. Sande left tonight for New York as did most of the other eastern jockeys who came west for the Derby engagement. The victory gives Sande a flying start in the race for leading stake winning honors of the year.

Transportation service of every kind was taxed to its utmost. The race which requires more private Pullman cars than any other one day event in America brought nearly six hundred Pullman sleepers, more than sixty private cars, and ninety chartered coaches to Louisville. Boats brought large crowds from the eastern and western territory along the Ohio river.

While the pilgrimage to the Derby started as early as Thursday, the real movement of the thousands gained full momentum last night and continued until nearly noon today. Stragglers were arriving even after noon, but few late comers were able to fight their way to a point where they could get a glimpse of the Derby field.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo were among the early arrivals. Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt of New York, owner of the great Sarazen, was another early arrival at the clubhouse. Shortly afterward Mrs. Payne Whitney of New York arrived. She owns the Greentree stable.

Marshal Field of Chicago was on hand, looking a bit sad, his Chicago friends declared, because his great three year old Stimulus was not here to sport his silks in the Derby.

The colt Reputation was the first horse entered in the Derby last February. This morning he was the first scratched from the overnight entries.

MOVE OF NEWARK TO PROVIDENCE O. K.'D BY PREXY

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—President John Conway Toole of the International league today announced the Newark International league baseball club and franchise will be moved from Newark, N. J., to Providence, R. I., as soon as the Province ball park is ready. The change of the franchise has been given the official o. k. of the International league board of directors.

It was announced the present club owners would carry on with the Providence club and a two year lease had been obtained on the Providence ball park. The change will take place within ten days, that period of time being required to repair the stands and grounds.

YOU DIDN'T BET ON DERBY; IF YOU BET 'TWAS DARBY

Louisville, Ky., May 16.—[A. P.]—The momentous question of whether one should say "the Kentucky Derby" or "the Kentucky Darby" has been settled by the London Times.

In a cable to the London Times, the Louisville Times inquired if the Earl of Derby pronounced his name "Durbi" or "Darbi." The answer received today said: "The Earl of Derby pronounces his name 'Darbi.'"

Therefore, since the race is named for the earl, those who went to Churchill Downs this afternoon witnessed the fifty-first running of the Kentucky "Darby."

Three Records Broken at Interscholastic Meet

Kewanee, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Smashing three records, Kewanee won the annual Henry county interscholastic track and field meet. In the high school class, Murphy set a new mark of 20 feet 3¼ inches in the broad jump; Conner, sixth grade youth, broke the broad jump record in grade events with 18 feet 9¼ inches, and Kewanee relay team set a new mark in the half mile, 1:38.

Booze Fine Makes College Students Late for Derby

Indianapolis, Ind., May 16.—Six students from Illinois and Wisconsin universities were late for Derby day at Louisville. They were arrested when state policemen found a small quantity of liquor in their car. Harry Commons, 19, of Freeport, Ill., the driver, paid a fine and the boys hastened on to the race.

YALE CAPTURES EIGHT OAR RACE; CORNELL SECOND

Derby, Conn., May 16.—Yale won the varsity eights race on the Housatonic river today, with Cornell second, a length behind, and Princeton third, five and a half lengths behind. Yale's time was 11:06; Cornell's time 11:21, and Princeton's time 11:25 4-5.

The Yale junior varsity eight won the opening two mile race. Princeton was second, a length behind, and Cornell third, five lengths behind the leader. Yale's time was 11:38 4-5.

Harvard won the 150 pound crew race by three-fourths of a length over Princeton. Yale was third, a length and three-quarters behind Harvard. No time was given.

Yale freshmen won by about seven lengths. Princeton was second and Cornell was a poor third, about fourteen lengths behind. No time was announced.

Pennsylvania Beats Middies.

Annapolis, Md., May 16.—Eight-oared crews of the University of Pennsylvania won two victories over the Annapolis midshipmen on the Severn river here today. The Quaker third varsity crew defeated a like Navy team over the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths, winning by half a length in 8:02 1-5.

Penn's fourth varsity conquered the middy fourth varsity crew at the same distance, crossing the line three lengths in the lead. The time was 8:11.

The water was extremely rough for both events.

Massachusetts Tech Wins.

New York, May 16.—[A. P.]—The Massachusetts Institute of Technology varsity eight defeated the Columbia varsity by three and one-half lengths in a mile and a half race on the Harlem river today. The time was 7:05.

Over a mile and five-sixteenths course the junior varsity crew of Syracuse university defeated the Columbia and Massachusetts Institute of Technology "JV" eights. Columbia trailed the Orange boat by three and one-half lengths, with M. I. T. half a length behind the New York boat. The Orange crew was timed in 6:30 1-5.

THREE TEAMS IN SEMI-FINALS OF NET TOURNEY

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—Eighteen teams headed by Vincent Richards, Olympic tennis champion, and Takeichi Harada, Japanese Davis cup team, began play today in the two day invitation doubles tournament of the Westchester Biltmore Country club. At the end of the afternoon three of the teams were in the semi-final running. They were Richards and Harada, Willard Crocker of the Canadian Davis cup team and Walter Merrill Hall, and Dr. George King and Watson Washburn. William T. Tilden II., the national champion, failed to appear.

Richards and Harada met in turn George Stadel and Ingo F. Hartmann and José Alonso of the Spanish Davis cup team and M. T. Kirkland. They defeated the former pair at 6—2, 6—3, and put out Alonso and Kirkland at 6—2, 6—4. Crocker and Hall met with considerable opposition in both their matches. Paul Martin and Henry Bassford carried them to 6—4, 6—3, while Ralph and Fred Baggs actually won more games from them, but Crocker and Hall won at 7—5, 1—6, 6—4.

Dr. King and Washburn had easy sailing in their first match, defeating J. L. Verstraten and E. F. Baker at 6—0, 6—2. Opposed to Alex Iler and James D. Ewing Jr., they had more of a battle on their hands, winning at 6—3, 7—5. Zenzo Shimizu and Masanosuke Fukuda of the Japanese Davis cup team and Cedric Major and J. P. Stockton are the other two teams left in the tournament.

RECORDS BROKEN FOR ATTENDANCE IN THREE EYES

Decatur, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Springfield and Decatur won the opening day attendance trophies for having the largest turnout in cities of their class in the Three Eyes league, according to an announcement made late today by President L. J. Wylie.

Springfield established a new league record with a paid attendance of 9,063, while Decatur had a turnout of 6,607 to win the cup for cities under 50,000 population.

The best available records show an opening day attendance record of 27,495 established in 1923, but the 1925 mark beats this by over 18,000, the total being 45,940. Following are the figures for each city in the league:

Springfield, 9,063; Terre Haute, 7,082; Peoria, 7,009; Decatur, 6,607; Evansville, 1,866; Danville, 4,147; Quincy, 3,956; Bloomington, 3,208.

BADGERS READY FOR PREP MEETS

Madison, Wis., May 16.—[Special.]—Various student committees created by the University of Wisconsin athletic department have now practically completed arrangements for all necessary facilities for the thirty-first annual Badger interscholastic week-end next Friday and Saturday. Several hundred Wisconsin high school athletes will be here at that time to compete in the annual track meet and swimming and tennis tournaments.

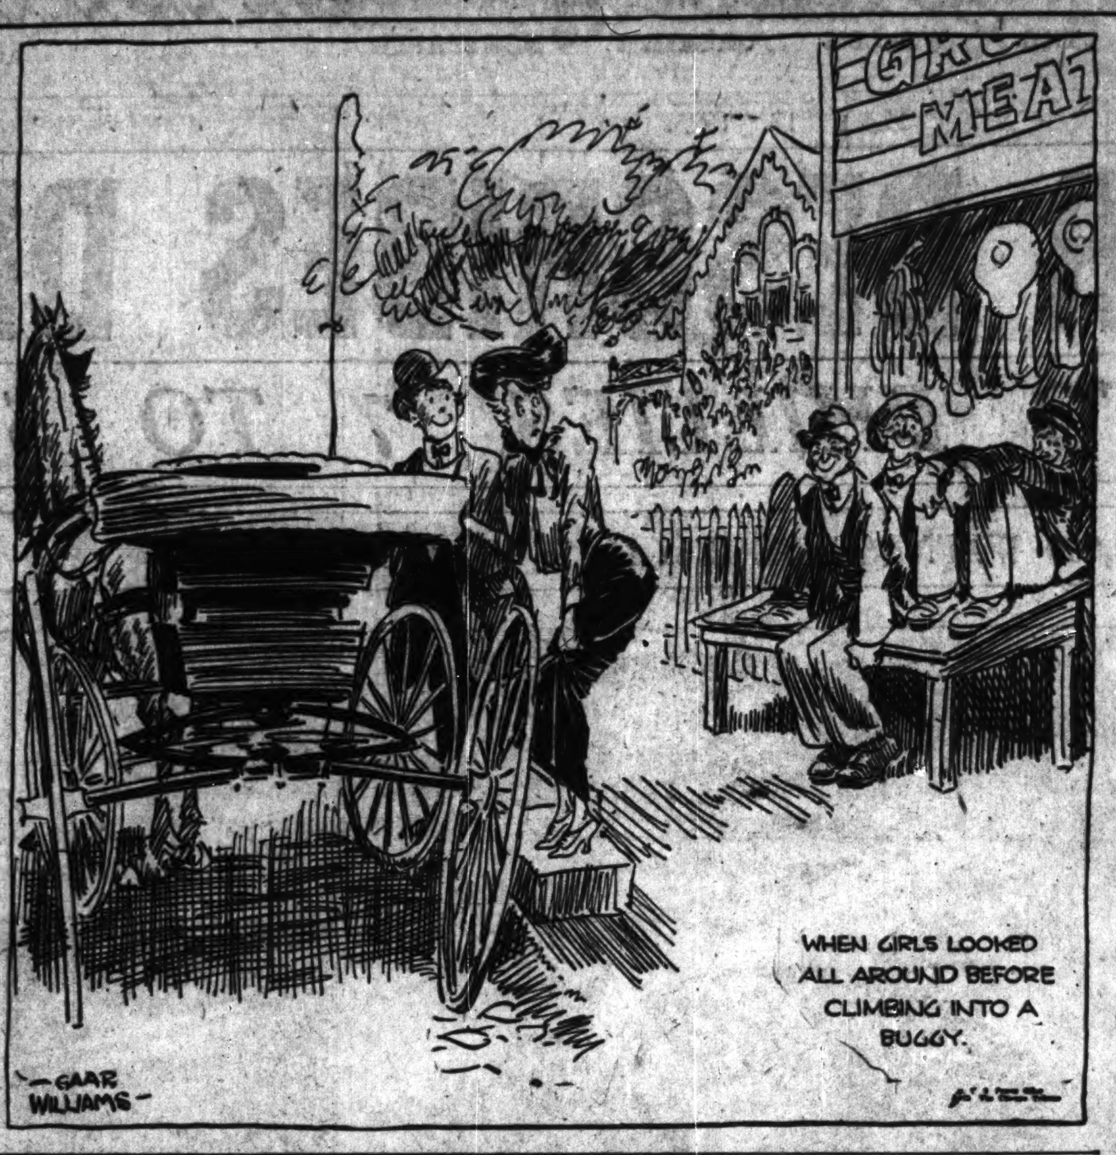
AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY



WHEN GIRLS LOOKED ALL AROUND BEFORE CLIMBING INTO A BUGGY.

Flying Ebony, with Earl Sande, Master Jockey, Up, Wins Derby as 80,000 Cheer

and the open stands filled first with these early birds, those in the clubhouse with box reservations were more leisurely. Many parties took Derby breakfast between 11 and 1 o'clock at the clubhouse, where the entire restaurant seating capacity had been reserved.

From the press coop high on top of the clubhouse it was a striking and picturesque scene. A solid mass of humanity was banked around the track. Not a vacant inch anywhere. Over in the infield, beautiful in its deep greensward and floral landscaping, was an overflow crowd which ran into the thousands.

Volstead Alone Is Missing.

Derby night was the wildest in the writer's Louisville experience. Sleep was impossible at nearly all hotels until the so called wee small hours. Visitors who had forgotten there was a Volstead act rent the night air with cowbells, horns, and yells. Adopting a hackneyed phrase they made night hideous. The ammunition was brought to the city. It may be obtainable here, but there is no open town aspect so far as the local officials are concerned.

Friends of racing wondered what effect this disturbance might have on local sentiment which the ubiquitous reformer is ever trying to fan into a flame of opposition to repeal the pari-mutuel bill.

Nearly every one in the world seemed to be here. If you hailed from the gold coast, or if you hailed from the underworld with a wealth of acquaintances in Cicero, you met your friends and felt equally at home.

From the hour to which the noise continued, many of the carousers must have gone direct to the track to register their bets. Special booths were provided for early Derby wagers. Crowds were in line there even before the first race. The play continued right up until race time.

DARING DRIVERS RACE TODAY AT ROBY SPEEDWAY

Drives to unseat Esthan Wenneston and Cliff Woodbury, Chicago's 1924 auto speed champions, are expected to feature the opening show of the season at Roby Speedway, 108th and Indianapolis avenue, today.

More than thirty of the fastest pilots in the west are listed to compete in the four events scheduled. Three of the races will be at fifteen miles, one for light cars of less than 200 c. c. piston displacement, another for heavy cars, and the third for the best six motors in each class.

Wenneston Faces Fast Field.

In the light car test Wenneston will be opposed by such stars as Billy Shaw, Indianapolis' latest speed marvel; "Pop" Clancy, holder of the fifteen mile western dirt track record of 13:18; Benny Schoaf of Springfield, Barney McKenna, Ed Burback, and Harry Nichols.

Unless Wenneston's car is in top fettle, any of these pilots may topple him from his championship perch. Shaw, who cleaned up at Crown Point last Sunday, and Clancy are especially dangerous.

Leslie "Bugs" Allen and A. L. Cotey are the principal aspirants for Woodbury's crown. Allen will pilot the 300 inch Frontenac with which he established the five and fifty mile western dirt track records, while Cotey will steer his rejuvenated Elcar.

Cotey's Car Rebuilt.

In 1924 Cotey's car was reputed to be one of the fastest on the local tracks, but its bulk and clumsiness proved a disadvantage on the turns. Al has had the car entirely rebuilt, cutting it down from a two to a single seater, until he claims he can now speed around the curves practically at full speed.

Busses for Gary, Hammond, and East Chicago, leaving 63d and South Park avenue, the terminus of the Jackson park elevated, stop directly in front of the track. The first race will start at 2:30, daylight saving time. Entries follow:

Ralph Ormsby, Indianapolis; Benny Shoaff, Springfield; W. W. Shaw, Indianapolis; Gus Schrader, Des Moines; Cliff Woodbury, Leslie Allen, Al Cotey, Paul Clancy, George Beck, L. H. Nord, Charles Bowmann, Fred Ross, Tom Smith, Glen Fites, C. Stevens, Leo Krasek, Ralph Eckstrom, Claude Currey, Joe Lencki, Fred Roberts, Hal Cook, Ray Doming, J. A. Hardy, Cliff Romo, Walter Martins, Barney McKenna, Dewey Shank, Phil Shaffer, E. Buck, H. M. Lewis, Harry Nichols, A. M. Challender, Frank Pearson, Ed Burback, Harry Heinley, Carl Adams, M. C. Mason, and Sonny Tallamont.

MANITOWOC WINS FOX RIVER MEET; 7 MARKS BROKEN

Appleton, Wis., May 16.—[Special.]—Mantowoc high school won the second annual Fox river valley high school track met here today, sponsored by the Lawrence athletic association. Manitowoc scored 32 points, West Green Bay 22½, Sheboygan and Marinette 21 each, East Green Bay 12, Appleton 8½, and Oshkosh 8.

Seven records were broken and one tied despite a slow track due to an all day rain. The marks set were as follows: Hillis, Manitowoc, mile run; Sell, Oshkosh, shotput; Loomas, West Green Bay, 120 yard high hurdles; Glasgow, Manitowoc, 220 yard low hurdles; Imig, Sheboygan, 220 yard dash; Redick, West Green Bay, discus throw; Hansen, West Green Bay, javelin throw. Timmer of Sheboygan tied the 100 yard dash mark.

Five athletes tied for high point honors with 6 each. About 150 athletes from seven prep schools in the valley competed.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

A MARVELOUS GROWTH.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—[Special.]—Those who were among the 80,000 or more spectators at Churchill Downs this afternoon and who also were here for the first time even as late as a decade ago could not help reflecting on the tremendous growth of the Kentucky Derby.

It has been within the last ten years, almost within the last five, that Kentucky's Derby has become national in its interest and attendance. True, the Derby was a great event, a state institution, almost from its inception. The Blue Grass region, noted for its beautiful women, its thoroughbreds and its mint juleps, had the Derby for its own. Some of the more conservative even resented the intrusion of the great outside world, but business and breeding interests welcomed it.

So gradually the annual influx to Louisville on Derby Day swamped the accommodations. Additions and improvements at the track were made with seeming disregard of cost. Its facilities more nearly kept pace with the growth than anything else in Louisville, but even its 1,500 boxes are hopelessly inadequate to meet the demand. Col. Matt Winn, major domo of the huge racing establishment, told the Wake that Chicago alone would take his entire quota of boxes if such allotment were possible.

"The Derby has outgrown Louisville," is an oft repeated assertion. True, hotels, restaurants and transportation are overtaxed at Derby time. But the Derby is a Louisville institution. No other city for years could supplant the traditions and hospitality which the Kentucky Jockey Club has thrown around the event.

National leaders in business, politics, and sport make an annual hegira. It is probably the most cosmopolitan assemblage in the entire country. The Derby may have outgrown Louisville but it would not be the same, it would not be the Derby, anywhere else.

THOSE WHITE SOX.

The South Side is rejoicing,
For the Sox have come to life,
After years of patient waiting
They're in the thickest of the strife.

The grand old second sacker,
Who's spurring on the Hose,
Has filled them all with lots of fight
And has them on their toes.

While spirit's not the only thing
That fills the park these days,
It makes a tail-ender a pennant contender
When they have these fighting ways.

Mutuel Betting.

Big bettors almost without exception prefer regular bookmaking to the mutuel machines. In the first place they like to know in advance what odds they are securing. These can only be approximated in the mutuels and on big days when the public is following its vagaries, many surprises occur. In the second place, heavy bettors realize their own money wagered lavishly shortens the odds they receive if they win, for the mutuels is a jackpot in which the winners share on the pro rata dollar basis. Small bettors usually prefer the mutuel plan.

Private Cars.

Practically every private car in the United States and many ordinary sleepers converted into private cars for the occasion are in Louisville today. Occupants of these cars sleep and have their meals therein. More than 850 cars were so used for private parties and special trains, according to tabulation of railroad officials.

Statistics.

Those with a bent for statistics figure that about $5,000,000 is spent by Derby visitors for transportation, hotels, and other expenses. The race takes slightly over two minutes. This is approximately $2,400,000 a minute or $40,000 for each second of actual racing.

Derby Conditions.

Nominations to the Derby are made in February at $25 per nomination. There is no further charge to the owner unless his horse starts. The starting fee is $500. To this pot, the jockey club adds $50,000. Second horse receives $6,000, third horse $3,000, and fourth $1,000. The balance goes to the winner, in addition to a gold trophy. In recent years first money has exceeded $50,000.

DUMBBELL POMES.

The price they charge for hats down south
Seems exorbitant to me.
My man went down to buy a style
They call "Kentucky Derby."

Today a telegram arrived,
"Am broke, send train fare home."
Signed "Hubby." Elsie L.

MISSISSIPPI WINS SOUTHERN MEET; SIX MARKS FALL

Sewanee, Tenn., May 16.—[A. P.]—Mississippi A. and M. won the third annual Southern Conference track and field meet for the third time here today with 29 points. Louisiana State university finished second with 26 points and the University of North Carolina, third counting 21 points. Vanderbilt got fourth with 18½ points.

Charlie Foster of V. M. I. followed up his record breaking hundred yard dash by breaking the southern and Southern Conference record in the 220 yards when he stepped the distance in 21 and 6-10 seconds. Foster had previously broken the conference record and tied the southern mark by running the hundred in :09 8-10.

The third conference record to fall was the pole vault mark, standing at 12 feet. Brady of Kentucky cleared the bar at 12 feet 3⅝ inches.

The 120 yard high hurdles brought another record by two-tenths of a second. Baskins, Auburn, broke the record when he won in :15 4-10.

S. Robinson of Mississippi A. and M. set a new conference record for the mile by doing the distance in 4:25 4-10.

Another record was smashed in the broad jump when Brady of Kentucky won with a leap of 21 feet 10⅝ inches.

GIANTS NOSE OUT REDLEGS, 2 TO 1; FRISCH IS HURT

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—New York Giants trimmed Cincinnati, 2 to 1, here today by virtue of a ninth inning rally of one run. But the victory was costly for the pace-setting Giants, for Frankie Frisch, field captain and star second sacker, was forced to leave the game with a broken finger.

In sliding into home plate in the fourth inning, Frisch injured his finger, and had to leave the game shortly afterwards. An X-ray photograph of the finger revealed a complete fracture of the fourth carpa of the third finger of his throwing hand. Frisch, before the injured digit forced him out, played part of the fifth inning and threw out one runner. Score:

ILLINI BUNT WAY TO 12TH INNING WIN OVER OHIO

Champaign, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Ohio State met its first conference baseball reverse today when Illinois came from behind, tied the Buckeyes' lead, and then claimed victory in the twelfth inning.

In that round Jestes started off with a single. Coach Lundgren's men cleverly bunted, and, aided by Miller's weakening, filled the bases. Jestes scored on Kinderman's bunt.

The Buckeyes got off to a lead by virtue of their batting, but by the eighth the Illini caught up and went a run ahead. Ohio evened things up in the ninth when fast fielding by the Illini infield held them to a single tally. The game was played before a crowd of 10,000. Score:

Princeton Drubs Harvard with Same Hurlers as '24

Cambridge, Mass., May 16.—Caldwell, Princeton pitcher, took revenge today for last year's defeat by trouncing Harvard and his rival Spalding, 3 to 1. Caldwell kept the bases clear for four innings. He struck out six men, got a triple and single, drove in three runs, scored twice himself, and made seven assists. Last year Harvard won, 7 to 0, with the same pitchers opposing.

CUB NOTES

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 15.—[Special.]—The Cubs enjoyed an early dinner and then flipped a 7 o'clock train for New York where they will spend the next seven days trying to beat the Giants and Robins.

[illegible] Wilbur Cooper would have worked against the Phillies if a slight mishap hadn't occurred. In a hi-lo game yesterday, a ball hit him on the eye and caused considerable swelling. Wilbur may be able to pitch the opener against the Giants tomorrow.

[illegible] discovered an effective way to pitch to Williams in the fourth inning. He threw two slow balls right through the heart of the plate and the home run artist let them go. Then Vic threw a third slow ball and Williams tapped it feebly to Grimm.

[illegible] was presented with an error in the [illegible] inning because he muffed an easy pop [illegible] bat. The latter then singled [illegible] so the blunder was a bit costly.

[illegible] weather prevailed, so about 11,000 [illegible] came out to see the performance. [illegible] a loud groan when the score [illegible] informed that the Athletics had been [illegible] at Chicago.

[illegible] terrific hitting of the last ten [illegible] has placed him among the elite swatters of the league. If he keeps up his [illegible] he'll have to be elevated in the [illegible].

[illegible] isn't doing much as a pinch [illegible] these days. In his last five attempts [illegible] a needed wallop he has come [illegible] with only one pass. His effort [illegible] a fly to center.

SENATORS WIN OVER INDIANS BY 6 TO 2

Cleveland, O., May 16.—Cleveland's defense crumpled in the ninth inning, and Washington scored four runs, winning the first game of the series here today, 6 to 2. Three errors [two by Fewster, who made four during the game, added to three hits, gave the champions enough runs to win. Johnson pitched superbly until the ninth, when he lost control, but Marberry ended the game by forcing Hendrick to hit into a double play and Uhle to pop up. Score:

YANKS, 12; TIGERS, 3.

Detroit, Mich., May 16.—A slugging New York team battered the last place Tigers into submission today, 12 to 3. The game was called when storm clouds that had threatened throughout the game broke in fury in the ninth inning after two Tigers had been retired. HOLLOWAY WINS IN ILLINOIS PREP TENNIS TOURNEY

Champaign, Ill., May 16.—Buster Holloway, who bowed in defeat last year to George Lott in the Illinois interscholastic, won the state high school championship in the tennis singles this afternoon by defeating Gordon Braudt of Calumet. The New Trier champion won the title, 6 to 2 and 6 to 4.

As play was postponed by showers, matches in the doubles advanced only through the semi-finals, and the deciding sets are to be played in Chicago next week. Budd and Thompson of Hyde Park defeated Marshall and Beckwith of Danville, 6 to 1 and 6 to 2, and Holloway, singles champion, and Sheldon, New Trier pair, bested Callahan and Hollahan, University High of Chicago, in the other doubles semi-finals, 6 to 3, 7 to 9, 6 to 4.

PIRATE PLAYER, IN RIOT, IS SICK; CASE POSTPONED

Boston, Mass., May 16.—[A. P.]—Earl Smith, catcher of the Pittsburgh National League club, failed to appear in court today when his case was called but through counsel pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and battery upon Walter J. Lewis of Brookline, at the game between the Boston Braves and the Pirates May 14.

Counsel for Smith said the player was ill as the result of a vicious assault and battery upon Smith May 14, and the case was continued until July 14.

BABE RUTH OUT WALKING, VIEWS POLICE PARADE

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—Babe Ruth is not quite ready to try out his throwing arm yet, but he began to sharpen up his speed today by walking about the streets near St. Vincent's hospital. This was the first time he was out on foot since his illness began.

The Babe and Mrs. Ruth, who is recovering from a nervous breakdown at the hospital, watched the police parade together, but Mrs. Ruth was not well enough to join her husband in his stroll.

Cuban Stars to Play Niesen's Pyotts Today

The famous Cuban Stars tackle Niesen's Pyotts this afternoon at Niesen's park. Lefty Sullivan will pitch for the Pyotts and hopes to continue his winning gait. The Cubans have set a great record this season, and hope to continue their winning streak.

WISCONSIN BATS WIN, 9 TO 0, OVER NORTHWESTERN

Madison, Wis., May 16.—[A. P.]—Wisconsin's baseball team went on a clouting spree today and defeated Northwestern, 9 to 0. Stoll, for the Badgers, pitched a strong game, allowing but three scattered hits and striking out 15 men. For the second time this year Wisconsin knocked two home runs in succession when Larson and Steen sent two fast ones into left field. A wet diamond slowed up the game.

LOGAN SQUARES OPEN AT NEW PARK TODAY

With the new park at Elston and Kedzie avenues, formerly the playing grounds of the Murleys, in shipshape, the Logan Squares will make their season's baseball debut at 3 o'clock this afternoon, Racine, of the Wisconsin league, furnishing the opposition.

In remodeling the park Jimmy Callahan and his associates have spent $25,000. The diamond has been turned about and many improvements made.

Artie Hofmann, who starred behind the bat for the Cubs during the days of Frank Chance, will be one of the attractions with Pullman at Chicago Blue park, Morse and California avenues. Dave Black will take care of the slabbing for the Blues. Numerous other semi-pro games are scheduled this afternoon. They are:

CLASH OF SOX AND MACKMEN HALTED BY RAIN

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

For the first time in many years, Connie Mack's Athletics came into Chicago yesterday with hosts of Chicago fans eager to see them play and it rained. A heavy downpour shortly after 2 o'clock made it impossible to stage the first combat of the series. With fair weather, there is little doubt there would have been close to 30,000 persons on hand.

Nothing but another downpour just at game time will prevent the contest today because Secretary Grabiner of the Sox, has a big and brand new canvas over the entire diamond. It can rain all morning and up until time for the game to start and then if it stops, the game can be played. This may be useful information to many thousands of fans who have reserved seats for the game.

Both Teams Regret Postponement.

It is needless to say that the players on each team were disappointed in yesterday's postponement. Fellows who are winning, always hate to be interrupted in their progress. It's a different matter with a team that is crippled and trailing. But the Mackmen are out firmly intrenched in the lead and have just won eight straight games and are almost convinced they can't lose.

The same is true of the Sox, though they are not in front and haven't won their last eight games. They are so close to the top that they could just about get there by mopping up on the Philadelphia outfit and every one who has seen the Sox perform this spring, know they are in a mopping up mood. At least they are hustling for all get out and opponents have found them most difficult to beat.

Thurston and Gray on Slab.

For the game today, Hollis Thurston is slated for mound service and without much doubt will be opposed by Young Mr. Gray who hasn't been licked yet this season and won six games. Red Faber, who has been curing a sore toe, has just about recovered and will work in one of the games of the series and the other is likely to be turned out by Charley Robertson or Ted Lyons. Connie Mack has Rommel and Groves, both of whom are pitching great ball along with Gray.

If the weather man turns on the sunshine today, it is estimated there will be another 40,000 crowd. And nobody used to get excited when the Athletics were in town.

GOPHERS EVEN UP SERIES, BEAT MICHIGAN, 1 TO 0

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 16.—[Special.]—Minnesota's ball team retaliated for its 9 to 4 defeat by Michigan here yesterday by taking a 1 to 0 win over the Wolverines in one of the best games seen on Ferry field this year. The tilt was a pitching dual throughout, Michigan's ace, Jablonowski, staging a losing dual with Guzy, the Gopher star. Score:

SPORT SPOTLIGHT SHIFTS RAYS TO E. CHICAGO ARENA

The Kentucky Derby now a matter of history, the sports loving fraternity will turn its attention to other lines of amusement, with the result a lot of interest will be shown in the next few days in the ten round bout between Charley "Phil" Rosenberg, the world's bantamweight champion, and Harold Smith, the stockyards 118 pounder. This bout will feature the first open air boxing show of the East Chicago A. C. on Friday night.

Since Henry Finnegan and William "Buck" Montgomery took over the baseball park in East Chicago for summer shows, the plant has undergone extensive repairs. All seats have been strengthened and have met with the official approval of East Chicago building commissioners. The lighting plant has been improved and other renovations made to make the plant as up to date as possible.

Want Capable Help.

The new promoters intend to engage competent ushers who will see to it that every patron secures the seat his ticket calls for. Automobile space will be available across the street from the park, and those who have secured this concession will be held responsible for anything stolen from the cars. In many other ways Finnegan and Montgomery have improved the plant, and none but the best fighters obtainable will be engaged.

Fighters who receive guarantees will be given ample assurance they will get their money as soon as their fights are over, while other boxers will be paid immediately after each show. In many other ways the promoters intend to show good faith and try to put on cards which will be pleasing to the boxing fraternity most of the season.

The Rosenberg-Smith match is considered an excellent feature for the opening show. The champion is considered one of the best 118 pound titleholders of recent years, and many predict he will hold the title for a number of years. He is a combination of fighter and boxer, and will meet Smith at any style of milling the stockyards boxer desires. Rosenberg has made a strong impression around the Mullen gymnasium, where he is working every day.

Smith Ready to Go.

Local fans know of Smith's ability. He holds a decision over Bud Taylor in one of the best fights ever seen in the East Chicago arena. He has fully recovered from an operation on his knee while his right hand, injured in a recent fight with Jackie Snyder, has entirely mended. He is being groomed for this fight by Harry Forbes and Charley White, two well known fighters of other days.

Rosenberg and Smith will train again today at the Mullen gym. The former will start work at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon and Smith one hour later.

In the ten round semi-windup Johnny Drew, formerly of Worcester, Mass., but now making New York his home, will clash with Don Davis, former featherweight champion of the Pacific fleet. They will weigh 126 pounds.

Two Preliminary Bouts.

Dan Gasparo of the west side and Frankie Hiplock of Calumet City will meet in the six round opener at 155 pounds. Russell Whalen of the stockyards and Jack Feldheim of the west side will be the principals in the second preliminary of six rounds. They will scale 135 pounds.

Tickets are on sale at the usual places and popular prices of $2, $3 and $5 will prevail.

Jim Mullen, local promoter, left last night for Columbus, O., where he will assist in staging a show on May 30. Frankie Calahan of Columbus and Mike Ballerino, the world's junior lightweight champion, will meet in the main event.

AMATEUR BOXING CHAMPIONS OF EUROPE DECIDED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, May 16.—For three days Stockholm has been the scene of a series of fights for the European amateur championship. There were many brilliant fights, some sensational, for instance, the knockout victory of Bror Perison, Swede heavyweight, vanquishing the English boxer, Lister. The champions in other categories are: Flyweight, Pladner of France; second, James of England. Bantamweight, Rule of England; second, Dybbers of Germany. Lightweight, Johannsson of Sweden; second, Viney of England. Welterweight, Nielsen of Denmark; second, Ahlberg of Sweden. Middleweight, Crawley of England; second, Ramm of Sweden. Light heavyweight, Peterson of Denmark.

RIDING CLUB AND GRASMERE FARM PLAY POLO TODAY

The Chicago Riding club and Grasmere Farm are scheduled to meet in a polo practice match this afternoon on the Chicago Golf club grounds at Wheaton. It will start at 3 o'clock. Chicago Riding club won the first match staged Wednesday after a hard battle, and Grasmere Farm is out to even it up.

Col. McCormick, Capt. Corpening and others who once played on the Fort Sheridan polo four, are now competing for the Chicago Riding club.

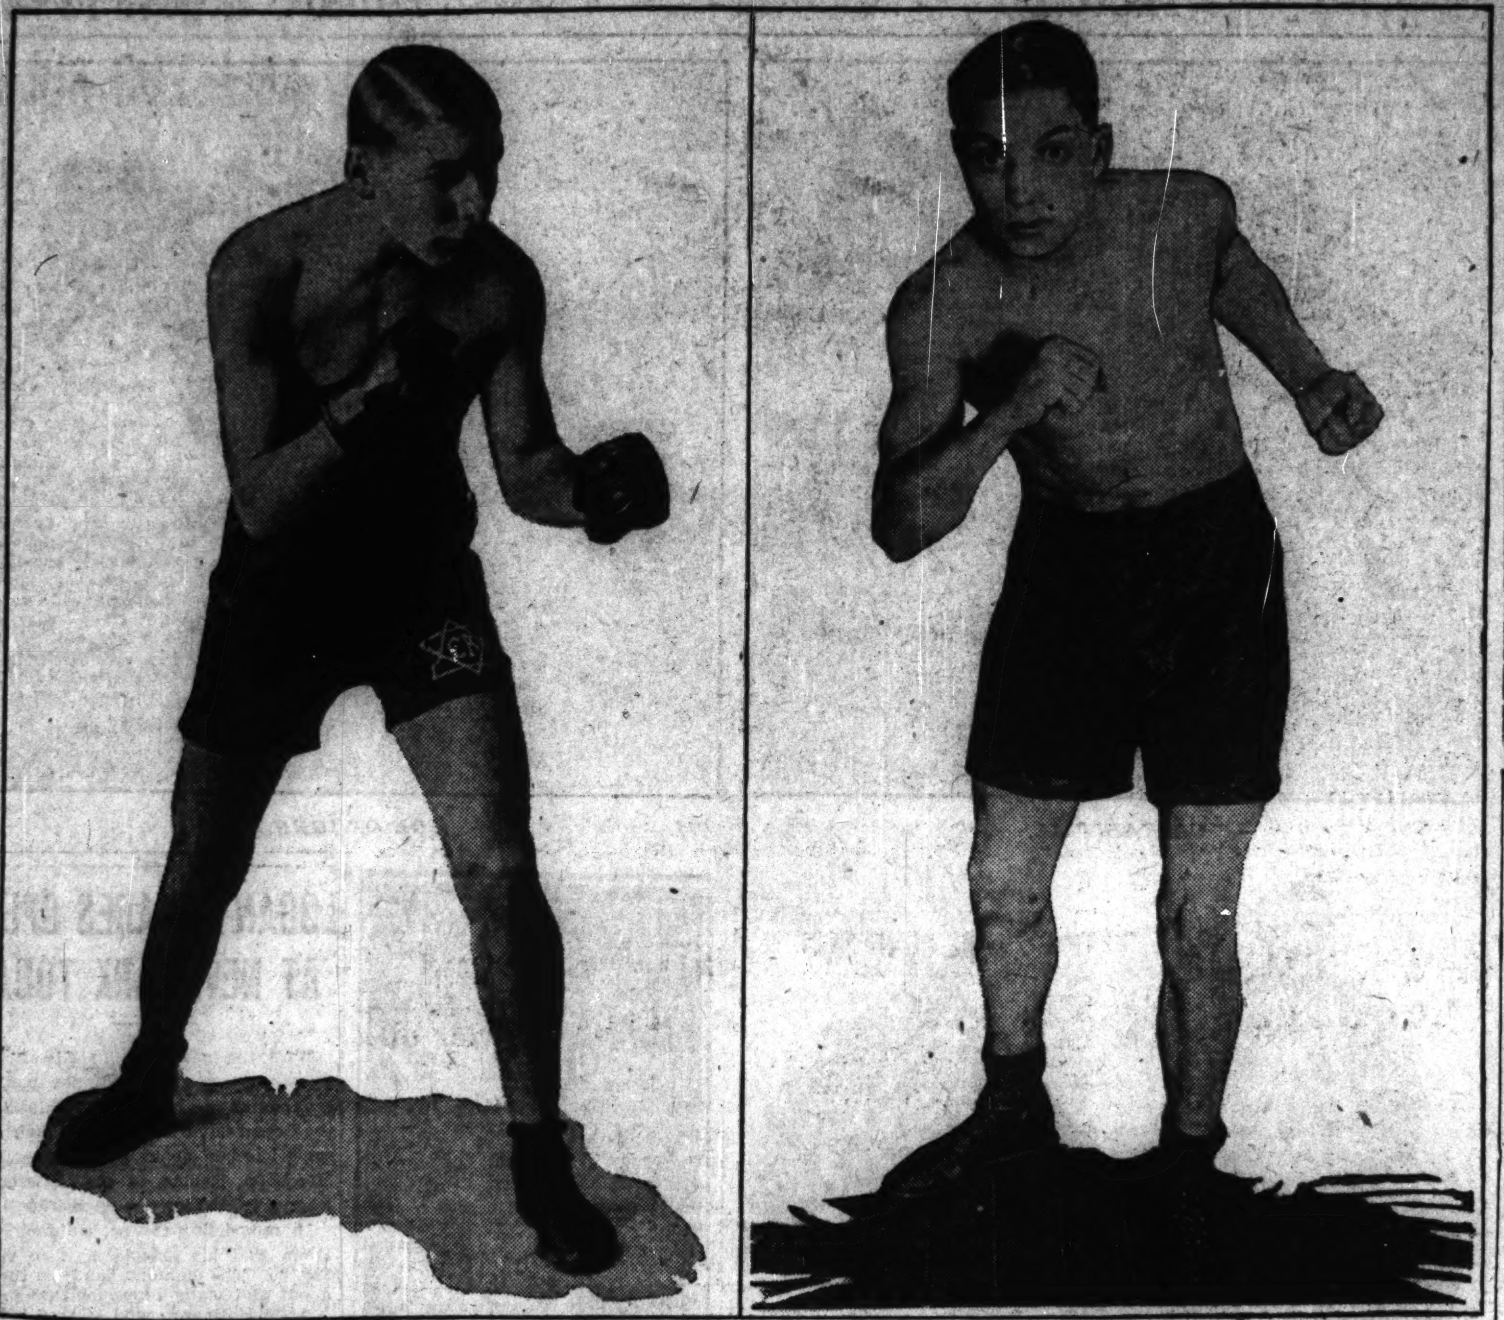
MAROON CO-EDS ORGANIZE TWO POLO TEAMS

Co-eds at the University of Chicago are forsaking the gentler sports in favor of polo, two teams having been organized at the Midway this spring. The players are coached by officers in the department of military science and tactics who also have charge of the varsity outfit. A game between the two teams will feature a display of horsemanship, which will be put on by women in the equitation classes Wednesday.

MOBILE GETS SOUTHPAW.

Mobile, Ala., May 16.—Gene Caldera, a left handed pitcher, who has been with the Memphis Southern association team this season, was today traded to the Mobile club, according to announcement of President Weinacker.

READY FOR BATTLE



CHARLEY "PHIL" ROSENBERG. HAROLD SMITH.

[Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

Harold Smith, Chicago's popular bantamweight boxer, will get the hardest test of his career when he faces Charley Rosenberg, 118 pound champion, in the 10 round windup of the opening show of the outdoor season at East Chicago Friday night. Both boys have been working in a loop gymnasium and are trained to trigger edge. Boxing sharps rate Rosenberg the best bantam champion of recent years.

TIGER ATHLETES BEAT YALE, 70-65

Princeton, N. J., May 16.—[A. P.]—Princeton defeated Yale in a track meet for the first time in three years at Palmer stadium today by 70 to 65. The Tigers did not clinch the meet until the fifteenth event, when George Scattergood won the low hurdles with a new record of :24 1-10. Bayes Norton of Yale was high scorer with first in both sprints and second in the broad jump. He broke the dual record for the 220 yard dash with a mark of :21 1-5.

ILLINI NEXT FOR OHIO STATE NINE

Columbus, O., May 16.—[Special.]—Two home games are on the Ohio State baseball nine's schedule for next week, Illinois appearing here Wednesday in its second tilt of the year with the Buckeyes and Osaka Mainichi, Japanese nine, playing here next Friday.

The oriental team will be the first from a foreign land the Buckeyes have ever met. Meiji university, another Japanese team, was booked for a game here last May, but rain canceled the tilt.

TRAP SHOOTERS BEAT GRAY SKIES HANDICAP

Rain and low visibility of targets against a gray sky hampered shooters competing in the regular Saturday program of the Lincoln park traps yesterday, but high scores under the conditions were registered in each of the two events on the card.

The feature, 75 targets, 16 yards rise, was won by R. A. Nutt, whose count was 73, while W. M. Meyers scored 69 to finish in second position. E. Hall was third with 68. A tie resulted for fourth honors with three men breaking 66 targets. F. Whiting, D. Raymond and D. Ballard composed the trio.

D. Ballard won the doubles event, scoring 48 targets out of a possible 50, at 16 yards, F. Whiting finished second and W. M. Meyers third, the former gathering a 42 count and the latter 41.

Summaries of the singles:

R. A. Nutt, 73; W. M. Meyers, 69; E. Hall, 68; F. Whiting, 66; D. Raymond, 66; D. Ballard, 66; Dr. Pollard, 65; Dr. Cook, 63; R. Stanley, 61; Dan Zei, 61; H. E. Linden, 61.

CHESS MASTERS MEET AGAIN IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

New York, May 16.—[A. P.]—Following the recent international chess masters' tournament at Baden Baden, Germany, which was won by Alekhine, the Russian master, a similar contest is to be held at Marienbad, Czecho-Slovakia, beginning May 21.

A prize of five thousand crowns will be given the winner, and other prizes will be awarded in the following denominations: 3,500 crowns, 2,000, 1,500, 800, 500 and 300. Also 5,000 crowns will be divided among competitors other than the prize winners.

Among the internationally known chess masters who will compete at Marienbad are:

Frank J. Marshall and Carlos Torre, United States; Sir George Thomas, F. D. Yates and H. P. Mitchell, Great Britain; Dr. S. Tarrasch, Germany; Dr. S. Tartakower and M. Gruenfeld, Austria; A. Boguljubow, S. Romanski and H. J. Loewenfisch, Russia; A. Rubenstein and D. Przepiorka, Poland; A. Haida and K. Opocensky, Czecho-Slovakia; Dr. Max Euwe, Holland; A. Niemzowitsch, Denmark, and P. Johner of Switzerland.

Iowa Frosh After Big Ten Track and Field Honors

Iowa City, Ia., May 16.—[Special.]—Iowa's freshman trackmen are making a bid this season for claimancy to the Big Ten yearling track and field honors.

4 MAJOR LEAGUE SOCCER GAMES ON TODAY'S CARD

All is expected to be quiet around the local soccer today, as there are no cup games in which ill feeling might crop up on the schedule. The day's program is featured by four major league engagements.

Two of the Bricklayers' stars, "Clem" Cuthbert and Hugh Hill, who were rendered "hors de combat" as a result of the boots applied by angry fans last week, will not be in the lineup when the south siders face the reconstructed Chicago Rovers-German club combination at Riverview park. McSween, O'Hara, or Harrison will be on hand to fill the vacancies.

Champions of West to Play.

Another north side engagement will bring together the Canadian club, champions of the west, and the Swedish-Americans at De Paul field, Sheffield and Webster avenues. Harry Ambler will resume play for the Canucks.

The rivals, Sparta and Olympias, will collide at 27th street and Kostner avenue, and a large crowd of Bohemian fans are expected. A. Burger, the league leaders' center, who is under suspension for a year, will not be in the lineup. Neither will Davie Baird, Olympia forward, who has left town. Sparta has appealed to the United States Football association to have Burger's suspension lifted, and it is rumored will not meet the Brickies in the Peel cup semi-finals unless the request is granted.

New Talent on Thistles.

Several new faces are expected to appear for the Thistles in the game against Harvey at 47th (Kilpatrick) avenue and 19th street. Jock Bennett will resume play for the suburbanites at center half, his two weeks' suspension having expired. The schedule:

MAJOR LEAGUE.

Sparta and Olympia at 27th street and Kostner avenue.

Bricklayers and German Club-Chicago Rovers at Riverview park.

Canadian club and Swedish-Americans at De Paul field.

Harvey and Thistles at Kilpatrick, 47th avenue and 19th street.

SONS OF ST GEORGE LEAGUE.
[Maurisse cup semi-finals.]

Olive branch and Sunflower at Winnemac park.

Mayflower and Forest City at 103d street and Corliss avenue.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE.

Vienna F. C. and Norwegian A. A. at California avenue and Irving Park boulevard.

Wacker F. C. and Scandinavians at Palmer park, 1:30 p. m.

Drott A. C. and Swedish IV. at 76th street and Ingleside avenue, 1:30 p. m.

Chicago Motor Coach and Sture II. at Winnemac and Robey.

All games start at 3 p. m. unless otherwise noted.

PENN BEATS MIDDIES, 87-47.

State College, Pa., May 16.—Pennsylvania State college defeated the Annapolis Naval academy track team here today, 87½ to 47½.

Munn, Like Turk of Old, May Prove Beef Counts on Mat

As far back as the average wrestling fan can remember, there has been only one case on record where a man of extraordinary size has ever worn the world's championship crown.

That man was Yussif, the man mountain from Turkey, who weighed in at the tremendous figure of 360 pounds and who toured this country over twenty years ago, meeting all comers and defeating every one he met. None of the heavyweight wrestlers on this side of the pond could handle the giant Turk on account of his great weight, and he was successful in flopping almost every opponent by the use of one hold—the crotch and half nelson.

After winning some $16,000 he demanded that it be given to him in gold before he sailed back home. He carried the golden shekels in a money belt around his waist, but the boat on which he took passage went down before he reached the other side. Since then no phenomenally big men have succeeded in winning the heavyweight championship, although many have attempted the feat.

Broke Strangler's Leg.

Yussif won the championship of the world by defeating Evan "Strangler" Lewis, the original "Strangler" Lewis, who then was the champion. Lewis, it is related, put on one of his best strangling grips, but Yussif succeeded in releasing himself and followed through by breaking Lewis' leg between his hands as if it had been a piece of kindling wood.

The question of really ponderous men who have made good in mat history is naturally revived with the match on Memorial day afternoon at Floyd Fitzsimmons' Blue Sky arena in Michigan City between Champion Ed Lewis and Challenger Wayne Munn for the heavyweight title, the gold and diamond championship belt, and a purse of $30,000, which has been guaranteed by Promoter Fitzsimmons.

Munn weighs 260 pounds, which figure gives the big boy from Nebraska a tremendous advantage in weight over the champion, who in his best physical condition weighs in at 210 pounds. It is at this tonnage that Billy Sandow, the champion's manager, says that Lewis is unbeatable. Strangely enough, Munn, like the great giant, Yussif, also employs the crotch and half nelson and depends almost entirely upon its application to win his matches.

Science Versus Beef.

If history repeats itself and if events really do travel in cycles, as is claimed by many, the wiseacres of the wrestling business are trying to figure if it is again time for a bulky grappler to step in as the title holder. Is Wayne Munn the big boy who will turn the trick and again show, after a lapse of twenty years, that brawn will win over science, or will Lewis retain the title and thus show that science is still the master of beef?

In glancing over the dope sheet it is found that the title holders of the past were of ardinary size and heft and in the majority of cases the kingpins of the heavyweight division was under the average size and weighed less than 210 pounds. When the late Frank Gotch was at the height of his career he scaled at 204 pounds and it was at that weight that he won most of his big struggles. The man from whom Gotch took the title, Tom Jenkins, tipped the beam at considerably below the 200 mark and Dan McLeod, who for a time held the title, scaled between 180 and 185 pounds. Not so long ago Earl Caddock was the ringleader and Caddock weighed less than 180.

Competition Improving.

Another interesting fact is centered about the improvement in the class of wrestling competition. Years ago a wrestling champion usually stood head and shoulders above his competition.

Today many college men are joining the ranks of professional wrestlers and as a result the fans of the present time are seeing much keener competition on the mat than their fellow ringsiders who were accustomed to cheer their favorites on to victory in the days gone by. Lewis and Munn are both college men.

WEST POINTERS IN FIVE EVENTS WIN ONLY ONE

West Point, N. Y., May 16.—Army athletes were defeated on the diamond and track today, losing to Fordham at baseball, 6 to 3, and trailing Georgetown in a dual athletic meet, 89 to 37. The Cadets defeated Penn State at lacrosse, 15 to 1, but lost in tennis to Williams, 4 to 2.

Army golfers failed to score a single point against Yale, losing the match, 9 to 0.

WIN FOR NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 16.—North Dakota defeated MacAlester college here today, 71 to 60, in a dual track meet.

3 SCHOOLS WIN HONORS IN FIELD AND TRACK MEET

Northfield, Min., May 16.—[A. P.]—Minneapolis Central, St. Cloud High and St. John's of Delafield, Wis., won firsts in their respective classes in the annual Carleton college interscholastic track meet here today.

By scoring 49 3-5 points, Minneapolis Central captured the Twin Cities class competition for the third consecutive year. St. Cloud amassed 20 points for first honors in the state high school class. Buffalo was second with 19.

In the academy class, St. John's was first with 66 points. Shattuck Military academy of Faribault was second with 43.

—dont smoke

You are going to be disappointed when you look at the face in this Advertisement, It will be such a shock from the type of Faces you always see in Advertisements. They generally get some Guys face to use in a Collar or Underwear Add that looks like he was just born for that Add. You never see him in real life or anything that ever looked like him. These "Bull" Durham people conceived the idea of something new. They felt that you were tired looking at such handsome faces in Adds, it was so discouraging to men who looked at them because they knew they could never look like these fellows themselves. So they wanted a homely face that would be an inspiration to other homely men, (because there is a terrible lot of hard looking Birds among you readers). So after looking the World over they picked on me. I dont smoke "Bull" Durham, so the Moral is IF YOU WILL SMOKE IT, YOU WILL NEVER LOOK LIKE ME. I am the horrible example of a man not using it.

Will Rogers

P. S. There is going to be another piece in this paper soon. Look for it.

Another "Bull" Durham advertisement by Will Rogers, Ziegfeld Follies and screen star, and leading American humorist. More coming. Watch for them.

SIXTY-FIVE YEARS ago! IN 1860 A blend of tobacco WAS born—"BULL" Durham. ON quality alone IT has won RECOGNITION WHEREVER TOBACCO is known. IT still offers THE public this—MORE flavor, MORE enjoyment AND a lot MORE money LEFT at the END of a week's SMOKING.

MICHIGAN BEATS ILLINI ATHLETES AFTER 5 YEARS

Champaign, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Illinois lost a Big Ten conference dual track meet for the first time since [illegible] when Michigan's powerful squad barely nosed out Coach Gill's team, [illegible] to 65 2-3, in the Illinois stadium here this morning. It was the first time the Wolverines have beaten the Illini in an outdoor meet since 1898, but it was not decided until the last event, when Hawkins' victory in the hammer throw threw the decision to Michigan.

The meet, a thrilling duel for points all the way, was marked by poor performances in almost every event because of the threatening weather, wet grounds and the strong wind which swept down and across the track. However, Hubbard of Michigan, managed to leap 25 feet 1¼ inches to win the broad jump, and Northrup of Michigan, won the javelin with a toss of [illegible] feet 5 inches.

Kinsey, Merigold, and Werner led Illinois to slams in the low and high hurdles. The Illini also took all places in the mile run, while the Wolverines won all points in the discus. Summaries:

100 YARD DASH—Won by Wittman [M.]; Hubbard, second [M.]; Evans, third [I.]. Time, :10 2-5.

220 YARD DASH—Won by Evans [I.]; Wittman [M.], second; Voelker [M.], third. Time, :22 4-5.

PURDUE WINS 13 OF 16 EVENTS IN INDIANA MEET

Lafayette, Ind., May 16.—[Special.]—By defeating the University of Indiana, 89¼ to 50¾, here this afternoon, Purdue won its third and last Big Ten dual meet. The Boilermakers had already defeated Chicago and Northwestern. Harold Harmeson of Purdue was high point man, with 11 points by virtue of firsts in the 100 yard dash and the broad jump and a third in the 220 yard dash. Little and Hay, both of Purdue, were runners-up with 10 points each.

The Boilermakers scored a slam in the 220 yard dash and took 12 firsts to 3 for Indiana, in addition to completely outclassing the Crimson in the mile relay. It was the first relay event for Purdue this season, and the Boilermaker runners made fairly good time, 3:30.9, over a wet, slow track. Summaries:

100 YARD DASH—Won by Harmeson [P.]; Beattie [I.], second; Harmon [P.], third. Time, :10⅕.

KNOX WINS FROM MONMOUTH, 86-48, IN TRACK MEET

Galesburg, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Knox defeated Monmouth, 86 to 48, in a dual track meet here today. The meet was slowed up by a chilly wind and heavy downpour of rain. Monmouth forfeited the mile relay and the Knox quartet composed of Senn, Huggins, Tarpy and Schraub staged an exhibition run in 3:36 9-10.

SPLASHING THEIR WAY TO VICTORY

Jimmy Cusack, Maroon middle distance runner, outsplashed a fast field in the mile event at Stagg field yesterday. His time, 4:28 2-5, was surprisingly fast in view of the heavy track, which in places was covered with water. Cusack had a lead of five yards over Schutt of Wisconsin at the finish. Arnold of Ohio State and Vallely of Wisconsin, who were expected to battle it out for first place, were far behind.

Speed in the dash events was an important factor in Wiscosin's victory in the quadrangular track games. This picture shows Harry McAndrews leading the way to the tape. His teammate, Francis, was second, a yard behind.

OLYMPIC STARS TO ENTER FINN GAMES

World's and American records, not to mention marks which stand as noteworthy performances will be in danger on May 31 when the Chicago Finnish American A. A. will stage its first annual set of track and field games in the Grant Park stadium.

Athletes who were members of the American team which won the Olympic games in France last summer will compete against stars who were members of teams from other countries in the Olympics. Some of the performers are world's and American record holders and if conditions are favorable they will attempt to shatter their own marks.

Stenroos After Shrubb's Mark.

Albin Stenroos of Finland, who won the marathon run in the Olympic games, will attempt to break both the world's and American records for the ten mile run. The world's ten mile record is held by Alfred Shrubb, the great English runner, who covered the distance in 50:40 6-10 in 1904. The American record is held by Hans Kolehmainen at 51:03 2-5 and was made in 1913.

Stenroos is anxious to have the race start and finish in the stadium so that the distance will be accurate. Officials of the promoting club want to start the event outside, so that the final mile can be run on the quarter mile oval in the stadium. This point will be settled later. Chuck Mellor and Schou Christensen of the I. A. C. will oppose the Finlander.

Ritola, Myyra Entered.

Willie Ritola, the great Finnish runner, will oppose some of the best runners available in the two mile event, while Willie Plant, holder of many walking records, will attempt to shatter some record for a distance yet to be determined. Johnnie Myyra of Finland, who won the javelin throw in the Olympic games and who holds the American record at 212 feet 1½ inches, will try to shatter the latter mark, while Armas Taipale will give a discus throwing exhibition. Herbert Schwarze of Wisconsin will compete in the shot put.

Lloyd Hahn, George Connolly, and Joie Ray will meet in a special one mile run which will go a long way toward determining American supremacy for the event. In addition there will be open, high school, and girls' events, for which handsome prizes will be given the winners of the first three places.

Juuti Going After Nurmi.

William Juuti, secretary of the Chicago Finnish club, will leave for New York on Tuesday in an effort to persuade Paavo Nurmi to live up to his original agreement and come to Chicago for the games to run in the special one mile event.

Charles A. Dean, chairman of the I. A. C. athletic committee, will be director and manager of the games, which will be called the Chicago Olympics.

WICHITA PREPS BREAK 440 YARD WORLD'S RECORD

Manhattan, Kas., May 16.—[A. P.]—A new world's record for the interscholastic 440 yards relay was established by Wichita, Kas., High school in the annual Missouri Valley High school relay carnival for today. The time was :44 9-10.

The former record of :45 1-10 was established at the recent Drake relays by Northeast High school of Kansas City, which placed second in the race today. Junction City, Kas., was third, and Hutchinson, Kas., fourth.

DE PAUW TAKES INDIANA MEET

Richmond, Ind., May 16.—[Special.]—De Pauw sprung a real surprise here this afternoon by winning the annual Indiana College track and field meet, scoring 47 points. Wabash, last minute favorite, was second with 44¾, and Butler, champion for the last two years, finished third with 37¼, despite a crippled squad. Unexpected showing by De Pauw in taking seconds and thirds and dark horse finishes by several smaller schools did the work.

Missouri U. Wins Dual Meet from Washington U.

St. Louis, Mo., May 16.—The University of Missouri defeated Washington university 105 to 26 in a dual track meet here today.

INTERSTATE TRACK TEAMS RAINED OUT

The third annual track and field championships of the Interstate conference, scheduled to be held in the Grant Park stadium yesterday, were postponed until either May 25 or May 30 because of the heavy rain which left the field a sea of mud. The postponed meet will be held at Dubuque, Ia., under the auspices of Columbia college.

Following the calling off of the games, coaches and directors of athletics met at the Auditorium hotel and awarded the sportsmanship trophy, donated by William Fitzpatrick of Dubuque, to Luther college. The election of officers was deferred until the December meeting in Chicago. It was also decided that the postponed meet shall be open only to conference schools.

NEBRASKA TRACK TEAM VICTOR IN TRIANGULARMEET

Lincoln, Neb., May 16.—[A.P.]—Nebraska university won a triangular track meet with Kansas university and the Kansas Aggies here today, scoring 63 2-3 points to 46 for Kansas and 21 1-3 for the Aggies. Cold weather and a heavy track prevented any record breaking performances.

Nebraska amassed 47 points on the cinder path, winning the century and 220 dashes and all three places in the 440 yard dash. Kansas athletes starred in field events, obtaining 26 points. Balzer won the mile in 4:31 for the Aggies. The Nebraska relay team took the mile relay in 3:22, in the most spectacular performance of the meet.

U. S. TO OPPOSE ANY CHANGES IN AMATEUR RULE

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

[United Press Staff Correspondent.]

New York, May 16.—American votes will be cast against any radical changes in the amateur rule, Murray Hulbert, president of the Amateur Athletic union, said today before he sailed on the liner Paris to attend the sessions of the International Olympic committee.

With Gen. Charles S. Sherrill, who is now in Europe, Hulbert will represent the United States at an important series of meetings, which are to start in Prague May 29 with a gathering of the International Amateur Athletic federation.

Several foreign nations, it is understood, are willing to support a change in the amateur rule which would permit an athlete to draw compensation at the rate of his daily revenue in private life while he is competing in amateur events. This would mean that an athlete who makes $10 a day in his profession could draw upon a committee staging a meet for $10 a day and his expenses.

Won't Ask 1928 Games.

Some of the European nations are said to be operating on that principle now, and a row was narrowly averted at the Olympic games in Paris last summer when the French committee protested the Swedish team was being paid for its time.

"The United States will not support any change in the rule that would place an amateur athlete in the position of being a competitor for anything but sport's sake," Hulbert said. "It is dangerous to make any kind of concessions, because one little thing will lead to bigger things. Amateur sport has prospered under the existing rules, and they should not be changed."

The United States will not ask for the 1928 Olympic games in the event Amsterdam should resign its appointment, Hulbert said.

Confidence in Dutch.

"There is no reason to believe Amsterdam will not be able to stage the Olympic games," he said. "The financial question is not as serious as might be believed. You will recall our American committee did not raise the funds to send the team to Paris until the last minute, and we believe the Dutch committee will get the money, just as we did, when the public's interest is aroused.

"Los Angeles has been appointed to stage the games in 1932, and we have been told the California city could not and does not want to have the 1928 games. Under these circumstances the American delegates would not ask for the 1928 games for another American city, because we could hardly expect the international committee would give us two games in succession. Baltimore would like to have the 1928 games, but we have told the representatives of that city that we will not consider any application for the 1928 games."

TROJANS CLIP RELAY RECORD

Los Angeles, Cal., May 16.—A new world's record for the quarter mile relay was established here today by a University of Southern California track team when it ran the distance in :41 9-10 in the Southern Pacific Amateur Athletic union meet. This breaks the record of :42 established by a University of Kansas team at the recent Kansas relays.

HARMESON WINS LETTER IN 4TH PURDUE SPORT, TYING OLIPHANT MARK

Lafayette, Ind., May 16.—[Special.]—Harold Harmeson, who hails from Indianapolis, Ind., is now on the same plane with Elmer Q. Oliphant, famous Purdue university and West Point Military academy athlete. Up until today, Oliphant was the only Boilermaker athlete to win four major awards, one each in football, basketball, baseball and track. Today Harmeson won his track letter, bringing his string to four to equal Oliphant's record.

Harmeson, who is captainelect of the 1925 Purdue university football team, is a star in all four sports. He was forward on last season's Purdue basketball team. In football, "Harmie" plays half back, with his forward passing his forte. At present, he plays either in the outfield or at first base for the baseball team, and in today's meet he won both the 100 yard dash and broad jump. He slowed down in the 220 yard dash to let a teammate win a letter or would have won that. He finished third.

MOOSEHEART IS EASY WINNER IN TRIANGLE MEET

Aurora, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Mooseheart athletes were victorious in a triangular track and field meet with Strita college and Morgan Park here today, the winners having a total of 7[illegible] points. Morgan Park finished second with 26 points, and Strita was close behind with a total of 24.

Despite the heavy rain, which was responsible for a soggy track, fairly good marks were made in most of the events. A. Connor and Francisco shared individual honors for the victors, while Hatheway was a bright light for Morgan Park. For Strita, Cranly and McCarthy were the outstanding stars.

MARQUETTE U. TO SEND A TEAM TO CHICAGO OLYMPIC

Milwaukee, Wis., May 16.—[Special.]—Coach Connie Jennings of the Marquette university track team today announced he would enter two and possibly five men, in the Chicago Olympics, the Finnish dash American games in Grant park stadium May 31.

Melvin Shimek, Marquette star distance man, and Frank Glaser, the little pole vaulter who has been clearing thirteen feet in practice, are sure of entering, while Jennings also may send Frank Shotola for the broad jump, Joe Heineman for the 4:40, and Ray Ruehl for the hurdles.

MILLIKIN WINS ON TRACK FROM BELOIT, ILLINOIS

Decatur, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Millikin university won a triangular track and field meet here today from Beloit and Illinois college. The meet was hard fought, the last event, the javelin, in which Millikin took first and second, deciding the winner. Millikin scored 48½ points, Illinois college 45½, and Beloit 37.

RAIN STOPS GAME AT ALBION.

Albion, Mich., May 16.—[Special.]—Rain stopped the South Central Michigan H. S. A. A. game between Albion and Sturgis this afternoon with the score tied 4 to 4 in the eighth inning.

THIS IS LAST DAY TO ENTER BICYCLE DERBY

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

With over 400 entries already received for THE TRIBUNE'S fourth annual bicycle Derby to be held in Humboldt park one week from this morning at 9 o'clock and more nominations expected today and tomorrow, a new entry record has been set for the event.

Last year 296 nominations were received for the seven events, featured by the 22 mile handicap, in which the limit riders receive as high as five minutes' allowances. The gratifying feature about the entry is that so many boys and novice riders will face the starter. This is an indication the bike racing game is coming back into favor.

Entries Close Tonight.

When the lists close at midnight today, close to 500 entries are expected. Any entries mailed today will be accepted tomorrow but positively no post entries will be taken. The complete list must be turned over to the board of control of the western division of the Amateur Bicycle League of America, which will hold a special meeting on Tuesday night at 2846 West North avenue to arrange handicaps and see that all riders are placed in the proper classes.

The board of control will also determine how points will be awarded for the team trophy. In the 22 mile handicap, winners of the first twelve places will receive merchandise certificates which range in value from $50 to the winner to $5 for the victor of twelfth place. It is the opinion of most members of the board that points in this race should count more than in the class events. For this reason the board will undoubtedly recommend that the winner of the handicap be rewarded with twelve points, second with eleven, and so on down until the twelfth place winner is given one point.

Five prizes will be awarded in the class events, the race for boys and the one for girls. The winner of each race will be given five points, second four, and so on down with fifth place victor receiving one point. This method of scoring may be changed by the board, but most of its members favor the above mentioned system at the present time.

Team Rivalry Keen.

The entry so far received is representative of Chicago's amateur bike racing world while several out of town riders will be on hand to ride in the handicap. Some will also compete in the class races. Team rivalry is asserting itself and several of the clubs are already claiming the beautiful trophy which will go to the organization whose riders score the greatest number of points.

Riders, who are certain to start from scratch, are urging the handicap committee not to be too liberal with the allowances. The good riders want a chance to overtake the limit men, something they have been unable to do in previous derbies. All contestants have been training ever since the weather permitted outdoor work with the result the entire field will be in much better condition than most of the riders were for other races.

The boys have taken a keen interest in the 2 1-5 mile event. Over 50 have entered, and this should be one of the best races of the day, as it will be an honest effort on the part of each rider to win. The same is true of the novice class, open to all riders who have never won a first place in any kind of sanctioned competition. The girls also are showing more interest, and about fifteen will go to the mark.

Entrants Must Register.

All entrants are again urged to see they are registered with the Amateur Bicycle League of America. By doing this contestants will coöperate with the officials who will not be delayed in starting the program promptly at 9 o'clock. Registration can be made with Julian T. Fitzgerald, 2846 W. North avenue. Phone Humboldt 0121.

As previously stated entries close today at midnight, but any nominations placed in the mail and which bear a May 17 postmark will be accepted tomorrow. Entry blanks appear on the sport pages for those who care to enter.

2 FAST HOOSIER BOYS IN STAGG FIELD TOURNEY

Two of the fastest boys in southern Indiana will display their speed in the Stagg interscholastic at the University of Chicago, June 5 and 6. Dick McCrary of Bicknell, and Firman Wampler of Vincennes are the youthful Paddocks, and they will attempt to outspeed their rivals at the big prep meet.

In his specialties, the 100 and 220 yard dashes, McCrary has never been beaten, much less being pressed. Recently in the Wabash Valley high school meet at Robinson, Ill., he stepped the century in :10. He ran the 220 in :22, and both performances were made on slow tracks.

Wampler has a particular fondness for the 440 yard run. He isn't at his best unless he is clocked in around :51. In the last two years he has captured this event in state meets.

Maroon Hawkeye Game at Stagg Field Is Postponed

The Western Conference baseball game between University of Chicago and University of Iowa, scheduled for Stagg Field yesterday, was cancelled because of the heavy rain which flooded the diamond. No provision for a play off was made.

STARS IN TRIBUNE BIKE DERBY

Francis Allen of the Austin Columbia A. A., the well known ice skater, and Eddie Merkner of the South Chicago Wheelmen are among some of the strong contenders in The Tribune's fourth annual bicycle Derby, to be held in Humboldt park next Sunday morning. Allen, who started from scratch in the 22 mile handicap last year, won second time prize, while Merkner is considered one of the class A riders in Illinois. Close to 500 entries, a new record for the event, have been received. In addition to the 22 mile handicap, the feature contest, there will be races for boys and girls and the class riders.

17 TEAMS OF 618 MEN ENTERED IN BIG TEN MEET

Columbus, O., May 16.—All ten western conference schools and seven outside the Big Ten have entered teams in the annual conference outdoor track and field championships to be held here June 5 and 6. A list of the official entries made public today shows 618 athletes nominated.

With three and possibly four conference teams fairly even in strength, indications are some of the outside teams may cut into the running sufficiently to enable a dark horse to land the title.

PURPLE TENNIS TEAM WINS FROM GOPHERS, 6 TO 0

Minneapolis, Minn., May 16.—[A. P.]—Northwestern university had easy going with Minnesota in a Big Ten tennis engagement here today, scoring clean sweeps in the doubles and singles for a 6 to 0 victory.

Except in one match of the doubles, the Purple swept through to victory in straight sets. It was the first defeat of the season for the Gophers.

Britain's Davis Cup Team Puts Poland Out of Tourney

WARSAW, May 16.—[A. P.]—Poland was eliminated by Great Britain in the Davis cup tennis competition when the British team won the doubles match here today. The British players took both singles matches in the opening round yesterday.

In today's play L. A. Godfree and C. K. Kingsley of Great Britain, defeated Stajnert and Kuchar of Poland, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2. Stanislaus Wojciechowski, president of Poland, witnessed the tournament.

Indians Beat Dutch.

BRUSSELS, May 16.—[A. P.]—India won both singles matches in the opening round of the Davis cup tennis elimination play here today. The play was featured by a hard fought match between S. M. Jacob of India, and Jean Washer of Belgium, which was won by the Indian player, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4. In the first match earlier in the day Dr. Andreae, India, won from A. G. Watson, Belgium, 6-0, 6-3, 6-0.

Austrians Trounce Irish.

VIENNA, May 16.—[A. P.]—Austria won both singles matches from Ireland today in the first round of the European zone eliminations for the Davis cup. Count Salm-Hoogstraten, after a bad start, made a good finish and defeated Maj. S. F. Scroope of Ireland, in the last three sets, 0-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3. P. Brick, Austrian, beat L. A. Beldon, Ireland, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

Dutch Defeat Czechs.

Noordwijk, Holland, May 16.—[A. P.]—Hanlennep and Diemerkool, of Holland, today defeated Zemla and Kozeluk, of Czecho-Slovakia 6-3, 6-1, 8-6, in their elimination play in the zone Davis cup tennis competitions.

Swedes Trounce Swiss.

BERNE, Switzerland, May 16.—[A. P.]—Sweden won both singles matches from Switzerland here today in the opening round of the Davis cup elimination tennis matches. In the first match Malmstrom of Sweden defeated C. F. Aeschliman, Switzerland, 6-3, 6-3, 7-9, 6-3. In the second match Wallenburg, Sweden, beat Martin, Switzerland, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

DEMARCO VICTOR OVER JACK ZIVIC

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 16.—[A. P.]—Cuddy Demarco of Charleroi, Pa., won the judges' decision in a 10 round boxing bout here today, with Jack Zivic of Lawrenceville, Pa. Demarco weighed 136 pounds and Zivic 137. Willie Davies of Charleroi won the judges' decision over Lew Goldberg, New York, in 3 rounds. They are flyweights.

GLENBARD WINS AURORA MEET IN LAST EVENT

Aurora, Ill., May 16.—[Special.]—Glenbard won the fourth annual East High of Aurora invitation track meet here today in the last event when Groshell won the javelin throw. Batavia was second and York third. Fifteen schools competed.

Tillman, the Glenbard sprinter, was the star of the meet, winning the 50 and 100 yard dashes and scoring second in the 220. Glenbard is the township high school of Glen Ellyn and Lombard, Chicago suburbs. Point standing of the teams:

Glenbard, 39; Batavia, 36; York, 16; Harvard, 13; Riverside, 11; Belvidere, 9; Downers Grove, 6; Seneca, 6; Woodstock, 2; Crystal Lake, 1; Geneva, 1.

Woods and Waters

COLOR COMBINATIONS AND GAME FISH LURES.

EVERY summer we enjoy experimenting with various game fish lures in order to learn more about color combinations that are attractive to the finny tribes. But the studies do not yield much satisfactory information, as the pesky fish are inconsistent and just about the time that we think we have the goods on them along comes a day of fishing which upsets our beautiful theories and we have to start all over again.

The early American anglers had pretty definite ideas on which colors were the most attractive to bass and the boys who fish today play up their color fads in much the same way as did the fishermen of years ago. In fact this color question has been the subject of study for a long time but the most expert anglers will agree that there is no one color more dependable than the other. Many fishermen have their favorites and use them day in and day out and because they continually offer this one combination to fish they may naturally get more fish on it than on anything else. This leads a certain bass fan to swear that his favorite color is the champion go-getter. But some day he meets another fisherman who has been playing an entirely different color fad and also getting fish, which sets the stage for a dandy argument.

A couple of summers ago Ben Twombly led us to a couple of beautiful wilderness lakes near Mamie lake, Wisconsin. We banked on a Baltimore Oriole weighted fly and pork strip combination and it sure did stir up the large mouths. We figured that here was a knockout. For five days we fed Baltimore Orioles to the bass and the fish swatted 'em with great gusto. Then came two blank days and we began to experiment with reds, yellows and even black lures without getting anywhere.

Another time while fishing a small lake in northwest Wisconsin we plunged on yellow flies and for more than a week Yellow Mays brought home the bacon. Then came the bump. No fish on the Yellows and another hunch was shattered. There is apparently no accounting for the color tastes of game fish and when one sees the many queer, arbitrary combinations in trout flies or the crazy color schemes of weighted flies and other bass lures he might as well confess that fresh water game fish are a funny lot. They will strike the craziest looking do-funnys painted or dyed in all kinds of bizarre patterns and no one seems to know why.

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

by A. R. METCALFE

STRATEGY IN INITIAL BIDDING.

WHEN a player bids all that his hand is worth on the first round his next bid comes in some other deal.

Any initial bid should always indicate good help for a no trump declaration.

The only initial bids are those made by dealer or the second player when dealer passes.

Good defensive play is more rare than is good play on the part of the declarer. The game of declarer's opponents should be first of all to save the game. This means that against a no trump declaration their goal is five tricks, four tricks when spades or hearts are trumps, three tricks when diamonds or clubs are trumps.

When game is safe they should try to defeat the declarer's contract, and as badly as is possible with the cards. Some splendid illustrations of this defensive play are given in the deals which follow.

North had the initial lead.

West secured six tricks only.

The holding of west showed a double on the first round of bidding, but he feared a heart declaration from his partner and was willing to play the deal at no trump.

The outstanding feature of the deal was the refusal of south to win the first round of diamonds, although holding both the ace and queen. South knew by using the rule of 11 that his partner's heart suit was entirely established. It was, however, impossible to make but one trick in that suit as only one heart remained in dummy. South, therefore, refrained from winning the diamond in order to tempt the declarer, if possible, into a lead of trumps, and his scheme succeeded wonderfully.

West knew that south must hold the ace of diamonds, but thought he had definitely located the queen of that suit in the north hand, and he had visions, therefore, of winning every trick except one heart, one club and one diamond.

South was pleasantly surprised to note at trick five that west had bid on four spades only. By winning the next lead of diamonds and leading his last trump south was able to secure the remaining tricks and did not even need to use his club ace.

The declarer should have led clubs from dummy at trick three, but he was carried away by what he supposed had been a successful finesse in the diamond suit.

Meet this Six with a chip on your shoulder and a "show me" light in your eye

We are prepared to prove the new Gardner Six has more beauty, more comfort, more power, more performance, more happy miles between the front bumper and tail light than $1395 ever before bought in an automobile.

We don't ask you to take our word for it. Anybody can make claims on paper. But it takes a real automobile to make those claims stick when you get the car away from smooth boulevards and up against rough roads and steep hills.

That's why we'd like you to come in with a chip on your shoulder and a "show me" light in your eye, and challenge us to make good on everything we say.

For we've got some car—and some surprise—waiting for you. A scrapping big, husky Six with strength and stamina in every inch of it. Six-inch frame. Six cross-members. Rear springs almost half the total wheelbase length. One of the smoothest six-cylinder motors that ever pulled a hard hill in high.

Come in and meet it.

BRITISH WOMEN WIN PRELIM OF OPEN TITLE PLAY

TROON, Scotland, May 16.—[A. P.]—The English women golfers today won the annual international team contest by defeating the Welsh team, nine matches to none. They had previously defeated Ireland and Scotland.

Those entrants in the women's open championship tournament who did not participate in today's team play improved the opportunity of getting in a little practice.

Glenna Takes a 79.

Miss Joyce Wethered, the champion, played fine golf except for some lapses on the putting greens. Since the beginning of the week she and Miss Glenna Collett, the former American champion, separately have played several rounds over the course. Almost daily the British girl has covered the 18 holes in three or four fewer strokes than the American aspirant for her title. Yesterday, however, Miss Collett was at the peak of her game and took a 79. She did the first nine holes in 36.

Tomorrow being the Sabbath and this being Scotland, there will be no golf at all. The open championship tournament begins on Monday.

14 Year Old Entered.

One of the entrants is Enid Wilson of Chesterfield, a 14 year old girl who wears her hair in a long pigtail. Although a strongly built miss and capable of driving a golf ball more than 200 yards, she is the youngest golfer whoever entered championship play in this country. She has drawn a most difficult assignment for her championship debut, being drawn to meet Mrs. W. A. Gavin, experienced American tournament player, in the first round.

ST. GEORGE'S GOLF TROPHY WON BY DOUGLAS GRANT

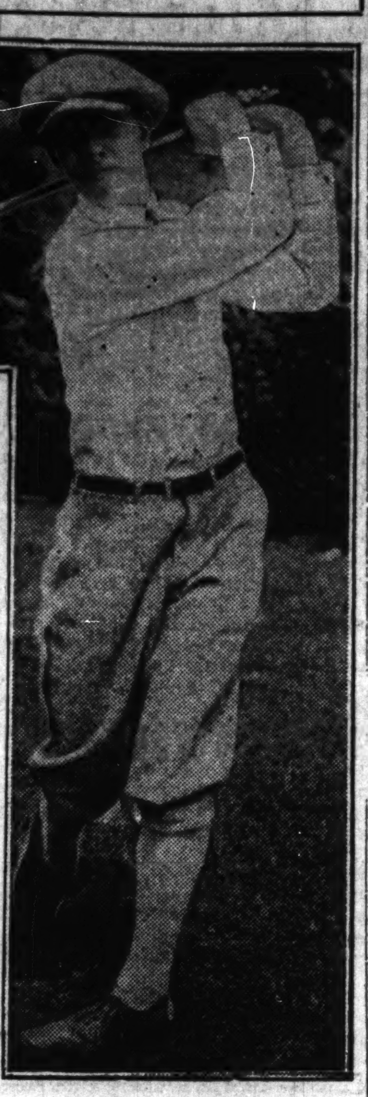
SANDWICH, England, May 16.—[A. P.]—Douglas Grant, formerly of San Francisco and now domiciled in England today won the St. George's challenge gold vase golf tournament with an aggregate score of 149 for the two rounds. The prize i svalued at £500.

Robert Harris of Acton, England, was runner-up with a score of 151. Cyril Tolley, former British amateur golf champion, retired before the end of the play. In 1923 Francis Ouimet, former American national golf champion, won the cup.

MARQUETTE WINS PAIR OF MEETS

Milwaukee, Wis., May 16.—Marquette university maintained its record of having gone undefeated in dual track competition for the last three years in Marquette stadium here today, turning in a double win. The Hilltop varsity drubbed Ripon college, 88½ to 37½, while the Marquette freshman squad defeated Milwaukee Normal, 75 2-3 to 32 1-3.

WINS PREP GOLF TOURNEY



RUSSELL MARTIN.

Champaign, Ill., May 16.—Russell Martin, Deerfield-Shields golfer, won the Illinois high school golf championship with a score of 233 points for 54 holes on the Urbana Country club this morning. He also won last year.

Two brothers from New Trier, Joseph and Waddy Palleti, finished second and third respectively. Second place was won by 238 strokes. Waddy Palleti tied with Clary, Lake View, with 243 strokes, but won by the lowest score for three extra holes.

Sam Gilbert, Lake View, won fifth. Three golfers tied for sixth with 246. The trio are Stuart, Lake View; Lyon, Pontiac, and Dawson, Wheaton. Poole of University High of Chicago came seventh with 248, and Willman of Bloomington and Charlton of Springfield eighth with 255.

GAR WOOD TO RACE 20TH CENTURY FROM ALBANY TO NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 16.—[A. P.]—Gar Wood, Detroit motor boat builder, who plans to race the New York Central crack Twentieth Century limited from Albany to New York on May 25, will have to go faster than three-quarters of a mile a minute if he hopes to win.

The Century regularly makes the trip of 140.19 miles from Albany to the Grand Central station in 190 minutes.

Presumably the race will be at least 12 miles shorter, for the train leaves for the Hudson shore at Spuyten Duyvil after changing from a steam locomotive to an electric one at Harmon, eight miles further up the river.

Wood will use the Baby Gar IV. and the Baby Gar V., one of which he will pilot himself. In 1921 he defeated an express train from Miami to New York, when he made the 1,260 miles up the coast in 47:23.

BADGER GOLFERS WIN FROM IOWA ON WET COURSE

Iowa City, Ia., May 16.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's golf team waded the turf of the Iowa golf links today through an intermittent rain to down their hosts, 14 to 7, in the first western conference match of the Iowa links. The Nassau system of scoring gave Iowa the advantage in the match play of the morning seven to four, but heavy triumphs in the afternoon foresome made the Badgers victory easy. Summaries:

Match play—Bock [Wisconsin] defeated Peterson [Iowa], 3—0; Vernon [Iowa] defeated Gunther [Wisconsin], 2—0; Smiley [Iowa] defeated Head [Wisconsin], 3—0; Beman [Iowa] defeated Porter [Wisconsin], 1—0.

Foursomes—Bock and Head [Wisconsin] defeated Peterson and Smiley [Iowa], 6—0; Gunther and Porter [Wisconsin] defeated Vernon and Beman [Iowa], 4—0.

BELOIT GAME POSTPONED.

Kenosha, Wis., May 16.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin State league game between Beloit and Kenosha Twin Sixes was called off here this afternoon on account of rain and wet grounds.

Guaranty Trust Eleven Wins Paris Bank Title

PARIS, May 16.—[A. P.]—The Association Football team of the Paris Branch of the Guaranty Trust company today defeated the team of the Equitable Trust company, 8 to 2, in the final match for the championship of the Paris inter-bank league.

GOLFERS DEFY RAIN AND SHOOT BETWEEN DROPS

BY MORROW KRUM.

There was rain and more rain and some golf in the Chicago district yesterday. The Saturday was not what would be called a gala day, because old J. Pluvius was rather liberal with his contributions of rain water, but still the genuine devotees of the game braved the showers and played golf.

There were many important events during the rain swept day. Perhaps it will not be impossible to list them all here, but if you do not find news of your favorite club in this column glance to the nearby golf notes and if you triumphed over the rain and played to a good score yesterday perhaps you will find your name listed. Or if your name isn't there look for the names of your friends.

Dedication at Olympia.

One of the most important events of the day was the dedication of Olympia Fields new club house. Although there was a steady drizzle throughout the afternoon about 400 members played the courses competing in the Greater Olympia dedication. After the golf clubs had been parked with the professionals there was a dinner and 2,000 members and guests made merry.

A. A. Stagg, one of the founders and the first president of the club, Charles M. Smalley and several other officials and enthusiastic boosters, made short addresses at the clubhouse dedication dinner last night.

Whittaker Takes First.

Ernest Whittaker was the "Flying Ebony" of the field, finishing 3 up on par over the No. 1 course. President Charles M. Smalley "placed" by checking out 1 up.

Playing over No. 4, Joie Finn, former city champion, and H. E. Roelke tied at 3 down.

In a medal play event over No. 2, M. J. Devaney won the prize with a score of 83—17—66.

Armour Tech swept the board yesterday at Edgebrook in the annual interstate conference championship golf tournament, John Urban successfully defending the individual title with a round of 38—41—79, while he helped his mates win the team trophy. In the singles Crotin of Loyola was runnerup with 81, while Miller of Armour was third, with 82. De Paul finished as runnerup in the team contest. The general scoring was very creditable, in view of the condition of the course, which had been thoroughly soaked by the heavy rain. Other schools competing were Lombard and Valparaiso. Armour will meet Loyola next Thursday, probably at Butterfield, while Wednesday, May 27, the South Siders will play De Paul at Evergreen.

BUTTERFIELD.

There was a lucky shot tournament at Butterfield yesterday and Joseph V. Victor won the first prize. J. B. Wans was second. Leonard Ullrich reports that "a good time was had by all."

EXMOOR.

There was medal play at Exmoor and Paul Walker won the first honors by turning in an 80. His handicap was 7, so that gave him a score of 73. G. W. Blossom was second and T. Charles Buck was third.

HINSDALE.

Ball sweepstakes at Hinsdale yesterday. In class A Goodwin Clark was first and D. G. Heinly was second. Class B, W. C. Harrison, F. M. Orchard, and H. L. Hiatt. Class C, F. G. Allen, G. N. Knolson, and T. L. Powers. Class D, G. F. Chestbro.

LOCAL GOLF

ST. ANDREWS.

WITH local golf clubs numerous and names scarce, a coterie of Chicagoans, headed by Dr. William H. Roth, has given the world the third St. Andrews course near West Chicago. The riginal St. near West Chicago. The original St. Andrews, the cradle of the game, is in Scotland. The second St. Andrews is an old club at Mount Hope, N. Y. All typify golf as the greatest pastime.

The local club has evolved a plan that is unique. It will build two courses on 240 acres of fine rolling land on St. Charles road, a short distance north of Ingalton avenue, a new connecting paved highway, and within 100 feet of the Aurora and Elgin electric railroad station.

Memembership will be limited to 300, proceeds from the first 250 being used to build the first course and the club house. Later, the remaining 50 will be sold and a second course built with the money obtained. This second course will be conducted on a playing membership basis at $100 per year. This money will be pooled with the returns from St. Andrew proper, which will cut in half, it is estimated, the cost of the members' golf.

EDGEWOOD.

Matt Kelly, professional at the above named club, makes a full report of yesterday's activity and from his words there must have been good sport. The qualifying rounds for the house committee trophy were on and those who qualified are: P. Brant, H. A. Flethner, A. B. Sweet, George Loas, Harry Rautenbusch, J. H. Biggar, C. W. Berquist Jr., C. Lapp, H. E. Wilson, W. R. Tuttle, H. J. Cwinting, O. N. Wakefield, R. P. Barnett, J. J. McNamara, R. E. McEwen, and G. L. Boecklen. The low net prize was won by P. Brant and the prize for the least number of putts was taken home by H. A. Flethner.

ONWENTSIA.

Laurie Ayton, professional at the Evanston Golf club, playing in a practice round Friday at Onwentsia, set a new course record of 31—35—66 for players competing in the middle western qualifying round of the national open tournament, May 27-28, to shoot at. The previous record was 67, held by Bob Gardner, Onwentsia club champion. Ayton played in a foursome with Willie Hunter, Onwentsia pro; Brude Herd, professional at South Shore, and Jock Hutchison, professional at Glen View. Hutchison had 34—39—73. Hunter in a round the previous day, chalked up 69.

COLUMBUS PARK.

The new shelter at the Columbus park golf club will be dedicated today, Dr. John Dill Robertson and Sol Westerfield, president and treasurer, respectively of the west park board, making brief speeches before an exhibition golf match is played. In the latter, Walter Crowe and Ray Beighler of the home club will meet the Dawsons, John and George, of Green Valley.

CALUMET.

R. B. Clark evidently liked a wet track, his 95—27—68 netting him the prize in the class C event and also was the lowest score in the qualifying round of the competition for the President's cup In class A, Lee Thiltges, club champion, won with 79—3—76, while R. L. Kittle and V. J. Bullen tied in class B with duplicate cards of 92—19—73.

RIVERSIDE.

There was an 18 hole medal play event at Riverside yesterday, the opening competition of the club's summer tournaments, and D. M. Bell won the trophy. The trophy was called the H. B. Babson trophy and Mr. Bell had an 87 which with his handicap of 25 gave him a 62 and the prize.

EDGEWATER.

Water above, below, in front, behind, to the left, and to the right did not deter a large field in a week-end sweepstakes. T. A. Lamond, 84—13—71, and B. J. Dolan, 94—23—71, split the spoils.

HARLEM.

The sharp shooters who represent Armour Tech defeated Crane college in an 18 hole match at Harlem yesterday. The score was 11 to 0 in favor of Armour.

SPRING AUTOMOBILE SALON

MOON

To acquaint you with what we believe is as fine a trio of new enclosed cars ever shown in this city, we are holding a special Spring Salon this week at our salesrooms.

Any combination of word and picture falls short of the outward beauty, the inner excellence of these cars.

End to end, inside and out, to the very last detail of interior decoration, they are as fresh, as new, as distinctive as the last style from Paris.

You must actually see them to appreciate the artistry of their appearance. You must actually ride in them to feel their wonderful difference in performance.

And we promise you this much. In looks, in action you will find these cars as far ahead of the previous Moon line as the earlier Moon cars were ahead of their competitors. And that's a strong statement, as any present Moon owner will tell you.

You will find a new flow of smoothness, a greater surge of power, a higher capacity for sustained speed in the new Moon-Continental motor.

Will you kindly take this announcement as a warm personal invitation to visit us and see these cars?

It is the best way and the quickest way to learn how Moon has anticipated your eager wish for better looks, better performance and longer life in a motor car of moderate price. CALL YOUR NEAREST DEALER TODAY and see the new De Luxe closed cars. Make your own comparisons as to their superior value in looks, performance, permanent style. LIBERAL TIME PAYMENTS AND DEALERS' FLOOR PLAN. Your territory may be open—allotments now being arranged.

Engineers Seek Fountain of Youth for Modern Motor

'Attack Internal Wear by a Study of Crank Case Oil.

WITH the coöperation of a number of progressive manufacturers and the bureau of standards, the Society of Automotive Engineers has begun a concerted attack on the problem of internal wear in automobile and truck engines, with the object of increasing the usefulness of motor vehicles to their owners. Various lubrication problems that are common to all machines are considered of enough importance by several of the manufacturers to warrant a careful analytical study. Among the companies that are taking part in this movement are the Autocar, Chevrolet, Chrysler, Dodge, Mack, Maxwell, Packard, and Rickenbacker.

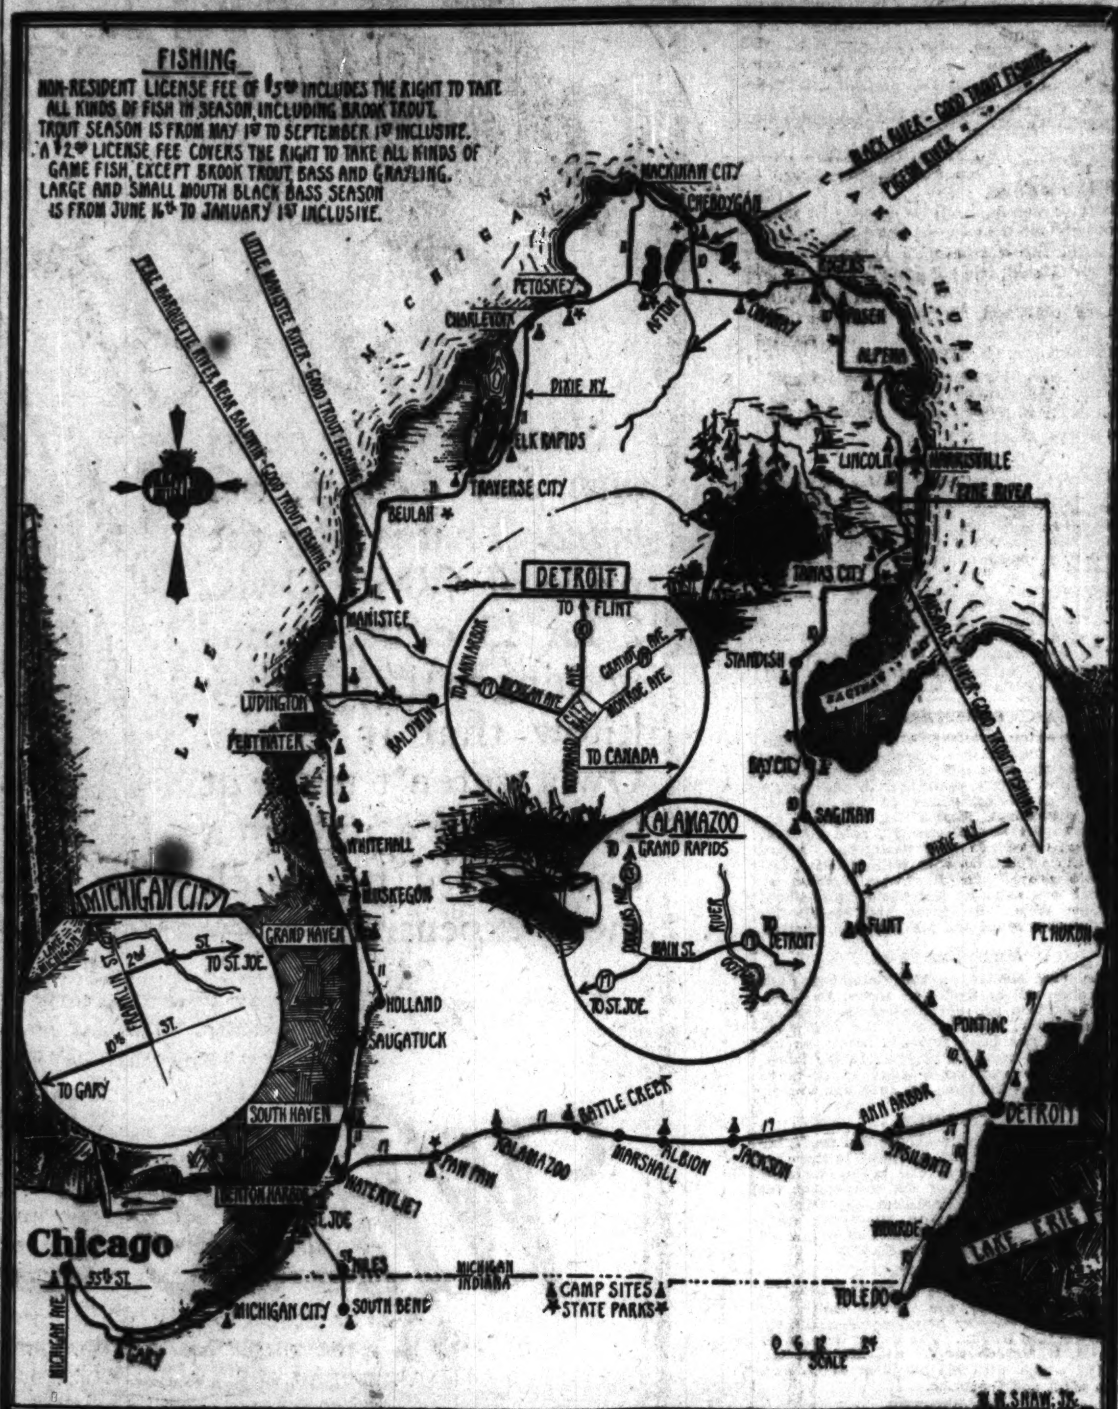
The method that is being followed is for the companies to send to the bureau of standards samples of used lubricating oil taken from the crankcases of cars and trucks operating in regular service in different cities. The samples are being taken from ten cars each in Washington, Detroit, Birmingham, Minneapolis, New Orleans, Tulsa, and San Francisco. These cities were selected as representing the desired variation in climatic conditions and other factors, such as the dust carried in the air that the engines must breathe. The 170 samples so collected will be analyzed completely at the bureau to obtain an index of the wear of cylinder walls, piston rings, and crankshaft and connecting rod bearings that results from the presence of various materials that contaminate the oil in the engine, such as dust, water, and the heavy ends of hydrocarbon fuels.

Results of the analyses will be furnished to the coöperating manufacturers and a summary of the investigation will be compiled later for the information of all concerned. Positive knowledge of the materials that impair the lubricating quality of oils and cause most wear will enable the manufacturers of cars and trucks to devise means for increasing the life of motor vehicles.

This new undertaking is a continuance of the study of the lubrication problem which the Society of Automotive Engineers has been carrying on for several years in conjunction with the bureau of standards, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and the American Petroleum institute. The problem has been complicated by the use of certain types of fuels, including those of low volatility that do not burn completely in the cylinders, as the unburned fuel makes its way into the crankcase and dilutes the lubricating oil. This lowers the viscosity of the oil, making it less effective as a lubricant.

Tribune Tours

IV.—FEATURE TRAILS OF MICHIGAN



WITH thousands of miles of excellent paved and graveled highways circling the state and winding within easy striking distance of every stream and lake in the popular summer playground, Michigan is making a strong bid this year for the ever increasing vacation travel from the south and middle west.

This week's TRIBUNE tour suggestion shows in detail the two lake shore roads which tap the best of scenic features and fishing grounds outside of the upper peninsula and the free camp sites and state parks to be found in the big circle.

The famous West Michigan pike, state highway 11, is practically complete now from the south state line to Mackinaw. It is either paved or graveled over its entire length, and is reported in excellent condition. The Detroit road, No. 17, is also reported fair to excellent all the way from Chicago, and No. 10 highway is being improved and maintained north to the straits.

Italian Champion Enters Car in Big Hoosier Annual

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—[Special Correspondence.]—Pietro Bordino, star driver of Italy and conqueror of the best European racing pilots, has entered an Italian Fiat in the thirteenth international 500 mile race to be held at the Indianapolis motor speedway Saturday, May 30.

Bordino's is the fifth foreign entry for the May race at Indianapolis. Three Guyot specials and a Schmidt special, all flying the tricolor of France, are other nominations.

The Italian speed representative is making his first appearance on the Indianapolis track, though he had an introduction to American racing in the halcyon days of 1908 when he was sent to this country as a mechanic for a Fiat to be driven by Ralph De Palma, a fellow Italian, who has become the popular racing idol of the land.

As a youngster and as a mechanic he went unnoticed, of course, but he returned to his native land and began the long, difficult task of filtering through the squads of established stars by an apprenticeship far more rigorous than American beginners are forced to suffer before they become first water drivers.

Bordino has had many hours of driving on the Monza speedway at Milan, Italy, which in many ways is similar to the course at Indianapolis. So it follows, racing experts claim, that the Italian will be on a more equal footing with the American stars on the Hoosier course than he would be on the board bowls where steeply banked turns prove a Waterloo for many of the foreign invaders.

Having driven miles and miles of road racing, negotiating treacherous hairpin turns, almost flat, Bordino should find the going to his liking at Indianapolis, the home of America's most difficult driving course. It will be a fair test of his driving skill against Tommy Milton, Earl Cooper, Bennett Hill, Harry Hartz and other Yankee pilots against whom he will be pitted in the coming event.

Bordino's car will arrive here early in May and the Italian will follow soon after. He plans to have plenty of time to rehearse on the Indianapolis track before the race.

ADJUST LEVER.

Not all gear levers are the right length for comfortable operation, and when the lever is too short an extension can be purchased in any supply store. These extensions are screwed on the end of the lever and they make shifting of gears very much easier.

Trail of Lonesome Pine Now a Modern Concrete Highway

"THE Trail of the Lonesome Pine," famous throughout the world in song and story, and which in actuality is a part of the Great Lakes to Atlantic Ocean highway, located near Big Stone gap, Va., will be thrown open to the tourist in June. Mrs. John Fox Sr., mother of John Fox, author of the famous book, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," and his sister and brother will be guests of honor at the celebration which will be a part of the event.

The Hales, Falins, and Tollivers of his book, some of them the actual characters he sketched into his story from real life, will all be on hand for the celebration. The "trail" is close to the Kentucky line, and the governors of Virginia and Kentucky will be asked to attend the celebration.

"The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," of the days when John Fox described it, before the "furriners came into the holler and made the great glare of yellow light that the circuit rider told about," brought in the "shrieking monster that ran without horses like the wind," are still a part of the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia. However, the "trail" itself has graduated into a respectable concrete highway and the people of the region are among the best in the state.

The mechanical masterpiece
THE International Truck is an interesting example of most advanced construction. The "Steer-Easy" steering gear, for instance, affords the easiest kind of handling enabling the driver to sit comfortably as in a passenger car, and loses not an inch of loading space. Rear auxiliary springs, of exclusive International design, come into action when needed and assure correct spring flexibility.
International removable cylinder design eliminates the reboring of cylinders and replacing of cylinder blocks.
The entire power plant is a marvel of accessibility, making oiling and adjustments the easiest kind of job.
The crankshaft in every Heavy Duty International is guaranteed against breakage for life and the crankshaft ball bearings are guaranteed never to break, wear out or burn out.
And so on, from effective cooling system to efficient final drive, International construction reveals the experience of twenty years of truck manufacture, and does justice to the Harvester reputation extending over almost a century.
The International line includes a Speed Truck for 2000-pound loads; Heavy Duty Trucks ranging from 3000 to 10,000 pounds, maximum capacities; and Motor Coaches for all requirements.

All Records Fall Before Rush for New Automobiles

Optimism Floods Motor Industry; Ford in the Lead.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., May 16.—[Special.]—Automobile and truck manufacturers are marveling at the new record hung up by the industry during the month of April. As individuals, they knew the demand for their products was very satisfactory, but it was not until official figures for the entire country were announced that they realized that a monthly record had been broken by an increase of more than 4 per cent over the previous high mark of 404,323 cars and trucks. This increase is 16 per cent over March and 14 per cent higher than April of 1924. The largest single month last year was in March, when 393,270 vehicles were made.

Although April was the banner month for all time, present conditions point strongly to the probability that the present month's production will exceed it. Announcements from the big plants are to the effect that there is no letup in demand. Dealers and distributors throughout the country are calling for more cars and speedy deliveries. This especially is true throughout the southwestern districts, where farmers are coming into the market.

Unfilled orders now booked insure a continuation of rapid production. Manufacturers, in order to meet this demand, are stepping up production. Working hours are being lengthened in many plants, and in one Flint plant several divisions are working not only night and day but Sundays as well, in an effort to catch up with orders.

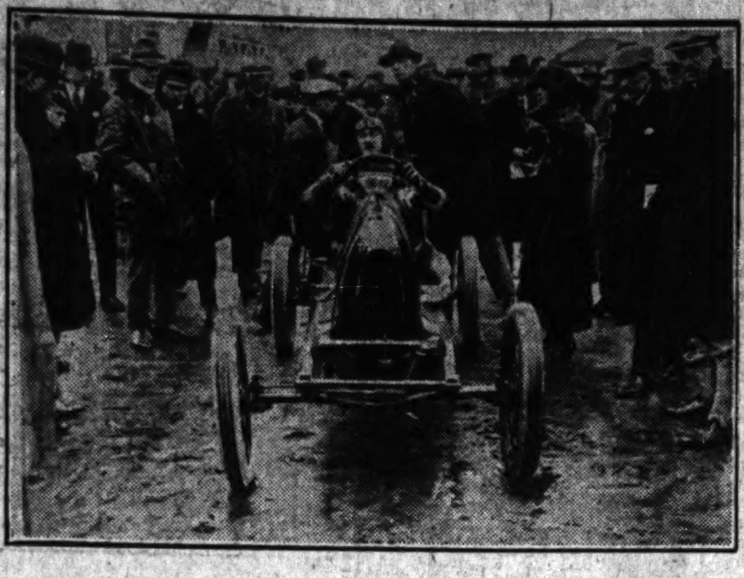
The call for both skilled and common labor in the 79 Detroit automobile plants and automobile accessory factories continues. For the thirteenth consecutive week, according to official figures given out by the Employers' association, labor has shown an increase. Last week 1,985 men were added to the pay rolls, bringing the total now employed up to 238,542 and within sight of the highest point in the history of the automobile industry.

Movement of heavy type trucks is larger than usual. The leading makers of this type of vehicle report a broad demand from road building and construction contractors. The movement of light commercial trucks will make a new season record, based on business to date.

With passenger car exports and the output of American foreign assemblies setting new records, 51,000 American automobiles and trucks were sold abroad during April. These vehicles were valued at $17,675,000. Truck exports alone totaled 4,728. Passage of the McKenna tax of 33 1-3 per cent on importation of automobiles by the British house of commons has dealt American manufacturers, who have just started an extensive campaign for English business, a severe blow. The tax becomes effective July 1, and in the meantime American manufacturers are shipping every car they can manufacture in an effort to get their product into England within the next six weeks.

In the present stress of keen competition—possibly the keenest the business has ever known—many manufacturers realized that trade was better than just good, but with general conditions more or less stationary a feeling of extreme caution prevailed, and the announcement of the new record established in April changed the feeling to old time optimism.

ENGLISH WIND SPLITTER.



British race fans found much to admire and marvel over in this tiny, four cylinder racer, introduced at Brooklands this year. It runs in the 75 miles an hour class and has performed creditably.

THE CAR THAT MADE GOOD IN A DAY
STUTZ

4 out of every 5

Facts and figures give you a tangible basis for comparison of actual automobile values.

Fiction and fancy form the basis for most automobile advertising.

Take a moment to read FIVE FACTS that should help you to a new idea of automobile value.

1} More than four out of every five Stutz cars built since this factory started are still in service.

2} Stutz factory parts records show that Stutz owners are paying one-third the average owners cost for like cars on parts replacements.

3} Actual statements from Stutz owners in our significant booklet "What Stutz Owners Wired" show wonderful records of Stutz performance at low up-keep costs over hundreds of thousands of miles of service and years of satisfactory use.

4} The Stutz "Second Demonstration", in a car with over 50,000 miles of service behind it, gives you conclusive evidence of the stamina of the Stutz cars of the past.

5} The new Stutz Six awaits you here ready to demonstrate actual facts in appearance, appointment, finish, ease of riding and driving and actual performance under any driving condition.

If you regard FACTS and figures as more reliable than fiction and fancy in choosing YOUR car, we will give you every help in investigating these new Stutz Sixes.

Find out first what Oakland Offers

Drive an Oakland on our invitation and get the thrill that comes from better performance, greater safety and fuller comfort

Certainly you can't afford to be satisfied with less than Oakland offers you. Here are just a few of the advanced features that spell real value to the buyer who is genuinely concerned about getting the most for his money.

Six Cylinder Engine—Owners tell us that their Oaklands can do better than sixty-five miles an hour, —that amazing getaway and flexibility enable them to make better time in traffic than with any other cars they have ever driven,

—that for smoothness, economy and enduring dependability this engine is a genuine achievement.

This is because the Oakland L-Head engine is of the most advanced type and includes those features that modern engineering has proved worth while,

—because the Oakland engine is built to standards as exact as those of the finest aeroplane motors,

—because high efficiency rather than mere size is the goal of Oakland engineering.

Four-Wheel Brakes—You must actually experience the astonishing control afforded by Oakland's time-tested, time-proved brakes. At the speeds you ordinarily drive in the city they enable you to stop your car almost instantly without skidding even on wet, treacherous pavements.

Duco Finish—You have heard of Duco Finish, but do you know that it stays bright and new for years—that it can easily save you $100 a year in upkeep and depreciation?

Body by Fisher—VV One-Piece Windshield—Balloon Tires—Centralized Controls—Disc Wheels—and all these features at no extra cost.

Now do you appreciate why we say that the Oakland Six appeals so strongly to the buyer "who is genuinely concerned about getting the most for his money"?

But—you drive the car and draw your conclusions.

Three A Flays Lazy Motorists in Safety Drive

Urges the Study of Local Laws by Every Driver.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special Correspondence.]—Lack of familiarity with general motor laws, and particularly with local ordinances, is cited by the American Automobile association as one of the leading causes of traffic congestion and its attendant ills.

Traffic delays are largely the result of slow thinking and poor judgment, these points being considered, in turn, as the chief causes of the average driver's unfamiliarity with the motor laws and regulations.

Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A., in a statement, says that the situation indicates quite clearly that many of the average driver's difficulties are self-imposed.

"Just so long as we have drivers who do not take the trouble to familiarize themselves with the motor regulations," he explains, "we shall continue to be the victims of traffic congestion.

"Our clubs are already forwarding letters from their members in which the complaint is set forth that traffic is being constantly held up by persons who do not take the trouble to know what is what with respect to rules and regulations. These letters clearly indicate a great deal of disregard for the importance of law familiarity in speeding up traffic and in removing the obstacle of congestion.

"Charles S. Howe, president of the Case School of Applied Science, in writing the Cleveland Automobile club on this subject, declared that it had been his daily experience to be held up in traffic by reason of drivers who do not know that they are permitted to make a right turn regardless of the position of the traffic sign.

"'There is considerable delay at certain times and at certain places,' he adds, 'because of this ignorance on the part of drivers.'

"From a member of another affiliated A. A. A. club in Hartford, Conn., it is learne dthat unfamiliarity with the local regulations is a frequent cause of unnecessary congestion. The member reports that, though a return to the plan of always turning to the right has been in force for a month or so, many drivers are still blocking a line of cars in the belief that the local ordinances require them to do so.

"Traffic in Philadelphia, and other Pennsylvania cities that pattern after the Quaker city's regulations, is frequently delayed and complicated by reason of the inability of many persons to grasp the idea of driving over to the curb before making a left hand turn. This is the rule in this particular locality, and it has been in force for a long time, yet there are many Philadelphia drivers who do not appear to be able to fall in with the spirit of local regulations. Congestion is the inevitable result."

Henry points out that it is not the purpose of the A. A. A. to discuss the merits of the various local ordinances, but rather to emphasize the importance of familiarity with one's own local rules and regulations. In his opinion, uniformity in compliance with local regulations is the basis of a national uniformity in motor vehicle regulations.

"It is foolish even to think of national standardization of motor laws," he contends, "until motorists have learned to know their own local laws. If a driver is habitually ignorant of lawful procedure in his own city or state, there is little to be gained in attempting to govern him by a national standardized code of driving rules."

More Automobiles.

It seems hardly possible, but nevertheless it is a fact that there are now 2,000,000 more motor cars in use in the United States than there are telephones. These figures are from statistics of the Western Electric company. They show 17,740,236 automobiles and 15,369,45 telephones—100 cars to each 81 telephones.

AVOID SCRATCHING.

A dusty car should be washed after it has been on a macadam or dirt road. A dusting rag or cloth will scratch the finish.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question $5 is awarded to W. H. Nilson, 3651 Edgewood avenue, Chicago.

THE QUESTION.

What other traffic regulations, in addition to uniform traffic light control, should be adopted by Chicago park and police authorities?

WHERE ASKED.

Sheridan road and Broadway.

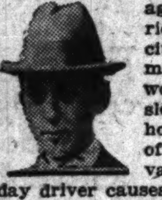
THE ANSWERS.

Vincent S. Morris, 2041 Sheffield avenue, druggist—Chicago ought to have one speed limit for all districts. I think that fixing one limit is the most important rule right now. There are too many speed regulations for the driver today. In some districts twenty is the limit, while in others thirty is permitted.

Carl Ehegartner Jr., 4021 Broadway, broker—I think all of the park and city police should get together in enforcing the rules against cutting in and out of traffic and also decide on one speed limit for all of Chicago. Taxis and busses continue to cut in and out, and a driver can never tell just how fast he can go in various parts of the city.

R. H. Hadfield, 355 Webster avenue, restaurant owner—Uniform enforcement of the light regulations is an excellent step in street safety, but it should go farther. Speed limit regulations are most important and should be uniform all over the city. Now each park board seems to have its own speed limit, and the motorist does not know how fast he may legally go on various stretches of the same street or boulevard.

J. H. O'Brien, 4028 Sheridan road, salesman—Uniform speed regulation in all parts of the city is the most important rule for adoption this year. I think that all of the park and city police departments could aid traffic, too, by agreeing on one set of hand signals to be used by drivers.



James Short, 4021 Broadway, manager—I believe the various park boards and city police could stop many accidents if they would agree to make all slow moving vehicles hold to the right side of streets and boulevards. The slow Sunday driver causes constant trouble by holding up the left traffic line.

Transport Chiefs to Solve Chicago Terminal Problems

"CO-ORDINTED Transportation" will be the theme of a regional motor transport conference to be held under arrangements made by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce at Chicago on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 26 and 27.

Among the speakers will be leading automobile, railroad, trolley, and shipping executives from Chicago and the middle west, and the program will be similar to that of the New England motor transport conference held at Boston on Dec. 8 and 9 last.

While no geographical limits are to be placed upon attendance at the Chicago conference, special efforts are being made to obtain large representation of the various transportation facilities in Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. State highways and public utilities commission officials from these states will be invited to attend and take a prominent part in the conference. Over 400 registered for the Boston conference, and it is expected that this figure will be exceeded at Chicago.

Besides discussion of the place of the motor truck and motor bus in short haul transportation, there will be statements from varying points of view upon the wisdom of federal regulation of common carrier vehicles, a subject which has become of unusual importance since recent decisions of the United States Supreme court indicating that such motor vehicles are not subject to state regulation.

How the motor truck and bus may be fitted into the solution of the city terminal problem, with Special treatment of the Chicago situation, will be another subject. It is expected that results of the highway traffic survey of Cook county recently made under the supervision of the United States bureau of public roads will be announced.

New German Motor.

Compressor motors are now used on a few new types of automobiles in Germany. The result of the compressor's action is an instant additional power impulse, amounting to more than 50 per cent of the normal motor performance. For instance, climbing a steep hill with full power and a motor slowly decreasing to revolutions, a compressor equipped car will suddenly leap forward with a roar and pick up new speed after the normal maximum limit has been reached. This compressor attachment is similar to the supercharger as used for high altitude airplanes. Compressed air is used in the intake manifold and results in a supercharged fuel air feeding the cylinders.

Real Menace.

Any driver who stops his car on a curve or who attempts to pass another car there indulges in one of the most reprehensible practices of the unthinking road user. To those guilty of doing this when not driven to it by necessity no ordinary punishment can be considered as being too drastic.

Results Plus Stamina That Compel Consideration

There is no car that so clearly compels first consideration as the Chrysler Six—

By right of results delivered by no other car, by right of unparalleled economy, by right of wonderful roadability made still more wonderful by effective stabilators, and by right of noteworthy stamina.

The remarkable dependability and endurance of the car are not matters of chance.

They are, of course, the result of the most painstaking effort and determined purpose.

Chrysler results are delivered unfailingly and with continued brilliance for tens of thousands of miles, and it is that fact that accounts for the car's ever-growing popularity, almost as much as the results themselves.

Let us demonstrate these results for you and explain in greater detail why owners say the Chrysler Six is the best built car on the market today.

How to change to Balloons one tire at a time

Motorists who are keeping abreast of the times are changing to balloon tires now.

And they are doing it one tire at a time as their present tires wear out.

This is the way to do it:

Next time you need a tire, buy a Michelin Comfort Balloon and mount it as a spare. Then when you put this spare into use, buy a second Michelin Comfort Balloon and put the two balloons on your rear wheels, using one of your high-pressure tires for a spare. Repeat the process on front wheels. If, in the meantime, it becomes necessary for you to run with a Michelin Comfort Balloon and a high-pressure tire opposite one another, you can do so temporarily without harm or inconvenience.

Michelin Replacement Comfort Balloons cost practically the same as high-pressure tires, and they have proved they last longer.

Of course Michelin also makes balloons for the new small-diameter wheels. Likewise oversize cords and the famous Michelin ring-shaped tubes.

Famous Old Trail Changes Course in Washington

THE national executive committee of the Yellowstone Trail association has voted to change the routing of the trail through the state of Washington between Spokane and Seattle. The route of the Yellowstone up to the present time made a loop through the southern part of the state, taking in the cities of Colfax, Dayton, Walla Walla, Pasco, Yakima, and Ellensburg. The new route takes in the cities of Davenport, Elmira, Coulee City, Waterville, and Wenatchee, passing through the central part of Washington.

The old route of the trail between Spokane and Seattle was 464 miles. The new route is 321 miles, of which 53 miles is paved and 268 miles gravel. Marking crews are marking the new route and taking down the old markers on the old route. The new route is a direct road, and no toll bridges or ferries will be found. This change does not affect the cities of Cle Elum, Easton, Fall City, Redmond, Kirkland, and Seattle.

This change was brought about by a petition of the Wenatchee chamber of commerce at the national executive committee meeting which was held at Minneapolis. This is one of the greatest changes that the association has made in any state. The new route crosses the old Columbia river bed at Coulee City, which is several miles wide. It is known as the Grand Coulee. It is a miniature Grand cañon, a wonderful sight, one long remembered. The route of the Yellowstone from Spokane east to Boston, Mass., is practically the same. No changes are being made, with the exception of shortening the roads through towns and in some instances eliminating towns, making the mileage shorter.

Scrape Off Dirt.

When overhauling the engine for the spring season try scraping all the oily dirt off the outside surfaces, thoroughly clean with gasoline, and after drying paint with motor enamel. This can be obtained in several colors and will decidedly improve the appearance of an old engine.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

THE motoring public in large cities is exhibiting a growing demand to deal directly with a factory representative both in the purchase and servicing of his car, according to A. A. Crumley, newly appointed manager of the Chicago Pierce-Arrow factory branch. The new branch organization in Chicago, he declared yesterday, has been received enthusiastically by owners here and promises to set new records in the distribution and servicing of Pierce-Arrow cars.

There is a service station for every 269 cars in the United States, according to the latest survey made by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. The servicing requirements of the modern car are much less today than they were six years ago, when a checkup showed one station to every 142 cars in use.

Scores of Chicago automobile fans visited the L. Markle company headquarters on Michigan avenue last week to meet the dynamic "Cannonball" Baker, chief test pilot for Rickenbacker, and view the Rickenbacker Six test car in which he recently shattered the coast to coast driving record and a number of endurance and hill climbing marks in the west. The car and its famous driver were en route to the Detroit factory headquarters.

Final preparations for the introduction of the new Nash-made Ajax car are complete, according to announcement made from the Racine factory. The actual date of the unveiling has not been made public, but plans set it after June 1. Harry Hollingshead will handle the car in the Chicago territory.

Speed 'Em Up.

Slow moving taxicabs are to be barred from certain thoroughfares of London. There are many public vehicles there with careful drivers, or mechanism so well worn that they can not keep pace with the modern car. The "snail" taxis are all right for some of the oldest London inhabitants, but they must keep out of the way of the fast, up to date cars or else be arrested.

SCENIC SLIDES.

The Denver tourist bureau's drive for $150,000 to attract tourists to Colorado had an innovation in the preliminary campaign in a "silent" lecture of colored scenic slides as the principal "selling" argument.

New Price for HUDSON COACH (Was $1345)

Today's Hudson Super-Six Coach costs less than half the price at which the open models have sold. With the world's largest production of 6-cylinder cars, quality is constantly improved and therefore Hudson is more than ever

"The World's Greatest Buy"

Hudson's leadership is based upon ten years' concentration in refining a great car around the famous Super-Six motor. This exclusive invention added 80% to motor efficiency, yielding 76 horsepower without added weight, size or cost. It almost doubled car endurance. No design, however costly, has been found to excel Super-Six smoothness, reliability and performance. There has been constant improvement in every detail. Easier steering, greater roadability, more comfort, better materials, finer workmanship, handsomer appearance, and more lasting finish. In all ways it is the greatest Hudson and the lowest priced Hudson.

Make Your TRIPS in real Comfort with the International Trunk or Luggage Carrier

Fits all FORDS

The International Trunk or Luggage Carrier is an adjustable piece of equipment for all models of Fords that can, in a minute, be extended to any one of four positions, giving you 12 to 20 inches of carrying space from body of car to tire. The carrier is 32 inches wide, is built of heavy steel, black enameled, and is limited in carrying capacity only by the strength of the car springs.

When Not in Use It Slides Under Car Body Leaving Only the Tire Carrier Projecting

This tire carrier is a part of the equipment and is the famous International Self-Latching, and is furnished for regular and balloon sizes. Note that the tire is carried in an upright position and away from exhaust gases—and that it is always accessible. The International Trunk or Luggage Carrier is as strong as your car, bolts rigidly to the chassis (no holes to drill) and can be attached in thirty minutes with little more effort than changing a tire.

Just the Thing for Trips

This is the first carrier combining all the features demanded by the tourist—a Luggage or Trunk Carrier that is adjustable, and with a tire carrier—all built so sturdily that it will carry all you can pile and strap on, with safety and security. It's like adding an extra seat to your car. The carrier comes with strap loops for fastening luggage or camping outfits, and holes drilled for attaching trunk or carrying case.

Do not confuse this article with cheap running board or strap-on carriers. The International has several times the capacity of the ordinary Luggage Carrier for Fords, it carries the luggage out of the way, puts the weight where it belongs, leaves doors free and accessible and eliminates danger of damage to luggage by side-swiping.

Indispensable for Salesman

The International Adjustable will carry a bolted-on sample case up to its capacity in extended position, as long as the width of the car, and of as much weight as the springs will support. Or you can strap on two or more cases, or carry demonstrating models of equipment or machinery. This carrier fits all models of Fords and it will carry scores of things you cannot get through doors, or in the seats, and carry them better, more securely and with greater ease in loading and unloading.

The Farmer's Everyday Help

We do not need to suggest the dozens of uses this carrier affords the farmer. It's one addition to his Ford that will serve him almost as often and in as many ways as the car itself.

THE MOST MARKED ADVANCE IN AUTOMOBILE ENGINEERING

WE BELIEVE the new Wills Sainte Claire Six offers the most marked advance that automobile engineering has ever developed.

It cannot justly be compared to any other fine car because no other car embodies the same engineering principles which make this car such an outstanding achievement. Overhead valves and camshaft, with the camshaft running in a bath of oil; aluminum alloy connecting rods, heat-treated; seven-bearing counterbalanced crankshaft two and one-half inches in diameter; aluminum fan which consumes power only up to thirty-five miles per hour, when it releases automatically; low-pressure lubricating system; water-heated intake manifold, insuring uniform carburetion.

It is a proved piece of engineering—built on experience and capable of a performance which you do not get in any other car—however fine.

Fifty miles behind the wheel of this car will give you a new conception of motor car performance. Phone for appointment.

FARM AND GARDEN

Chinese Pay High Prices to Packers for Gallstones

Worth Many Times What Animal Will Bring on Market.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

"WE utilize everything but the pig's squeal," is a packingtown slogan that has been heard around the world, but few know of the hair splitting economies practiced in converting cattle into marketable products. The bawling steer's sounds go to the four winds the same as the pig's squeal, but his gall stones, shin bones, horns, hoofs, casings, and the long hairs in his ears are all carefully and systematically collected and sold at a fancy price.

When a farmer brings his cattle to market, he never knows when one of his steers may be packing inside his body a half dozen gall stones worth many times what the animal will bring on the market. The Chinese will take every gall stone they can get. While these precious stones lack that brilliant adamantine luster of the diamond, there is a big demand for them at $250 a pound. During the world war they sold at $400 a pound.

Japanese Have Monopoly.

A great deal of mystery surrounds the marketing and use of gall stones. Chicago packers sell their entire output to Japanese traders, who, in turn, sell them to China. The Chinese do not deal directly with the American gall stone salesmen—the Japanese merchants, who often handle gall stones as a side line, seem to have a monopoly on this mysterious and precious article.

While packers here have been selling gallstones through the indirect channel to Chinese for many years, they have never been able to find out definitely what the stones are used for. Thousands of uses, however, have been reported. Packer salesmen say they have heard that in China the gall stones are used for medicine, in making dyes, perfumes, and also in some fashion by the oriental worshipers.

Carried as Charm.

B. Laufer, curator of the department of anthropology at the Chicago Field Museum of Natural History, says the Chinese believe the gall to be the seat of courage and, therefore, carry them to increase their vigor and give them assurance. Crumbled gall stones are also burned as incense, he says.

Just as the superstitious American Negro packs around a rabbit foot to keep away the hoodoo and the Ohio farmer who used to carry a buckeye in his vest pocket to prevent rheumatism, the Chinese carries the gall stone as a charm for good luck. He believes in the stone's good luck qualities enough to pay at the present time $250 a pound for the stones plus transportation charges and probably a handsome profit to the Japanese broker.

The Chinese are particular about where the stones come from. Packers here are unable to sell those taken from the body of a hog, because the color and texture are different. Horses, pigeons, and wild goats do not have gall bladders, scientists find, and, of course, they are not producers of the precious stones. That's perhaps the origin of Shakespeare's expression. He had Hamlet accusing himself of being "pigeon liver'd and lack gall to make oppression bitter," when he failed to get up courage enough to take vengeance upon the man who killed his father.

Scarcity Keeps Price Up.

Commercially gallstones are divided into two grades, whole stones and broken or crumbled. The whole stones are used as good luck charms, while the broken ones are used in manufacturing dyes, burned as incense, or mixed into concoctions similar to the one given below which is used to treat or prevent diphtheria. In Tyler Dennett's book, "The Democratic Movement in Asia," he quotes this prescription recommended by Chinese doctors for diphtheria:

"Use woman's toenails, bamboo pith, and bed bugs, grind to a fine powder, and sprinkle in the throat."

The limited supply of gallstones produced in this country keeps the price high. In one of the packing plants in Chicago, where more than 2,000,000 cattle are killed annually, from twenty-five to fifty pounds of stones are found each year. In another plant, from ten to twelve pounds are collected from 500,000 cattle killed annually.

A definite system is used in collecting the stones. Every liver is brought down a chute, dropped on to a table and the gall bladders are cut open over the gall stone box, which is about a foot square, fashioned after a street car conductor's change box. The stones fall through a slot into the box where they are caught on a screen. The stones are so valuable that a heavy padlock is kept on the box.

An incident which happened here last winter indicates how Japanese buyers regard these mysterious stones. A trader from the orient telegraphed from the Pennsylvania hotel in New York to a Chicago packer, asking for quotations and requesting the salesman to hold his entire lot of gall stones until he arrived. He was taken by an interpreter to the packing plant. When the stones were rolled out on a table before him, he threw his overcoat and muffler on to the floor and stood over the heap of bilirubin calcium balls, with his eyes sparkling and fingers spread like a Midas waiting for the mass to turn to gold. Without debate the price the buyer peeled from his wallet twenty-one fifty dollar bills, or a total of $1,050, and went away with the entire lot of gall stones.

The stones vary in shape and size. Most of them are oval, spherical, or prism shaped. Some are as large as a baseball or larger. The small ones are made up of a combination of bile pigment and lime and are quite durable.

Uses for Shin Bones.

Shin bones of cattle are sold to the Chinese, who make them into mah chiang or mah jongg sets, which are sold back to Americans.

The finest hairs are clipped from the ears of cattle and sold to manufacturers, who use them in making "camel's" hair brushes used by artists.

Horns and hoofs are split and made into combs, buttons, and knife handles.

The packers sell some of the casings, which include bladders and intestines, to gold beaters, who use them on their mallets in hammering out gold leaf.

Freaks Are Found.

Among the other curious things that butchers find about cattle are the strange objects that lodge in the stomach, where it is quite common to find hair balls. Some of the balls are as big as a small cocoanut. They are solid masses of hair licked from the shedding coats of other animals and swallowed with foods.

The pin ball is the biggest freak of the ball family. One of these was found in the stomach of a cow at the Union stockyards several years ago. It is now on display in one of the packing plants. The ball is made up of a solid mass of bent and contorted old fashioned brass pins, an inch or an inch and a quarter long. The pin ball weighs exactly twelve ounces. Various theories are advanced as to how such a mass of pins ever got into the animal's stomach. Some believe the greedy cow swallowed a whole paper of pins, while others have a theory the animal was kept back of a tailor or millinery shop, where pins were thrown out in the waste and picked up day after day by the cow. Cows needing salt sometimes have a depraved appetite and will pick up such things as pins and nails. A few shingle nails are in this pin ball.

CHILE CHICKENS IN HOOSIER SHOW.—This pair of hens, roosting on Home G. Pease's shoulders, and the rooster in his hands are specimens of the rare Araucana fowl, native of the high plateaus of Chile, South America. Mr. Pease, manager of the Purdue university egg show, had just received the trio of birds when the picture was taken. They come from the Buenos Aires zoölogical gardens and were shown at the recent four day egg show held at Lafayette, Ind.

GARDEN NOTES

Don't worry if ants play hide and seek around your peony beds. Entomologists claim they do no harm. They come around to eat the liquid that exudes from the peony buds. It's the liquid with a sweet taste that attracts the ants, and they will probably leave as soon as the buds are all fully opened.

Shallow, level cultivation is best in vineyards. Deep cultivation breaks the anchor roots of grape vines, and favors crown gall, a disease caused by bacteria on raspberry bushes, especially where the shovels go deep enough to break or bruise the roots.

If sweet pea vines become blighted and die, it is a sign that the soil has become infested with a fungus wilt disease, according to Melchers of the Kansas station. The disease is carried over in the soil for several years. To avoid it, he recommends planting the peas in another place.

"It is usually unprofitable to replace trees in orchards ten years old," says an orchardist at Manhattan, Kans.

Bulletin for Dairymen.

Since Wisconsin became the leading dairy state, farmers have never produced enough high protein feeds to care properly for their live stock needs, and the agricultural college is making an effort to encourage dairymen to grow their own crops and reduce their $28,000,000 protein feed bill. To aid this campaign and to familiarize farmers with alfalfa, one of the greatest protein crops grown, the experiment station, University of Wisconsin, Madison, has published a new bulletin, No. 374, on "Wisconsin's Opportunity with Alfalfa."

What They Really Got.

The Illinois Agricultural association has assembled figures which show that the talk about $2 wheat and $1 corn last fall and winter was mostly "talk" to farmers. The $2 wheat actually netted Illinois farmers, after it was delivered to their local elevators, $1.11 per bushel; corn, 88 cents; oats, 44 cents, according to figures covering one-half million bushels of wheat delivered to Illinois elevators. These figures apply directly to more than two and one-half million bushels of corn and more than two million bushels of oats, according to the association.

POULTRY TIPS

Spraddle legs and deformity among baby chicks are usually a result of the eggs having been kept too long before incubation, according to findings at the Kansas station. Poultry men there claim that eggs are at their best when only four days old and depreciate at a rate of approximately 5 per cent daily after they are one week old. Health and vitality of the hens in the breeding flock are also given as causes of trouble.

DAIRYMEN'S JOTTINGS

Carbonation will not prevent deterioration of cream and butter. The keeping qualities of many soft drinks are improved by carbonation. Dr. M. J. Prucha's tests made at the University of Illinois do not support the claim that the carbonation of butter destroys bacteria and makes the butter more sanitary.

Jardine to Visit Iowa.

Dr. William M. Jardine, the new secretary of agriculture, is scheduled to be in the tall corn state some time in July. Iowa farmers are to get his first hand views on agriculture. He is expected at Ames about July 20, according to an announcement from President R. A. Pearson's office at the Iowa State college. Secretary Jardine's speech will be broadcast over the radio.

Lloyd George's Daughter Has an Attack of Measles

LONDON, May 16.—[U. P.]—Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of the former British prime minister, has a slight attack of measles and has been isolated from her parents in their home for a week.

I. C. C. TO PROBE RECEIVERSHIP OF ST. PAUL LINES

Some Hearings May Be Held Here.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—An investigation of the affairs of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, which recently went into the hands of the receivers, was ordered today by the interstate commerce commission.

The inquiry will extend to the history, management, financial, and other operations of the railroad. The commission said it had decided to institute the investigation in order to determine the manner and method in which the business has been conducted, with a view to the making of a report and such order as may be appropriate.

Receivers Made Parties.

The commission ordered the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad company, H. E. Byram, Mark W. Potter, and Edward J. Brundage, receivers of the road, be made respondents to the proceedings.

Hearings will be set by the commission later, possibly at both Washington and Chicago.

The investigation, it is understood, will not only go into past operations of the railroad, but also into the receivership and the conditions that resulted in the appointment of receivers.

The effect of the launching of the inquiry may be to head off a threatened investigation by congress. Members of congress who have proposed an inquiry have indicated that they might present a resolution directing the interstate commerce commission to make the investigation rather than to have a special committee of the senate or house handle it.

DRY AGENT HELD FOR SLAYING.

Elk Point, S. D., May 16.—[Special.]—Isaac McCoun, federal prohibition agent, who shot and killed Francis Fountaine near Jefferson, S. D., late Friday, waived preliminary hearing before a justice of the peace here this morning and was bound over to the Circuit court for trial, his bail being placed at $20,000.

When everybody tries to take the streets cars and the elevated at 5 o'clock there's a crowd. Some have to hang to straps and some are going to get left. If it happens to be a rainy day some will be forced to get cabs, and some will have to be satisfied with "bum cabs" at excess rates.

MARSHALL E. KEIG.

The Consumers company, over the signature of its vice president, Marshall E. Keig, offered the illustration yesterday and drew the simile between the crowded street car and the coal business in a new plea to the coal user to buy coal during non coal consuming months.

Company Cuts Prices.

"On May 1, after a losing year in the coal business, we reduced our prices still lower, in some cases lower than since 1918," reads the company's statement, "but the public is not responding to our suggestion that coal or coke be put into the bins now."

The company calls attention to the fact that the present agreement with the anthracite miners expires Aug. 31, and it points out a situation of unrest in the bituminous fields, both among the mine owners and the miners.

"People in the east are taking coal as a protection against shortage," the memorandum declares. "In the west, particularly here in Chicago, the public is not putting in coal."

Can't Afford Storage.

And the dealers cannot afford to stock the coal for storage over the summer, because it carries a freight rate of $5.08 a ton and payment to the railroad must be made within three days of delivery.

Coal prices are low today, the company notes; first, because big business is not booming; second, too many mines and too many miners force the sale of coal at the mines at a low figure; third, coal retailers such as the Consumers company are cutting their margin below cost in order to keep equipment and organization active.

"There certainly will be an advance," the company says, "and the Consumers company will increase prices on certain kinds of fuel, June 1."

Slow Buyers Aid Crooks.

It is further pointed out that the evil of shady coal companies and short weight artists, which causes Chicago to lose some $5,000,000 a year, is aided by this deferred buying habit. The "bum coal dealer" makes his money like the "bum cab," says the Consumers company, when a crisis pinches and forces people to take anything handy.

"The buying public can decide," the statement concludes, "whether they want to put in coal now just as well as the coal dealer. They can fill their bins during May and get a low price. Or they can decide to buy their coal later and gamble on the possibility of higher prices."

U. S. Cutter Bear Sails Again on Arctic Cruise

Seattle Wash, May 16.—The United States coast guard cutter Bear sailed today on her thirty-seventh annual cruise to the Arctic ocean. Aboard the vessel was a band of ten Eskimos, survivors of a Wrangel Island colony, who were taken by the Russian government to Vladivostok and sent here by the American Red Cross last February.

Offer your business to real prospects.

If you are the owner of a business, and wish to retire, your first concern should be the most effective way of finding a buyer in the quickest and most economical manner possible. You must, in order to receive a price commensurate with the earning power of the business, offer it to a number of people who would be interested in a proposition similar to yours, and who are financially able to satisfy your demands.

Tribune Want Ads will accomplish this task for you. The Tribune does more than distribute your message to over a million people on Sunday, and over 600,000 on week days; it delivers your Want Ad to people who are keenly aware of the buying opportunities offered them in The Tribune Want Ad Section, and whose prompt response makes selling easy.

Here is an example of Tribune Want Ad effectiveness:

WET WASH LAUNDRY—22 POCKETS, ETC. Cheap for cash. Phone Kildare 6026.

Mr. A. Landel, 5046 Grace Street, used this Tribune Want Ad for a week, starting December 27. He reported that he received more than ten replies from interested parties during that time, and that he sold his business to one of these people very shortly after his Want Ad expired.

An expansion in eastern demand, indicated by liberal shipping orders, together with a marked decrease in hog receipts at all leading centers gave the selling fraternity the advantage on the week-end session, resulting in an uneven advance of 15@40c, compared with the different angles of Friday's market. Many orders were unfilled at the close, most of the 7,000 hogs left in the pens being held off of the market, in prospects of a moderate run for early next week. The day's top jumped to $12.25, securing 190@194 lb averages, with general average cost at $12.00, against $11.80 Friday, $13.05 last Tuesday, and $12.45 previous Saturday.

Hog receipts last week totaled 141,100, largest since week ending March 21, being 30,200 greater than previous week's total, but 7,400 under the five year average. Shipments were second smallest in over seven months at 36,300. Estimated average weight of hogs at 234 lbs. was 1 lb. heavier than the previous week, but lighter than any corresponding week over five years. Hog prices averaged $12.45, highest in five weeks, 80c above the preceding week and $5.15 above a year ago.

Part of last Monday's decline in cattle was replaced in a bulge of the market the day following, but erased again after midweek, with prevailing quotations 15@25c under a week ago. Cattle receipts the last two weeks were about the largest two consecutive weeks since early in January. The week's average cost of steers lowered 5c at $10.05, against $9.85 a year ago. The week's top at $11.85 equaled the peak the previous week and stood within 10c of the top two weeks ago. Butcher stock closed lightly under a week ago. Calves were 25@50c under the week's high point, but 25@50c under a week ago. Stockers and feeders held firm.

Sheep Receipts Large.

Voluminous marketward movement of California spring lambs swelled sheep receipts to 91,400 last week, the largest offerings since week ending Jan. 3. Under stress of heavy supplies uneven breaks marked trading in all branches of the market. Springers suffered the least, closing 25@50c under the week's peak and about steady with a week ago. Aged lambs tumbled 50@75c, with aged sheep off mostly 75c to $1.00. Feeding lambs were little changed for the week. The week's top springers, $16.35; wool skins, $16.00; shorn, $14.00, and feeders, $13.00.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 21,000 cattle, 37,000 hogs, and 20,000 sheep, against 22,135 cattle, 39,938 hogs, and 20,423 sheep a week ago, and 24,885 cattle, 43,932 hogs, and 10,775 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 60,000 cattle, 135,000 hogs, and 75,000 sheep, against 65,495 cattle, 164,753 hogs, and 40,204 sheep a year ago.

FROST THREATS ADVANCE WHEAT FUTURES' PRICES

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Predictions of frost over the northwestern and western wheat belt, with increased congestion in the May delivery here and at Winnipeg, more than offset a slow export demand and lower cables from abroad.

After an early break, prices advanced 2⅜@4⅜c, and closed at the top, with net gains of 1⅜@2¼c, the latter on May. At the top May was $1.71⅜, a new high on the present movement, with the finish at $1.70⅜ to $1.71. At Winnipeg May advanced to $1.85½ and closed there, gaining 3c for the day, and was 5⅛c over Liverpool at the last.

Coarse grains were weaker and lower early, but the inside figures of the day were made at the opening and the highest at the close corn gaining ⅞@1⅝c, and oats were unchanged to ⅜c higher, while rye gained 1⅝@2c.

Grains Higher for Week.

Congestion was more apparent in May wheat the last week, and it gained ½c while the deferred deliveries were 1⅝@⅞c higher as compared with the previous week. Corn gained 1⅛@2c, and oats ⅜@1c, while rye was ⅜c to 3c lower. Provisions were decidedly unsettled and had a relatively wide range closing with lard 17½@20c higher, while ribs were 10c lower to 5c higher, and bellies 15c higher to 10c lower.

There was fair selling of May and buying of July wheat by a local cash interest, but the May acted tight toward the last and with short covering advanced readily, closing at around 17¼c over the July. Liverpool was ½d to 1⅛d lower on easier Argentine offerings, and there were rains over part of the western and southwestern belt, but the bearish influences were lost sight of after the government's forecast for frost was issued. The weekly forecast was for probable frost around the middle of the week over practically the entire grain belt.

Export demand was slow with sales of 200,000 bu. in all positions. A London authority forecasted a decrease of over 3,000,000 bu. in supplies on ocean passage for the week, and the trade looks for a good decrease to be shown in the visible supply on Monday.

Dull Day in Coarse Grains.

Local sentiment was bearish on corn, but a minor selling movement ran its course at the opening, and with the forecast for colder weather and short covering a rally of 1⅝@2c from the bottom followed. The technical position was largely responsible for the upturn. Cash demand remains slow, and the basis on No. 2 yellow on spot was 1½c lower at the last with sales around 4½c over the future. Oats firmed up in sympathy with corn. There was 100,000 bu. sold by local handlers to exporters.

Interest in rye continues limited, and fluctuations to a large extent are governed by the action of wheat. Export demand at the seaboard continues light.

Big Trade in Lard.

A big trade was on in lard with a house with New York connections a heavy seller of lard, but the offerings were readily absorbed, and the finish was 5@7½c higher. Commission houses, packers, and carriers absorbed the lard, with some buying on intimations that Germany and England might prohibit the importation of compound lard from Holland. Ribs were 20@30c higher and bellies 30@47½c higher. Deliveries on May contracts were 50,000 lbs. lard, and 50,000 lbs. ribs. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export sales of 150,000 to 200,000 bu wheat were estimated in all positions at the seaboard. Little was heard regarding business in other grains. Local handlers sold 100,000 bu oats to exporters.

Domestic shipping sales of cash wheat here were 20,000 bu wheat, 30,000 bu corn, 32,000 bu oats, and 5,000 bu barley. Deliveries on May contracts aggregated 70,000 bu wheat, 222,000 bu corn, 22,000 bu oats, and 160,000 bu rye.

Basis on cash wheat here was much easier, with No. 2 hard quoted at May price to 2c over at the last, while No. 2 red was 20@23c over, the latter being nominal. Southwestern cash markets were unchanged to 3c higher, the latter on red winter at St. Louis. Purchases of cash wheat at Minneapolis to come to Chicago on Friday were finally estimated at 400,000 bu, and 20,000 bu were said to have been bought yesterday.

While offerings of cash corn were not large, the demand was less aggressive, and No. 2 yellow at the last was quoted around 4½c over May, compared with 5@5¼c over earlier. No. 3 yellow was May price to 3½c over. Outside markets were unchanged to 1½c higher.

Demand for cash oats was fair, with No. 2 white 2½@3½c over May and No. 3 white ½c under to ⅜c over the future.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 38 cars; corn, 67 cars; oats, 43 cars; rye, 41 cars; barley, 12 cars.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

George M. Le Count wires from Springfield, Ill.: "Wheat from Danville here generally good, but no prospect for bumper crop on account of dry weather. Corn planting nearing completion and the earliest is showing good stand. Oats suffering from lack of moisture."

A wire from Springfield reports fine rain in that territory last night.

B. O. Cromwell reports from Jefferson City, Mo., an 8 to 10 per cent increase in corn acreage and a larger increase in oats, with color good. Wheat on upland promises 8 to 10 bu. In bottoms it is heading to blossoms with condition 80 to 90 per cent.

TRADING IN GRAIN FUTURES

Trading in grain futures Friday again was lighter than the preceding week. Sales for the week aggregated 438,155 bu, against 493,276 bu the previous week and 137,627 bu a year ago. Details, with the last three ciphers omitted, follow:

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

The wheat trade is mostly bullish, with expectations of statistics on Monday strongly favoring that side. Estimates on the visible supply are for a decrease of 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 bu. There is a reduction of around 1,500,000 bu in Minneapolis stocks. Kansas City will also show a decrease. The on-passage statement shows a big decrease and world's shipments are estimated at 9,910,000 bu, against 15,459,000 last year. The short interest has been considerably reduced in expectation of an advance.

A few of the big commission houses are fair buyers of corn futures while the selling comes largely from local professionals. The advance in wheat had a great deal to do with strengthening corn values. The cash corn basis was easier with No. 2 yellow 4½c over May at the close. The discount of May under July was 3c.

One of the largest cash wheat handlers has had May wheat to sell on all hard spots of late. The May-July spread yesterday was 16 to 17 cents. There was selling of May and buying of July and September by the same interest that was the largest buyer for several weeks.

Cool weather for the first half and middle and probably frost followed by warmer the last part of the week, are predicted for the greater part of the agricultural regions by the weather bureau for the week.

The vice president of the Kansas Wheat Growers association says that their report covering all but five counties in Kansas are for 75,000,000 bu of wheat.

Winnipeg reported excellent continental business in No. 5 and No. 6 feed wheat, while the United Kingdom bought both high and low grades.

"For some time England has been considering prohibition of the importation of Holland lard," says a provision specialist. "Agents of packers at Liverpool believe this action will be taken in the very near future and that Germany will follow suit. This will increase the demand for American lard."

The Manitoba department of Agriculture says that only one per cent of the area to go into wheat remains unseeded. Oats are 40 to 75 per cent seeded. Wheat and flax acreage is expected to show some decline from last year.

George C. Bryant's report to Jackson Bros. from Jefferson City, Mo., says: "Wheat not damaged seriously by Hessian fly. All upland fields infested. Bottom fields condition excellent. Wheat heading on bottoms. Corn seeding will be early and finished in about ten days with acreage very large. Oat acreage very large and prospects favorable."

Broomhall says that it is announced that the German minister for foods will reimpose pre-war wheat duties of 2¾ marks per quintal and 2½ marks on rye to July 31, 1926.

Van Dusen Harrington's crop report on the four northwestern states says: "Crops received no moisture of consequence during the past week. No grain is apparently suffering but some deterioration might occur unless there is rain within the next ten days. Cold weather with temperatures as low as sixteen above in northern points. Some of the fields of small grain have taken on a brownish color due probably to heavy frost and freezing. We believe, however, that no real damage has been done."

COTTON MARKETS

Cotton prices moved within narrow limits and net changes at the close were only trifling, New York and Chicago being higher and New Orleans mostly lower. Liverpool was higher and the spread between New York and Liverpool has narrowed materially of late due to the advance in sterling exchange. Some traders claim that the spread is really too narrow for profitable trading and that it should be about 200 points. Trade reports from the east were slightly better. Prices in the leading markets follow:

RAILROAD NOTES

Freight traffic conditions on railroads operating east from Chicago and St. Louis showed little change. The total tonnage continues large and in most cases is of larger proportions than a year ago. Traffic conditions are favorable, and in spite of the big volume cars and motive power are in good supply and freight is being moved with a good deal of expedition. Southern railroad freight officials report satisfactory conditions prevailing.

President Swope of the General Electric company says that electrification of half of the railroad mileage through the United States would save the roads $120,000,000 annually in coal alone. The saving in equipment would amount to a vast sum, he says.

Examiners of the interstate commerce commission, who have investigated the project of the Owensboro, Rockport and Chicago railroad to build eighty-four miles of new railroad from Owensboro, Ky., to Elnora, Ind., recommended that the construction work should not be allowed.

Three federal judges granted a temporary injunction at Los Angeles to the Santa Fe and the Southern Pacific against reduced intrastate rates ordered by the state corporation commission of Arizona.

Expenditures totaling $3,500,000 have been authorized by the board of directors of the Norfolk and Western railway to be used for improvements at Portsmouth, O., which will double the present yard facilities in that city.

There were 86,337 cars handled by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad during the first fourteen days of the present month, compared with 82,209 cars handled during the corresponding period last year, an increase of 4,128 cars.

During the week ended May 15 the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé railroad handled 31,904 cars, compared with 31,314 cars handled during the corresponding period last year.

Effective today the locomotive shops of the Chicago and Alton railroad at Bloomington will close for one month. Approximately 700 men will be out of work for that period.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1925: Fairchild News Service.]

ATLANTIC CITY.—Establishment of a supreme interassociation council to represent the entire knitted textile industry was decided upon at the concluding session of the annual convention of the Associated Knit Underwear Manufacturers of America at the Hotel Traymore today.

BERLIN.—The German dye cartel is distributing 51,000,000 marks among its constituent members as profits on last year's business. The Badische company gets the largest share, 14,800,000 marks. The cartel is the administrative and selling agency for a group of German dye and chemical manufacturers and the present distribution merely represents the profits which the manufacturers receive as a result of their coöperative operations. The firms also carry on business as individuals.

LONDON.—Russian business conditions are getting worse rather than better, according to H. Gordon Selfridge, head of Selfridge & Co., ltd., large London department store, who has just returned from a business trip to the soviet domain.

FALL RIVER.—Sales of cotton goods have been declining so rapidly in the last few weeks that mill stocks have accumulated to the point where they are causing serious concern to cotton manufacturers in Fall River and vicinity. To prevent the market from becoming glutted, mills in this district have initiated a program of curtailment and have decreased their output this week about 15 per cent.

LONDON.—Prices were down 5 to 30 points at the fur auction of Huth & Co. today. The bulk of the offerings were for fox skins and of these the silver fox showed the greatest decline.

Patent on Balloon Tires Surprises Rubber Firms

The big rubber tire companies are trying to find out how they stand with regard to the surprising decision of the United States patent office given to Alden L. Putnam of Detroit, a patent covering a balloon or low pressure type of tire.

The industry had accepted the balloon tire idea as general property, a gradual evolution that could not be patented. All the larger tire companies in the last year or two have been manufacturing this type of tire and it is rapidly taking an increasingly important place in their total volume of production.

In Akron, O., center of the tire industry, rubber officials were quoted as skeptical that the low pressure tire patent will stand a test in the courts.

This free book shows how to Retire in 15 years on your Present living Budget

Follow the definite plan given in this book, and your financial independence is won.

The plan works just as surely, whether you are now earning $1,000 or $100,000 a year.

The way is certain—each step plainly indicated and absolutely safe—independent of luck, business genius or speculation.

Every fact has been harvested out of the 44 years' experience of Cochran & McCluer in the first mortgage investment banking business.

The plan is so simple, anyone can understand it—so definite anyone can follow it—and so certain, no one can fail.

In addition to the Financial Independence Plan and the unique budget schedule, the book gives suggestions that enable you to enjoy more of the good things of life, both while building your independent fortune and after you have attained it.

We invite the most skeptical to read this plain, straightforward, interesting book.

Every Ten Years A Fortune Escapes From The Average Income

Far Bigger Than You Imagine Is the Fortune That Lies Hidden in the Modest Income. Far Easier Than You Expect Is the Process of Accumulating Wealth, If You Go About It the Right Way.

Ten years from today you will either have a comfortable fortune or you will have allowed it to slip, unnoticed, from your income. The miracle of 6½% invested and reinvested the definite Forman way takes your future out of the hands of chance. The surprising fact is that you can actually make sure of financial independence by buying your fortune month by month.

Don't think that the ease and luxury of financial independence at fifty are beyond you. We have just published a remarkable book on the Science of Fortune Building. See, in this free book, how money doubles itself in a little more than 10 years. Find out how big the fortune is that will either escape or accumulate from your income during the next ten years. This book not only tells how much to put by to reach your financial goal, but also tells how to put it by without hardship.

Summed up in this new book is the financial experience of 40 years for big and little investors, without a loss to any customer of either principal or interest. Be guided by this free book whether your yearly income is $2,000 or $20,000—whether you have only your savings to invest or a large estate to administer. It places your financial future clearly before you—to make of it what you will.

Exceptional Business Opportunity

Is open to an experienced and broad gauged business man, preferably one who has had manufacturing experience and who is open for a business proposition and is financially able to make a substantial investment. The business is an established Chicago manufacturing concern, in a modern plant, fully equipped with modern machines and doing an annual gross business of $800,000.00 which can be greatly increased. It is now owned by a man whose time is completely taken up by other large business interests and he has no time to give to the actual management of it. For that reason, he wants to locate an able associate who can become financially interested and take an active part in the business.

The proposition will stand the closest investigation.

TENDENCIES OF TRADE AND HOW THEY HIT POLITICS

BY SCRUTATOR.

Much has been made of the supposed paradox of modern civilization—increasingly democratic modes of political control accompanied by autocratic management of productive industry—up to comparatively recent times at least.

But, really, is there any paradox? Have not our political institutions, since the feudal era, come more and more to represent men on their consumption side. As men are more nearly equal as consumers than in any other relation, it is not surprising that as consumers they should approach to equality of power.

After the Industrial revolution, governments withdrew more and more from the regimentation of industry and the private life of the people, for a long time. It was in this period that governments moved toward universal suffrage and democracy.

The contemporaneous industrial evolution was emphasizing as never before the inequalities of men as producers, putting a premium on brains and initiative. At the same time the increased output of goods was raising the standards of living in such a manner that as consumers men were becoming more nearly equal.

This comparative equality of men in their consumption of the annual output of goods and services in any nation is one of the most important facts of economics, and one of the most neglected in economic discussion.

In a previous discussion in this column it was noted how the increased variety of goods and services consequent upon the evolution of modern capitalism has tended to create many common consumer interests among men, criss crossing the lines that divide them as members of productive groups.

Democracy works fairly well in government as long as government confines itself to "enforcing the rules of the game" of life, but it falls down when government attempts to play the game itself—that is to manage productive enterprise. Is this not another way of saying that, as long as governments really represent those interests of men in which there is a measure of actual equality, democratic government is a fair success, but when governments attempt to control industrial processes in which individual initiative and capacity are all important, they fail.

As consumers of goods and services the people of the 49th ward of Chicago really are an entity—with certain definite common interests as regards schools, water, sewage, policing. As industrialists they are not so related, and the 49th warder in business hours may well find that he has interests that bind him closer to a fellow dentist or bricklayer in San Francisco than to a faith healer or a building contractor in his own ward.

In other words the territorial state, the doom of which was sounded so long ago by syndicalists, sovieteers and others, will continue to thrive and even grow stronger as long as it functions in respect to the consumer interests of men—and as those interests become more complex, they tend to outweigh the interests in which men are motiviated by their work.

YOUR OTHER SOURCE OF INCOME

Wealth Comes From That Other Income

EVERYONE productively employed has one source of income—his salary or profits from business. But everyone should have a second income, from a different source; and it is the other income which most often brings financial independence.

How to create the other source of income, and how best to make use of it so as to achieve one's goal in the shortest time—these things are interestingly told in a new book, "Your Other Source of Income," just off the press.

Reinvest Your Interest.

What do you do with the interest received from your investments? Do you spend it as it comes in or do you reinvest it?

If you are spending this income as you receive it, you are overlooking one of the important features of investment. Your principal will not of itself increase unless you reinvest the interest.

The systematic investor wants to keep increasing his invested principal as rapidly as possible so as to have more and more money working for him.

Setting aside a certain amount of earnings each month for an investment fund will, of course, increase the principal, but that is adding fresh money and not making the principal already invested increase itself.

The average investor has for his aim the building up of a fund for the future so that, when he is ready to retire from active work, the interest on his holdings will be sufficient for his support.

If such is your aim, you should consider all the money you have set aside for investment as a fund to be accumulated for the future and not to finance current purchases.

If interest is reinvested as soon as received, the money doubles at 5 per cent in fourteen years, at 6 per cent in twelve years, and at 7 per cent in ten years. This means that the original investment has thus increased itself with no fresh money added to it simply by putting the interest promptly back into the investment.

As sound bonds can be bought in small denominations or on the partial payment plan, it is not necessary to hold the interest until it accumulates. Holding money idle either to wait until it accumuulates or in the hope of being able to get better bargains in price or rate is not a wise policy. You may not be able to get any better rates (if as good), and even if you do the interest lost while the money is lying idle is very apt to more than offset any slight gain in rate.

The prompt reinvestment of interest makes one's holdings grow with surprising rapidity and is a practice which should be adopted and carefully adhered to by one who is investing for future independence.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Bucyrus company featured an active trading market last week among local unlisted securities, advancing over 15 points to sales above 155. A better demand was also noted for the preferred at 104½, while stock was offered at 106. The bid price for Congress Hotel improved 10 points to 140 without attracting sellers near the current level. American Seating preferred was quoted 88 bid, 92 asked, with little stock changing hands. Benjamin Electric preferred was traded in between 98 and 99. Brunswick Balke Collender preferred moved up a point to 102 bid, 104 asked. Elgin National Watch was stronger, high and closing transactions taking place between 69 and 70.

Albert Pick preferred improved to sales at 97 and was later wanted at 96 with offerings at 97⅛. Interstate Iron and Steel again changed hands between 92½ and 95. Sales in Kellogg company ranged between 60 and 64. Stock was later offered at 63 with buyers at 60. A lower tendency continued to prevail in By-Products Coke, stock being offered at 65 with buyers at 63½. Standard Cap and Seal changed hands between 20 and 21. Durant of Michigan declined from 8 to 7¼: while Rickenbacher sold between 3½ and 4¼. The resumption of dividends at the rate of 6 per cent by the Michigan Sugar company advanced this stock from 6⅝ to sales at 7⅝, closing steady at 7 to 7¼. Columbia was traded in between 8 to 8¼, and Holland-St. Louis 7 to 7¼.

American Public Utilities common, which has been inactive for some time, on small sales advanced about 15 points to sales at 90. Stock was later offered at this figure with bids of 85. The participating preferred was slightly higher at 80 to 82; while the prior lien preferred was traded in between 89½ and 91. Arizona Power moved up from 23 to 25½, but later relinquished a portion of this again in closing at 23½ to 25. Continental and Electric common was in better demand, selling up a point and a half to 85½, and later closing at 84½ to 85½. The participating preferred was traded in at 92, and the prior lien was rather quiet at 90½ to 92. A good demand existed for Iowa Railway and Light preferred at 98 with limited offerings around 100.

Illinois Power and Light was fractionally higher, stock being wanted at 95 with offerings at 96. Puget Sound Power and Light common moved up to sales at 55 and additional stock was later wanted at this figure. United Light and Railway 6½ per cent prior lien preferred reflected the advance in United Light and Power "A" common, selling up to 120. At the close, however, stock was offered for sale at 115 with best bids at 113½. A few transactions took place in United Light and Power warrants between 20 and 21½. Chicago Rapid Transit common reflected the strength of the traction securities, moving up from 6½ to sales above 7. Some interest was displayed in Metropolitan Gas and Electric preferred, stock changing hands between 68 and 70. The common was quoted 4⅞ to 5¼. Federal Electric preferred was wanted at 30½.

Opportunity!

This advertisement is only worth while reading if you have $50,000 to invest and if you wish an investment which will bring you much more than the usual interest rate.
A drug store proprietary specialty having a larger sale in the 5,000 stores now selling it than any article of this kind has ever had, is to be placed with 15,000 to 20,000 additional stores. This expansion will require $50,000. The success so far made justifies the expectation of enormous earnings immediately after the goods are placed everywhere.
Accounts which will approximate $125,000 can, if desired, be assigned for a loan with an option of a substantial interest in the business.
This is a bona fide chance to get in on the ground floor of a national specialty business.
Curiosity seekers please refrain from answering. A clear-headed party, able to size up this unusual opportunity and earnestly interested, will be granted full investigation.

New York, May 16.—[A. P.]—Although today had the general atmosphere of a summer Saturday, a business of fairly large proportions was done on the stock market and prices again showed a general upward trend. Advances of a point or more were restricted mainly to the "personally conducted" shares, but there was also evidence of continued repurchases by recent speculative sellers.

Although profit taking sales checked the advance, another flock of new 1925 high records was established, the list including American Waterworks, St. Louis-San Francisco common, Foundation company, Virginia Railway and Power, and Nash Motors, the last named crossing 100 to the highest price in its history.

Standard Industrials Supported.

While stocks under pool control made the best showing, better buying support was noted for a number of the standard industrials. United States Steel crossed 117 and then slipped back to 116½, where it was up ⅝ on the day, and Baldwin recorded a similar gain at 114⅝ after selling as high as 115¾. American Can closed fractionally lower at 190 after having touched a record peak at 191½.

Coppers showed an improved tone on reports of better trade conditions. Calumet and Arizona rising 2⅝ points and most of the others showing fractional gains. Oils received little attention pending further trade developments. Rails also moved within rather narrow and irregular limits despite new merger rumors concerning some of the smaller roads. Chicago and Northwestern made a further recovery of 1½ points.

Motor Shares in Demand.

Fresh buying came into the motor group on reports that May was likely to establish a new production record. Pierce Arrow prior preferred advanced 3 points to a record top at 111; Motor Wheel corporation, which may receive royalties from balloon tire patents, moved up over two points to a new top at 22⅛ and Eaton Axle touched a new peak at 18⅝ and then forfeited its gain. Kelsey Wheel, Marlin Rockwell, Spicer Manufacturing preferred, Stromberg Carubreter and White Motors also recorded good gains.

Other outstanding strong spots included American Sumatra Tobacco, Certainteed Products, Manati Sugar common and preferred, May Department Stores, Montana Power, National Lead, Remington Typewriter, Underwood Typewriter, Union Bag and Paper, Utah Securities, and Van Raalte Silk Corporation, all up 2 to 5½ points.

Bonds Again Move Upward.

The normal Saturday reduction in trading volume failed today to check the upward movement of bond prices which ended the week at the year's highest levels, speculated activity centered in the low priced railroad issues, which responded to merger reports, while steady investment buying imparted a firm tone to United States and foreign government obligations and standard rails and industrials.

Gains of a point were recorded by the French republic 7½s and the Seine 7s. The demand for rail liens embraced Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4½s, Chicago and Northwestern Refunding 5s, Hudson and Manhattan refunding 5s and "Katy" adjustment 5s. New York Central 6s yielded more than a point. Few changes of importance took place in the industrial section, although Skelly Oil, Bethlehem Steel, and Eastern Cuba Sugar bonds were active at higher prices.

New York Reserves Rise.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was of the usual quiet week-end character, with the principal rates holding relatively firm. Demand sterling continued to rule above $4.85 and French francs were moderately active around 5.20 cents.

Loans and discounts of the New York clearing-house banks dropped $68,521,000 this week, according to the statement issued today. Surplus reserve increased $42,373,750 to $65,676,640. Demand deposits decreased $70,439,000, while time deposits gained $8,920,000. Loans, discounts, etc., amounted to $5,242,655,000; net demand deposits, $4,426,743,000; time deposits, $625,764,000; circulation, $23,076,000; aggregate reserve, $662,103,000.

WALL STREET NOTES

While the stock market averages gained ground last week, due chiefly to the advance in some of the high priced specialties, the combined average is still about 2⅝ points below the high level of the year established on March 5. In yesterday's market, however, the combined average advanced to 110.23, which is not only a new high record for the month to date, but also the highest point reached since the market started its gradual recovery in April.

Reports that the General Electric company, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, and the United Fruit company had liquidated their holdings in the Radio Corporation of America were declared to be unfounded by James G. Harbord, president of the corporation. "The company is in good financial condition and is making money," he said. "I expect earnings to run ahead of last year."

Eugene Stocker, president of the United States Hoffman Machinery company, said earnings were $160,000 ahead of last year, and he expected more than $5 a share would be earned on the common stock in 1925. Sales and earnings to date were showing an increase of 17 per cent over last year.

Sales of the Dunlop Tire and Rubber company are running about 75 per cent ahead in its European business, with factories in England, France, and Germany operating night and day, Sir Eric Geddes, chairman, said.

"Business conditions are such that, while we expect no sudden boom or large expansion, there is no cause for alarm," said A. P. Sloan Jr., president of the General Motors corporation. "As to conditions in the automobile industry, sales of our company for April were within 5 per cent of sales for April, 1923, which was the peak month in the entire history of the automobile industry."

The purchase of thirty-eight theaters in New England, owned by Olympic Theaters, Inc., was announced today by the Famous Players-Lasky corporation. Control of the theaters will be assumed by the purchasers on July 15. All details of the transaction have not yet been agreed upon, but it is understood the deal involves around $7,500,000.

Production of copper in April by mines in the United States amounted to 140,864,000 pounds, against 140,802,000 pounds in March, 137,934,000 pounds in February, and [illegible] pounds in January. The output in the first four months of this year ran at the annual rate of 1,731,372,000 pounds, against an actual output in 1924 of 1,556,[illegible] pounds.

There were 445 commercial failures in the United States last week, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 424 in the preceding week, and [illegible] in the corresponding week last year.

CHICAGO STOCK TRANSACTIONS

Saturday, May 16, 1925.

Day's sales, shares...17,000 Year ago.................71,000 Total, 1925.........5,136,787 Previous year......4,003,247

Chicago stocks were quiet and firm in yesterday's week end market. Kraft Cheese rallied 3½ points on an official statement that the earnings report to be made public this week will be satisfactory. Midland Steel jumped 3½ points. Bendix made a further fractional gain, but National Leather yielded slightly. Real Silk and Hupp Motor were fractionally higher. Hurley was about steady and La Salle Extension was weak. On smal sales, Pines Winterfront declined 2⅜ and Central Illinois Public Service preferred lost a point. United Paperboard gained 1¼ points.

The HABIT of THRIFT will make you RICH

THE habit of thrift starts with little things—with the first pennies saved by the boy who dreams of getting an automobile or the first dollars set aside by the young couple who want to build a home. It ends with the possession of the best things of life.

The thing we try to do above all others is to make people realize the rich rewards of thrift. If once you take a look ahead and see what the dollar saved today will do for you tomorrow, you will be glad indeed to join the thousands who are using our plan to gain wealth.

No Real Thrift Without Safety

It would do you no good to save $50,000—and lose it. So the habit of thrift must include safe investment. Our plan of fortune building never fails because it is based on investment in our First Mortgage Bonds—the bonds that never lost a dollar. And because these bonds pay 6 per cent (6½ per cent in the present market) our plan makes your money grow faster than you can realize until you see the figures.

To form the habit of thrift, ask for the booklets in which we have put our ninety years of experience in helping folks to build fortunes. They are beautifully illustrated and contain a definite plan and plain figures showing just how to make your money grow safely and with wonderful rapidity.

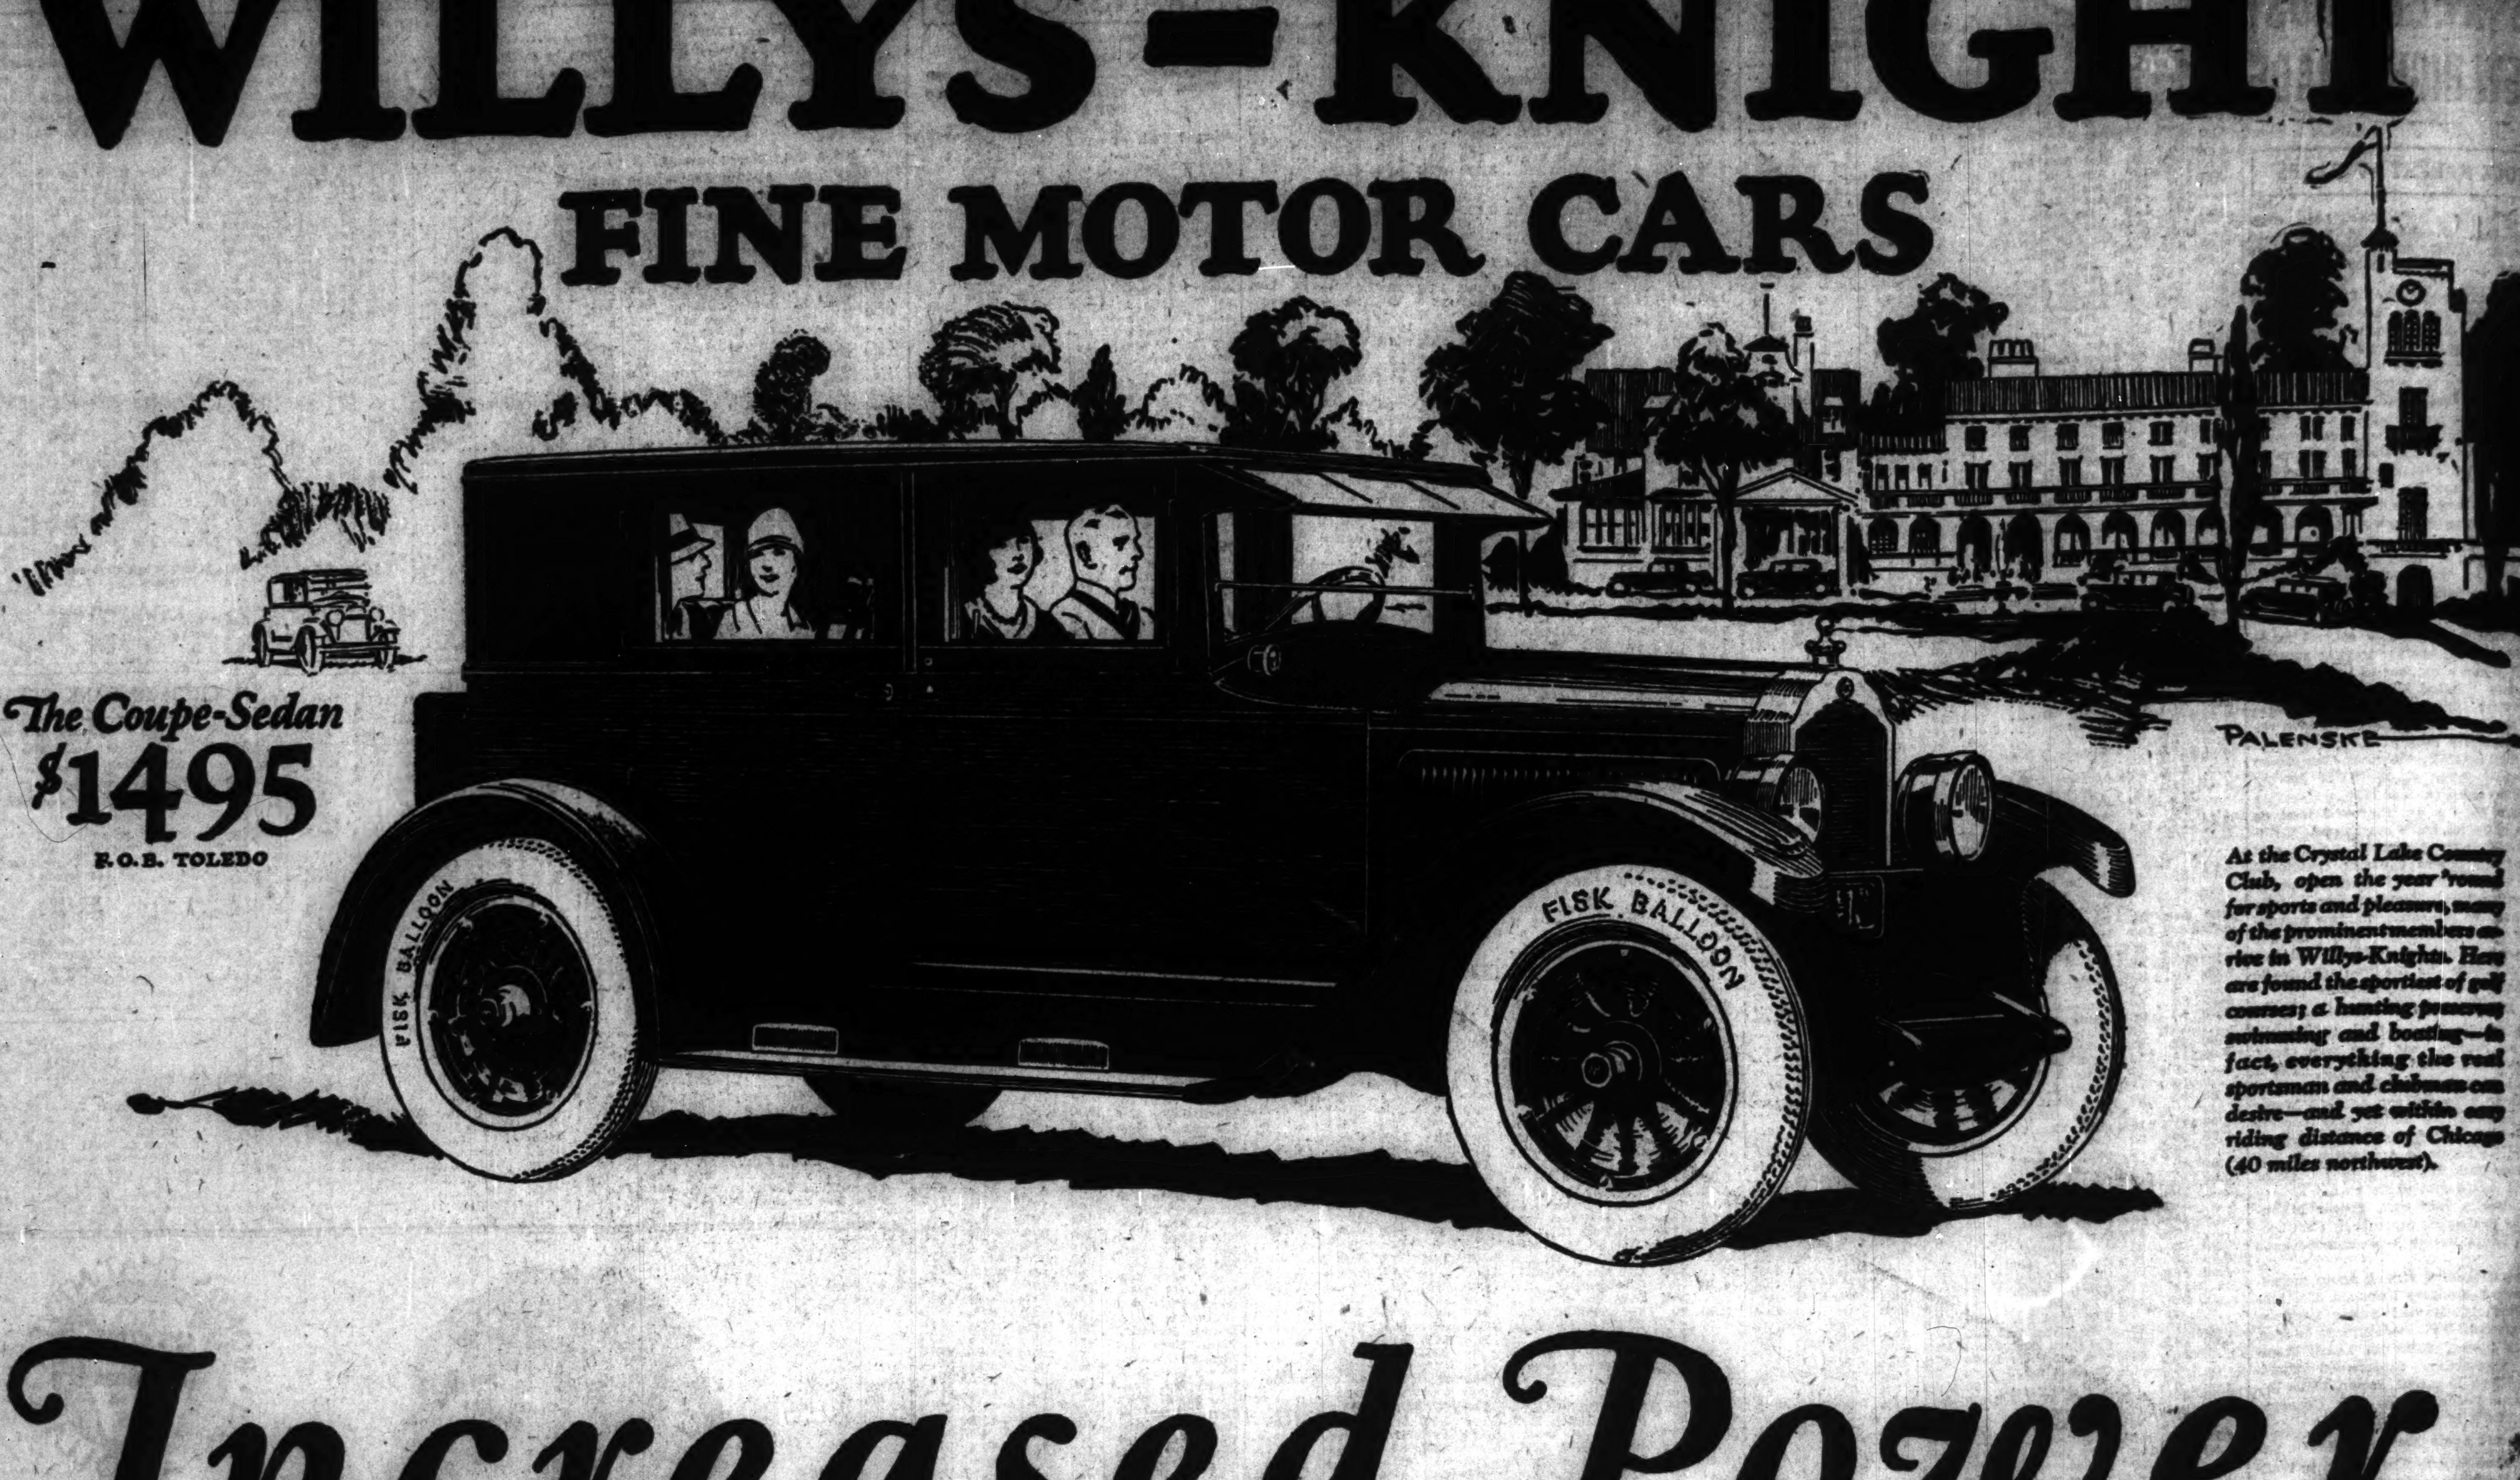
FINE MOTOR CARS



The Coupe-Sedan
$1495
F.O.B. TOLEDO

At the Crystal Lake Country Club, open the year 'round for sports and pleasure, many of the prominent members arrive in Willys-Knights. Here are found the sportiest of golf courses; a hunting preserve; swimming and boating—in fact, everything the real sportsman and clubman can desire—and yet within easy riding distance of Chicago (40 miles northwest).

Increased Power

Places this Great Car as far ahead in pick-up and get-away as it is in luxury, long life and low upkeep—

In Chicago, as everywhere else, the luxurious new Willys-Knight is making a profound impression upon everybody who compares its performance with the best performance of other cars.

No Vibration

THIS IS THE CAR whose power and smoothness have won the unsparing praise of great authorities like Glenn Curtiss, Dr. Lee DeForest and Hiram P. Maxim, men famous over all the world for their mechanical and scientific knowledge.

THIS IS THE CAR that sprang a surprise in the automobile industry by obtaining exclusive United States rights to the new Lanchester Balancer—the celebrated invention that frees this engine entirely from all vibration throughout the whole range of its power!

THIS IS THE CAR noted throughout the world for its patented engine that needs no carbon-cleaning or valve-grinding. Willys-Knight owners often report 50,000 miles without spending a dollar on the engine . . . and there are plenty of Willys-Knights in service that have passed the 100,000-mile mark!

Increased Power

THIS IS THE CAR that satisfies everybody's desire for power . . . great power . . . sustained power . . . the car that sets a new standard of luxury at a new low price . . . a great favorite with the public. This is the car you ought to own!

You can buy your Willys-Knight out of your income—small down payment; 52 weeks to pay the balance.

Both the Harem and the Fitted Trouser Come to Diversify Our Pajama Negligees

By Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—I can't bear to go to the usual musical comedy. It makes me too sensible of the shortcomings of my own wardrobe. To see Miss Ready Rouge wearing the same kind of lounging pajamas I can't afford, to know Miss Mops Kickum can receive her morning mail in a breakfast jacket of mint frappe chiffon, while I myself have to leaf through my bills in a tired blue corduroy, to recognize that these ladies of the stage can be languidly insolent in clouds of lace and crepe while I have to blunder through the crises of my own life in just an ordinary street frock—no, all this is really too much. It turns all comedy into tragedy.

The worst of it is, too, that the musical comedy lingerie and negligee situation is not confined to the footlights. Many persons in real life show the same discomfiting degree of preparedness. As the years roll by our expenditures for this type of clothes roll up. There are no boudoir disarmament conferences, and in order to do right by the boudoir one should have a regular fleet of garments—lounging robe, tea gown, and breakfast coat.

However, those whose lot is cast in the ordinary nooks and crannies of life can get along very well with one of these garments. The tired business woman, the kitchenette wife, and the usual flapper can round out their respective careers quite satisfactorily with just a lounging robe.

That "robe" means today just what it did last autumn—only more so. The pa-jam-a is a jam that has spread from Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand. The French designers, at first rather pajama shy, have now adopted the mode with all the fervor of the Latin nature. However, trust the French to take from any garment, however tailored, all masculine sting! These bifurcated negligees may have started out to be mannish, but they have certainly lost all their virility. They are now as feminine as a Watteau shepherdess.

One of the new moods in pajamas is that of fitting tight below the knee, after the fashion of East India. Another is is the adoption of the true harem type, which bags into a tight fitting band at a point just below the knee.

We are almost as accustomed to seeing the trousers of our lounging suits made of black satin as we are to finding the butler in a dress suit. This tendency is still emphatic, yet in the same breath one must note that there are this spring many pajama lounging robes eschewing the ebon tint in favor of green, yellow, gorgeous oriental blues, and the red tones.

As a rule, the coat worn with these pajamas is of contrasting color and frequently of contrasting fabric. But there are some striking exceptions to this rule, one of which is supplied by Yvonne Davidson, who created in her Paris atelier this spring an all black satin lounging robe which varied the slip-on coat reaching to the knees of the fitted trousers only by the appliques of vivid printed silk. As a rule, however, the coat of our pajama lounging robe gives us license to be as brilliant as any potentate who ever sat perched up on the howdah of an elephant. Wonderful brocades, chiffon veiling, metallic lace, the most teasingly sumptuous gold and silver tissues—all these are employed to carry out the message of plain satin trousers. Nor must one forget the hand painted coats that follow in the wake of the vogue for this type of decoration in formal attire.

Your coat may be either long or short, slip-on or open down the front. In any case, the sleeves are likely to be set in and the garment to reflect generally some touch of the masculine shears. When the coat is not of the slip-on variety there is an obvious necessity for an accompanying blouse. This garment may be either attached to the trousers or worn separately. In the latter event, the application of just common, ordinary blouse principles is permitted. Thus one stunning imported model places under a short red satin jacket brilliantly embroidered in color a white crepe de chine blouse with two able-bodiced jabots and ties around the waist under the coat a tasseled sash of the same black satin used for the trousers—these last fitted from knees to ankles.

At first the tendency seemed to be almost entirely toward trousers of satin. But, since the French have been whipping up this type of lounging robe so assiduously, we are likely to see something much more frothy. There is much crepe, some chiffon, and even some lace employed in the concoction of the bifurcated garment. Illustrative of such trend toward the more meringue-like types is a French model that allies pale yellow chiffon trousers veiled in ecru lace and set off with touches of gold braid, with an orange velvet coat cuffed in leopard. The pajamas of this model are of the harem type.

With these oriental trousers one is likely to find some more voluminous and whimsical coat than is the case with trousers of a different persuasion. Thus the Lucile costume at the right of our center panel associates with harem trousers of pale yellow crepe de chine, set off with silver lace and attached to a bodice of the same ilk, the most gorgeous brocade in green, blue, and silver. The final touch comes from tassels of silver weighting the bands of the trousers. Fit indeed for "Bagdad's fretted shrines" is this model, and there are many others equally eloquent of the east.

At the left of our panel we show the lounging suit in an altogether different humor. Now, there are all sorts of things that you can do to this model, which, as sketched, consists of trousers of bright red Chinese silk piped with black satin and a slip-on top of black satin slashed at the sides and embellished in front with a square of Chinese embroidery. You can let it go as is, in which case it forms an ideal hot weather companion. Or you can make it all of crepe in, let us say, a lovely primrose yellow. In this latter event you could use the model either for sleeping or as the foundation for a lounging robe, to which a jacket of some ornate fabric must contribute the supplementary detail.

But the pajama is kept busy not only in the daytime. The sleeping pajama is with us more than ever before, and it's apt to be a dream of a thing in tinted crepe with short sleeves or no sleeves, and with some touch such as the jabot to bring it straight up to the minute. Indeed, those of us who are bent on economy often make the sleeping pajama serve as the basis for our lounging robe. By this process all that we need by way of daytime investment is one of these gorgeous coats.

Quite a few of the sleeping pajamas are sleeveless. Latest elimination occurs in the trouser itself, which is cut off just at the knee. These are being widely exploited by one Fifth avenue house, and their recommendations for summer wear—especially for camp and travel—are not far to seek.

The nightgown of this spring can't offer you any comparable results in subtraction, but it can compete with the pajama in adding tailored effects. All sorts of details, such as the rever, gilet front, and the Peter Pan collar are here to give new character to the feminine garment.

There is little new to communicate concerning the contours of our lingerie save the insistence of the waistline in many of the newest chemise. The fact that the waistline has been again admitted to good society in the frock is responsible for this manifestation.

Lace occupies the center of the stage in those lovely bits of crepte de chine and ninon which represent the most advanced types of lingerie. Shadow laces, malines, Alencon, Valenciennes, point de Paris—all are used, and usually these laces are dyed a soft ecru, which harmonizes so well with flesh, blue, pale yellow, mauve, and cafe au lait. All of these tones are stressed by the exclusive shops.

Naturally, we don't just apply a wad of lace and let it go at that. It goes without saying that the vogue of the lace trimmed "undy" is largely dependent upon the irregularity and novelty of application. An odd triangular pocket of lace, perhaps a bit of contrasting silk stitched to the lace motif and thus supplying an effective note of color, a zigzag effect up the slit sides of our step-in chemise—these are what make for success in this province.

Ribbons are also used with great zeal, and in this connection one must speak of the popularity of the ombre effects and the occasional appearance of a bit of plaid. Piquant is that tartan sauce in red and green on a pale flesh nightgown.

The whole rule of lingerie conduct seems to have reduced itself to "watch your step-ins." The step-in chemise was never more popular, nor the step-in corset. The latter garment has only one formidable rival—the front clasp—and even this is entirely eclipsed in interest by the step-in.

A last word concerns the importance of the corset in the wardrobe. You may be no more portly than is a hollyhock swaying in the breeze. No matter. You need either corset or girdle to get the best out of today's frock with its line that so often molds the hips. And if you are growing stouter—how much more important! I know one Fifth avenue designer who numbers some of the most fashionable of New York women for his clients. This man says his business partner is a rubber reducing corset which he enforces upon every woman who shows one extra inch in hip circumference. Such rubber corsets are sold now by every shop and form an inestimable ally in overcoming surplus tissue.

At the top, left, a vest and step-ins of flesh crepe de chine are trimmed with tiny loops of pink and blue double faced satin further utilized for shoulder straps and a lover's knot on the vest. Below this a brassiere of lace, and last, a tripe voile chemise in white with plaited skirt slit at the sides and with pipings of red.

Ideal for hot weather is this lounging robe—at the left of panel—combining pajamas of bright red silk piped in black satin with a sleeveless slip-on of black satin embellished with a square of Chinese embroidery. The most elaborate type of negligee is presented next in this model of ecru lace draped in rose colored chiffon. The drapery, forming a train in the back, is trimmed with crystals. Last, the harem negligee now so much favored is presented by Lucile in yellow crepe de chine trousers trimmed with silver lace which is joined to a bodice of the same material and topped by a coat of silver, green, and blue brocade.

In feminine mood is the nightgown—upper right—of either crepe or satin finely plaited and paneled in ecru lace. The ribbons tying the side are in ombre effect of the color chosen. Below a slip of heavy white crepe trimmed with wide Venetian lace and abetted by ribbons. Next, a chemise of striped chiffon in pink, blue, and gray with battlemented hem, picot edged, and with the waistline defined at the sides. The mules are of pink satin covered with cream lace.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

BRIEF AND SIMPLE MODES HERE TO STAY.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—What is it that keeps up the vogue for short and simple clothes?

Paris couturiers are busy answering this question and giving reasons why woman refuses to adopt the charming innovations that they launch each season. Normal waistlines! No, she won't have them. Frilly, flippant drapery! No, indeed. Woman will stand for a certain amount of complication of cut. She will adopt and adore a reasonable quantity of little flares, but she will not tolerate any serious interference with the simple standarized uniform that she seems to have taken to herself for better or for worse.

Paris dictators agree about this, although their reasons for its persistence vary. Jean Charles Worth says it is becaues of our fondness for sports that we adhere to the present simple contours. He thinks we do not want to call attention to ourselves and our political and social emancipation. Voila the camouflage of the simple costume. Sort of prevents our critics from accusing us of a lack of seriousness in these important and new privileges and responsibilities.

Jeanne Lanvin says, wisely, that these fashions are the logical expression of modern life, and that the only way to change styles radically is to bring about a revolution in our present way of living. She adds that important variations will come gradually. Probably! So long as we have to dance to the jazz rhythm, on crowded floors, so long as we ride in superspeedy limousines, live in summer heated flats, and go around in a thoroughly free emancipated manner, we shall want to wear these simple clothes which can stand the strain.

Paul Poiret regrets that we are hampered thus by our whims, and hopes for a more individualistic expression in the costumes of tomorrow.

Lucien Lelong says this standardization has its foundation in economics; that we cannot afford to change our entire wardrobe every six months, so we stick to a set of contours that can glide gracefully from one season to the next without putting our clothes all out of step with the music of the mode.

M. Doeuillet says why worry! If silhouettes don't change, details do, and we can give the mode all the variety it needs without going against public opinion on the well intrenched styles of today. He may be making a concession, but he is also making the best of a fixed situation as, in fact, all of them are, giving us enough minor changes to sate our taste for novelties without infringing upon our wishes. In fact, these small changes fix the season, and differentiate it from other seasons, just as effectively as switching from second empire to directoire to Greek to Chinese would do. This spring they have let up on periods largely, and are indulging in modernism, so that there are many lines and details that extend no farther back than yesterday.

Jeanne Lanvin, who is so well known for her robes de style, is creating some of the season's finest examples of pure modernism in clothes. Her creations are invariably daintily feminine in their simplicity, and for evening, while she keeps to the slim line silhouette, she makes it brilliant and delicate.

An example of one of the nicest gowns in her new collection is shown in our second offering, cut with a semifitted long blouse and scantily gathered skirt of white crepe turco—a simple and popular line, and Lanvinized by means of the lines of turquoise beading on the waist, the flower motif at the waistline, and the loose panel in front, ornamented with points of beads. An irregular hemline is definitely established by means of this panel, which is a bit longer than the skirt, and the bands of beads at the sides, which drop several inches below the bottom of the skirt. A scarf of turquoise blue chiffon is wound gracefully around the shoulders, and forms floating panels of a sort, which are amenable to drapery according to the skill and fancy of the wearer.

Our third offering is another of the new Lanvin models for spring, and one so perfectly simple that it is a regular little song of beauty. It is the kind of gown that has distinction, and that is withal so unobtrusive that you could wear it many times without getting tired of it. The color is red, a new tone they call vermeil, a bit darker than carmine, with beautiful high lights when it comes in a shimmering fabric as it does in this case. What could be less complicated than the straight blouse. Yet all it needs to make it distinctively different is that necklace panel which hangs off the left shoulder, with its clover shaped ornaments of crystal. The narrow tab panel in front is added for good measure, and lends a nice swing to the line. The narrow girdle is also circled with crystals.

The skirt has, and needs no other trimming than its knee length circular godets, that make plenty of room for stepping out in comfort, and also add a lot of verve to the lines of the silhouette entire. You might very well call this a standardized style, but you would never think of so labeling the details, that, after all, make it a creation instead of merely a dress.

Our first offering is another of those familiar silhouettes that is, when analyzed, a thing apart from the ordinary rank and file. Martial and Armand have made this little dance frock of pale pink chiffon, and have added a wide girdle of black taffeta, that is wide enough to give both a high and low waist line. This girdle is covered with a motif done in gold, that harmonizes exquisitely with the narrow bands of gold lace which are set into the full fronted chiffon skirt. A piece of attractive impertinence is the black string tie which ornaments the simple round neck, and makes it uncommon. There are so many of these little lace and chiffon dresses worn this season, it takes an expert to convert one of these into a thing with a decided, and smart personality, which is achieved in this case.

Our last offering from Jean Patou and designed for Mlle. Gaby Morlay, is a differentiation of the jumper frock, a kind of proof that even this uniform type of today's styles may have individuality. Narrow inset bands of blue kasha serve as trimming for the natural kasha of the frock. The double waistline—hip and normal—is indicated by folds of kasha banded in blue. The small collar is trimmed with lines of these bands, and the double circular cuffs are decorated in the same way. The short skirt has two inverted plaits at the center front, a rather different way of adding fullness, which is done a lot this season. However, it is the way the blue bands are put on that makes the skirt unusual. The two inner plaits have vertical bands, and the hem is banded.

2365—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 1¾ yards of 40 inch material with ¾ yard of 36 inch contrasting.

2432—Woman's and misses' peasant blouse. Sizes 14 and 16 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅛ yards of 40 inch material. The hot iron transfer pattern, 719, comes in blue and yellow and costs 15 cents extra.

2429—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 40 inch material for the dress with plaited panel, and 3 yards of 40 inch material for the dress made with plain panels.

How to Use the Patterns

THE one piece slip-on dress, pattern No. 2429, is a smart design for a dress for afternoon wear; and crêpe, satin, taffeta or kasha will make up attractively. The dress is cut with a one piece front, a one piece back, and panels for the sides of the skirt that may be either plain or plaited. Then there are long or short sleeves and a vest to be worn inside the deep V in the front.

The dress is to be slipped on over the head, and fastens at the left side of the vest. Plaited panels will be becoming to any straight figure, and will add to the dressiness of the whole. The dress edges that set over the panels should be bound, and here is a good chance to use a contrasting color. Of course, there is nothing more popular now than printed materials—silks and crêpes especially—and the dress would be pretty made of one. It is also a design that will lend itself well to a plain color, and if the embroidery design is used as suggested in the picture, and the edges of the skirt on the sides, the neck, vest and cuffs bound in a contrasting color, nothing else will be needed to make a smart looking little frock.

Here is a pretty blouse pattern—No. 2432—just the thing to wear with the suspender skirts. In this blouse the sleeves go way to the neck, and they are full length and gathered into narrow wristbands. The blouse has a rather low neck line and the front is slashed and bound. There is some fullness in the blouse at the neck, both front and back, and at the bottom there is an inch wide hem through which an elastic is run.

White marquisette and voile are good materials to use, and the embroidery design shown with the blouse is most attractive. It is done in cross stitch and any preferred color can be used. Cross stitch is fast work and most effective. You will have to take pains in stamping a pattern of this kind on, to pin it so the design will be straight, and then press with an iron so that every mark is distinctly transferred. Basting canvas on the material and copying the design is a surer way as a rule. It is more work, but no one will care for that if the actual work is easier.

Pattern No. 2365 is a one-piece dress, closed through inserted bands in the center front. These bands are underfaced and rolled with the collar that goes across the back of the neck, meeting the front. If one prefers, patch pockets may be substituted for the inserted ones. This is an ideal design for several pretty morning dresses. Gingham, percale, or any of the wash materials will make up prettily, and a contrasting color may be used for the cuffs, collar, bands in the front, and for bands across the tops of patch pockets, or bindings for the inserted pocket openings.

A dress of wash material should have a little more ease in the hips than one that is dry cleaned; and it will be a good idea to see what the hip measure is before cutting out the material. It is an easy matter to add a little to the side seams—marking the change, if any, in pencil on the material.

HELEN H.: IT IS NOT ALWAYS necessary to have an operation to correct or straighten a crossed eye. It is possible to do so by the wearing of properly fitted glasses, where the eye is only slightly crossed or in the early stages. It would be well for you to see your physician at once, and let him advise what is best in your case.

MRS. T. R. J.: TO REMOVE NITS from the hair, apply hot vinegar. After the vinegar has loosened the nits, comb them out with a well greased fine comb. Follow with a shampoo.

ESTELLE: YOU CANNOT REduce the size of the bones, but if you will swing Indian clubs for fifteen minutes every morning and night you will fill out the soft tissues around the collar bones. Before going to bed massage the parts with a fattening cream

How You Can Have "Naturally Curly" Hair

Follow the simple plan here suggested and you will be surprised beyond words to see the beautiful curl and lively lustre your hair will acquire. Merely apply to the hair before doing it up, a little liquid Silmerine, using a clean tooth brush for the purpose. The delightful wavy effect will suggest to any stranger that your hair is "naturally curly." The effect will last many days. Liquid Silmerine costs not to exceed twenty cents an ounce at any drug or department store, so it is quite economical to use. It leaves no sticky or greasy trace and cannot harm hair or scalp in any way. The hair will be quite manageable, whether long or bobbed—even on damp or windy days.

Simple Remedy For Bad Stomach Gives Quick Relief

No Need of Strong Medicines or Diet—Famous but Simple Old English Recipe Keeps Stomach in Fine Condition, Banishes After Eating Distress.

If you are a victim of Stomach Trouble—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this simple advice.

Don't take strong medicines, artificial digestants, or pull down your system by following unnecessary starvation diets.

Never hurry your meal or overeat of anything, but within reason most folks may eat what they like—if they will keep their stomach sweet, clean and active and free from the souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion.

And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a small amount of pure Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless and inexpensive form of Magnesia that promptly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A week's trial of Bisurated Magnesia, which may be obtained from any druggist for only a few cents, will easily convince you of the great value of this old English recipe.

Be sure and get BISURATED Magnesia—not a laxative.

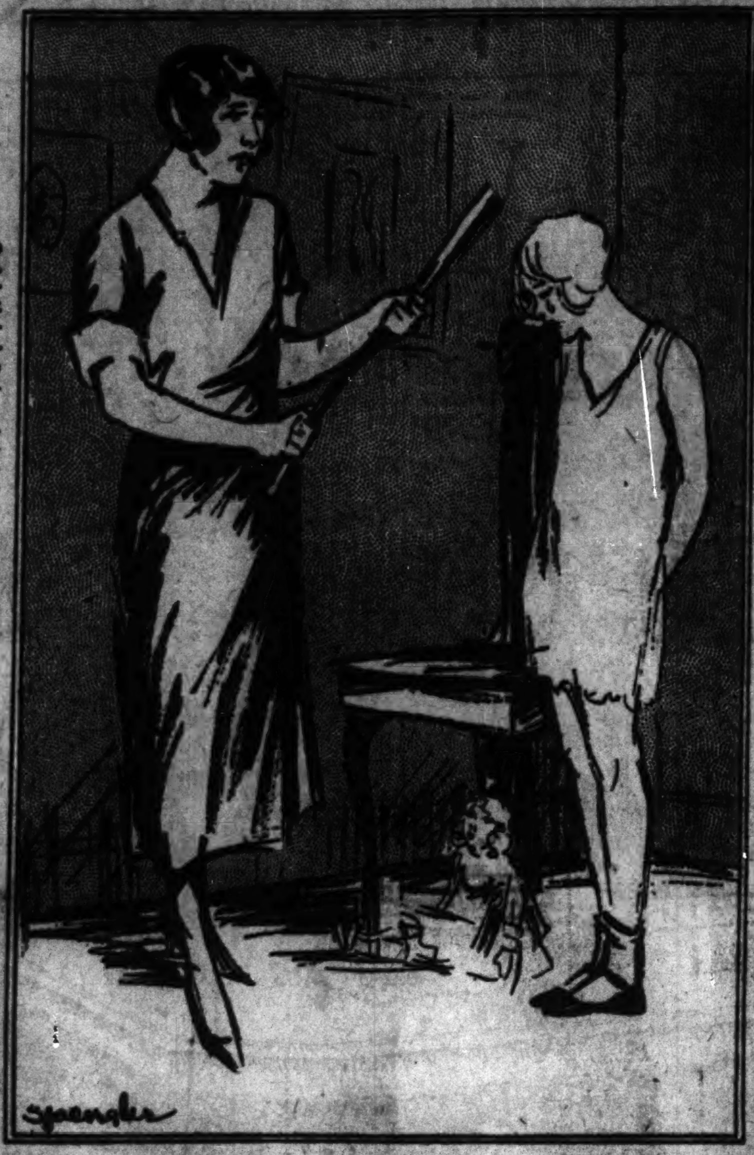
SPARE THE ROD

by Doris Blake

You Know the Old Adage—Don't Forget It Holds True As Much as Ever Today.



WHETHER to spare the rod, the palm of the hand, the slipper, the hairbrush, or to administer to wilfully disobedient children a little of the corporal punishment that "went" home in generations back, is a question absorbing the interest of child educators at the moment.

Looking at the younger generation, with its harrowing number of delinquents, its high school members carrying hootch to school dances, its general disregard for authority, law, and order—parents and teachers are asking if the popularity of the rod were not better revived.

Reviewing educational experiments, educational theorizing, educational soft-soaping and mollycoddling of the last decade or so, they look at the product and ask if a few good, old-fashioned spankings might not have done more toward implanting the three character principles of successful lives —obedience, diligence, and trustworthiness.

Almost at the risk of being incarcerated in a dungeon for inhuman cruelty, does one openly advocate corporal punishment for children. With some persons, the mildest spankings administered at the right moment are considered nothing short of the triumph of brute strength over weakness—barbarism, one "anti" calls it. To spank a child, humiliate him, take away his self respect and personal dignity, deliberately crush the spirit and inflict his body with even slight pain is downright barbarism, she says.

When Words Fail.

Dr. Rudolph M. Binder, professor of sociology, New York university, on the other hand, says he would not venture much on a child's future who does not need correction—in fact, a spanking every so often.

In his opinion there are a few abnormally docile boys and girls who are always anxious to please parents and teacher. As adults, he predicts, they will make good subordinates.

But the child with a strong will and initiative, who wants his own way in disobedience to orders, should be punished. When reasoning fails to be effective, spanking goes home.

A wise parent of my acquaintance has a boy aged 9. The boy picked up some gutter language of gross impudence, and tried it on his father. The father talked with him at some length, explaining the nature of the remark and asking him not to repeat it. Within a half hour the boy was corrected for some minor offense. He responded with a repetition of the same impudent name to his father. Again the father argued with the boy, and thought this time his reasoning was effective.

Later came the boy's bedtime. Reminded of it, he turned vehemently upon his father with the unhealthy expletive again. This time the father wasted no words. He turned the boy over and spanked him properly. The boy went whimpering to bed. In the morning the little fellow slipped quietly into his dad's bed, put his arms about his father, and asked him if he would kiss him if he promised never to say anything like that again.

Healthy youngsters have so much of the primitive in them, one is forced to wonder if the primitive measure of handling them when they are unruly isn't the best way, after all.

Returning to the things that were once considered primitive is saving us in other directions.

The Russian, Bulgarian, and Serbian peasant eats his soured milk with black rye bread, and looks longingly at the rich men's estates, where they eat white bread and roast chicken. The peasant, following his diet, lives to be 80 or 90, and almost to the last day is hale and hearty. He walks behind his plow in the spring and pitches his hay in the fall. The owner of the estate who gorges himself with food drops off with apoplexy or some other disorder at 55 or 60. You have read of these things often in the novels of Turgeniev, Tolstoy, and other great foreign masters.

After fussing around with all sort of methods and means to be healthy, we are being taught to get a little of the primitive life, primitive food. After pitying the peasant, our American men and women of foresight are today trying to learn something from them. At Yale university they are studying the effects of soured milk on human longevity. Prof. Metchinoff has made an enduring reputation studying the subject. Enterprising milk companies are souring whole milk, calling it by all sorts of names and selling it in bottles as medicines, a cure for stomach ailments.

An Irish fireman of our acquaintance spent the better part of $200 going from doctor to doctor trying to find relief from stomach trouble, which did not seem to yield to treatment. He stumbled upon a Russian woman who told him to go on a diet of sour milk and black bread, the same cure her grandmother had used for a similar trouble fifty years before. The fireman tried it and was cured.

What was once a poor man's diet is today discovered as having healing qualities which science uses to advantage. On every side we see people living artificial lives, grossly overeating, using stimulants, and abusing their systems generally, returning to the thing that was once considered primitive and being saved thereby.

Healthy Child Needs It.

The primitive way of bringing up children was effective. There are men and women—thinking persons, too—who have the courage to say 'twas better than the ultra-modern way.

Countless generations of parents, who we have no reason to suspect loved their children less than the modern parent, found a spanking served at the psychological moment to be a wonderful stabilizer of child manners, child behavior, child decency.

As a matter of fact, the healthy child seems to expect a certain amount of discipline from his father. There are times when he seems to itch for a spanking, and when he is in that condition the best thing to do is to administer it to him. As long as children make a fist fight or "fighting it out" a code of honor in their conduct with playmates, so long will an occasional spanking by father and mother be in place.

Youth today is tyrannical, and tyrannical in many ways to its own detriment. It would do the younger generation wonders to be treated like children and not be permitted to argue, talk, and try to run the whole show. Precocious as they may be, they are not qualified to run the earth.

It is known to every probation officer, to every court officer, to any one familiar with present day conditions that there are thousands of boys in prison who would not be there had fathers and mothers the courage to take them literally in hand at the proper time. Parents cannot be too indulgent, too unselfish and do their duty as guardians. And every parent is a guardian to the child.

Discipline the Root.

There are no laws on raising a child. It is a matter of parental instinct and common sense. When a child needs a spanking, he should get it. When he needs to be praised, he should be praised. When he needs to be flattered, he should be flattered. Every means should be used to make a good man out of him.

The boy cannot grow into a good man without guidance and discipline. He cannot become a useful citizen unless he is taught to obey the laws. "Discipline," as a great poet said, "is the root of freedom." If you want him to be free, he must be disciplined.

If reasoning won't do it and spanking will—spank him!

As parents of the indulgent vintage of the present era, you can be trusted not to hit the child in a manner that would injure him.

BRIGHT SAYINGS OF CHILDREN

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

A new brother arrived at Bobby's house and Bobby seemed much surprised that such a mite could cry so lustily.

As he hovered over the bassinet, he announced gleefully to his mother, "O, dood, he is going to practice his cry again." J. R.

Bobby thinks it great fun to go up and down the stairs and invariably comes tumbling down.

Mother has scolded him for it and threatened punishment.

One day he tried it again and went tumbling down with an awful commotion.

His frightened mother asked, "Bobby, are you falling down those stairs again?"

Bobby answered, "No, I's dis rolling." A. A.

Charles had been at grandma's for three days. As she was old and nervous his mother kept him quiet, and this irked him dreadfully.

The minute he returned home he gave a whoop and said, "Well, me for home, where a kid can unnoise hisself!" J. R.

While waiting in the hospital to be treated for a bad cut Horace heard a new born baby crying.

Mother asked, "Why do you think the baby is crying?"

He replied, "He is cryin' because he is here." D. C.

Needed an Escort.

I belong to the National Guard and we hold our meetings every Monday night. If any of the members are absent without a sufficient excuse a certain number of men are detailed to go after them.

I missed one of these meetings. Being mixed, or rather confused, I thought it was Tuesday. So I went to a basketball game.

You can imagine my embarrassment when six uniformed guards came and ordered me to go with them. A. K.

Shower of Balls.

One morning I was in a rush to go to school. It was raining, so I took my umbrella from the rack and ran out. As I neared the busiest corner in town it began to rain harder and I opened my umbrella, to be greeted by a shower of balls. Passers-by ran after them while I stood blushing amid the laughter. I found that mother had put my nephew's balls in my umbrella to get them out of the way. L. L. L.

Self-Service.

I entered the balcony of a movie house. As usual, I couldn't see well at first. There was no usher around, so I made my way blindly to what I thought was the end seat of the back row. The scene then showing was sad and I couldn't account for the snickering around me. When the lights went on I found myself sitting on a small step at the edge of the aisle and a group of much amused people staring at me. P. C.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send articles to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

I HAVE a letter this week that I hope will interest my boy and girl friends:

"I am 10 years old and I have two sisters, one 9 and one 6, and a brother of 4. My daddy has been dead four years. We sisters go to school.

"I am writing this to tell you mother tries her best to send us to school looking nice. She makes new dresses from old ones and makes them really stylish, but not fancy. But mother cannot make boys' clothes or girls' coats, so do you think some of your wonderful people could find something they have no use for, especially a girl's coat, size 8 and one for brother, size 5? We would appreciate most anything, but it's the coats mostly. We all thank you. ANNA."

Isn't this a chance, boys and girls, where almost all of us can help to make this brave family happy? And don't you think the spirit they all show and the pride they have in what their mother does for them make us want to help them?

And you can help, I know. Just think how many of you have had new coats this spring, and how old coats have been set aside because you've outgrown them. Among these older coats there are many that will be just the thing for this little girl and her sisters and brother. All you need do is to let me know that you have a coat to give, and I will see that it goes where it will do more good than you could imagine.

And don't forget—there are hundreds of other boys and girls whom we can make happy with anything you have to give. There are many invalid children I know who have nothing with which to play. Games of all sorts, phonographs and records, will make them happy as can be. And almost all of them need clothes—coats, hats, caps, suits, shoes—whatever you can give. This is springtime, when we are all happy about being able to get out and play. Can't we make it a week making all these other children happy, too?

Father Deserted Him.

"I am coming to you with a plea for clothing for a destitute little crippled boy of 6 years. His father, hearing that I took children as boarders and roomers, brought the child to me more than a month ago, but has not appeared since that time to pay his bills, and has evidently deserted him. Have any of your readers clothing to pass on, which their own little boys have discarded? I cannot afford to buy clothing for him. M. S."

Our sympathy goes out to this child, and we know you will help by a donation of clothing for him, if it is in your power to do so.

For an Invalid.

"I wonder if I am asking too much if I come to you again for old, soft cloths to use for my invalid mother? I have tried to buy hospital gauze, but it is too harsh, and besides after more than seven months of steady drain on my finances I am forced to consider every penny. I will be grateful for any old white cloths I may receive, and wish to thank you once more for your other kindnesses. P. M. L."

Won't you gather up a few of the white cloths which you no longer have use for and send them to our friend? It seems such a little thing for her to ask, but in reality it is a pressing need.

Case Is Urgent.

"I wonder if some of your readers have extra-size clothing to pass on to a needy woman whose case has come to my notice? She is in need of everything. Her husband is unable to work, and because of her size and personal appearance she has been unable to obtain work. I am sure a gift of clothing would help her get work. The rent has been unpaid for some time, and often they have no food. G. S."

Can you make a gift of some wearing apparel for this despondent wife? Her thank you will warm your heart for many a day, I am sure.

Young for Burdens.

"I wonder if any of your readers has a tennis racket which is no longer wanted? I am a girl, 17 years old and working, but my wages help to support my invalid mother. I should also appreciate sport clothing, as I have nothing to wear to play tennis. Can some one help me? I shall be so thankful! P. H."

We are sure some one will take an interest in this girl, who, at seventeen, is helping to bear family burdens. Tennis will be a fine recreation for her, and we hope some one can give the racket.

Lover of Pets.

"I am a lover of pets and have two parrots which I am keeping in one cage because I cannot afford to buy another. I wonder if some one has a cage which is no longer in use, and which I might have? I would also appreciate receiving an aquarium for my six goldfish, if there is one to be discarded. MRS. L."

There is nothing more useless than the cage if the bird has flown, or an empty fish bowl. If you have either of them to give our applicant will be most appreciative.

Presented with Hope.

"I have so many times marveled at the gifts made through your column that I am coming to you with my request, hoping that, though unusual, it will be granted. We have a small pony for the children. He is their chief playmate, and greatest joy, but we have no pony cart or harness for him, and cannot afford to buy them. We would be glad to pay all charges for shipping, if some one has either harness or cart to dispose of. F. V."

Can't you see how delighted these children would be if you could grant their heart's desire? Of course, not many of us have carts and harness to give, but have you?

ISN'T IT ODD?

By William Atherton Du Puy

ISN'T it odd that the cowbird, relative of such attractive persons in feathers as the bobolink and the oriole, should turn out to be the perpetrator of the arch villainy of the avian world?

Watch the cowbirds there among the herds in the meadows. One of them feels the cosmic urge, that the time has come when she should lay an egg. She has not anticipated this occasion, as most birds do, and made herself a nest. Her plan is different.

She leaves the flock and begins hunting about the thickets where smaller birds are making their nests. She knows this is a low and heartless mission on which she is bound, for she slinks through the bushes like the sneak she is. Soon, however, she finds the nest of a tiny warbler, probably with two or three eggs of the shy little thicket dweller already laid. Hurriedly she lays one of her own eggs in the warbler's nest and slinks away, never to return. On the morrow, however, and on three or four subsequent days, she finds the nest of another tiny bird and repeats her trick.

The warbler sits on this strange egg along with her own. It is supposed to be a part of the villainy of the scheme that the cowbird egg hatches a day or two quicker than do the warbler eggs. The unnatural guest in the nest has grown lusty before the little warblers hatch. It is naturally bigger and stronger than are they. When the parent birds bring worms, it is the open mouth of the cowbird that always reaches above the others. It gets most of the worms.

The tiny warblers sicken and die of starvation or are crowded out of the nest. Soon there is but one great, unnatural fledgling, twice the size, in some cases, of the grown warblers that feed it, quite overflowing the nest. Finally it is able to take wing and flies away to the pasture where it will join its brothers and sisters that have come to maturity by the same tragic route. In time it will skulk back and plant tragedy in the nests of other smaller birds.

Milk of Magnesia and Mineral Oil Now Combined

It has always been necessary to prescribe milk of magnesia and mineral oil separately, even though it has been generally recognized that, to be most effective, they should work together.

Haley's Magnesia-Oil is a highly successful combination of both. It is harmless, causes no griping or nausea, and may be safely taken in large doses. Very palatable—no oily taste. Can be mixed with milk and given children without their knowledge.

The oil carries the magnesia straight to the lower bowel, the seat of most so-called stomach trouble. Both oil and magnesia work together. Their individual effectiveness is immeasurably increased and the result is much quicker and more positive action.

Get a bottle of Haley's Magnesia-Oil today. Most druggists sell it. If yours can't supply you we will mail postpaid on receipt of price. Large family size, $1. The Haley M-O Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

Gray —and ageing!

"HOME and the fireside and knitting for me now" you say to yourself regretfully—as you gaze at your rapidly graying hair. But you're wrong. There's Brownatone, the vegetable preparation as harmless as water to hair and scalp that will quickly tint gray, faded or bleached hair any shade. It's so easy to use that you can apply it yourself, at home. The color is lasting and will not rub off or wash out. Two colors, shading from blonde to brunette—50c and $1.50 at drug stores and toilet counters. Test bottle sent for 10c. The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 1314 Coppin Building, Covington, Ky.

STRAIGHT TALK TO WORRIERS

by Antoinette Donnelly

You're Not Up To Physical Par, If You Are One of Their Number

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Are you a worrier?

You are not a distinctive personality on that account, if that will help you any. Your number runs into millions. So don't think there is anything unique about you. The world is still full of a number—an appalling number, counted head for head, wrinkle for wrinkle—who can conjure up, without the slightest difficulty, the most frightful misfortunes which never come true.

Some of you may have tried Pollyannaism without permanent cheer. Some of you may keep a liberal supply of cheer-up mottoes in your room, to find in your down in the mouth hour they were irritating, rather than consoling.

There must be some other remedy, there being one for every ill!

There may be a few stray persons who can accomplish worry in spite of their robust health, but the majority of worriers are not up to physical par. They are frail and complain of physical ills, chiefly insomnia, indigestion, constipation. They betray nervous habits, such as trembling, grimaces, jerkiness in movement, high pitched voices, contracted foreheads, muscular tensions.

Getting Down to Facts.

It is not straining a point to say that worriers, therefore, are essentially physical invalids. The mental invalidism is the developed symptom.

If you can get that straight and will accept it for what it is worth you can throw away your Pollyanna smile and the useless mottoes and get right down to remedial facts.

Unless you are a genius at stirring up trouble, it is well nigh a downright impossibility to worry when your nerves are steady, your circulation good, your appetite as it should be, your heart action normal, all of your organs in excellent condition.

So, if you are one of the sad millions, who visualize death with the appearance of the telegraph messenger; see a tuberculosis finis to a slight cold, an automobile accident in the children's tardy after school appearance, or another woman in a slight neglect from hubby, or any of the other trumped up tragedies of a depleted system—look to the system for the remedy.

Physical Condition Rules.

One's emotional balance is regulated by one's physical balance. Lacking the latter you easily become the prey of fears, foolish, groundless.

Visual defects, nasal troubles, infected tonsils, relaxed abdomen, ductless gland perversions, infected teeth and gums, and other impairments may be the cause of your excessive worrying and nervousness, and not little Johnny or big Johnny at all.

Dr. William S. Walsh, dealing with the subject, says worry is often traceable to, or aggravated by, excessive smoking, indulgence in tea or coffee, insufficient exercise, improper living habits, in which case a correction of the error will bring about a cure or an amelioriation.

"If we were to call attention to any particular rule of right living, we should emphasize physical exercise, especially if the worrier is a middle aged business man, clergyman, teacher, office worker. These persons are particularly likely to suffer from the effects of shut-in existence, and are often greatly benefited and sometimes cured of their worry, as well as of their physical discomforts, by such exercises as walking to work, sawing wood, indoor and outdoor rowing, or gymnastics.

The bodies of worriers betray nervousness in their tenseness and habits. They clear their throats and cough unnecessarily and frequently. They carry their hands clenched; they sit stiffly on the edges of chairs; they walk with short, jerky strides, mannerisms that reflect tense states of mind. The wasteful expenditure of energy associated with the tension gives rise to chronic fatigue, with which emotional instability is to be expected.

Correcting Bad Habits.

The worrier is advised to undertake the correction of his neurotic habits. Dr. Walsh suggests first taking an inventory of them. This a person may do by herself or with the aid of a friendly and less biased critic. One habit may be singled out for correction at a time—say, coughing.

"Any person who has this habit," says Dr. Walsh, "and who pays attention to it, will be surprised at the number of times he coughs needlessly; and the mere noting of it will aid him to restrain it."

With one habit broken, you are encouraged to conquer others. Exercises in relaxation are particularly pleaded for. Speaking more quietly, with attention to enunciation, is advised; and walking slowly with reasonably long steps and hands hanging loosely at the sides.

Dr. Walsh recommends the following exercise for general purposes of relaxation:

Sit comfortably in an easy chair or recline upon a couch or a bed. Let go of all the muscles as if you were a deadweight. Then, with the eyes closed, say mentally: "My hands are relaxed and heavy. My arms are relaxed and heavy. My feet are relaxed and heavy. My head is relaxed and heavy. My eyelids are relaxed and heavy."

Learn to Go Slowly.

This exercise is valuable after lunch and after going to bed at night; when properly performed, it often induces sleep.

A siesta after lunch or later in the day is beneficial for most worriers. Before going to bed, the warm bath, in which you remain fifteen minutes or longer, is advised. If the tension or excitement is marked during any period of the day, the bath may be beneficially resorted to.

Hurrying, a habit common to worriers, is urged against. They hurry in their work, their play, exercise, meals, their talk. Their facial expressions register the fear they have not time for this or for that. If they could only force themselves to go slower with every action, they would find tasks so much better performed that that security of mind that comes from a task well done would minimize the wear and tear upon their nervous and physical strength.

The Clearer Vision.

DEAREST ESTELLE: The hour is evening and I sit before my fire, comfortable, at ease, and—alone.

As I look back over the weary years since we parted, I realize more than ever how good a thing is companionship, and that only my work saved me from utter ruin since our separation.

How dearly I loved you, how bitterly I have missed you, no one but myself will ever know. Only the loneliness and desolation of the years brought to me the full realization of the depth of my love for you—but then, ah then, it was too late. Our last bitter quarrel, the unreasoning anger of youth, had blinded me to the truth, that whatever else betide, I loved you, loved you, loved you!

Why did I let you go? I know now with the clearer vision of added years that you were not alone to blame—I was the stronger, older; I had sworn to protect and cherish you; I should have taken you in my arms and kissed your anger and your hurt away; we should have tried once more to make our marriage a success.

Where are you, dear, tonight? And are you happy, or do you, too, regret that we let slip by our golden opportunity?

I am lonely, childless, homeless—for a house is not a home—and if in all the world there is one being I would have by my side, to share with me the glory of these declining years, that one is you.

In all my dwelling there is no sound save the scratching of my pen and the ticking of the old clock in the corner that seems mournfully to say, "Too late! Too late!"

Yours for old time's sake,

RICHARD.

DR. FOLTS SOAP

The latest way to take off fat does not call for drugs, exercises, diets or creams—all one needs to do to have a trim, slender figure is to get from the drug store some of Dr. Folts' Soap for Reducing, and apply it night and morning on fat parts. Mrs. W. B. writes us that for five weeks she faithfully used this soap with the most wonderful results. This is all she did. Every night she made a good lather with Dr. Folts' Soap, applied it on her bust, hips and double chin, left the lather on a few minutes, then washed off. Her measurements before starting this simple, easy way were as follows:

Bust, 51. Today Bust is 38.
Hips 64. Today Hips are 44

She says that she had a double chin which made her look years older. It has entirely vanished. Dr. Folts' Soap has already helped a great many people to take off excess fat, although in the past it had only been made in a limited quantity by the Doctor himself who kept his formula for his private practice. Lately it has been put up in convenient soap form, and can be had from most leading Drug or Department Stores. No diets or exercises are necessary. It is guaranteed ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS, and is remarkable to beautify the skin and rid it of pimples or eruptions. BEWARE OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS. ASK FOR AND GET DR. FOLTS' SOAP FROM Walgreen's, Owl Drug Co., Buck & Rayner's, MacLean's, Rensel, Home, Ridder & Lewis, Van De Bogart, or any department store.

USING PINEAPPLE.

ONE needs to go to such a country as Cuba to get a full realization of the fact that the "pine" apple is as much an apple, eaten as freely, to the people of semi-tropical countries as our apples from the tree are to us of the temperate zone. Crushed pinapple in gallons is to be seen in Havana, in all the constantly patronized shops corresponding to our ice cream soda places, and long lengthwise slices are to be purchased from barrows and open counters on the street. And everywhere in the open places of Havana may be seen people eating these slices.

In southern Florida the pineapple is popular but not so much of the people, as it were, as in Cuba, where they drink the juice accompanied by a queer puffy piece of sugar somewhat like a meringue, called the "abucarillo." In the grand hotels of southern Florida, pineapple juice is served as commonly as orange juice, and as it does not "weather" as quickly has the advantage of always seeming fresher. It is sometimes served in tall glasses on a glass saucer containing strawberries, and both in a deep plate of ice.

One of the claims made by the pineapple growers of that region is that you can eat all the indigestible foods you choose, and then sleep the sleep of the just if you will only eat a little pineapple. But in following that sort of advice there will come a sure boomerang. However, the fact that the pineapple does contain a digestive ferment is one made much of in commercial and in what we consider more serious and scientific literature.

Multitudinous Ways of Using.

For those who are ever in search for something new, and do not know often that what they get is something being pushed greatly by special food promoters and manufacturers, we can particularly recommend the numerous pieces of trade literature on the pineapple. You can find in them pineapple combinations recommended which have the vowelly names of Honolulu and its environs attached to them, or you can get Spanish names to make your "granite" [half frozen punch] sound mellifluously when you mention it, and recipes no end.

One little booklet has the title "Ninety-nine Tempting Pineapple Treats." It would keep one busy for some time trying out such a number, and ever with the hope that some great treasure would be found.

One Way of Preparing Pineapple.

The "Florida Tropical Cook Book" begins its subject of "Desserts" with pineapple, introduced thus: "The pineapple can be used in almost as many ways as there are fruit recipes in the cook books, but it is at its best when well ripened and used fresh from the plant. There are many ways to prepare the fresh pineapple for table use, but there is one way in which it should not be prepared. A pineapple should never be cut crosswise of the fruit. Why? Because it leaves a part of the woody, unpalatable core in the center. Always slice lengthwise of the fruit and reject the core." By rejecting here it does not mean throwing away the core, as one can see by the directions given just after for grinding pineapple, which read:

"Cut the pineapple in section lengthwise and remove the peel and core. Put the slices through the food chopper. The cores should be ground separately and only the juice of them used, as they are woody and unpalatable."

Shell of Pineapple.

The simplest way to use pineapple peel is to cover it with cold water and cook it gently to get a well flavored liquor to use for beverages, ices, etc., but Miss Anna Barrows recommended, long ago, that the skins of pineapples be used as holders for both fruit salads and desserts. She even suggests that the leaves be used as a garnish, and that the outside of the pineapple might be cut in three or four sections, scooped out, and these outer parts used as a sort of basket. Some people think this use a new one, but there is really nothing entirely new under the sun in foods, and little that is really new in managing them, as I have found from my studies in cookery from the days of Lucullus till now.

Cutting Pineapples.

It is not such a new thing to cut a pineapple lengthwise. In Miss Leslie's book of 1857 she directs, for several uses, that the fruit be split into four pieces, the core cut out, the pieces stood upright in a deep dish, and all the flesh grated out of the skin with a large, coarse grater.

Last year there was exploited a way of cutting pineapple called Cuban, but it was not the way one sees it cut in Havana, at any rate. However, it had its value for a small family who wants to use but two or three slices at a time, standing the cut side down on a cold plate put in the ice box until the next slices are wanted.

This is the way it is kept in hospitals sometimes, when pineapple juice or fruit is prescribed from the doctor, as I learned from a nurse. The slices are peeled and then the slice has four cuts made, two at right angles to the others, all of them close up to the core, which is thus cut out. And there are other ways of cutting the pineapple, as in "pyramids."

Pineapple Pyramids or Bracts.

The Florida recipe for these, from the book already mentioned, is: "Cut a fresh unpeeled pineapple into pyramid shaped pieces each extending to the heart of the fruit. It will easily break into such sections, by using a fork and beginning at the bottom, taking an eye at a time. Lay the pyramids on their sides in a circle on a fancy plate with a little mound of sugar in the center. They are eaten with the fingers and afterwards finger bowls are passed. This is both a pretty and delicious idea for a ladies' luncheon." The meal might be a wedding breakfast and these alternate with strawberries in the hulls.

Miss Lillian M. Gunn, seven years ago, wrote of the same way of preparing pineapple, but called the cuts pineapple "bracts." She wrote: "Select a ripe pineapple and cut off the top. Cut the hard core out for about two inches. With a sharp knife cut around each bract, slanting the knife toward the center so as to make a point. Arrange on a serving dish with powdered sugar in the center. They are eaten like unhulled strawberries."

Miss Gunn did not arrange the pieces in a formal circle, in making a picture to go with her description, but in an oblong with groups of three around it, with the middle piece higher than the two sides, making a sort of three leafed clover. Pretty?

Shredded Pineapple.

Uncooked pineapple is more refreshing than the cooked, and so all the ways we may find of using it uncooked we may be thankful for. The uncooked shredded pineapple, well chilled, is delicious quite of itself, but this preparation is also good for sherbets, beverages, pies, combining with cooked cream and so forth. Wash and wipe pineapple, peel by slicing down, holding the top firmly, and cut out the eyes. Then plunge a fork into the flesh and draw it down and scrape with it, always towards you, until all the soft part has been broken away from the hard core.

Cold water to almost double the amount of juice may be added when it is set aside for two hours or so. Sugar added before it is set away will increase the amount of juice, but it sometimes seems to harden the pineapple fiber. Of course, this depends upon what kind of a pineapple it is.

Pineapple with Cake.

As to the condition of the pineapples we get much might be said. We usually get about now, and for a few weeks on, the best pine apples of the year. But in general the words of Mrs. Mary F. Henderson, the woman of privilege who wrote a cook book in 1876, and is still bright and active now, or was up to a year ago, when I last heard, may be true.

She writes: "When pineapples are picked and eaten fresh in their own climate they seem to dissolve in the mouth, and the fibrous texture is hardly perceived. Not so at our tables. Here I have sometimes partly resolved that they are not much of a luxury after all, especially when the slices are so tough as to require the knife and fork. They are better cut in dice, saturated in sugar, and piled in the center of a glass dish, with a row à la Charlotte, of sponge cake slices, or of ladies' fingers around the sides."

Pineapple Sherbet for Two.

Plain fresh raw pineapple eaten raw or the juice as a beverage are my favorites for this fruit, but next comes the sherbet, the following recipe for which has found favor when printed: Use one-fourth cup of juicy shredded pineapple. Cook one-half cup of sugar with one-fourth cup of water to 228 degrees or until it spins a thread. Pour this over the pineapple and let it stand until it cools. Add to it lemon juice to taste, to strengthen the flavor, but not enough to destroy the sweetness. Beat the white of one egg till stiff, and fold the sugar and pineapple mixture into it.

Have well chilled a half pint glass jar. Pour the preparation into this, put a buttered paper over top, clamp on cover, and pack in half ice and half salt mixed for about one hour and a half, or it may be served like a "granite" (half frozen) at the end of an hour, or stir and freeze in a cup sized freezer.

In doubling this recipe it is best to fold in the egg white when the mixture in a freezer is partly frozen. When the egg white is put in at the start and the mixture is frozen by packing it must be put in the ice and salt the minute it is added, otherwise the heavy sirup will separate from the egg, but in a mixture as quick acting as this of half ice and half salt this will not happen. In making this for a number of persons by packing instead of using a freezer it is best to use several small jars.

Pineapple Tapioca.

One-fourth cup granulated tapioca, one-half cup sugar, one slice pineapple, two cups cold water, one to two tablespoons butter, a pinch of salt. Shred a slice of pineapple with a fork, holding it with another, and add a little of the sugar to it. Cook tapioca in the water until it thickens, with much stirring. When thickened add the rest of the sugar and the butter to it and pour over the freshly shredded pineapple. Eat hot or cold. Add the salt to the tapioca when it is cooking.

By A. T. Gallico.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Mr. Smith and his young cousin from out of town, Jim Brown, whom I have introduced to you all before, are spending the afternoon drifting around the shops. Don't get the idea that these two are always thinking of buying clothes. The only time you hear of them they are, it is true, but there are plenty of hours in between when they are attending to the more serious as well as the more frivolous sides of life. Not but what the art of dressing is not serious enough, for, as Mr. Smith said to Jim, "Clothes are a more important part of business than some men take into consideration.

"If you aren't well dressed, not necessarily in the height of fashion but neatly and tastefully, you aren't going to give the right impression to your business associates."

"That's right," said his cousin. "A young chap came to my father not long ago, looking for a job. He probably didn't have any money to lay out for a new wardrobe in order to make sure that he would get a job, even if he had known that his clothes would make a difference. But you could tell from little details, such as dirty shoes, which could have been remedied for 10 cents, and a button off his coat, and other little things, that he was not the neat type of man that was needed for the particular position he wanted to fill."

"No," answered Mr. Smith, "it doesn't take much money to be neat. A young man can give the appearance of being a good dresser and have only two suits in his wardrobe if he chooses wisely, and takes care of them. I know a chap who has two suits, a dark blue one and a light gray. I see him often, always in one or other of the two suits, and I have never seen him when he did not look smart, clean, and neat. His choice of shirts and neckwear is always so careful that there is never a clash. Each shirt looks as though it belonged exclusively to the suit he was wearing with it, yet he could wear it with either suit, for I was particular to notice that certain shirts appeared with the blue suit one day and with the gray another. And they weren't plain white shirts, either."

"You don't see many plain white shirts in New York nowadays," remarked Jim. "I've seen everything else but white since I got here."

"And you've doubtless seen some that ought to have been white, or ought to have been some other color," said Mr. Smith. "Some men are wearing combinations of shirts and ties and suits that would make a rainbow look pale. I saw one the other day. It was an argument against allowing men to have free reins with color, if such a question ever came up. The man was wearing one of the newer reddish brown suits, not a bad suit by itself, but one which needed careful handling. He wore with it a shirt of solid dark gray, with collar to match, and a crepe silk necktie of solid red. I was surprised that the traffic cop didn't arrest him."

"There goes a good example now of what a man can do with color and do it well," said Mr. Smith, as a young man passed the two of them while they strolled down Fifth avenue. The young man he called Jim's attention to was wearing a light gray suit, of the popular double breasted model. His shirt was of black and white stripes, and his tie a regimental striped one of bright red, dark green, and light gray. Plenty of color and stripes, but in good taste.

Mr. Smith himself that day was as usual perfectly groomed. He wore a gray double breasted suit of medium shade, striped with light gray. His shirt was of yellow and white horizontal stripes, stiff bosom. He wore with it a wing collar, and a bow tie of gray and silver stripes. His hat was a pearl gray felt, with black band, a hat with curled brim of generous width. As always, he carried a stick. He wore black oxfords, and pearl gray spats.

Jim was wearing a dark blue serge suit, shirt of pastel green striped with pale gray, and four in hand tie of dark green, light gray and navy blue stripes. His hat was medium gray with navy blue band. He wore tan oxfords.

The new REEL-LINE (reel and line combined) is kink-proof. It goes up in a jiffy, comes down as easily, and is all wound up neat and trim on its own handy reel.

The REEL-LINE is really practical. The 100 feet of "Silken Hemp" has three times the life of ordinary clothes-line. It is washable, doesn't stretch, and will not stain clothes.

The handy reel is galvanized steel, blue enameled, rust-free, and a wonderful convenience. Properly used, it absolutely prevents kinking.

Get a REEL-LINE before next washday. You'll be happy about it for years.

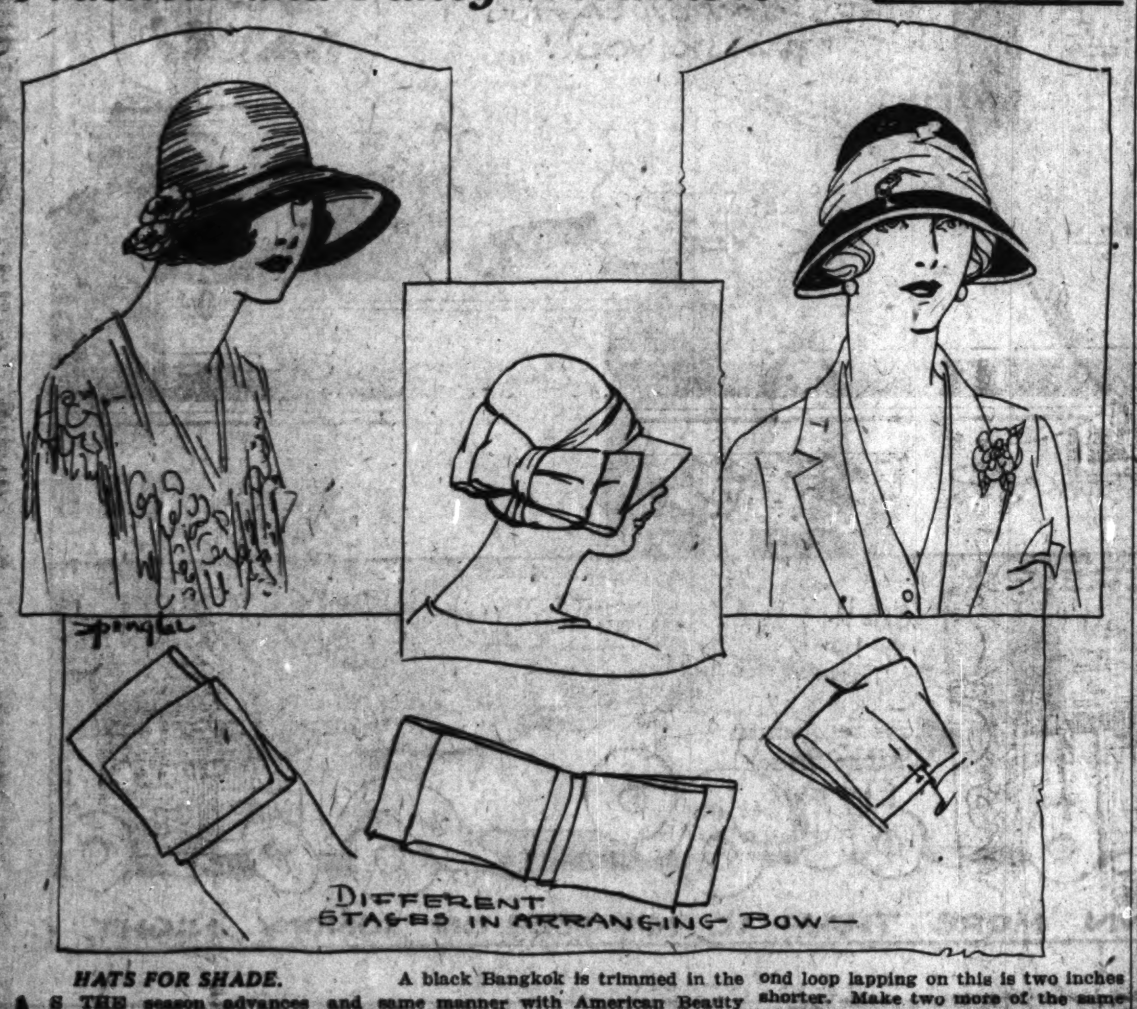
Practical and Fancy Needlework

By CLOTILDE



Sprague
DIFFERENT STAGES IN ARRANGING BOW—

HATS FOR SHADE.

AS THE season advances and warm weather arrives, we begin to think of hats that shade our eyes from the hot sun and those which match the pretty dresses. Leghorns, Milans, Bangkoks, Balibunkils, and hair hats are the kinds worn. They come in all shapes and colors—natural, jonquil, yellow, cassia, beechnut brown, tango pink, cocoa, and golden brown.

The hat shown is natural color leghorn—a mushroom brim with a short back and a skull fitting crown. There is a bias flange of black velvet on the edge of the brim, and a narrow bias band around the bottom of the crown. This is trimmed with three flat roses on the upper brim and one on the under brim. Three-eights yards of velvet are required. This should be cut on the bias.

A black Bangkok is trimmed in the same manner with American Beauty colored velvet, only instead of flowers, one-fourth of a yard of bias velvet is drawn around crown, finished off at the right side where drape was started.

A black velvet crown may be put on a leghorn brim and visa versa. Any kind of narrow metal or grosgrain ribbon is used to bind the edges of hats and the same ribbon can be used plaited into ornaments for trimming. Large bows of wide ribbon are also good style. To make the latter, use three yards of six inch ribbon. Make the first loop nine inches long. The second loop lapping on this is two inches shorter. Make two more of the same measurement but turning the other way from the center.

Sew this across with heavy thread Make a small, lengthwise plait about one inch deep in the center, and sew this firmly also. Place this on a large hat on the right side, so that one end slants on the side crown and the other on the brim of the hat. Use the piece of ribbon left and sew it under the place the bow is put on, making one deep plait in this all the way round the crown. Then bring it across the bow, and finish off the under brim of the hat into the head size.

ANSWER TO WHAT'S WRONG HERE

1. Have good outdoor manners as well as indoor ones.—E. C. B.
2. Do not put on your hat in a theater before the curtain is down.—R. S.
3. Throw glass in the garbage pail, not in the alley, where it will puncture your neighbors' tires.—M. J. H.
4. Do not retrieve anything which falls from the table.—C. W.
5. Do not draw pictures on the tablecloth.—V. R.
6. It is never necessary to be uncomplimentary.—N. A.
7. Do not throw paper on the streets. Waste paper boxes are provided for the purpose.—M. H.
8. Do not carry handkerchief or powder puff in the bodice of your gown and have to fish for it in public.—C. C. E.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Carlsbad Sprudel Salt

The natural remedy for

STOMACH TROUBLE

Drs. Jaworsky and Laube, stomach specialists, highly recommend a teaspoonful of the natural Carlsbad Sprudel Salt dissolved in 3 glasses of warm water before breakfast and 1 glass at night. This will correct loss of appetite and "acid stomach" and greatly relieve the dull pains and sense of overfulness.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of Calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The Calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

If your druggist does not have Calonite, send $1.00 to the Research Laboratories, 760 Thompson Building, Chicago, and a package will be sent you by mail.

Answers to Love Problems

By Doris Blake.

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

He's Changed Now.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17 and considered quite good looking. I went out with a fellow who is a few years older than I for about four months and have learned to love him very much and he has told me also that he loves me. Lately, whenever he meets me on the street, he passes me without saying a word. Do you think there is some one else? If so, please advise me what to do, as I love him.

"HEARTBROKEN."

Had you done something to displease or offend him you'd remember it, so apparently there is another young lady who has taken his fancy for the time. Even so, Heartbroken, this does not excuse his discourtesy. A friendly greeting costs nothing and means so much. I'm afraid you'll just have to accept things as they are.

You just KNOW she's Well
Your child, too, can be gay, cheerful and light hearted
You just know she's NOT Well
There is no reason for her to look or feel this way

CONSTIPATION means SICKNESS

More human suffering, physical and mental, has resulted from constipation than from any other source. The entire future life of a child can be ruined by lack of attention to the proper daily movement of the bowels. If the bowels do not act at least twice daily it means constipation—that means the bowels are clogged up with the accumulated residue of five to fifteen meals or more with consequent pollution, poison and disease.

Dr. Caldwell's
SYRUP PEPSIN
The Family Laxative

—relieves constipation. It is a combination of Egyptian senna, pepsin and aromatics prepared in liquid form, inviting to the taste, and smooth, pleasant and easy in its action. It is the kind of a prescription a good doctor will give you. Used nationally over 30 years.

WHEN CONSTIPATED TAKE
DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN

Pleasing As Honey To Take! Easy As Nature In Action!

For both baby and grandma. Syrup Pepsin quickly brings relief to the most severe cases of constipation and the doses may be gradually reduced as Nature resumes her proper functions. 10,000,000 bottles used annually prove its effectiveness.

It is sold everywhere medicine is sold—and guaranteed. Try it at our risk. Your druggist will return your money if it fails to do as promised.

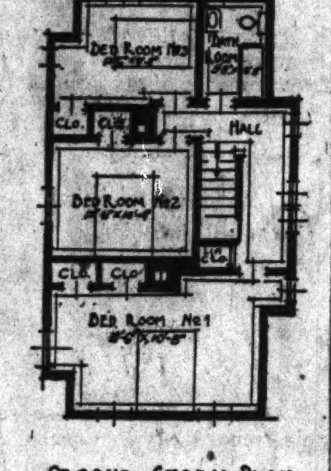
FIRST STORY PLAN



SECOND STORY PLAN

TRUE DUTCH COLONIAL.

FOR the person of moderate means, Architect John F. Suppes of Akron, O., has designed a Dutch colonial house of unusual charm. As may be seen from the floor plans shown today, the six rooms are well laid out, with no waste space on either floor.

The exterior is a true copy of Dutch colonial style, even to the two benches on each side of the entrance, but the interior has been arranged in a more modern way.

This house may be constructed of several materials. Face bricks always look well on a house of this style. Frame, which has been used for many years, gives a homelike appearance. The house, as illustrated here, however, is of stucco construction, recommended most highly by many architects on account of its economy of erection and upkeep, and the fact that there is practically no limit to the number of charming effects which may be produced with this material. Stucco, on a base of metal lath, has the warmth of a frame house and the low upkeep and fire resistiveness of brick.

With stucco walls of cream white or gray, the gables and window frames painted white, the roof dull red or green, the shutters trimmed a dark green, and the whole set against a background of bright flowers and green trees, one has a picture of home in the truest sense of the word.

The entrance leads directly into a small reception hall off which are the living room, dining room, and kitchen. An open stairway leads to the second floor. The otherwise waste space under the stairs is used as a closet for guests wraps.

Taking in the full width of the house is the living room at the left of the entrance hall. There are windows on three sides. The outstanding feature of the room is a large, old fashioned fireplace, patterned after those in the colonial Dutch homesteads. Of course, a more modern style of fireplace may be substituted, as many prefer gas, logs or electric fire baskets, but those who have ever dreamed before a fire of real blazing logs would never substitute the artificial.

Directly behind the living room is the dining room, joined to it by a wide cased opening. This room is practically square and is lighted by three large recessed windows. French doors lead to an open porch serving as an out-door living room, during the summer months. Screened in, it makes an ideal out-door dining room as well.

Laid out to save as many steps for the housewife as possible, is a good sized kitchen. A built-in combination kitchen cabinet and cupboard serves the purpose of a pantry and permits everything to be kept within arm's reach. The ice box is located in the entry, just off the kitchen, where it may be iced from outside, still being easily accessible from the sink or work table. A doorway to the basement stairs is also located in this entrance.

The second floor is given over to the sleeping quarters. There are three large, airy rooms. The largest of the three is situated in front, over the living room. Four windows insure a cool room even on warmest nights, and two closets provide ample space for clothing.

Somewhat smaller are the other two rooms, but both have good clothes closets and ample light and air.

The bathroom is at the rear of the house and is specified to have modern plumbing equipment throughout. The floor and sidewalls up to the wainscoat are of tile, while the balance of the walls and ceiling is finished with waterproof plaster and painted white, so that the entire room may be kept clean and sanitary at all times.

In a house of this size it is always advisable to excavate under the entire building. The cost is not great, the space is always of value, and the possibility of having a damp house is eliminated.

Heating is a question of major importance in every home, and too much investigation and thought cannot be given to the subject before the house is started. Especially is this true in northern climates, where a poor heating plant not only causes considerable inconvenience but consumes twice the fuel necessary for solid comfort with a good plant. If the house is well built in the first place it will not be necessary to heat the "entire outdoors." One of the many advantages of a house constructed as the one illustrated today is that the walls may be quilted with one of the prepared materials now on the market. The house is then so insulated against cold that the saving in fuel soon pays for the entire expense involved.

As illustrated here, this house has been designed primarily for a suburban home where there would be sufficient grounds to show off its many charms. However, if it is desired to build in the city, it may be faced with the present right side to the front, this being the usual manner of placing colonial houses.

SLANGUAGE

SLING US SOME SLANG.

The Sunday Tribune will pay $1 for each original slang expression to take the place of the hackneyed standbys:

It's the cat's whiskers!
What do you know about that!
Put it in your pipe and smoke it!
Heaven have pity!
I'll tell the world!

There are dozens of other slang expressions so old they have whiskers on them. Let's replace them with some shiny new ones.

$1 will be paid for every phrase published.

Be sure to sign your full name and give your address, street number, and name of city where you live.

Lists must be original. No phrase using any sacred name will be considered.

The Impression He Makes Means Much to You

Men are so apt to get careless in their appearance. Not that they forget to put on a fresh collar—but they neglect the little things. They forget about little spots here and there on their clothes. And so much depends on a man's appearance. Other men judge him by it.

Bring a Better Appetite to the Breakfast Table

DO YOU approach the breakfast table with the right sort of an appetite? If you don't, suppose you try a most pleasant way of stimulating the morning appetite.

Drink a cup of VEGEX (a third of a teaspoon in hot water) half an hour before retiring, another cup immediately upon arising. Do this for two weeks and see what a change there is in your breakfast appetite.

In addition, you will surely note other beneficial effects, for VEGEX restores to modern diet certain essentials lost in the refining, milling and processing of many foods. It is a concentrate of grain-grown yeast, and contains iron and iodine. VEGEX is delicious—it makes other foods taste better. Families in all walks of life are making VEGEX a daily part of their diet.

Increased factory output makes possible

Great price

The savings you can make on square-tube beds will astonish you

Call on your furniture merchant. Ask to see his finest Simmons square-tube beds. Pick the one you like best without giving a thought to price. Then ask what it costs. The figure he names will be so low you will wonder how such value is possible.

But the value is there. Speeding up production in the world's largest bedding factories has made radical savings on the best square-tube beds built.

Even Simmons' masterpieces—the beds you have seen advertised in full colors in the magazines—are now brought within easy reach. Their new prices are actually below pre-war price levels.

See these wonderful new values. Learn how many dollars you can save by buying now.

The Season's Most Popular 50 and 54-In. Silks

Here you'll find the weaves, patterns and colorings most in favor this season—in the most economical widths—50 and 54 inch—and only one and one-half yards are required to make a dress!

Bordered Pongee

$2.93 Yd.

50 inches wide. A variety of beautiful printed combinations on the natural colored background; all forming the much desired border effect. Only 1½ yards are required for a dress.

Black Flat Crepe

$4.85 Yd.

54 inches wide. A soft, heavy quality in a deep jet black, especially woven for coats, capes, dresses and ensembles. 1½ yards are sufficient for a one-piece dress.

Printed Radium

$4.85 Yd.

54 inches wide. One of the most popular wide width materials; a washable quality in many beautiful effects, ideal for dress, house and street wear.

Printed Flat Crepes

$6.85 Yd.

54 inches wide. Perfectly woven; soft and durable, with unusual weight. In beautiful printed designs and colorings, just the thing for smart summer dresses.

Printed Crepes

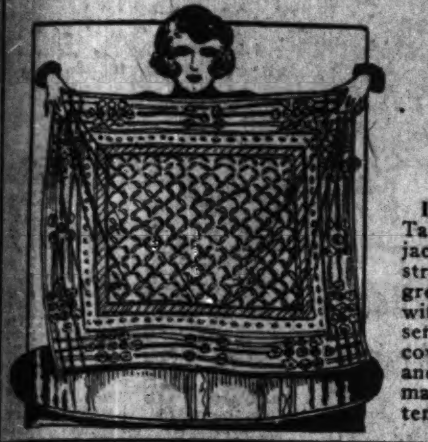
$7.43 Yd.

54 inches wide. In a great variety of beautiful and unusual designs. For capes, wraps, dresses and ensembles, priced very low indeed for this exceptional quality.

TABLE COVERS

Imported

88c



Imported Belgian Tapestry Table Covers, woven in neat jacquard designs with colored stripe borders; in novelty red, green and gold; also light green with color combinations. For serving as well as stand table covers, etc. Sizes 35x36 inches and 44x45 inches. (Phone and mail orders given prompt attention.)

The Trade of Beautiful Letters

By H. L. Mencken.

It is my observation as an editor that most beginning authors are attracted to the trade of letters not because they have anything to say but simply because it seems easy. Let us imagine an ambitious and somewhat gassy young gal, turned out of high school with good marks in "English"—that is, in the sort of literary composition practiced and approved by schoolmarms. Having read "Ulysses," "Jurgen," and "Babbitt," she is disinclined to follow her mother into the jaws of holy matrimony—or, at all events, she shrinks from marrying such a clod as her father is and as her brothers and male classmates will be tomorrow. What to do? The professions demand technical equipment. Commerce is sordid. Most of the fine arts are regarded, by her family, as immoral. So she pays $3 down on a second hand typewriter, lays in a stock of copy paper, and proceeds to enrich the national literature.

JOSEPH HERGESHEIMER, who's a far cry from the rubber stamp novelist

It is such aspirants, I suppose, who keep the pot boiling for the schools of short story writing and scenario writing that now swarm in the land. Certainly these schools, in so far as I have any acquaintance with them, offer nothing of value to the beginner of genuine talent. They seem to be run, in the main, by persons as completely devoid of critical sense as so many congressmen, street railway curve greasers, or Methodist revivalists. Their text books are masses of rubbish. But no doubt their highfalutin nonsense seems impressive enough to the customers I have mentioned, for it is both vague and cocksure—an almost irresistible combination. So a hundred thousand second hand typewriters rattle and jingle in ten thousand remote and lonely towns, and the mail of every magazine editor in America is as heavy as the mail of a get rich quick stock broker.

Unanimously Commonplace and Stupid.

Unluckily, there is seldom anything in this mail to bulge his eye and make his heart go pitapat. What he finds in it, day in and day out, is simply the same dull, obvious, shoddy stuff—the same banal and threadbare ideas set forth in the same flabby and unbeautiful words. They all seem to write alike, as, indeed, they all seem to think alike. They react to stimuli with the machinelike uniformity and precision of soldiers in a file. The spectacle of life is to all of them exactly the same spectacle. They bring no more of it of private, singular vision than so many photographic lenses.

In brief, they are unanimously commonplace, unanimously stupid. Overeducation has cursed them with aspirations beyond their capacities, and they offer the art of letters only the gifts suitable to the crafts of the jazz baby and the schoolmarm. They come from an intellectual level where conformity seems the highest of goods, and so they lack the primary requisite of the imaginative author; the capacity to see the human comedy afresh, to discover new relations between things, to unearth new significances in man's eternal struggle with his fate. What they have to say is simply what any moderately intelligent suburban pastor or country editor would

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

Elinor Glyn creeps shyly forth with a new blossom from her neurotic garden.

A comparatively pale flower, "Man and Maid," adapted from the novel, with its hero wearied of the games of Passion's Playground and casting yearning eyes toward the Simple Life and clergy-benefited union with a Good Woman.

HARRIET HAMMOND plays the heroine in "Man and Maid."

Several views of the authoress grace the opening of the film. She is seen sitting at her desk, gazing concentratedly into space, waiting, apparently, for inspiration to descend upon her.

It descends. She writes, and these words flow forth upon the white paper before her:

"Women do one of these things to a man—elevate him, degrade him—or bore him to death." She signs her name firmly—"Elinor Glyn." (Elinor writes a nice hand.)

The picture proper starts.

You are taken back to the year 1918.

The hero of the piece is a rich and heroic soldier on leave in Paris because of wounds sustained in battle. He decides to write a book, and needs a stenographer.

Fate Works Against Our Heroine.

The heroine is an expert stenographer. She's the daughter of a decaying English gentleman with a passion for gambling, and none too honest. He, his loyal, invalid wife, this big daughter, and a little daughter abide in humble lodgings maintained principally by the earnings of the heroine, who is employed by the Red Cross, which has offices near British headquarters.

She has been observed by friends of the hero, and they decide here is just the girl to aid their noble and gifted friend in his contemplated literary endeavors. They approach her with the proposition.

At first she says, No, no—WHAT, work in a gentleman's APARTMENT—SHE——!

BUT, the pleaders are persistent; food is scarce at home, for it seems that father, despite his little tricks, is unlucky; a bomb explodes, flinging the hero on the heroine's mercy, so to speak. She discovers him unconscious, and pillows his head on her knee. A bright idea occurs to her:

She will work for him, but she will wear black spectacles

Figures of Opera That Do Not Sing

By Edward Moore.

THERE is a great comfort about statistics, particularly at the end of a season. After having spent several months in trying to estimate the esthetic values of ninety-eight operatic performances to the community and hearing about fifty-two more in other communities, there is something antiseptic and wholesome about learning that each performance cost $12,453.18. It is hard to say why, but that final eighteen cents is particularly consolatory.

The figures were reached by a process of long division in the course of Mr. Insull's annual report to the guarantors of the Chicago Civic Opera company. There was also something of a thrill, though I admit it was probably less pleasurable to the guarantors than to an outsider, in his statement that Chicago supported the opera to the extent of $9,167.83 a performance, and that the road cities did better, paying an average of $10,986.43 a performance for the privilege of seeing and hearing Chaliapin, Raisa, Edith Mason, and the rest of the touring stars. Either figure is considerably less than cost and accounts for the guarantors' being called upon to pay 80 per cent of their subscribed guaranties this season.

In one item of Mr. Insull's report there is the possibility of a doubt, at least the possibility of another explanation. He says: "The receipts from the performances given during the first half of the Chicago season were not as large as were expected. The falling off in attendance was due to bad business conditions throughout the country, which affected amusements everywhere, and the theatrical and concert business throughout the country was the poorest in years. Conditions became better after Jan. 1, and during the last half of the season the attendance equalled the estimates made by the management last spring."

Then Came a Change for the Better.

The facts of attendance are quite true. But, while admitting the lack of nutriment residing in post-mortems, I seem to remember that during the last half of the season the performances became much better; that some of the most astounding and inept renditions ever given by any Chicago opera company had by that time passed into history, if not oblivion; that some of the more notable stars had begun operations, and that intake began to reflect artistic conditions with some degree of responsiveness.

This department yields to none in the stimulus to be derived from a column of costs and receipts, but it has always been more or less cold to the idea that statistics, as such, furnish any real reason for buying opera tickets. It has always cherished the belief that a well chosen opera well cast—and by that it means well cast throughout, in second and third parts as well as stellar—carefully rehearsed, and performed with flaming impulse will do more for the reputation and prosperity of an opera company than any number of columns of figures. Opera, which charges the highest prices of any entertainment on earth, must be the best enter-

"LOVES OF LULU" HAS UGLY THEME

By Burns Mantle

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—If my informants are correct—and I have reason to believe they are—Winthrop Ames set a new standard for New York theater lessees that may yet have an important bearing upon the production of plays hereabouts.

The Booth theater, on which Mr. Ames holds the lease, had announced the production of a drama from the German of Frank Wedekind called "The Loves of Lulu."

MARGOT KELLY in the title role of "The Loves of Lulu."

In German it is known as "Erdgeist" or "Earthspirit," as the program explains. But "The Loves of Lulu," you must admit, is snappier and has more Broadway lure.

The piece has been in rehearsal for some time with Ullrich Haupt, the German actor, and Margot Kelly, the girl of the flaming topknot, in the leading rôles. But apparently Mr. Ames had paid little attention to it until the last rehearsals were reached.

Then he investigated, and promptly threw it into the alley. It was not, he is reported to have said, fit for his favorite playhouse. And he was right.

The producers, so far unknown, thereupon scurried around and rented the 49th street theater for "Lulu," and she made her bow on Monday night.

So Ugly It Cannot Live.

It is ugly, this "Earthspirit," but I don't know that we need worry about it. It probably will not last long or appeal to or harm any one worth worrying about so long as it does last.

It is the story of a sexly female infant taken at the age of 12 and corrupted by a somewhat beastly doctor.

Thereafter he cannot be rid of her. Twice he marries her to others, but they, learning what she is, die violently.

Finally, after his own complete surrender and utter degradation, he is shot in the back by his Lulu, and she is turned over to the police by his degenerate son.

A sweet thing, if that is the sort of thing you like. Miss Kelly plays her part of it frankly and without stays, steel or moral. Mr. Haupt is squirmy and pathetically ugly.

And More Sordidness.

The best line I heard at the performance of an awful play called "Flesh" last week was spoken by Harry Hershfield, the cartoonist, who was in the audience.

The first act had been finished. As the curtain fell, half the audience, smiling wisely at the other half, struggled toward the exits.

Hershfield paused in passing. "Gosh!" he exploded. "Those seats of mine are terrible! I can hear every word!"

"Flesh" was produced by one A. Lamb. It is another of the theatrical mysteries that creep in in the spring. Lamb, they tell me, is a song writer, or was, and author of that familiar story of other years, "A Bird in a Gilded Cage."

If he had been able to see his play as a burlesque he

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

LETTERS have been mailed hither within the week to inquire about words of mine indicating that Miss Grace George is the best actress of high-comedy rôles now in the English-speaking theater. The sense of fourteen communications is in one from Miss Cecelia Selbert, who says: "Your implication that Miss George is in possession of the primacy among actresses of comedy need exasperate none of us; but it leaves some of us wondering how you are going to dispose of Mrs. Fiske, Miss Barrymore, Miss Laurette Taylor, Miss Fay Compton, Miss Marie Löhr, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Miss Katharine Cornell, and Miss Margaret Anglin. (My excuse for listing Miss Compton, Miss Löhr, and Mrs. Campbell is that you were inclusive as to all actresses of the English-speaking stage today.) As to Miss Cornell, while I agree with you that her part in 'The Green Hat' is not one to test any well-equipped actress of modern drama, you surely cannot ignore the claim she filed to consideration some months ago by her acting in the title-rôle of 'Candida'!

PAUL GUILFOYLE He's fussing up the first act of "The Green Hat," and getting applause for it.

"I trust, Mr. Donaghey, my memory is functioning rightly when I say that you have within the year written in high praise of Miss Taylor's skill, although she was not at the time in Chicago to evoke your laudation. This letter is a sort of composite: seven or eight of us talked the matter over after reading this [Tuesday] morning's natty report on Miss George in 'She Had to Know,' which only one of us as yet has seen; so, if questioning you provokes you to rage, try to divide it among us. . . . 'Yes,' as you would say (dots and all—'yes': 'The Lady Next-Door' is bully; and thanks for urging us to go!"

Disposing of the Others.

I printed no "implication" as to Miss George's topping the list of high-comedy actresses: I merely stated that she did; and there was no qualification. She does; and that is all there is to that, Miss Selbert et al. . . . And, having disposed of Miss George, I cannot fairly be called upon to dispose of the others Miss Selbert names: not fairly.

I should not say that the sheer comedic style in which Miss George today excels is or ever has been the best medium for Miss Barrymore or Miss Anglin, although both act comedy with skill and brains when required to do so, and I have seen Miss Anglin in two or three portrayals that were rather exquisite in their fun. I do not think that Miss Taylor considers her gifts,—of which I am in devout admiration,—to have to do with the fine and elegant comedies of this or any other age. Mrs. Campbell's touch in comedy is hearty, lusty, and physical. Miss Compton and Miss Löhr are third-rate actresses in the matter of talent. I did not see Miss Cornell's Candida; and I am unable to discern that any demonstration in the rôle (which is not at all exacting) could place it in the category of high-comedy. As to Mrs. Fiske,

BETWEEN JACKSON AND ADAMS

This Thing and That Thing of the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

while I have since boyhood held an immense measure of restrained and well-controlled liking for her, she as a comedienne has never sent me into cheers. Mrs. Fiske and Miss George have had at least two rôles in common—Cyprienne in "Divorçons!" and Cynthia in Langdon Mitchell's overrated re-write of that piece, "The New-York Idea"; and Miss George was the better player of both parts. . . .

And the foregoing answers all other letters on the given theme.

Comedies with a Basis of Ideas.

Both Miss George's vehicle and the new piece in the Cort are good plays, shrewd plays, and real plays; and both are topical, credible, and actable. Ideas are the foundation of each: you go out of the theater with something to remember, to muse over, and to recall to mind. . . . I like the adaptation Miss George has made of Geraldy's "Si Je Voulais"—not because she has, as the critics' cliché has it, "faithfully preserved the delicate atmosphere of the original French work," But because she hasn't. The woman eager to know if she be desirable in the eyes and hearts of men is not a creation of Geraldy's: this thinking Frenchman has merely taken a universal urge and put it into this especial fable. . . . As to the acting of Miss George's associates, I could easily get along with less bounce and noise and rumpus from the men, whose antics put them frequently between the play and the audience. The purpose of all the other players should be to provide a background for Miss George—not because she is Miss George, the star, but because she is the actress of a character which takes life from and gives life to all the other characters. I am certain that Mr. McRae would be ten times funnier in the last act, as he is, if he were merely one-tenth as eager as he is to be funny in the first act.

It is probable that I said all there is to be said of "The Lady Next-Door" in my report of it the 11th. It is not only one of the best plays of the season: it is one of the best plays of native make that have been staged. Besides, it is native as comedy: native in the sense that "The Show-Off" was native, and a play derived from a survey of American social and domestic phenomena. There are as many Ed Grahams and as many Ladies Next-Door [Deo gratias!] as there are Show-Offs; and they belong in the theater when the purpose is to footlight what's going on. There's something deficient in the adult man or woman who doesn't find laughter at war with a catch in the throat when Ed and the theater-woman talk things over in the second act, and he tells her he has some cigarettes with him, and she lets him know he is frightfully sharp and over-pitch when he tries to pick out "The Blue Danube" on his mandolin. . . .

And the acting of "The Lady Next-Door" is just about what it should be. Quite likely, Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Rice, like all other playwrights, had a cast of celebrities in mind as they sketched in and then worked out the characters, and that not a member of the cast in the Cort was in their thoughts as they put the play on paper; but I doubt that any cast they fancied could have given a better performance of their bitter, genuine, ironic little comedy than is to be had from Mr. Spotswood, Miss Lyon, and their companions in Chicago.

If what their respective accountants tell me be true, last week's two new plays and the one of the week before, "New Brooms," are in growing favor as day follows day in the traffic at the ticket-window. The managers who produce, invest, and take the chances must be credited with a desperate effort to keep the Chicago theaters open into and through the Summer; and I should be unselfishly happy if they have guessed right with these three comedies. An evening with any of them is decently and profitably spent.

Novelties in Manhattan.

"Man or Devil?" by Jerome K. Jerome, with Lionel Barrymore. . . . This play was postponed from last week.

"The Lady of the Rose," by Martin Flavin, with Miss Margaret Mower, Henry Herbert, Howard Lang, and Edwin Maxwell. . . . Mr. Flavin is the Chicagoan whose "Children of the Moon" was given in Chicago in the late Autumn of 1923.

There has been talk of another of those "all-star" revivals of "Diplomacy,"—which, by-the-way, is described in the New-York World as "one of William Gillette's greatest successes." Mr. Gillette took part about ten years ago in a revival of the sort; and I do not think his performing therein was among the things for which he is kindly to be remembered. Miss Marie Doro and Miss Blanche Bates were in it with him. . . . The old play stands up pretty well in revival; at least, it always has. It was good stuff when it was written; and there is an immense theatrical vitality in many of the scenes. Some Chicago playgoers may recall a revival made in 1906 in what was preposterously dubbed the New Theater, which was the present Central. Sardou's original title, "Dora," was used; and the version was merely a flat translation of the French work, which, in fact, is less effective when acted than the adaptation made by the late Clement Scott, a London drama-critic of fame in the last century. . . . Miss Henrietta Crosman, Miss Amelia Bingham, Miss Beverly Sitgreaves, and Norman Trevor are mentioned to take part in the proposed disinterment.

Henry E. Dixey has the notion that he ought to resume acting in Chicago in a week or two in a revival of "The Old Soak," and is talking it over with the cut-rate managers.

George Arliss is to close his New-York run in Galsworthy's "Old English" this week. . . . He will come back from England in the Autumn to tour in the piece, wherein his acting is said to be the most effective he has yet achieved.

"Craig's Wife," which is a new piece by the author of "The Show-Off," is to be staged in the Autumn.

Today's New-York Times lists fifty-two shows for this week, although ever so many of them are leaving but the faintest of moisture from their breathing on the box-office mirror, that touchstone of theatrical life or death. And, so, to those who make it their business to be intimately acquainted with the state of health in the theater, it has become apparent that the season of 1924-'25 is as good as over.

"Abie's Irish Rose" next Saturday will pass into its fourth year of uninterrupted run in New-York, where Mr. Kaufman, in the Times, lists it "among the town's strongest financial attractions. There is," he adds, "some bitter talk among envious competitors of having the play legally outlawed at the end of its tenth year; but, probably, nothing will come of it."

Sinclair Lewis is said to have written a play named "City Hall." . . . And Walter Huston, who emerged from the varieties to become something of a somebody in New-York by his acting in Miss Zona Gale's "Mister Pitt" and now in O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms," is mentioned for the principal rôle.

And it is further said that somebody has had made and is going to stage a play based on Ring Lardner's "The Golden Honeymoon," and that Mr. Lardner, himself, as yet knows nothing of the project. . . . He is among the writers eager to have recognition in the theater; but, as yet, he has not clicked, save as one or two of his interludes have been performed in revue.

Miss Elsie Janis, eager to go to Europe, is reported to have been deterred for a fortnight while she performs in the two-a-day for $8,000.

Miss Ruth Chatterton's experiment with a piece named "Women and Ladies" has been unsuccessful. The play was an adaptation by Cosmo Hamilton of a French work by Louis Verneuil. . . . And now she is going to try one named "The Siren's Daughter," by Mrs. Wallace Irwin.

According to Variety, A. L. Erlanger gave $175,000 cash to the Messrs. Selwyn as a bonus in the arrangement whereby he will manage their Chicago theater for the next ten years.

Percy Hemus, the baritone who sang in Chicago two years ago as the star of Mozart's "The Impresario" in the Studebaker, has been put into the cast of "The Love-Song," the operetta with a score made up of Offenbach's music.

NEW HERE, AND INTERESTING

MISS CATHERINE WILLARD

SHE is acting a vainglorious grass-widow in "She Had to Know," with Miss Grace George, and doing it just about as it should be done. To her fall the lines that start the mischievous comedy on its merry way by inciting a happy wife to examine her latent possibilities as a siren. . . . Miss Willard is a new-comer in the Chicago theaters—at least, so far as important parts are concerned; and her manager, William A. Brady, says she will be an important young actress when he carries out his plans for her. She has been acting for him in New-York in "Simon Called Peter."

New Playbills

What Is Due in the Chicago Theaters as Far Ahead as the Managers Know or Care to Tell About.

OPENING TONIGHT:

Miss Marjorie Rambeau in "Cheerio!" in the La Salle.—First time in nearly three years [other than in the varieties] of an actress who has been interesting in her few appearances here. The play is by Dermot Darby, an Irish writer, and has to do with the adventures of a Bolshevist's daughter in the London studios and ateliers. . . . Vis-à-vis with Miss Rambeau will be Roy Collins, an actor credited by the New-York critics with being good.

"White Cargo" in the Princess.—The play about white men in Africa which was through a long run this season in the Cort. . . . Leon Gordon, who made the play on a basis of one named "Hell's Playground," is to act Witzel in this engagement; and Miss Anette Margules will be the Tondeleyo. Others will be Wallis Clark, Allen Connor, and George Duryea.

"Just Married" in the Central.—The farce shown three years ago through a run in the La Salle in revival.

SUNDAY, MAY 31:

"The Gorilla" in the Harris.—A guess-again play by Ralph Spence that is said to be one of the sound successes in New-York, where it was made known a fortnight ago. . . . James Marlowe, Miss Elizabeth Carmichael, Lon Hascall, and Curtis Cooksey are named for the Chicago cast.

"Artists and Models" in the Apollo.—Second issue of the revue of like name shown in this theater last Summer. It has been on view in New-York since early in the season.

"June Days," with Miss Elizabeth Hines, in the Garrick.—A version with songs and dances of Mrs. Alice Duer Miller's comedy named "The Charm-School." . . . Roy Royston, Miss Millie James, Leo Kohlman, Miss Winifred Harris, and Miss Julia Ralph will be in the cast.

MONDAY, JUNE 1:

Mrs. Samuel Insull in "The School for Scandal" in the Illinois.—Special revival through a fortnight of Sheridan's comedy for the benefit of St.-Luke's Hospital, marking Mrs. Insull's first appearance in the theater in many years. [She was a well-known actress as Miss Gladys Wallis.] . . . Mrs. Insull, who will be the Lady Teazle, will have the assistance of professional players, including Frederick Lewis, Arnold Lucy, Wilfred Seagram, Richie Ling, and Miss Florence Edney.

"Loves of Lulu" Has Ugly Theme

By Burns Mantle

might have made something of it, but, played seriously, it is hopelessly crude and entirely inexcusable.

The heroine is a femme du pave who agrees to change rooms with a society girl the night the latter's fiancé is to call. She (the society bud) plans, I gather, to surprise the poor fellow and teach him a lesson. At least she will prove him a liar, for he has sworn to her that his past has been practically clear of skirts.

With certain upturnings of the nose at the cheapness of the owner's wardrobe the society girl finally moves into her pink nightgown, leaving her own underthings where they are, and is in the street girl's bed when there is an ominous knocking at the door.

A moment later a man enters. The girl in bed believes him to be the man she is to surprise, but the audience knows him to be the lover of the girl who rents the room. A large, rough person is he, just out of jail and fearfully jealous, because he has been paying the rent.

Well, there is a situation for you! But nothing comes of it—nothing but a little cheap melodrama in which the audience joyously hooted. There are the two men finally and a fight, and the society girl escapes. The next day the street girl returns to her reformed jail bird, and the society girl engages herself to another man.

None of the actors is known hereabouts. Today, they tell me, the author, taking his cue from the treatment of a ribald press, is trying to turn the piece into a burlesque by writing in the comments of the critics in a lobby scene.

Dallas Scores Again.

For the second time the Dallas Little theater group sent a quartet of amateurs 1,200 miles to play in the local Little theater tournament last week. Also for the second time the Texans took home the Belasco cup, which is the first prize. Their play was a sketch of Negro life called "The No 'Count Boy," written by Paul Green.

Not much of a trophy, this cup, as it stands on a pedestal in the lobby. A pint container such as any good golfer is likely to bring home any week and proudly display to prove that he has not been wasting his Saturdays and Sundays the last seventeen years, but a trophy that is becoming of increasing importance to Little theater amateurs all over the country.

There are seven or eight hundred of these groups and many of them have their own theaters. This year there were entries in the tournament from seven states—the Dallas folk from Texas, the Albion college players from Michigan, the Players' club from Columbus, O.; the Penn State Players from Pennsylvania, the Kanawha Players from West Virginia, the Cranford players from New Jersey, and thirteen groups from New York.

There were four prizes this year. One of $200 for the best unpublished one act play, which was won by the studio players of Manhattan with a piece called "Gloria Mundi," and three for $100 each, won by the Huguenot Players of New Rochelle, N. Y., with a melodrama, "The Yellow Triangle"; the Dallas Players with "The No 'Count Boy," and the Kittredge Players of Manhattan with Alfred Sutro's "The Bracelet."

The Dallas Players were not eligible for the $200 prize because their "No 'Count Boy" has been published. But when it came to deciding which of the four prize winning groups was entitled to the Belasco trophy for the best presentation of any play entered they won handily.

I saw them play and they are exceptionally gifted. The judges were a little upset by the fact that Ben Smith, who played the titular part in "The No 'Count Boy," is something of a specialist. Half the charm of his performance and of the play, they insisted, is created by his ability to perform sweetly upon the harmonica and give imitations of steam trains and things. Was it fair to the other players to pit them against a lad so gifted playing a part that may have been written to fit him?

There were hours of discussion, and finally it was decided that, notwithstanding the harmonica virtuoso's special gifts, "The No 'Count Boy" still led, and the vote was recorded as being unanimous.

It is a simple little story of a lazy, imaginative colored boy who drifts into the yard of a neighboring plantation and almost wins a bride away from a lover who is blessed with a hard practical common sense, but is without imagination.

The playboy boasts of his rides through the world and the thrill of them; of the cities he has seen, and the great falls and mountains and purple clouds. He plays tunes on his mouth harp to support his visions and himself, and he sleeps wherever the night finds him.

The girl is a little inclined to follow him down the road into the path of the moon—until his mammy comes after him with a stick and sends him home for the good for nothing dreamer she insists he is. The bride-to-be is cured of her visioning, but her heart is heavy and she is in tears at the play's end.

Last year another quartet of Dallas players won the Belasco prize with a bit of drama called "Judge Lynch," and this, I understand, is now being played in vaudeville in the west.

If it happens they also send "The No 'Count Boy" touring, and it comes your way, I advise you to see it. I hope, too, you will see Ben Smith, Geraldine Knight, and Jack Hyman—particularly Mr. Smith and Miss Knight—play it. She may have been a professional at one time, but she seemed just a little bit better than most professionals to me. So I suspect she is pure amateur.

The Smith girls' play, "Gloria Mundi," written by Patricia Brown, a graduate of two years ago, revealed a scene in an insane asylum. All the characters are inmates, as it transpires, but the audience doesn't know it until the end. And is not quite sure then. Isn't that just like our dear neighbors and ourselves?

Revival of Rosmersholm.

The Stagers, the newest of the art groups, have revived "Rosmersholm" for three weeks in 52d street, with Margaret Wycherly playing Rebecca West and Warren Williams the Rosmer.

This is an intelligent revival and well played. Personally, I do not care for Miss Wycherly's rather conscious Rebecca, but that is not important. Nor do I get any tremendous thrill from the gloomy Henrik's study of another meddling idealist's tilt with [illegible] and spiritual forces she can[illegible], but [illegible] for the [illegible]. And good luck to them.

Down in Grand street the neighborhood troupe of earnest experimenters is doing a revival of Sheridan's old burlesque, "The Critic." Obvious and dull, I calls it, but I don't feel that matters, either. It probably was a good burlesque when it had the classical repertoire to shoot at.

Now that we have only infrequent reminders of the sort of play that glorified the past, the burlesque of "The Tragedy Rehearsed" loses everything to me but such point as the performers can give it. Fortunately, they have humor in Grand street, and this helps. Ian MacLaren, Adele Klaer, Whitford Kane, and Charles Warburton are happily cast.

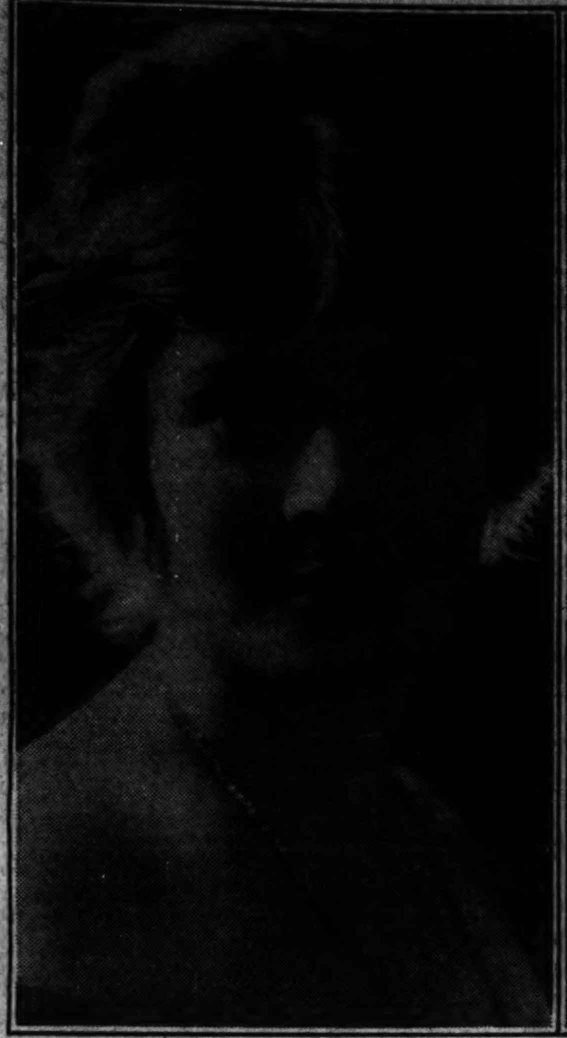
ONE'S IN A NEW PIECE, AND ONE IN AN OLD



MISS MARJORIE RAMBEAU

MISS ANNETTE MARGULES

MISS RAMBEAU hasn't as yet had much luck in her visits to Chicago, which she has visited in plays that did not catch the popular fancy. She was here in 1921-'22 in one named "Daddy's Gone a-Hunting," and returned later in 1922 in a piece called "The Goldfish." Since then, her appearances in Chicago have been in the two-a-day. . . . She returns tonight in a novelty, "Cheerio!" wherein she will be a Russian girl with Soviet notions about love and the like.

Miss Margules is, it appears, a stranger in Chicago: she comes tonight to play in "White Cargo," wherein her Tondeleyo is said to have been a factor in winning attention for the piece when its fate in New-York was uncertain. She originated the part.

DANSEUSE

MISS MARY BAY

She is in "The Student-Prince," which passes tonight into its thirteenth week in Chicago. (Readers of The Tribune have been told that it is a good operetta, and should run through at least thirteen more.) . . . Miss Bay therein dances on her toes, and is liked for doing so. And she is pretty.

Teachers of Music Convene This Week

The Illinois Music Teachers' association will hold its thirty-sixth annual convention at Streator on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week. The musical program of Tuesday night will be given by a chorus from the Streator public schools and its high school orchestra, with Carl Craven, tenor, and William Hill, pianist, as soloists. The Bloomington High school band will play Wednesday afternoon, Herbert Gould being the soloist, and the Methodist choir of Peoria will sing that evening. Georgia Kober and Mme. Sturkow Ryder will give a two piano recital Thursday afternoon, assisted by Paul Vernon and the High School Girls' Glee club. The Northwestern University Glee club will take the stage that night. On Friday afternoon and evening the Bush Conservatory Symphony orchestra will play, with Lillian Magnuson and Earl Alexander as soloists in the afternoon and Rae Bernstein and May Strong in the evening. Addresses on various subjects during the course of the convention will be made by Rollin Pease, Herbert Gould, Kenneth Bradley, and Maurice Rosenfeld.

Just What She Wanted.

Considerate Conductor—Madam, that is the smoking car.

Elderly Lady—Thank you so much. That's what I'm looking for. C. J.

Yes, How True!

Professor—How many make a gross?

Johnny—144.

Professor—How many make a million?

Johnny—Darned few. A. F.

His Case in Point.

A professor was giving a lecture in a small town hall and was warming up to his subject. He wound up in this manner: "Man, as we have seen, is a progressive being, but many other creatures are stationary. Take the ass, for example. Always and everywhere the ass is the same creature. You never have seen, and never will see, a more perfect ass than you see at the present moment." L. H.

"Married!" said a weak voice in the crowd. S. F.

JAMES SPOTTSWOOD

He's the actor of the nagged husband, Ed Graham, in "The Lady Next-Door," and is so good in the rôle that it is difficult to fancy another player being nearly so good. . . . Mr. Spottswood is known well in Chicago, where he acted last season in "New Toys" and in "On the Stairs."

The Trade of Beautiful Letters

By H. L. Mencken.

have to say, and so it is not worth hearing.

This disparity between aspiration and equipment runs through the whole of American life; material prosperity and universal education have made it a sort of national disease. Two-thirds of the professors in our colleges are simply cans full of undigested knowledge, mechanically acquired; they cannot utilize it; they cannot think.

We are cursed likewise with hordes of lawyers who would be happier and more useful driving trucks, and hordes of doctors who would be strained even as druggists. So in the realm of beautiful letters. Poetry has become a recreation among us for the intellectually unemployed and unemployable; persons who, a few generations ago, would have taken it out on china painting. The writing of novels is undertaken by thousands who lack the skill to describe a dog fight.

Nevertheless, It Gets Into Print.

The result is a colossal waste of paper, ink, and postage—worse, of binding cloth and gold foil. For a great deal of this drivel, by one dodge or another, gets into print. Many of the correspondence school students, after hard diligence, learn how to write for the cheap magazines; not a few of them eventually appear between covers and are solemnly reviewed. The United States, I believe, produces more novels annually than any other two countries—and among them are fewer good ones than are produced by Switzerland or Denmark.

Hundreds of the bad ones pass over my desk every year. I always look through expectantly; some day a pearl may be concealed among them. But what I find is always the same old dreary, obvious stuff—life as it appears to third rate, fourth rate, tenth rate minds. The writing, true enough, often shows an uninspired, commonplace competence. All the words are spelled correctly; there are few, if any, errors in what the pedagogues call grammar; there is even, at times, a certain structural grace. But there is never anything else. From cover to cover there is not a new idea. Nowhere is there any evidence that the author has ever seen anything that all the rest of us haven't seen. What is said by Mary Roe might have been said just as well by John Doe.

Does such stuff sell? Apparently it does, else the publishers would not print so much of it. Its effect upon those who read it must be even worse than that of the newspapers and popular magazines. They come to it with confident expectations. It is between covers; ergo, there must be something in it. That something is simply platitude. What has been said a thousand times is said all over again. This time it must be true! Thus the standardization of the American mind goes on, and against ideas that are genuinely novel there are higher and higher battlements erected.

Look Upon the Lower Levels.

Meanwhile, on the lower levels, where the latest recruits to letters sweat and hope, this rubbish is laboriously imitated. Turn to any of the cheap fiction magazines and you will find out how bad it can be at its worst. No, not quite at its worst, for the contributors to the cheap fiction magazines have at least broken into print—they have, as they say, made the grade. Below them are thousands of aspirants of even slenderer talents—customers of the correspondence schools, patrons of lectures by itinerant literary pedagogues, patient manufacturers of the dreadful stuff that clogs every magazine editor's mail. Here is the ultimate reservoir of the national literature—and here, unless I err, is only bilge.

The remedy? I know of none. Moreover, I do not believe in remedies. So long as the prevailing pedagogues are not found out and the absurd effort to cram every moron with book learning goes on in the republic, that long there will be too much reading and too much writing. Too much writing, at worst, is at least a bearable evil. Certainly it is vastly less dangerous than too much religion, and less a nuisance than too much politics. The floggers of typewriters, if they were halted by law, might take to the uplift—as, indeed, many corn fed pedagogues are already doing, driven out of their jobs by the murrain of fundamentalism. I yell because, on days when the rain keeps me indoors, I am a critic. Perhaps other folks suffer less.

But I often wonder what the genuinely competent novelists of the nation think of it—how the invasion of their craft by so many bunglers and numskulls appears to them and affects them. Surely it must tend to narrow the audience they appeal to and so do them damage. Who was it who said that, in order that there may be great poets, there must be great audiences, too? I believe it was old Walt. Facing an audience deluged with molasses by Whittier, Felicia Hemans, and Fanny Fern, he knew what he was talking about. The assumptions were all against him. He was different, and hence suspicious. It took him two generations to make his way.

The competent novelist, setting up shop in America today, is confronted by the same flood. If he is pertinacious, he may win in the end, but certainly it takes endurance. Hergesheimer, in his first book, unquestionably had something to say. His point of view was new; it was worth attending to. But Hergesheimer drove along for eight or ten years almost in a vacuum. I could add others: Anderson, Cabell, even Dreiser. Cabell became known to the women's clubs with his twelfth book. Meanwhile a dozen cheesemongers had been adored and a thousand had made good livings with their sets of rubber stamps.

IN A SUCCESS

MISS ANN WINSTON

She is in the Chicago cast of "Is Zat So?"; and her business therein is to speak lines which either make for plot or serve as evocatives of the comic response by Robert Taber, as a hick pugilist, or Frank Otto as the pugilist's hick manager. . . . And that's about all any of the ladies in "Is Zat So?" have to do; so, Miss Winston needn't feel slighted.

Sally Ann Rawlinson is the name of Herbert Rawlinson's new baby daughter. Mother wanted to call her Patricia. Daddy thought Anna was a swell name. So——?

Forty thousand pins, two hundred gross of safety pins, and one hundred and fifty dozen spools of thread were ordered by Cecil De Mille for "Hell's Highroad." Road evidently to be paved with something other than good intentions.

to disguise her beauty, thus doing away with any danger of insult.

So, she slicks down her hair, puts on the specs, dons the expression of a queen about to be beheaded, and betakes herself to the place of lucrative employment.

"Voila," sighs the hero, "what have we here!"

His friends tell him it is the new stenog. Gallantly they refrain from betraying her disguise.

The hero hesitates. He likes pretty things about him. His friends remind him the femme has come to work. Hero shrugs. Heroine is engaged.

Enter then the hero's "Hotsy Totsy"—christened Suzette.

Hotsy lays no claims to being other than a little cabbage. Her skirts are high and her morals are unlike them. Her love for a man is guaranteed to last as long as his bank roll. Hotsy Totsy has furnished the hero much entertainment, but, though she doesn't know it, she has become a thing of the past in his life. She has, perhaps, degraded him a bit, but that is over. Now she only bores him.

She hears of the new stenographer, and is suspicious, but one glance at the black spectacled atrocity reassures her.

"Flat as a pancake—Va!" rejoices Hotsy. "No danger there!"

So she blows blithely in and out, while the glass inclosed heroine eyes her and Sir Nicholas with withering contempt.

This dumb tale runs on depicting what happens in the hero's apartment. Society ladies visit the young man, who is of the creme de la creme, you understand; and while making much of him treat the poor working girl with snippy scorn.

It is only a matter of time until the black spectacles are broken—by one of these haughty creatures who has a hunch that something behind them lies.

The hero is entranced, of course, with Alathea's beauty. Then her nobility intrigues his better self, so eagerly struggling toward the light. Then—he sees her with the concierge's baby in her arms and he is GONE!

Will she marry him?

She will NOT!

"What can such a man as you know about love?" icily asks the gambler's daughter.

And because the boss would wed her, she'll work for him no more;
She goes back to the lodgings and leaves him sad and sore.

Renegade papa to the rescue of the pil-o-ti!

He forges a note for fifty thousand pounds.

Hero hears of it and saves his honor.

Daughter, who hates to be under obligations to anybody, marries him, the agreement being that she is to be wife in name only. (Glyn-y? Glyn-y!)

Come on—you fill in the ending. You can, you know.

Lew Cody, relieved of villain-ing for a change, is quite nice as One Hungering for Better Things. As he kisses the heroine's gloves and surreptitiously presses lacy lingerie to his throbbing heart, he is a boy whom any mother could be proud of.

If at times he looks foolish, blame him not—he probably feels foolish. From all reports he is an intelligent man.

Miss Hammond as the virtuous stenog is a pretty prig, and that's all that's to be said for her.

Renee Adoree's Hotsy Totsy is a hotsy totsy, all right. The hero's 'igh society lady friends are a bit funny.

All other rôles are played as, no doubt, Mrs. Glyn, who supervised the picture, thought they should be played, and the production is nicely staged and photographed.

As of women, it may be said of pictures: "Some elevhte; some degrade, and some

"BORE—YOU—TO—DEATH."

See you tomorrow!

Huntley Gordon is the new "newsboys' friend" in Hollywood. The youngsters who used to worship the late Wallace Reid and go to him with their woes, now hail Mr. Gordon with joy and park their troubles with him.

Walter McGrail has issued a new dictionary, so they say, of two and three letter words, intended as first aid to cross word puzzlers. Og, me, pi, or, ah, ox, ra, oh, ilk, erg, ute, oaf, gnu, lop, and jut are some of 'em.

May MacAvoy's dogs caused a suit of $605 against May's mother in Los Angeles. A woman who leased a house to Mrs. MacAvoy said the pups ate her rugs and chairs.

All the kids working in "Little Annie Rooney" with Mary Pickford have been placed under an honor system. On their honor they promise to report for work on time, to study when not working on the set, and to be good youngsters ALL the time.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Just a Suggestion.

Dear Miss Tinée: As a friend of your column, I wish to make just a little suggestion. All criticism does not consist of tearing things apart, bisecting the parts, and then pointing to one little piece with a finger of scorn. Over the last two weeks your daily criticisms have been a flat condemnation of every picture you have reviewed, and if the theatergoing public took any stock in your column I am sure the movie business would have been out of the running long ago. Fortunately for the operators, half the people never see your little criticisms and the other half take it with a grain of salt or two.

A Reader.

Bit of Art.

Dear Miss Tinée: Why the adverse criticism from all the critics regarding "The Salvation Hunters?" It was as fine a bit of art as we have witnessed on the silver sheet in many a day. Some of the critics deplored the lack of comedy in this gem. Is it necessary to inject slapstick in all our drama—tragic or otherwise?

I doubt if there are many directors in Hollywood at present who, taking but three characters and placing them against such drab backgrounds as a mud scow and the bare gray walls of a tenement house, could keep interest alive in a picture for over an hour, as Von Sternberg has done.

I understand Chaplin was enthusiastic after viewing this picture, and there is no doubt that Chaplin, the genius, is able to appreciate art when he sees it.

So here's to Josef von Sternberg. I anxiously await his next picture which I hope will prove beyond all doubt that his name belongs up with the super-directors.

Figures of Opera That Do Not Sing

By Edward Moore.

tainment on earth and must convince the public that it is the best entertainment on earth in order to succeed. But the goal will not be attained by ill-balanced casts and inadequate rehearsals.

Mr. Insull tells of two new American pieces to be given next season. "A Light from St. Agnes" is a one act opera with libretto by Minnie Maddern Fiske and score by W. Frank Harling. "The Witch of Salem," in two acts, is by Charles Wakefield Cadman. There will be revivals of Puccini's "Manon Lescaut" and Verdi's "The Masked Ball" and "Falstaff" in Italian, and it is hoped to revive Massenet's "Herodiade" and Thomas' "Mignon" in French. Some whispers have arisen about Strauss' "Rosenkavalier" for use on the road, but so far the rumors have not attached themselves to the Chicago season. Edith Mason used to sing in it when she was a member of the Metropolitan.

Passing of a Famous Name.

Within a few days a name of long enduring fame will make its final exit from the concert world. Mrs. F. Wight Neumann sends this message:

"To the lovers of music whom my husband served so faithfully and for so long, who, in turn, gave him that loyal support which made his annual series of concerts and recitals in Chicago known around the world, I send my assurances of the deepest appreciation.

"Friends have suggested that my daughter or I might undertake to continue my husband's work. We do not care to do that. We will not have any connection of any kind with its continuance; nor can we permit any one to use the name of F. Wight Neumann, which for so long has stood for the best in music. But to all who truly strive to carry forward the work so dear to his heart we send our earnest wishes for success, and our assurance that sincere, unselfish service to the music lovers of Chicago will bring a reward greater than riches. Our season closes on June 1, 1925."

Bad business and hard luck may exist in the concert business, but Lieut. Commander John Philip Sousa does not seem to have heard of it. He and his band have guaranties amounting to nearly $500,000 for his third-of-a-century tour. Sousa's thirty-third season will begin at Hershey, Pa., on July 4, and last for thirty-five weeks. These guaranties have been posted by individuals and organizations in about one-half of the 250 cities that he will visit, and they presage $1,000,000 or more of receipts for the tour.

Sousa has maintained virtually the only musical organization in America which has been independent of financial backers upon whom calls might be made in unsuccessful years, and the guarantors of the band this season are without exception individuals or organizations who expect to present it at a profit in their various communities. The largest single guarantor is the Regina industrial exhibition of Regina, Can., which will hand the march king a fee of $20,000 for a six days' engagement, beginning July 27.

Almost a dozen guarantors are colleges and universities, including the Universities of Washington, Virginia, Florida, Iowa, and Indiana, Purdue university, Tuskegee institute, the Kansas State Manual Training school of Pittsburgh and the western branch of the Kansas State Teachers' Training college, located at Hays. Other organization guarantors are twenty Rotary clubs and ten Shrine organizations. Bookings for concerts of a private or semi-private nature have been made by Walter Kohler of the city of Kohler, Wis., Melville Dewey, president of the Placid club at Lake Placid, N. Y., and Pierre du Pont, who each year gives a private concert on his estate near Wilmington, Del.

Here and There in Music.

According to Frederick Stock, who conducted at the recent Cincinnati music festival, and Edward Johnson, who sang there, Florence Austral, who has been added to the Evanston list for next week, is the sensation of the season. They describe the young singer as a dramatic soprano with rather astonishing quality and volume in her voice. She will take part in the Wagnerian program to be given by the chorus, the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and some other soloists.

A Chicago intersettlement festival, the first of its kind here, will be given at the Eighth Street theater on the afternoon of June 6. W. Rhys-Herbert's cantata, "In a Flower Garden," will be sung by a children's chorus of 350 voices representing nine settlements. The event comes as a result of some pioneering work by Mrs. Charles Morgan McKenna, who for several years has devoted herself to the task of developing an intersettlement music committee. The score will be played by the Junior Intersettlement orchestra and conducted by Jacques Gordon, concertmaster of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, who has been training the youngsters during the winter. The settlements represented in the chorus will be Association house, Henry Booth house, Chicago Commons, Emerson settlement, Gads Hill center, Garibaldi institute, Howell Neighborhood house, Northwestern University settlement, and Paulist settlement. The staging will be under the direction of Louis K. Willhour and the costumes designed by Lillian Braun.

There were reports that the opera season at the Colon theater of Buenos Aires was on the way to encounter hard weather, and the reports would seem to be news to those most interested. Manager Scotto cables thus to Adolph Bolm, who will stage and dance in some of the large works: "Surprised at insidious rumors. I am happy to inform you that the Colon season will be one of the most interesting in its history in the matter of the big reputation of artists engaged and extensive repertoire. It is proved by the fact that advance reservations were all subscribed a month ago, and not one box or seat is left. I will state that with an amount equaling the deficit of the last season of the Chicago Civic Opera company we are giving a ten weeks' season at the Colon covering all expenses."

Choirs of thirteen Chicago churches will engage in a choral competition at Orchestra hall tomorrow night. They have been divided into two classes, those with less than thirty singers and those with more. Each will sing Randegger's "Praise the Lord" as a prize song, and follow it with a short anthem of its own selection. All will appear in robes or gowns.

Gladys Swarthout, mezzo-soprano, George Hrusha, violinist, and Stephen Erst, organist, will present a musical program at Orchestra hall on Tuesday night, preceding a lecture by Bishop Francis C. Kelley of Oklahoma, on "The Catholic Church and World Politics." The event is being given by the alumnæ of Loyola university, and the proceeds will go to a scholarship fund for social workers in the university's school of sociology.

The final organ concert at St. Luke's church, Evanston, will be given on Tuesday night, and will be a public meeting of the Illinois chapter of the American Guild of Organists. Walter P. Zimmerman, organist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra; Arthur C. Becker, dean of De Paul university school of music, and Herbert E. Hyde, dean of the Illinois chapter, A. G. O., will play. They will be assisted by St. Luke's vested choir, singing several eight part unaccompanied choruses from the Russian liturgy.

The Society for the Publication of American Music, located in New York, sends word it has selected for publication this season a sonata for harp and piano by Carlos Salzedo of New York, a piano trio by Frederic Ayres of Colorado Springs, Colo., and a sonata for piano and cello or viola by Aurelio Giorni of New York. The Carnegie United Kingdom trust, which functions similarly in Great Britain, tells of five selections. They are "The Shepherd," a night piece for contralto solo with piano and woodwinds, by H. Bedford; a string quartet in A minor, by Alan Bush; "The Enchanted Garden," opera in one act, by Thomas F. Dunhill; "Three Spiritual Studies," for string orchestra, by Ernest Farrar, and "Four Proverbs," for flute, oboe, and strings, composer not named.

Maria Jeritza, Metropolitan soprano, is moving from Vienna to London and will make her first appearance there in "Tosca" about the middle of June. Having something of a feeling for publicity stories of a warlike character, the account of her departure from the Vienna opera is accompanied by a story of a row with another soprano.

SHE WILL SING

GLADYS SWARTHOUT.

One of the most promising younger members of the Chicago Civic Opera company this season, Miss Swarthout, a mezzo-soprano, is announced to appear at Orchestra hall on Tuesday night.

Priscella Dean, after a visit to the Indian School for the Deaf and Dumb, says that after this she'll be careful just what she says while making a picture. These little people are expert lip readers, and when she ran "The Crimson Runner" off for them, they proved to her they knew just what the players were saying when their lips moved.

Tod Browning modestly asks a niche in the movie hall of fame. He doesn't wear knickerbockers. And he a director!

Child Villain in Mary's Film Gets $75 Plus Bananas

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—"Across the Trackles Waists, a Super Festur Producshun, Bring Wot You Got, and Abie Will Tell If You Can Get In."

A long line of kids with overalls, gingham dresses, holes in stockings, and bananas, all day suckers, apples, or what-have-you, lined up before this fascinating billboard on a tumbledown fence, inside Mary Pickford's lot, and solemnly let Abie be judge.

The boy who brought his mother's dishpan was awarded three milk bottles in change. A banana was fair admission for another. Once safely by Abie at the gate, they trooped in gleefully to benches, under a canopy of potato sacking and discarded window blinds. On "Kactus Pete's Place," on the edge of the desert, was the scene of this production. Umbrella ribs, thrust through potatoes which were stuck full of toothpicks, made wonderful property cacti. Then the show began. Mary Pickford herself, in a big black sombrero, policeman's trousers precariously held up by a belt, and shoved at the other end into high galoshes, and a grand big black moustache, entered on the back of a wooden horse. For Mary, as Little Annie Rooney, was playing the rôle of Kactus Pete.

Mary in Distress.

One little fellow, the villain in the audience, who objects to paying a good dishpan to see a make-believe horse, is supposed to stand up, and with a mouthful of banana, tell what he thinks of the show. He winds up by throwing the half eaten banana at Mary.

The lad was obliged to rehearse this several times, and Mary, who was sitting down between acts, fidgeted and finally interrupted: "O, please, Mr. Director, mayn't he stop eating all those bananas? He'll be awfully sick; I think that's nine already."

"Aw, no, Miss Pickford, I like it, and besides, it's only eight so far," pleaded the young husky.

"But it could be apples, or you can just pretend you're eating, can't you?" argued Mary.

"He's all right, Mary," said the director, "ain't any bottom to small boy's eating bananas."

Argued down by the small boy, his father, the director, and Tom MacNamara, of "Us Boys" fame, who is "gagging" the picture, Mary subsided, muttering to herself that she'd talk to the mother about it, if they allowed that young rascal to eat another bite.

What do you think they pay that young gormand to eat those bananas? Seventy-five dollars a week. The other kids in Mary's film get paid just as liberally. They work only three hours a day, when making pictures; that's a stipulation of California law for child actors.

Without a Rehearsal.

The sun waxed hot through the potato sacking and window blind awning, and one little colored baby of about four kept dropping asleep. Everybody hushed while the cameraman slid upon him, and got a peach of a shot of the little kinky head nodding; just then the boneless horse of the production galloped across the set, and while all the little fellows were hollering hooray, little Mr. Pickanniny emerged from his slumbers long enough to lift a feeble hand and wave it; then fell back to sleep again.

This boneless horse now has a history. When they started this Little Annie Rooney picture, the town was scoured for the feeblest, most knock-kneed, starved looking horse that could be found. It was promptly purchased and conducted to the stable at the Pickford-Fairbanks lot, where it has fared so well that on the first day it was needed, it was found that ribs would have to be painted on the animal, which has become plump and sleek.

Something else of interest is the twice daily lysol spraying given the tin cans and debris heaps which provide the vacant lot atmosphere for Mary's New York tenement life picture.

Pictures While You Wait.

One of the most interesting and least advertised places in Hollywood, is a row of small studios in Gower street, rented out to independent producers who expend a small outlay of cash, and live, as it were, from picture to picture. Poverty Row, they call it, and "The Quickies" is the name given the type of pictures produced there.

Two or three days of work, and presto, they have a picture.

They often use no scenario, but will get together their actors and director and cameraman, and go to it. Improvisation, much after the manner of the medieval companies of strolling bands of actors in Italy and France, is the order of the day. One rehearsal, then shoot.

Another stunt is to take some actors and rent some large studio, as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's, or any, in fact, where there are numerous or spectacular left-over sets. Whatever suggests itself to the fertile mind of the "quickie" director is enacted against a background, then another one. When the day is done the weary troupe goes home and the camera man and director cut and patch until they get a story out of what has been shot.

It is so diverting and full of thrills that big actors occasionally are lured into taking parts for a day or two. Cash down is the order of the day, and a day may mean eighteen hours. Anything for speed.

O. K. Either Way.

Joan Standing, a player of dumbbell rôles of no small merit, related her recent experience in the "quickies." She appeared on the set as ordered, in riding habit, all set for what the day might bring forth. Which was a large cavalry horse, which the director ordered her to ride.

"But I can't ride. I never was on a horse before in my life," protested Joan.

"That's all right; just get on him and canter up to the camera; it's all right," said the director.

"O. K.," said Joan.

Once Joan had ascended the horse, however, the director allowed it wouldn't do at all. Nothing daunted, he turned to a property man and sent for a telephone which he had nailed up on the wall.

"What's the big idea?" asked Joan.

"Well," said the director, "you're supposed to gallop down to the railroad station with this message, but since you can't ride I guess telephoning will do."

On with the crank, let art be unconfined. And so they shot the picture.

Buck Jones, over at Fox's, is driving 'em wild bragging about his new horse, as yet unnamed, which is a cousin to his Silver Buck, which he uses in pictures. The horse is a sorrel beauty, with three white socks and a splash on his nose.

"This here animal," says Buck, "is one of the smarterst bits of horseflesh I've ever laid eyes on. About the only thing he can't do is write. I know he can read, because when I showed him a letter from Tom Mix sayin' Tom likes Paris so well he was thinking of bringing the place over here, the horse said, 'neigh, neigh.'"

Comment and Gossip.

The old joke about indoor tan is no joke to Wallace MacDonald, who lays claim to the distinction of the only pair of Kleig ears on record. In a recent picture MacDonald was so close to some big lights that the backs of his ears became badly burned and since there's no name for such an ailment Wally calls them "Kleig ears."

Charlie Chaplin and Syd were dining and having a brotherly reunion minus any female company on Friday night at the Montmartre.

Sammy Goldwyn and his new wife, the former Frances Howard, in a Paris creation of Poudre blue with a large blue hat to match, also dined and danced at the Montmartre on Friday, as did Vola Vale and her husband, Al Russell. Bob Leonard was enjoying the music with friends, and Ena Gregory, with a new escort, was dancing in a blue chiffon dancing frock. Kathleen Key, in a striking red frock, wore a black Spanish shawl, which she brought from Rome.

The Saturday tea dance brought out Carmelita Geraghty in a gray silk marocain dress, made with a long smocklike waist over a plaited skirt.

Couldn't See It Through.

Dear Miss Tinee: Regarding the letter signed "C. B." which you published in this column on May 3, about the picture "Greed," I wish to say I have been attending the movies for years—ever since they started—and in all that time I never saw as nauseating and disgusting a picture as "Greed."

In twenty-five years it's the only picture I have not been able to sit through. I don't always agree with you, but I felt like sending you roses after reading your criticism of that picture.

Sordidness is in the world, and we all know it, but man's advancement through the ages has ben brought about by looking up, not down.

Flings and Flowers.

Dear Miss Tinee: I have a few brickbats and bouquets to throw. Bouquet No. 1 goes to you, Miss Tinee. I hope you will always remain as agreeable as you are now. The rest of the bouquets go to Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Jetta Goudal—the beautiful, beautiful creature—William Haines, Colleen Moore, Lloyd Hughes, Leon Errol, Mary Pickford, and Ernest Torrence. They sure have a way about them that gets me.

That's not grammar, but—you know what I mean.

Now for the brickbats: Of all the rotten, nonsensical excuses of pictures, "The Centaur" took the cake. If John Gilbert is an actor and Aileen Pringle, Betty Compson, and Helen Chadwick are actresses, I'm a dog's tail! Signing off, C. J. N.

New Two-Piece Costume of Fine Jersey

THIS smart and charming development of the two-piece costume has a number of delightful new features which add to its unique and extensive popularity.

The cuffs and pockets, as well as the Chanel collar, are trimmed with matching silk crêpe. The skirt has inverted pleats, one on each side, cleverly designed to allow freedom of movement without detracting from grace and style. The sleeves may be short if desired. May also be had in fine twill flannel.

Final Week · 52nd Anniversary Sale

With the records of the many phenomenal sales of the past well in mind, we ask your prompt attendance at what cannot, in our matured opinion, fail to be the most extraordinary sale of Curtains, Drapery and Upholstery Fabrics we've ever held—

The J. S. Bradstreet & Co. 1200 Second Ave., South and 125 South Twelfth St. Minneapolis, Surplus Stock and Sample Pieces Drapery and Upholstery Goods and Fine Curtains at About Half Actual Values

For fifty years Bradstreet & Co. have been the foremost of all the exclusive interior decorators in the entire northwest, and these very fabrics are ready for you to choose from tomorrow at low prices that are amazing indeed. The drapery and upholstery fabrics are especially noteworthy—rich in colorings, exclusive in design, unsurpassed in qualities—the fabrics chosen with the greatest discrimination. It is an opportunity that the housewife, the hotel man, the club manager will pay closest attention to, especially so if they still have their spring refurnishing to do. Included, too, are hundreds of lots gathered from leading Eastern Mills and Importers, including a wide range of fine imported lace curtains featured at the same unapproachably low prices as the J. S. Bradstreet & Co. stock is. It will repay you well to scan carefully the following items only as suggestive of the values that await you here tomorrow. (Ninth Floor, State Street.)

The Men's Furnishings section determined to do something that would give it prominent place in the celebration of the 52nd Anniversary. The result was this sensational purchase of "NO FADE" shirts—a value that will bring shoppers here by the hundreds tomorrow! These shirts are cut full and roomy, and are hand tailored throughout to fit perfectly, of fine quality madras, with handsome silk stripes, in all the most popular colors on light or dark grounds, the very newest patterns. We wish to emphasize the fact that these are the very same shirts that Chicagoans have been buying for years—every shirt is GUARANTEED fast color—a new shirt if the color does not hold. Sleeve lengths 33, 34 and 35. Sizes 14 to 17. Values up to $2.50—which means savings that make liberal buying a matter of great wisdom. Choice at

ARMY TESTS TO REVEAL RADIO'S VALUE IN WARS

Broadcasting Orders Big Aid to Officers.

Radio broadcasting will play an important part in future warfare, declared U. S. Army and radio experts here yesterday at the conclusion of the tests that have been conducted all week in preparation for the military tournament that will be staged in Grant park stadium commencing Friday of this week, under the auspices of the United States Army.

Tests were made every day last week in picking up a conversation between an aeroplane and an observer on the ground. This was picked up by station WLS and sent out over the air again on their regular wave, using the special call letters that were assigned to them for this purpose, of WAOne. This was in turn intercepted by a receiver located at the stadium and sent through powerful speech amplifiers so that the audience will be able to listen in to the conversation as well as watch the maneuvers in the air.

May Change Mode of Attack.

The successful outcome of this series of tests may be largely responsible for changing the future mode of attack of the armed forces of the United States, declared experts. It will be possible for the general in command to give his orders to the air force, artillery and infantry forces at the same time, each branch of the service being able to hear the reports sent back by the others and so operate in unison.

The practicability of this will be demonstrated at the war show when Maj. Gen. Hale, commander of the Sixth army corps, will give his orders into a microphone at the stadium. This will be broadcast by radio to the flight commander's plane. The plane is equipped with a fifty watt transmitter using a waves length of 750 meters, with the army call letters DH-4B.

Lieutenants Lawrence P. Hickey and Charles H. Howard from Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., were in charge of the tests from the airplane which flew at a height of four thousand feet above Kankakee, Ill. Curtiss Peck, chief engineer, and Burr Whyland, assistant engineer, of station WLS succeeded in picking up the 750 meter conversation and rebroadcasting it on their regular wave of 345 meters. A number of radio fans have written in inquiring about the new station they have heard during these tests.

All to Be Demonstrated.

The feasibility of using radio will be convincingly demonstrated during the tournament when Gen. Hale will order the air squadron to make realistic attacks, take pictures and develop them while in the air, dropping the finished prints by means of small parachutes, and to make verbal reports back to the stadium.

In addition, everyone equipped with a regular receiving set will be able to listen in on this part of the show, and the audience will be able to hear what goes on by radio. Although the voices must pass from the air to a receiving set, into the air again, and again be picked up by a receiver, experts say that the time lapse between the moment the general speaks and the loud speakers around the stadium bark out his orders is but a small fraction of a second.

U. S. TO ASSIST CLASS B OWNERS SOLVE TROUBLES

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—The department of commerce has announced that favorable consideration will be given to applications from owners of class B broadcasting stations for permission to use higher power without requiring the increases to be made in steps of 500 watts as has been the practice heretofore, provided the stations are situated outside of congested receiving centers.

In taking this action the department is endeavoring to satisfy the demand of broadcast listeners that the use of increased power be permitted in order to overcome the existing static conditions which are making reception difficult.

The usual precautions will be exercised to protect broadcast listeners from excessive interference with reception they are now enjoying.

BROADCASTING STATIONS IN U. S. NOW NUMBER 566

New York, May 16.—[Special.]—There are now 566 broadcasting stations in the United States and its possessions. Twenty-four stations stopped broadcasting in April and thirty-one new transmitters made their appearance on the air. There are only two class "C" stations left, all others having transferred to one of the other classes or ceased to send out programs. They are WMAF, South Dartmouth, Mass., and WQAO, New York. It is expected that these stations will be transferred to class "A" or "B" within the next few weeks. There are now 95 class "B" stations and 469 class "A."

RULES FETTER SET OWNERS IN SOME COUNTRIES

Unhampered American listeners are constantly reminded of their good fortune by numerous rules, regulations, and licenses imposed in many foreign countries.

The latest information comes from Switzerland, where tremendous preparations seem to be under way for the standardization of aerials, especially when they in any way encroach upon the streets, roads, or public domain.

German Air Colleges Increase in Number

The German Broadcasting union announces the foundation of a number of radio broadcasting universities, of which three were opened last year in Berlin, Frankfort-on-Main, and Leipzig. Courses are given in language, philosophy, literature, medicine, agriculture, and horticulture.

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Sunday, May 17.) (Chicago Daylight Saving Time.)

Two more imposing concerts will be added to the list of important musical broadcasts of W-G-N today, when THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, presents the Carson-Pirie-Scott Choral society this afternoon, between 2:30 and 3:30, and the choir of the English Evangelical Lutheran Church of Our Redeemer this evening, between 9 and 10. Marjorie Maxwell, the operatic star; Louise Harrison-Slade, contralto; Eugene Dressler, tenor, and Rollin Pease, basso, will be the soloists with the Carson-Pirie-Scott Choral society in singing Hadley's "Ode to Music," poem by Henry Van Dyke.

This chorus of 120 voices will be one of the largest ever broadcast in Chicago. They will be conducted by Noble Cain, with Erwin Wallenborn as accompanist. This is another of THE TRIBUNE Master Artists' concerts, presented in the ballroom of the Drake hotel.

The concert this evening by the English Evangelical Lutheran Church of Our Redeemer will be directed by W. Carl Meyer, consisting of the following program:

We Praise Thee O Lord........Tschaikowski
My Faith Looks Up to Thee..........Lachner
Just as I Am.........................Bohn
Rock of Ages.........................Buck
In Thee O Lord..................Kalinnikoff
Ave Verum..........................Mozart
Finale from Soli Deo Gloria.........Kaeppel
In This Day O Lord............Boleslavstraks
[This number also known as the Russian Doxology.]

The Rev. G. Schuessler is pastor of the church.

Henry Selinger's Drake Concert ensemble will be heard between groups by the choir.

Between 3:30 and 5 this afternoon, W-G-N will broadcast the regular Sunday Chicago Musical college concert from the Central theater. The winners of the Chicago Musical college $500 essay concert will be announced in THE TRIBUNE next Sunday.

Albert Hay Malotte, organist at McVicker's theater, will be the guest organist in the Chicago theater organ concert broadcast at 11:45 today. The concert will include Louise Loring, coloratura soprano, and Pansy Jacob Lebersarb, pianist.

Bill, of Gasoline Alley, will take Uncle Walt's place this morning in reading THE TRIBUNE comics to the children at 11 o'clock.

RADIO READING COURSE PROVES TO BE POPULAR

Listeners Told What Books Are Best.

Cincinnati, O., May 16.—If you listen in on station WKRC, the new 1,000 watt station here, every Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, and follow the instructions given, you will have the equivalent of a college education, provided you stick to the new reading course planned by C. P. Hadley, librarian of Cincinnati's public library and 38 branch libraries near here.

The reading course is planned weeks in advance so that every branch library has sufficient books to take care of the demand. The program is unique in that Mr. Hadley starts with children's books, recommending that the little folks between certain ages read certain books during the week. These may include "Robinson Crusoe," "Treasure Island," and others; for girls, "Helen's Babies" and "Alice in Wonderland." As the ages increase other books are recommended, including Dickens, Washington Irving and other prominent literary geniuses.

For young men and women about the college age, books on travel, history, home economics, architecture, electricity, chemistry, botany, art, political science, the lives of great men, and other features. A brief description of the book, the life of the author, reasons why the book should be read and its benefits are explained before the "mike" at WKRC.

The special reading course feature is planned by a librarian who is assigned to the work. Hundreds of letters and telegrams have been received at WKRC from appreciative fans on this feature.

RADIO MARKING THE DOOM OF GIN PARTIES IN WEST

Complete downfall of the alleged gin, jazz and petting party régime and early restoration of the "old oaken bucket" way of living is assured by radio, in the estimation of numerous mothers among KOA's listeners.

Recent letters to the Denver broadcasting station of the General Electric company have especially stressed the good influence of radio from the standpoint of children.

"Your broadcasts are helping greatly to bring our children back to normalcy," writes a mother of eleven children. "The programs are solving the problem of keeping my family at home.

"Likewise, your programs mean much to tired mothers. We cannot afford to attend concerts and downtown programs, so you can imagine what a treat it is to listen to KOA. Ours is a small set. We take turns listening, but don't mind such a little thing as that.

DEAN SPERRY WILL ADDRESS SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Dean Willard L. Sperry, member of the board of preachers of Harvard university, and head of the theological school at that institution, one of the leading students and lecturers in the religious world today, will speak before the microphone from the platform of the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall tonight. His address on the subject, "The Joints in the Armor," will be broadcast by KYW.

REV. WILLARD SPERRY.

Other features of this service will be anthems by the choir of 100, solos by Herbert Gould, John B. Miller and Rose Gannon, and an organ recital by Stanley Martin at 7:40. Clifford W. Barnes will preside, and give an informal Bible talk on the subject of "Pilgrim's Progress," at 7 o'clock.

Radio fans have three more chances to hear these popular programs on Sunday nights, before the close of the club season on May 31.

WIRELESS STOPS INTERFERING AND GETS THANKED

South Beach, Conn., May 16.—[Special.]—Several hundred radio listeners in the vicinity of this city have forwarded a resolution of thanks to Charles J. Pannill, vice president and general manager of the Independent Wireless Telegraph Co., according to an announcement made public at the offices of that company today. The company controls and operates most of the ship-to-shore communication on ships plying Long Island sound, and a short time ago took the initiative and raised the wavelengths of its New London and ship stations to avoid interfering with the broadcast programs.

THORNTON FISHER WILL BROADCAST SPORTS EVENTS

Thornton Fisher, sports writer and cartoonist, is now entertaining radio fans from broadcasting station WAHG, Richmond Hill, L. I., every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from 7:30 to 7:45. Mr. Fisher will attend all the important sports events of the east with the Grebe portable broadcaster WGMU and tell the radio audience just what is doing. WGMU will "throw" the sport stories by Fisher to WAHG or WBOQ at Richmond Hill, where they will be rebroadcast to the world.

Herbie Mintz, Pianist, Insures Hands for $20,000

The hands of Herbert S. Mintz, pianist and program director of WEBH, have been insured for $20,000. Mintz is to receive that amount if he loses the use of his "ivory ticklers" through any accidental reason.

RADIO ON FORD AIRPLANES.

The new Ford commercial airplanes will be equipped with radio. When this will be done, or the type of apparatus to be used, has not been determined.

BATTLESHIP SETS RADIO RECORD ROUND THE HORN

Almost Constantly in Touch with Home.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—[Special.]—The battleship Utah did not let a little thing like circumnavigating South America keep it from being constantly in communication with home. This is the first time in the history of radio that data has been obtained as to the dependability of radio communications to and from a first line ship in those waters.

Except when the Utah was in the vicinity of Punta Arenas and off the east coast of Brazil from the vicinity of Montevideo to Cape San Roque, there was no day when for at least short periods of time the Utah was unable to forward despatches to the United States through Balboa.

The Utah reported that San Diego, Cal., was its best United States station, being distinctly heard on both the east and west coasts of South America.

"The outstanding fact brought out during the cruise," the Utah's report concluded, "was the weakness of the Annapolis station signals, which were practically unreadable during the whole cruise. Great dependence had been placed upon this station to supply press and time signals. The latter could just barely be copied."

MUSIC OF RADIO SOLVES WESTERN DANCE PROBLEM

Radio is solving the dance problem for dozens of farming and cattle raising communities in the Rocky mountain territory where, "in the olden days," admirers of Mme. Syncopation relied almost entirely on mechanical instruments for music, letters to KOA, at Denver, indicate.

"No longer is it necessary to round up an orchestra of fiddlers from miles around when we want a barn dance," a Wyoming enthusiast writes.

From Kiowa, Colo., comes word that one of the most successful dances in years was held last month to the ethereal strains of KOA.

Hardly a week passes, broadcasting officials assert, without requests for special radio and dance programs for high school and club gatherings and birthday parties in small towns.

RADIO RESEARCH MERE PLAY FOR THIS U. S. MAID

Wave Lengths and Kilocycles Her Toys.

Washington, D. C., May 16.—The theory of wave length as expressed in meters or frequency in kilocycles would hold the average fan for a while, but is as easy as pie for Miss Grace Hazen, probably the only woman in the government service doing scientific research work in radio.

Also, without batting an eye little Miss Hazen will tell you that in order to get an idea of the velocity of a radio sound waves, "it is interesting to recall" the highest speed of an airplane is 221 miles an hour but radio sound travels at 186,300 miles per second, or at the rate of 659,880,000 miles an hour.

Wizard with Statistics.

Whereupon you realize that one who is able to "recall" a trivial detail like that is no ordinary person. And especially if it happens to be one of the limited number of women who have chosen radio as a life work, likewise one of the few women who has a practical knowledge of radio and builds her own sets.

Miss Hazen is a wizard with radio statistics but makes a sphinx seem conversational when the question of her age is broached. Judged by accomplishment, she should be forty or fifty, for she has been a physicist at the United States bureau of standards for a number of years, also a graduate of St. Lawrence university, at Canton, N. Y., her home, near the Thousand Islands. Yet it would be a safe guess to say that she is not yet twenty-five.

Kilocycles and Meters.

"In looking over the broadcast programs," she explains, "you have seen that after the name of each broadcasting station there are numbers which refer to the wave length in meters or frequency in kilocycles at which the station is authorized to broadcast.

"The two terms are synonymous in so far as radio standards are concerned. The meter is a unit of length a little longer than a yard, used to indicate the actual length of the wave produced in space. The kilocycle, on the other hand, is a measure of the number of thousands of waves transmitted per second. Thus it is a measure of impulses per second, or frequency.

"The velocity of a radio wave which is a constant for all wave lengths divided by the length in meters of any particular wave gives the frequency in kilocycles per second and conversely the velocity divided by the number of kilocycles per second gives the wave length.

Not a Permanent Wave Meter.

"For comparison an instrument called a frequency meter or wave meter can be used, providing it has been standardized in terms of fundamental unit. Such an instrument is somewhat similar to a crystal receiving set, since it usually consists of a variable condenser, a coil of wire, a crystal detector, and an indicating instrument.

"The meter is not, as some think, a measure of the distance a transmitting station can be heard. In fact, it has been found that under certain conditions stations employing shorter wave lengths than those generally used by broadcasting stations can be received at greater distances."

Work is progressing satisfactorily on the construction of the high power radio station being erected at Septiba, near Rio de Janeiro, by the Companhia Radiotelegraphica Brazileira, according to advices to the department of commerce.

Inside the Loud Speaker

with Quin A. Ryan, the Voice of W-G-N

GOOD MORNING! Here we are, popping right out of your loud speaker again. Nice to get out of there on a warm Sunday. Wotta life, living 'way down in the depths of a radio horn all week!

Did you like the Derby on the radio yesterday? I'll tell you all about the fun we had doing it next Sunday.

Some of the state legislatures are beginning to tweedledee and tweedledum about restriction of radio. How nice it would be if states could buy and sell congressmen in the manner of baseball players!

Last week a new and marvelous personality bobbed into the studio one evening—Paul Ash, the "jazz-symphonist"—and O, O, we didn't let him go until four in the morning! Paul has been director of the Granada theater productions and orchestra in San Francisco and has come to Chicago to direct the stage and musical doings at McVicker's.

He came in totally unannounced, bringing Mrs. Ash and Milton Watson, a young tenor, and Abe Shynaman, his frenzied pianist. Well, our regular evening program was concluded, and Paul and Abe started to toy with the two pianos, like the opening of "Dan McGrew." He asked us to toss him haphazard melodies, and we suggested "I'll See You in My Dreams," and "Too Tired" (because Larry Shay, who wrote it, was present), and then we kiddingly mentioned "Frankie and Johnnie" and "London Bridge Is Falling Down" and things like that—and those two boys would separately give an impromptu exhibition of how a symphony orchestra would do the same theme. American music!

Before we knew it, an hour and a half had passed, and our entire studio and operating staff refused to go home, and the crowd sitting about were actually laughing out loud each time the familiar tune would recur in the pianists' symphonic manipulations.

So somebody suggested we put it on the air—and we did! Watson—about whom the public is going to be clicking its heels in glee in a few months—Milton sang ballads innumerable, and Paul played his wizard stuff, and Abe played his tricky opuses, and Larry Shay sang his own songs, "Too Tired," "By the Light of the Stars," "That's Georgia," and others.

We dubbed it our first "Milky Way Party," and I introduced everybody, and they made little speeches; and we got all our choo-choo train props together and made trips to the cities from which fans phoned gleefully in—Baltimore, Asheville, N. C., Cumberland, Md., Denver, and New York City. But best of all the applause we got was the following colorful letter:

Dear Radio Friends: I have an unusual report to make on your impromptu Milkywayfarers party given this a. m. I am a freight conductor on the C., B. & Q. R. R., running between Lincoln, Neb., and Ravenna, Neb. In my caboose I have installed a four-tube set, using three wires, 34 feet long, inside the car, for an antenna. I left Lincoln this a. m. at 12:30, and held you until you faded out at 2:45 a. m. singing "Good Night, Ladies." During this time the train traveled fifty-six miles, and, despite the loneliness of the caboose, I felt you right with me in the car at all times, singing and laughing above the roar of the train. Your method of signing off was very unique, and, while you in the studio are not able to appreciate it, to us 'way out here in the sticks it seemed beautiful.—George M. Bruhl, Lincoln, Neb.

My greatest dread in life is that the Polish president, Stanislaus Wojciechowski, may some time talk from our station and I'll have to introduce him.

A man is as old as his radio set.

Lieut. Jack Harding, one of the world flyers, dropped in one night last week and spoke a bit to the microphone. When I can find a rhyme for her, I'm going to write a song about the Eskimo sweetheart he told about—little Ishkamaglook.

Alfred Kreymbourg, the poet, came up to the studio last week, too, and read a few of his free verselets, to the accompaniment of his "mandolute," which, he says, is a combination of mandolin and lute.

You'd imagine, wouldn't you, that a salesman trying to sell radio sets to a radio station staff would be carrying Coles to Eddie Rickenbacker. But they do. In they come, every day, to chant of the new Pandemonidyne, or the new Raucous Neutrodyne, or to sell us the new Babel Light Six. They'd sell a natatorium to a whale!

WGN BROADCASTING STATION

Just look at this one, the new eight-tube Pandemonidyne! . . . Smokeless, and fond of children. . . . Four models—open, closed, bid, and asked. . . . Will decorate in the spring. . . . Fits nicely into schoolhouse, senate cloakroom, MacFadden flat, or any other MacFadden publication. . . . Ask the man whose neighbor owns one. . . . We supply the dotted line—sign your own name. . . .

O, yes!

Have you seen the new Raucous Neutrodyne? . . . Hot and cold dials. . . . Drawers for phonograph needles, lemons, and ginger ale. . . . Puts the singers right in your lap—if you're not particular. . . . May be used in daytime as aquarium or fireless cooker. . . . A dandy outfit to give away. . . . Clip the coupon below and write today to your congressman. . . .

Uh-huh!

Like to show you the new Babel Light Six. . . . Designed by Michelangelo, tuned by Mozart. . . . Can take distance or leave it alone. . . . Collection agency frequency. This handsome set has all the known whistles—train, fog, copper's, and "Annie Laurie." . . . Any color you wish—Alice Blue, Navy Plug, or Memphis Blues. . . . Improvements too numerous to make a fuss about. . . . Buggy whip thrown in. . . . What is home without a movie to go to? . . .

Well, the business is still in its infancy.

And the salesmen, too.

Cheerio! See you later in your speaker!

YOU MUST HAVE ALL THIS TO BE AN ANNOUNCER

Perhaps the first of its kind, a newspaper advertisement was used by a New York broadcasting station to secure radio announcers. The appeal assured applicants that there is a thrill and fascination in announcing, but that he was a man who had to have many qualifications.

"Resonant voice, educational background, imagination, wit, broad acquaintanceship, and readiness to translate an idea into action. He must play some musical instrument or be able to sing when an unforeseen gap occurs in a program. He must have tact and a sense of propriety. The man we want need not have been radio announcer, but he must have wished to be one."

It was said that one of the announcers sought must be a capable accompanist at the piano and in conclusion that the compensation was moderate.

"MIKE" A TYRANT OF STUDIO WHEN MUSIC IS ON Bosses Absolutely Positions Artists Assume.

The broadcasting of music has grown like Topsy. In the case of a single artist it has been comparatively easy to indicate a definite position before the microphone and one which is likely to secure the best results. But where several artists are concerned or there are a number of musicians, as in an orchestra, the problem has become more and more complicated, and in the rapid development of broadcasting has been one which has not had as much attention in the past as it unquestionably will have in the future.

Make Long Experiments.

However, it was not new to the phonograph people, for in the making of records they have been experimenting for years in the proper placing of the instruments. An orchestra forming in a broadcasting studio, as a rule, looks like an orchestra playing any place else, but in a phonograph recording laboratory it is a most unusual sight.

The man playing the cello may be on a chair with legs so long that the player's head almost touches the ceiling. On the other hand, the tuba player may almost be sitting on the floor. Sometimes the music racks are suspended from the ceiling, again they are giraffelike affairs rising from the floor.

Achieve Wonders.

Everyone will recall how wonderfully the reproduction of the violin, cello, and other orchestral instruments has been perfected in phonograph records—and even the day when it was next to impossible to record successfully a woman's voice. Yet this has all been brought to a marvelous state of perfection. Just so radio reception and reproduction of musical instruments has gone through the same development.

SPAIN TO HOLD EXPOSITION OF RADIO GOODS

A radio exposition will be held in the Ice palace, Madrid, Spain, during November, at which time radio apparatus and telegraph material will be exhibited, Commercial Attaché Charles H. Cunningham, Madrid, reports to the department of commerce.

American manufacturers are invited to display their products. While the development of radio in most of Spain has been slow, it is believed that the coming exposition will do much to increase the use of sets in some sections. This is a highly competitive market with Italy, France, and England offering sets of all values.

YEAR OLD, WQJ AND "CHI-CAGO" WILL CELEBRATE

Special Program Ready for Event, May 22.

WQJ will be a year old May 22. Concluding that a single anniversary will not be sufficient to fit the occasion the owners of the station will observe two anniversaries. The other one will be Jerry Sullivan's, for, be it known, during its first year WQJ has never known any other director or announcer.

So the evening of May 22 at Rainbo Gardens, Clark street and Lawrence avenue, there will be special ceremonies in observance of this dual event.

As for Jerry Sullivan, he is a Chicago boy. He won a scholarship at Crane Tech which entitled him to a free year at the Illinois Agricultural college. This made him so happy that he immediately began writing popular songs and he soon forget about learning to be a farmer.

Haunts Studios.

When broadcasting stations began to appear he haunted them to learn all he could about radio, all the time keeping up his song writing and cultivating his voice. He also became a fine piano player.

Then came the opening of the Calumet Baking Powder and Rainbo Gardens station during May of 1924, and it didn't take the powers that be long to decide that "Jerry" Sullivan was the man they wanted to direct and command the new and powerful station.

WQJ has become one of the popular stations in Chicago under "Jerry's" direction, and the office door is always open so that the public may meet "Jerry" and see for itself just how the station is operated.

On the Program.

In connection with the celebration, numerous persons prominent in the public life of Chicago will make congratulatory speeches, including State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, Judge Kickham Scanlon, First Assistant U. S. District Attorney William F. Waugh, and Sheriff Peter Hoffman.

AMATEURS BLAZE WAY IN RADIO'S PATH OF TRIUMPH

"The one great outstanding contribution of amateurs to the radio art," says Kenneth Bolles in the June Radio Broadcast Magazine, "is their development of the short waves. They have gone farther in this field than any other group. They have proved short waves are of unsuspected importance. The various radio groups have become interested in these bands because of the pioneer work that has been done by amateurs.

"With the short bands given over to their exclusive use, amateurs in this country have demonstrated they can send their signals to any part of the world where there are radio fans and radio receivers to pick them up. It has become practically impossible to name any country in the world where local amateurs are at all active that has not heard American amateurs calling.

ONE TUBE, BUT IT BRINGS JOY TO ISLANDERS

Farallon Islands, Cal., May 16.—This community of thirty souls, heretofore isolated from the outside world for two weeks at a time, is now in daily touch with the mainland, thanks to radio. Thirty miles from the coast, the population is engaged in maintaining the naval compass station and the lighthouse service station.

Otto L. Lowe, a navy mechanic, has a one tube set, which he says beats any other one tube set he ever heard of in the matter of distance. The islanders are consequently beginning to enjoy life.

AIR SLEUTHS OF BUFFALO FOES OF INTERFERENCE

Listeners Tell Satisfaction Over Their Work.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 16.—The usefulness of vigilance committees or "air sleuths," as sponsored by the American Radio Relay league, is being amply demonstrated in the territory around this city. These vigilance committees are organized for the express purpose of tracing interference with the reception of broadcast radio programs.

Despite the fact that there are many varieties of radio interference, amateur radio enthusiasts in a neighborhood have been up until now forced to bear the brunt of most of the blame when broadcast programs were not received with the clarity that the set owner felt was his due.

How It Operates.

To check up on local conditions the Radio Association of Western New York, which is affiliated with the American Radio Relay league, formed the vigilance committee.

Already local listeners have expressed satisfaction with the results attained by this committee. Complaints that are filed with the Radio association have been investigated and recommendations for remedies made by the committee. In instances where it is found that an amateur operator violates the rules the committee recommends changes to secure compliance. Where the interference appears deliberate the recommendation is made that the license of the offender be forfeited.

Many times the listening fan is at fault, it has been shown by the investigations of the committee. In one instance it was found that the fan was using a single circuit tuner. The inability of this type of set to tune out nearby stations is so marked that governmental officials refuse to give consideration to complaints from owners.

Close Tests Made.

It has been pointed out by the committee and by the officials that amateurs operating their stations under the eighty-five meter wave length are so far away from the broadcasting bands that they furnish no interference in any efficient tuning device.

The first step in the investigation of a complaint in this area is a test of the receiving set over which the interference made its appearance. The committee then takes up the outside question.

HEARINGS IN U. S. MONOPOLY CASE AGAIN GO OVER

The federal trade commission hearings in New York of the alleged radio monopoly have been postponed to some time between July 1 and Sept. 16, the exact date to be agreed upon later.

No reason has been given for the postponement, although this is the second time the hearings have been moved forward.

Vanished beauty comes back—and stays when you use Tufcote Varnish Stain!

Tufcote is supplied in six attractive hardwood effects: Light Oak, Dark Oak, Cherry, Mahogany, Walnut, and Brown Mahogany.

THAT scuffed, scratched floor; that dingy woodwork; that water-stained table-top; that scarred, time-worn chair—bring them back to colorful, gleaming beauty with du Pont Tufcote, the varnish stain that keeps its youth.

Tufcote is easy to use, too—just let it flow from the brush. It stains to give the rich effect of fine hardwoods, and dries quickly with a hard, mirror-like surface that defies wear. Always keep a can of Tufcote in the house.

The du Pont Paint and Varnish Service Agent in your vicinity will be glad to show you how to use Tufcote or any of the du Pont Paints, Varnishes, Enamels and Stains.

Circle Tour East (15 days 2350 miles) $195

(Price includes everything except meals)

Have you ever wished you could step into a luxurious limousine and motor East—stopping at all those places you've heard so much about? Detroit, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, the Hudson River, New York City, Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Washington, the Civil War battlefields? You can—and at very little cost.

The Gray Line's famous Circle Tour East takes you to all these places and more. It's a tour of 15 days, covering in all 2,350 miles. The entire round-trip—including transportation by motor coach and boat, rooms with bath at the best hotels (such as the Waldorf in New York and the New Willard in Washington), everything except meals—is only $195.

Our De Luxe Parlor Motor Coaches, especially built for long-distance motoring, are even more comfortable than the finest private limousines. You glide along over the finest roads in America on big balloon tires. You travel only by day, seeing everything of interest. During our 1924 season more than 500 patrons took this tour. All pronounced it the

THE NEW MORRISON HOTEL

Largest in Size
Most Reasonable in Rates

VALUABLE store subleases have for several years enabled the Morrison to rent rooms for $3 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 in any other leading hotel. A recently obtained "sky-lease" will, however, greatly extend this "economy-policy." There will be 850 rooms in the new Clark St. section—400 in the tower—practically without ground rent. Guests on the upper floors will enjoy the same pure atmosphere as at a hotel in the suburbs—reached by a short trip in an elevator.

At present the Morrison contains 1,054 outside rooms, each with bath, but the new Morrison will have 3,400—the largest hotel on earth.

The Morrison is the home of the Terrace Garden, "Chicago's Wonder Restaurant," the favorite "dine-and-dance" rendezvous of the middle west. The following artists have been engaged for the week beginning Monday, May 18:

FRANK LIBUSE
"That Funny Waiter"

WHITE STAR Leadership

THE leadership of White Star and associated lines rests not merely upon the vast size of its fleets, aggregating more than a million tons; nor yet upon the preeminence of its great ships, which include the world's largest steamer Majestic; nor upon the frequency of its eastbound transatlantic sailings, of which there are 236 this year.

The main fact in this leadership is something indefinable and intangible, that finished skill and mastery of service made possible by fifty-four years experience, which is responsible for a well established preference for our services among thousands of discriminating travelers.

A Raymond-Whitcomb Cruise

Round the World

Sailing October 10, 1925, visiting all six continents on a course of 38,000 miles, this cruise is more comprehensive than any cruise ever before run.

The cruise-route covers the usual countries with exceptional thoroughness—visiting Japan, China, the Philippines, Java, the Straits Settlements, Ceylon, India, Egypt, Italy, Spain, France and England.

And to these Raymond-Whitcomb has added one whole quarter of the Eastern World which will be visited for the first time in cruise-history—barbaric New Guinea, aboriginal New Zealand, luxuriant Tasmania and vital Australia with its weird animals and exotic plants. Certainly the round the world traveler should not miss Australasia.

The "Carinthia"

Modeled along lines similar to those of the popular "Franconia", our cruise-ship (S.S. "Carinthia"), the newest of the great Cunard Liners, is particularly fitted for such a voyage. Hot and cold running water in every room. Typical of the lavish amount of space available to the traveler is the Sports Arena, of 5,000 sq. ft., consisting of a swimming pool, gymnasium and squash court.

The best cruise-ship ever to make such a voyage. Rates $2,000 & up.

"Midnight Sun" Cruise

Visiting the Scandinavian capitals—Christiania, Copenhagen and (on an optional trip) Stockholm

Iceland, North Cape, the Fjords

Sailing June 30, this is the only cruise from America to Iceland, the North Cape and the Fjords of Norway and our Fifth annual Midnight Sun Cruise.

This year's cruise is more complete than any other, and includes the cities of Trondhjem, Bergen, and Christiania in Norway; Gothenburg in Sweden, Copenhagen and Amsterdam. It reaches England and France in ample season for summer travel in Western Europe.

The Cunard Liner "Franconia" (20,000 tons) was built especially for cruises, and has 70 rooms with private bath—also squash court, gymnasium, swimming pool and four courts for deck tennis. Rates $725 and upwards.

Mediterranean Cruise

Sailing June 27 and arriving at Cherbourg and Southampton August 18—in season for further summer travel in Europe

This cruise visits 30 ports and inland cities and 13 countries—including Nice, Monte Carlo, Rome, Naples, Venice, Athens, Ragusa, Cattaro, Constantinople, Beyrouth, Jerusalem, Gibraltar, Granada, Algiers, Tangier, etc.

Summer is not only the most convenient time to visit the Mediterranean but it is also the season which finds many of the countries really at their best.

Only first cabin staterooms will be used—every room an outside room. Our cruise-ship the S.S. "Orossay" (20,000 tons) is the best ship ever to cruise the Mediterranean in Summer. Rates $675 and up.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Society to Grace Opening Night of Mrs. Insull's Play

By Mme. X.

THERE are immediately ahead of us several events of more than usual interest to the intelligentsia of the community, events unique, not to be found anywhere else in the United States of America at this time. It is a matter of much more than local importance when the charming and gifted Gladys Wallis returns, after a lapse of years, to the stage from which her husband, Samuel Insull, took her at the height of a remarkably successful career, for she was at that time probably the most popular young actress, and exceedingly young she was, too—in the country.

She returns to a public that has never forgotten her, bringing her own company and one of the really great plays in the English language, Sheridan's "The School for Scandal." She will give the Chicago public an opportunity of seeing and studying what will probably be one of the most polished and brilliant performances that has been given here in one or two generations.

For this the Illinois theater, one of the most convenient and comfortable of our playhouses, has been engaged from June 1 to 13, inclusive. Her company is a picked one. Frederick Lewis, who was leading man in the company of Julia Marlowe and E. H. Sothern, is to play Sir Joseph Surface, while Ritchie Ling will impersonate Sir Peter Teazle—Mrs. Insull, of course, taking the rôle of Lady Teazle.

St. Luke's to Benefit.

It is going to be as brilliant socially as it will be from an artistic standpoint. The seats and boxes for the opening night are already being sold for prices that will make the famous organizers of previous charitable entertainments tear their hair with jealousy. But which of them has ever offered quite the same quid pro quo for their money? Those who occupy boxes the first evening will feel as if they were sitting on chairs upholstered in cloth of gold and tufted with diamond buttons. But, then, the performance will be superb, the company of the most distinguished and élite, and the cause for which Mrs. Insull—and Mr. Insull, likewise—are taking so much trouble is St. Luke's hospital, one of the city's oldest and most valuable institutions. The money made by the sixteen performances will go, every penny of it, to the new building being put up to house the hospital.

When this is finished St. Luke's will rank as one of the greatest establishments of its kind in the country. It will be twenty-one stories in height at the north end and nineteen on the south. It will have 915 rooms, with charges that will put them within the reach of those of small means. One-third of those cared for at St. Luke's are charity patients, who will have a whole floor set aside for their use. Besides which there are thousands of no-pay school children who are treated free by the hospital corps.

The prospectus also promises "the greatest hospital laboratory and research department in the country." There is likewise a free medical and surgery dispensary. The building, when completed, will cost $2,750,000.

So, if box holders and seat buyers for the opening night at the Illinois theater have to pay a pretty steep figure for the privilege, they will not only have the satisfaction of being in the best company Chicago affords—for it is bound to be one of the most representative and brilliant audiences ever gathered here—but these buyers of tickets will have the even greater satisfaction of knowing they are contributing to one of the most deserving of our famous institutions, and may be sure the Recording Angel will credit them with the same.

Mrs. W. L. Baum, president of the woman's board of the hospital, is head of a committee of members of this board who will be active in selling the tickets. This ticket committee includes Mrs. Lester Armour, Mrs. Richard Bentley, Mrs. Thornhill Broome, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, Mrs. Charles De Long, Mrs. Alan Dixon, Mrs. Harold Eldredge, Mrs. Charles L. Monroe, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. Clifford Rodman, Mrs. Theodore Shaw, and Mrs. E. R. Fifield, and the Misses Anita Blair, Louise Herrick, and Mary Newberry.

Death to Mosquitoes!

Buzz-buzz-buzz, do you hear the winged cohorts gathering out of the stagnant pools, clogged up roof gutters, hidden puddles, sluggish marshes, and slow moving rivers? Yes, they are stirring in their embryonic state, the anopheles punctipennis, quadrimaculatus, crucians, quinquefasciatus, the culex territans, restuans, the stegomyia, and all the other family stocks of the summer's most intolerable pest, the mosquito. But for the first time they are going to meet on the north shore an organized, scientific, thoroughly carried out campaign of extermination.

With the aid of the state bureau for such things, Louis Eckstein is going to fight them in Ravinia and Glencoe, carrying his fight far beyond the confines of that shrine of music, and spending on the warfare a goodly sum of money. It is to be hoped other nearby communities will take up the task also and make a battle line thirty or forty miles long.

Here are a few of the data which the state bureau sends out as a guide to would-be fighters:

1. The maximum flight distance of a mosquito is about one mile.

2. Mosquitoes breed only in collections of water. They do not breed in damp or moist places nor in weeds, grass or shrubbery.

3. The mosquito in its development passes through four stages, and for life during the first three it is entirely dependent upon water.

4. The female mosquito, which outnumbers the male about 10 to 1, lays its eggs on the surface of some collection of water. Each female mosquito will lay about 400 eggs a week. Each mosquito lives about 28 days.

[Paul Stone-Raymor Photo.]

Mrs. Fulton and Miss Meeker are the only Chicago young women in the bridal party for Miss Marion Erskine's wedding on Saturday to Paul Fenimore Cooper. The service is to be read at St. James' Episcopal church, and is to be followed by a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert De Wolf Erskine of 33 East Division street. Mrs. Fulton is the former Miss Anna Wrenn.

Mrs. Howard, the former Miss Loretta Hines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hines of Evanston, has been proffered an addition to the sensational list of distinctions she has received since her debut in the early winter—an invitation to be presented at the court of St. James at one of this season's fêtes. One of the most elaborate debut balls of the winter, a mammoth wedding, officiated at by Cardinal Mundelein, a European honeymoon with an English lodge for the hunting season, and numerous sojourns on the continent have marked Mrs. Howard's first season "out."

MRS. ARNOLD TRETSCHLER.

[Daguerre Studio Photo.]

The marriage of Miss Helen B. Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Wagner of Miami Beach, Fla., to Arnold L. Tretschler, took place on May 6 at St. Mary of the Lake church. A reception at the residence of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tretschler of 822 Junior terrace, followed the ceremony. After May 25 Mr. and Mrs. Tretschler will reside at 822 Junior terrace.

MISS HANNAH ADELE SCHUMAN.

[H. L. Ray Photo.]

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. John Schuman of 1961 Foster avenue of the approaching marriage of their daughter, Hannah Adele, to David Gensburg, formerly of Pittsburgh, Pa. The wedding is to take place the latter part of this month.

9. The entire time required for a mosquito to pass from egg to adult stage is seven days.

10. Although passing its first three life stages in the water the wiggle tail and the tumblers are true air breathers, procuring their supply of air through respiratory siphons located on their tails which they intermittently thrust through the surface of the water for air.

11. When the water surface is sprayed with oil, it creates a film through which the wiggle tails cannot penetrate their breathing tubes, and they suffocate.

There follows a series of directions clearly set forth as to how much oil and what instruments and how many men are needed, and what system is to be applied to get the best results. Carefully carried out, this proposed program will get rid of ninety per cent—possibly ninety-five per cent—of the summer's customary quota of these infernal tormentors. It has been accomplished in other much worse infested regions, notably the Panama canal district and parts of Long Island. When one reads that an ounce of oil will destroy thousands of mosquitoes while they are in the process of developing, while one hundred gallons won't kill more than a hundred adult mosquitoes, one appreciates the necessity of beginning the campaign promptly, which means by May 15, and of keeping persistently at it during the season.

Summer a Radiant Prospect.

It is like the patron and mainstay of Ravinia to set about eliminating so efficiently this sometimes serious drawback to enjoyment of our summer opera. It may be that some unmusical mortals, who hitherto have hung back, may be driven to Ravinia's wonderful performances to escape their home anopheles. If so, it would be like the proverbial swine using the pearls with which to scratch their bristly backs. But perhaps such acquaintance may ripen into a genuine love for and appreciation of one of the greatest privileges ever accorded to a summer colony, the Ravinia open air opera. And, in any case, there are thousands of others to whom the thought of a season with that marvelous company makes the summer a radiant prospect.

Welcome, Bori, Raisa, Martinelli, Schipa, and the other songbirds who are already looming up on our horizon! It will not be so many weeks before the clans will gather for the opening night in those music haunted groves along the road northward from town to Milwaukee.

Also the Thursday afternoon concerts for children are going forward, and promise to be even more a feature of their young lives than ever before. Eric De Lamarter is to provide programs which shall still further interest and educate the youth of the north shore. Catch him or her young, and you make lovers of music and art out of almost every mortal. All he or she wants is an early habit of mind and acquaintance with music, painting, and sculpture. Such opportunity creates a taste that adds immensely to the joy of living as time whirls us toward whatever is our goal.

Drama by Amateurs.

Chicago's social folk are manifesting a more than usually vigorous interest in dramatic art. Recently at the Friday club there was presented a really exquisite performance of Maeterlinck's "Sister Beatrice," a poetic drama which was the basis for the far famed miracle play that for so long puzzled, intrigued, and disturbed New York audiences. Mrs. Dudley Cates as Sister Beatrice gave a vivid interpretation of the rôle. She was ably assisted by Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson of Lake Forest as the abbess, and Mrs. Richard Bentley, Mrs. Graham, and Mrs. Preston Boyden, who were the nuns, while Mrs. Albert Kales was the priest and Miss Annette Washburn the lover.

Another excellent bit of amateur work was the presentation last week at the Arts club of a medieval French farce, "Maitre Patelin." It was so well done that you wished the material used had been a little more entertaining. The piece is a literary curio, but does not quite fill the bill for a whole evening's recreation of a numerous gathering. The spectator was continually in the process of adjusting his mind and point of view to the fact that this was what made the French of four centuries ago laugh. If it were possible to imagine yourself as living in these bleak, cheerless, intellectually gloomy days, the piece might afford some genuine merriment.

It must be admitted that the Arts club troupe almost lifted it successfully out of its environment and made it a piece of today, they were so alive, so capable, and so up to their job. Mrs. Alexander F. Stevenson, Mrs. John W Root, Helen R. Walton, Mrs. Livingston Fairbank, and Messrs. Eyler Simpson, Art Smith, Hal Noble Jr., John Abt, Julian Harris, and Robert Pollak certainly took the customary curse off a nonprofessional performance. The compliments of this P. P. P. to them and to their able trainer, Marion Nevada Gering! (I wonder where a Moscow Russ got just that middle name; don't you?).

For Relief of Veterans.

Next Thursday evening there will be a benefit for the relief fund of the 108th Engineers' local post of the Veterans of the Foreign Wars, at the Coliseum. It will present a program, both musical and artistic. There will be a chorus of 300 voices who, with soloists will give excerpts from Handel's "Messiah" and from Dubois' "Seven Last Words."

Also "Golgotha" a vast painting by the Polish artist, Jan Styka, will be exhibited. This is a colossal piece of work, 200 feet long, 40 feet high, and contains over 5,000 figures. It was brought over for the St. Louis World's fair. Owing to some misunderstanding with our complicated and interesting United States customs, it became lost and buried in a government storehouse, than which the sands of Egypt are not more entombing, and has only recently been excavated.

Mrs. Robert R. McCormick is general chairman of the entertainment, while Mrs. Hermon B. Butler is treasurer. The money raised by this affair will be used to relieve personal cases of distress among ex-service men and their families. Seven years ago it would not have seemed possible that such cases should ever knock vainly at our doors. It is to be hoped that before the necessity of another war arises—and heaven grant it may be long hence—no one then alive will remember the short memories of the present generation, nor the hard work it is to arouse interest in and support of enterprises for the benefit of those who gave more than life to establish the present pleasant security of us Americans.

It is just thirty years since Chicago's beau monde attended the marriage of pretty Miss Marion Brower to Albert de Wolfe Erskine. And here that still young and good looking pair is issuing invitations to the marriage of their daughter, also Marion, to Paul Fenimore Cooper. The latter is of the family of the famous novelist, James Fenimore Cooper, whose stories made the wooded hills and valleys around lovely Lake Otsego, in New York, alive with Indians, frontiersmen, and other adventurous souls.

The marriage is set for Saturday, May 23, at half past four o'clock at St. James' church. It will be followed by a reception at the residence of the bride's parents at 655 Maple street.

Apropos of Lake Otsego, on whose shores Mrs. Arthur Ryerson has such a charming and extensive estate, that lady herself is still abroad having almost accomplished the round the globe tour which each of us hopes to make before dropping back into the bosom that bore us. She visited recently the Count and Countess de Jumilhac at their historic old chateau, Ecuiry, on the Aisne. The Jumilhacs will be remembered as having made a brief, but lively, visit here last winter when both were the much feted guests of that week among Chicago's gayest set.

The countess when she lived here some years ago, when she was Mrs. Ray Atherton, was one of the real belles of that decade. Mrs. Ryerson spent a few days with the Jumilhacs after being one of the hosts at the dedication of the American Memorial hospital at Reims on April 30.

This was made a great occasion by those of this fund who were present. There was a dedication ceremony, followed by a breakfast. Ambassador Herrick was there, as was Gen. Gouraud, and the mayor and deputies of Reims. There was speech making and a band of music. The affair took place on the charming flowered terrace of the hospital whence there is a magnificent view of the towers of Reims cathedral a mile and a half away. The menu for the breakfast makes the mouth water: œufs à la Russe; saumon froid, sauce verte; fonds d'artichaut, sauce mousseline; poularde du Mans cresson; salade; glace pralinée; oublies; fruits and biscuits; coffee. Isn't it enough to make us glad we helped to save France? The French cuisine is sufficient reason to cause the whole of the civilized world to rise to her rescue whenever it shall be needed. Match fonds d'artichauts, sauce mousseline, with the best German sauerkraut, if you can.

News from France.

Many of Mrs. Ryerson's friends will remember a house guest of hers, Robert la Montaigne de St. Hubert. He was a tall, distinguished looking Frenchman, a man who had lost one of a pair of uncommonly handsome eyes in the war, and whose fine features were hardly damaged by the fact that the same shell that deprived him of an eye had also taken away part of his cheek and jaw, which had been so deftly repaired by the war surgeons that the statuesque outlines were hardly altered. He visited Mrs. Ryerson in her Lake View avenue house soon after the war. He also had one or two of his paintings on exhibition here at the Art institute.

He has done some frescoes at the American Memorial hospital at Reims, which must be beautiful if they match with Mrs. Ryerson's description of them. She writes that he has thrown over the hospital "a veil of decoration, frescoes, at the entrance; in the children's playroom, through the long galleries and on the roof, depicting children dancing and playing spring blossoms, a riot of gayety and youth." In lieu of memorial tablets St. Hubert has illuminated inscriptions on the walls of the different rooms with graceful and appropriate designs. The inscription is in the form of a tree whose roots are in America and whose topmost branches are in France. On the branches are writ the names of the men who died for France and liberty, and also the names of the places they came from.

Fancy the little French girls and boys studying and spelling out such names as Duxbury, Mass.; Louisville, Ky.; Kenosha, Wis., and Otsego lake [for Mrs. Ryerson gave a room in memory of her daughter, the late Mrs. George W. Patterson, who worked so hard in France that she weakened a naturally strong constitution and died young].

The hospital is endowed and equipped with an efficient corps of doctors and nurses, and will stand for long ages to come as a memorial of the time when the two great republics fought side by side for the life of one and the ideals of the other.

Among the Chicago women who worked hard in the American Fund for French Wounded, which society founded this Reims hospital, were Mrs. Russell Tyson, who was the president of the society from its inception; Mrs. George Payson, Mrs. Watson Blair, Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, Mrs. John A. Spoor, Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Mrs William Prescott Hunt, and Miss Marie J. Roost. This is an utterly incomplete list and is resurrected from a palsied and doddering memory, but there wasn't a more gallant or devoted band of women than this outfit of Chicagoans who worked day after day for the French wounded and their suffering families. This hospital is an enduring monument to one of the high moments in our national life.

Peace and Law to Be High Lights of Federation Meet

By Kate Webber.

FURTHER indorsement of sane and constructive peace measures, law enforcement, and the study of American citizenship are expected to be high lights at the thirtieth annual convention of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held this week in Decatur. More than 200 women are expected to attend the convention from Chicago, and there will be approximately 600 in the voting body.

Mrs. George Thomas Palmer of Springfield, president of the federation, considers the two subjects of peace and law enforcement the two most important ones with which women can concern themselves at the present time.

"I would like to see a wise middle ground reached by the honest and loyal pacifist [one who wants peace] and the honest anti-pacifist," Mrs. Palmer says. "That will be necessary that these elements who are clamoring for 'peace at any price' may come to realize they are playing into the hands of the enemies of our country by such propaganda; that those earnest people who are loyal to America, but who are working for peace, may recognize that a certain preparedness for America is necessary as long as the rest of the world is armed; that those who are for a reasonable protection and not disarmament may not be accused by the pacifists of wanting war; and, finally, that the peace loving who are patriotic may not be called traitors by the other side."

As an antidote for radical propaganda of the day, Mrs. Palmer would like to see stressed a greater national consciousness, respect for the government, and deeper and truer patriotism. Especially does she urge these things to offset the "seemingly growing youth movement, which resents authority and restraint and which demands unrestricted individual liberty." She will endeavor to show that the employment of children's leisure time will alleviate greatly conditions arising later out of the "close relationship between leisure and lawlessness."

Mrs. Palmer characterizes jury service as "distasteful," yet she thinks it soon will be imperative for women to give time to this service.

"The lack of intelligence shown by verdicts recently rendered by juries of men, especially in murder cases, is such as to make the public lose all confidence and respect in their good judgment and good sense," she says. "Women could never be guilty of worse travesty on justice, and I have enough confidence in them to feel they will show more wisdom, honesty of purpose, and less criminal sentimentality."

Convention sessions will begin on Tuesday morning and will continue through Friday. The executive board will have a preconvention session tomorrow afternoon, to be followed by a dinner.

State Senator Thurlow G. Essington, the Rev. Elmer L. Williams, Dr. David E. Kinley, president of the University of Illinois; Ninian Welch, president of the Prairie club; C. A. Ewing, president of the Izaak Walton league, and Prof. J. W. Garner will be among the speakers at various departmental meetings.

Among those who will attend from Chicago are Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, first vice president; Mrs. George W. Plummer, parliamentarian; Mrs. Willis J. Burgess, executive secretary; Mrs. James W. Morrisson, Mrs. Albion L. Headburg, Mrs. William H. Cade, Mrs. Charles W. Leigh, Mrs. Charles J. Trainor, Dr. Lena K. Sadler, Mrs. John F. Decker, Mrs. W. J. Grotenhuis, and the presidents of the ten congressional districts.

MRS. GEORGE THOMAS PALMER.

Mrs. George Thomas Palmer of Springfield, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, will preside at the thirtieth annual convention of the federation, to be held this week at Decatur, with the Decatur Woman's club as hostess. An interesting program has been prepared for the sessions.

MRS. JEROME CROWLEY.

[Wallinger Photo.]

Mrs. Jerome Crowley is chairman of arrangements for an informal reception dance and card party to be given on Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Edgewater Beach hotel, under the auspices of the Buena Park Catholic Woman's club of St. Mary's of the Lake church.

MRS. JOHN L. CARPENTER.

[Waters Photo.]

Mrs. John L. Carpenter has concluded her second term as president of St. Cyril's Woman's club. The new officers, elected this month, are Mrs. T. J. Keogh, president; Mrs. Emma Tebbetts, vice president; Mrs. Elmer Whitty, corresponding secretary; Mrs. William Sharp, recording secretary, and Mrs. James J. Shanahan, treasurer.

Domestic School to Hold Exhibit

THE June bride, perhaps the most interesting "institution" of early summer, will be the subject about which the entire sixth annual exhibit of work will center at the School of Domestic Arts and Science. This exhibit will be held at the central branch, 6 North Michigan avenue, all day Thursday.

There will be live models to display the bride's costumes; there will be a table set and decorated for a wedding collation, and there will be garnished dishes and food suggestions for the housewife. All of these displays will be the work of students of the school.

The School of Domestic Arts and Science provides a place where girls may come to take special courses in home making, tearoom management, and other home arts. Those who think such courses are dwindling in interest would be encouraged by the school's ledger, which shows an increase of more than 300 per cent in students since 1916. The evening classes for girls and women in business have multiplied almost 600 per cent.

One of the outstanding features of the school is the practice apartment, located near the north side branch on Belden avenue. Here the students actually try out the theories of budgeting, marketing, playing hostess at first hand. The apartment is a six room affair, furnished in keeping with the average income. The practice tearoom is located at the same address, and here young women desirous of instruction in successful management of tearooms may try out all its ramifications.

The school is not run for pecuniary profit, but to play its share in community life in helping make more efficient and happier homes.

Mrs. Lynden Evans is president of the board of managers, and Miss Lillian Kemp is the director. Among the women interested are Mrs. Alfred H. Granger, Mrs. William A. Pusey, Mrs. John L. Shortall, Mrs. James B. Herrick, Mrs. William S. Monroe, Mrs. Charles S. Williamson, Mrs. John E. Jenkins, Mrs. Clyde G. Stevens, Mrs. Bertram Cahn, and Mrs. J. Alexander Waller.

MISS MARGARET SMETACEK.

[De Guildre Photo.]

Miss Margaret Smetacek will have a leading rôle in the operetta, "Miss Cherry Blossom," to be given on Thursday evening at the Central school auditorium by the Homewood Woman's club. The proceeds will be given to the maintenance fund of the Homewood public library.

MRS. ROSE KREBS.

The auxiliary of Temple Judea will give a card party and dance this evening at 1227 Independence boulevard. Mrs. Rose Krebs is president of the auxiliary.

CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

THE program committee was hard at work on plans for the coming year.

"It seems to me we should cut the length of our talks," said the art department representative. "Some of our speakers last year would have left a much better impression if they'd stopped after forty-five minutes or an hour instead of talking on and on until they became tiresome. That professor from the southern college, for instance, talked over an hour and a half. His voice was so monotonous I had a hard time keeping awake during the last part."

"Mrs. Carper thought he was wonderful," interpolated the home department representative.

"It was through her recommendation that we got him—he's a sort of a relative of hers," recalled the art department representative.

"Another reason for having the talks shorter is that we can have time for discussion," voiced the home department representative. "We often get as much out of the discussion as we do out of the talk. The members enjoy taking part, too."

"I think we should plan for another club play," opined the drama department representative. "I've heard favorable comment from about all of our members in regard to the one we had last year. Even the women who took part were surprised that they could do so well. One member told me the play made her change her opinions completely about several of the members, and that she'd got better acquainted at that meeting than she had at half a dozen lecture meetings."

"Mrs. Sebert informed me she considered the performance beneath the dignity of a group of club women such as ours," put in the home department representative.

"She's strait-laced and has indigestion," parried the art department representative.

"We can't expect to please everybody all of the time," the chairman pointed out, "but we must try to please the majority at each meeting, and to have our programs varied enough so that all members will be appealed to during the year."

CLUB NOTES

one and a half center? On the first is the likeness [so-called] of Nathan Hale, on the other that of the late President Harding. The former, who was hanged as a spy by the English in his early twenties, looks like a tired and elderly prize fighter, not at all like the commonly accepted pictures of this young and romantic hero. By the way, did you know that when George Washington was asked to spare the British spy, Maj. André, he replied that he would have done so had the English not executed Nathan Hale.

These new stamps are to make more complicated the sending of newspapers and magazines, and also picture postals. You can no longer clap a nice green one cent stamp on the latter and send it off to the eagerly waiting family. You must provide a two cent stamp for it. The half cent and one and a half centers are to take the place of the one cent stamp that formerly would carry the average newspaper from one end of the country to the other. Those half cent divisions seem to reduce us to the level of nations that subdivide pennies and sous into farthings and centimes.

Depends Upon the Moon.

Out in Lake Forest on the night of Friday, June 5, if the full moon is shining down on Lake county as the calendar says it should, it will see those gleaming highways all astir with automobile, occupied by couples or three or four riders, scurrying about on the treasure hunt which the young women of that neighborhood, ex-Bryn Mawrists, are organizing in order to raise money for the Bryn Mawr Music school and auditorium endowment fund. Mrs. Charles Edward Brown Jr. is chairman of the committee organizing this sport. She is aided by the Misses Eleanor and Clarissa Donnelly and Marion Holt and Mrs. Richard Bentley, Mrs. John O. Dawson Jr., and Mrs. Keith Carpenter. The hunt will start from the Onwentsia club at 8:30 and will wind up with a supper and dance.

A treasure hunt is an invention handed to us by England's smartest set. It consists of a series of clews veiled in cryptic fashion which are handed to the hunter and which he and his party are to elucidate and follow. The group that gets to the goal first wins the prize.

It is a complicated and lively new form of diversion and demands alert minds and much imagination on the part of both sides, those who devise and carry out the chase and those who follow the mysterious signs. It is the first time Lake Foresters have tried it out. It will undoubtedly be a merry evening in that gayest of Chicago's suburbs. Furthermore, it is hoped it will net the enterprising young women who are getting it up a tidy sum for Bryn Mawr.

ART AND ARTISTS

Be Sure to Take Children to See Audubon's Birds

There, as I watched against the green
Of summer woods, I saw swirl by
A crimson goblet, dropped the night
The scarlet sun forgot to die.

A cloud of thunder, raven black,
Threaded the branches and a dream
Of bluebirds, violets with wings,
Woke memories and left a gleam.

The rainbow which the shower bore
Took feather and forsook the skies.
Night followed day and from her breast
Plucked song itself in bird's disguise.
E. J.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THERE is a remarkable collection of pictures of birds to be found now in the print galleries at the Art institute, on the first floor, and every one interested in wood life, or who has a boy or girl of school age, should make a point of seeing them and of having his children see them. The pictures are color engravings and comprise the series of "Audubon's Birds of America."

Audubon, as every one knows, was America's great naturalist and bird lover. The society for the preservation of birds bears his name. His influence has been and is and will, we hope, continue to be immense.

Audubon was born in Louisiana in 1780, of a French father and a Creole mother. He was brought up in France, where he studied drawing under David. When he returned to America his passionate love of nature sent him wandering through the woods and by the streams. Rod and gun were idle appendages in his hands. Everything was neglected in his passion for the outdoor life, and what little business he undertook suffered sadly and yielded him but meager returns.

Finally Audubon conceived the idea of reproducing in color the birds of America, and immediately he started to draw them, life size, in water colors. When they were finished he had a long and difficult time discovering an engraver to make his plates. Finally he went to England, having been refused at every door in America at which he thought to knock, and there he met Robert Havell Jr., who engraved his birds for him. They were first published between the years 1827 and 1839, beautifully colored, life size, and in aquatint.

The collection at the Art institute is lent by Kennedy & Co. of New York, and the engravings are for sale at prices ranging from twelve to one hundred and fifty dollars. They should be bought for the public schools. The pictures are an education and an inspiration. The exhibit is a most inviting affair. You wander in prepared, if for anything, to be bored. On the contrary, almost directly your interest is aroused, and your curiosity is at fever heat as you pursue around the walls your favorite birds, and the more elusive ones, which in the wild you never really hoped to see, carefully.

The engravings give you your favorite birds, and the shy, mysterious ones, with not a detail lacking. They are true in color, size, and marking. You find the tantalizing whippoorwill, the sentimental turtle dove, the thievish raven, the bellicose ivory gull, the friendly woodpecker, the dashing butcher bird, the fleet nighthawk, the melancholy bittern, and a host of amiable ducks. You find others besides these. You find birds scarlet, brown, cream, black, blue, vivid, dull, assertive, and modest in raiment; you find them of all sorts and conditions and each is interesting.

Be particularly sure to notice the one original plate; it depicts a "Frigate Pelican, and is a marvelous study in minute detail. Just beside it is the engraving, a great blackbird swooping down on its prey from a stormy void.

Three prize awards were made in the International Water-Color exhibit now to be found in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The Brown and Bigelow purchase prize of $500 was given to a Danish artist, the only Danish artist exhibiting, Kay Nielsen, for his Arabian Nights Tale illustration, "Shemreddin and Nureddin in Egypt."

The Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan prize of $200 was awarded to Caleb Winholtz for "A Mountain Farm."

The William H. Tuthill purchase prize of $100 was given to "Parisian Theater," by Richard F. Lahey.

This is exactly the time of year to run a short synopsis of a lecture given some ten days ago by Dudley Crafts Watson in Fullerton hall of the Art institute. The suggestions are too good and too helpful to miss. He said, in something after this fashion, but with, naturally, greater elaboration: "When you screen your back porch, be sure to use copper wire. If your porch roof has plenty of overhang, do not use awnings, because they shut out air as well as light. Just inside the screen, on rods, hang your curtains.

"The curtains may be made of inexpensive material, such as gooseberry cloth, which comes in a plain dark gray color, and you can stencil it yourself with little work. You must have a swing couch. Use either all wicker furniture or all wood. Do not mix wicker and wood. Have a window box filled with flowers running all around the porch. Do not neglect the prim geranium. It is decorative and hardy. For the porch floor tile is excellent, laid over with grass or Brazilian hemp rugs. Do not use Navajo rugs on your porch floors. They are too valuable and should be used on the couch or hung on the wall."

Two pictures have been sold from the Water Color exhibit current at the Art institute. They are "Spring Evening" by J. Enright Moony, an English artist, and a drawing by Ivan Mestrovic, the Jugo-Slav sculptor, whose exhibit of sculpture is also to be seen now at the institute.

Word comes from two of our well known Chicago painters who are now on the Pacific coast. Joseph Birren reports a successful tour of his one man show through the western states, lasting over a year and a quarter. His pictures are now being exhibited in Los Angeles and he is there, too. Later, artist and pictures will go to San Francisco.

Our other traveling artist is Irving Manoir, and he sends word of an exhibition of his work to be held in Los Angeles this month. Mr. Manoir is another of the younger artists, like E. Martin Hennings, for whom the beauties and grandeurs of the west are turning pages rapidly in their artistic development.

Gabriel Andre Petit has been appointed by Secretary Hoover to the commission, of which Robert Harshe, director of the Chicago Art institute, is also a member, to visit and report upon the International Exposition of Modern Decorative and Industrial Art in Paris. The commission will sail in June to undertake its mission. Mr. Petit was a resident of Chicago for twenty years and lives now in Adrian, Mich., where he and Maj. Herbert Lamb founded an art concern.

There close this week at the Arts club a conglomeration of exhibits for whose existence there seems little reason. Such an assemblage of trash is rarely to be met with. The exceptions served only to accentuate the wretchedness of the majority of the offerings. A number of paintings and several groups of sculpture from the exhibit that was assembled by Mrs. Howard Lind for the Woman's World's fair were to be seen and, in addition, there were drawings, water colors, and prints by forty modern artists (heaven deliver an artist from needing to be stigmatized as modern), and there was sculpture by Seraphin Soudbinine.

It was so much easier to pick the good things than to waste time and temper on the absurd, weak, or outrageous, that one might run them over in passing—for example, in the sculpture from Mrs. Linn's group—"East Wing," by Harriette Bingham; "The Naughty Fawn," by Sylvia Shaw Judson; "Rhythm" and "Lady with Fan," by Orloff, and "Epinard," by Kathleen Wheeler. Among the good paintings one found "Red Oak," by Lucie Hartrath; "Rosita," by Pauline Palmer; "Age of Innocence," by Ellen Emmet Rand; "The Star Gazers," by Agnes B. Street; "The New Bonnet," by Ruth Harris Bohan, and a half dozen or so more.

Soudbinine apparently has a technique that is limited by the primitive. Why thin, flattened features should spell the final word for modernism in depicting child or saint passes the understanding, but it seems to. Mestrovic calls it to his aid; and so, in weaker fashion, does Soudbinine. You may have liked his work, if you saw the exhibit, but this modern degenerate sculpture makes me cry out for a second Michelangelo to teach our artists dignity.

In the "Forty Modern Painters' Water Colors and Drawings" it was a relief to find as prosaic a picture as Isabel Whitney's "White Pullets." Augustus Gwodczky had a splendid portrait in his "Etching." The exceptions, however, were too scattered to exert much influence on the sum total of befuddled art.

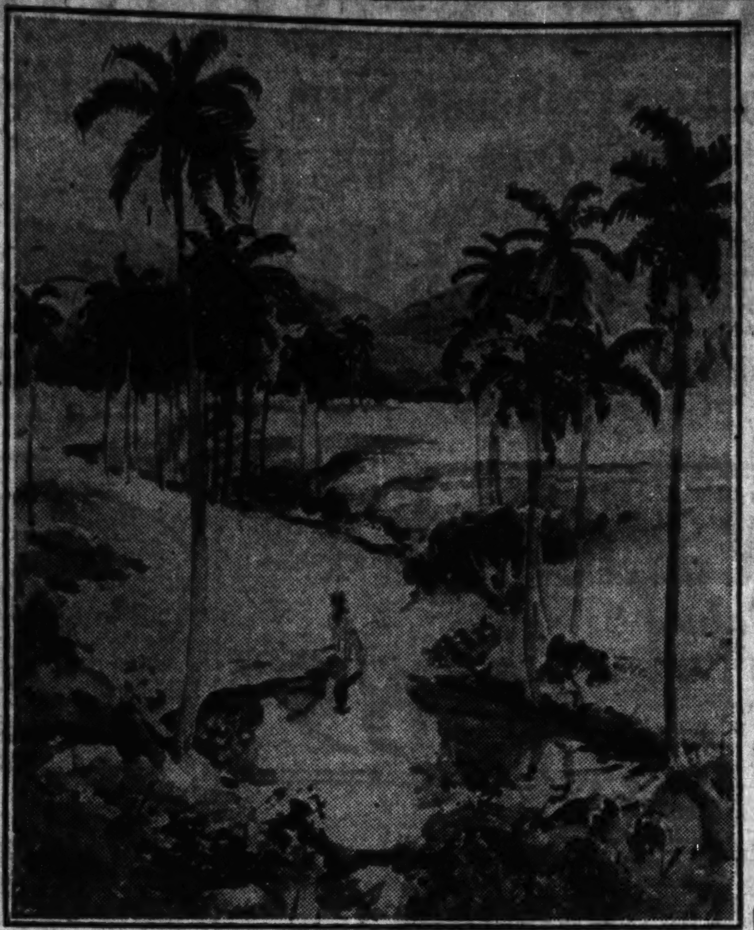
Tomorrow a new exhibit will open at the Arts club. It will consist of early Persian potteries and textiles, tapestries, illuminated manuscripts and jade. It promises to be an exhibit of great beauty and value. It will be on view a month, closing on June 15.



"The Oasis," by Harry W. Harnquist, is in the International Water Color exhibition now at the Art institute. The exhibition will close June 4. At present it forms an effective foil to the dramatic sculpture of Ivan Mestrovic, with which it shares honors in the east wing galleries.

THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

EDITED BY
Professor J. ARTHUR THOMSON

We may take an animal to pieces, as the anatomist is always doing, and a wonderful analysis it is, especially when we place other lenses in front of our own; we may inquire into the "go" of the various parts, as the physiologist seeks to do, and we have seen what an intricate engine the body is; we may watch the almost transparent egg of a moth gradually divide and redivide and develop into a tiny caterpillar—which even more marvelously becomes a butterfly—the embryologist's task; and we may work among fossils till we are able to throw upon the present the light of a distant past—which is the paleontologist's ambition.

These methods are all essential if we are to begin to understand living creatures, but they are not altogether adequate. We must also have an all round or synoptic view of living creatures; we must see life whole. What would we think of an astronomer who kept to his spectroscope and never enjoyed the splendor of the star strewn sky? And it is even more important for the biologist than for the astronomer to have the synoptic view, because life is such an elusive kind of activity. We cannot hope to get to grips with it unless we approach it in every possible way. So, laying aside analysis, let us consider the characteristics of living creatures when we look at them in an all round impressionist way. In so doing we shall follow, with the permission of the publishers, Williams & Norgate, J. Arthur Thomson's "System of Animate Nature."

It is surely a magnificent spectacle that animate nature presents. What a gamut of life from the microscopic infusorian to the giant whale, from the hyssop on the wall to the cedar of Lebanon! What abundance of life is revealed when the dredge comes up, or when the insects rise before us in a cloud as we walk through the grass land in a hot country! What variety of architecture, what abundance of individuality, within the same style! All is suggestive of fertile imagination. How strong the pressure as the waves of life surge up against their shores—we call this the "struggle for existence"; how numberless the hand and glove fitnesses or adaptations; how subtle the linkages in the web of life; how constant the changefulness or variability; how universal the beauty! But let us think over the deeper impressions which fill the mind after the crowd of details sinks to rest. These deeper impressions form part of the materials which biology gives over to philosophy to build with.

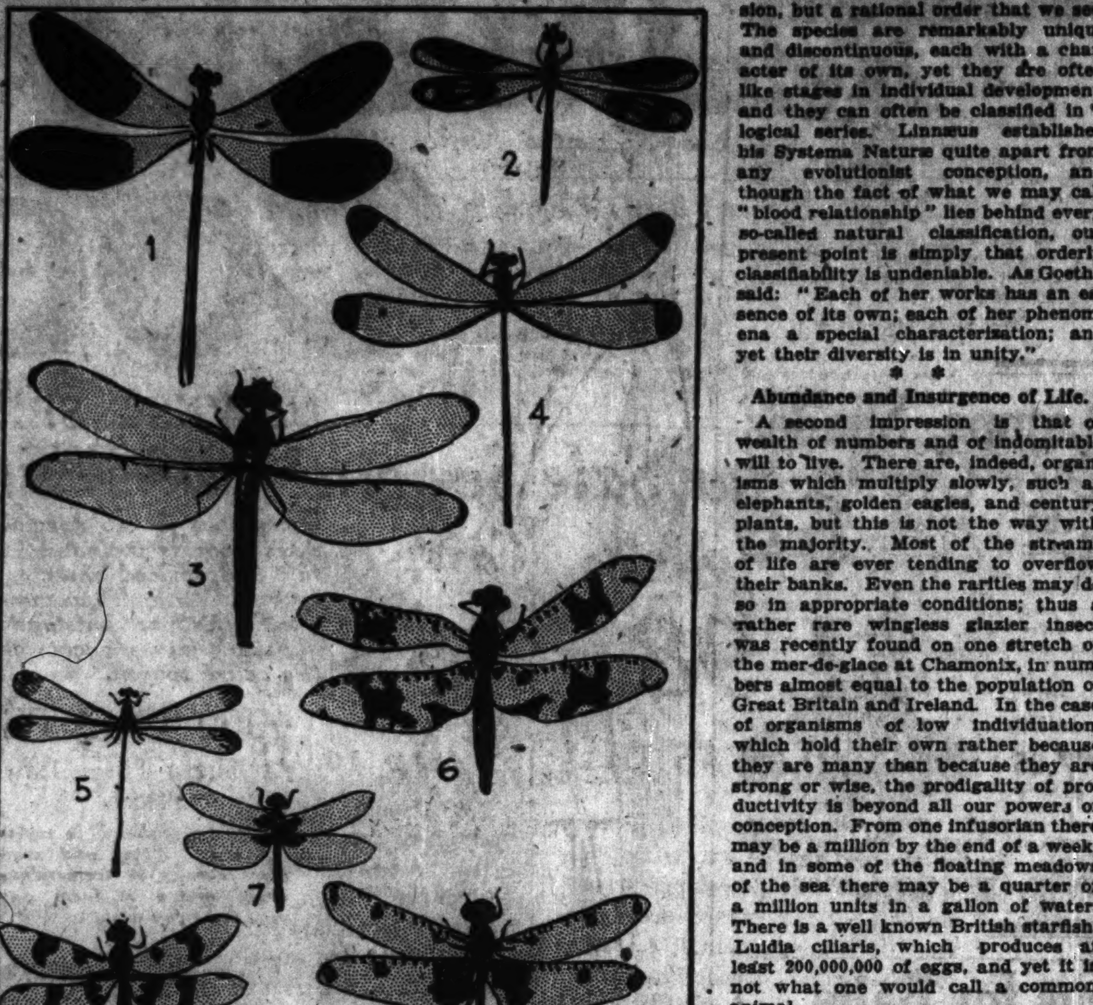
Multitude of Individualities.

When we look at nature with a fresh eye in a new country, or in some novel experience such as dredging, we have a transient impression of overwhelming confusion, as if Aladdin's cave had been suddenly burst open before us. Many miss this in ordinary circumstances because familiarity breeds the contempt of inattention, and also because a large number of living creatures live a hidden life. For every conspicuous plant there are a score inconspicuous, and for every readily visible animal there must be a hundred unseen. It is not of individuals that we are thinking, but of individualities, of species. On a moderate estimate of species there are at least 25,000 named backboned animals, ten times as many backboneless animals, and about as many plants. There are 100,000 dicotyledonous flowering plants. Darwin speaks of finding twenty kinds of flowering plants on a patch of four feet by three, and there may be as many different kinds of animals on one stone brought up from the sea floor.



A COLLECTION OF DRAGON FLIES of the order Odonata, with their beautiful/gauzelike wings. They are perhaps the best fliers among insects, playing a useful part in keeping down injurious pests, which they catch on the wing. [Reproduced from the Smithsonian Report, 1919.]

The study of marine animals has been enthusiastic and intense for many years, but those who know most about it will agree with what the poet Spenser said long ago:

But what an endless worke have I in hand,
To count the seas abundant progeny,
Whose fruitful seede farre passeth those on land,
And also those which wonne in th' azure sky;
For much more eath to tell the starres on hy,
Albe they endlesse seem in estimation,
Than to recount the seas posterity;
So fertile be the floods in generation,
So huge their numbers, and so numberlesse their nation.

The problem of individuality or species is difficult; but our view of nature as a whole must take account of the fact that species are multitudinous and that they represent discontinuous individualities, with much more constancy than the earlier Darwinians supposed. Linnæus said: "There are as many species as there were ideas in the Divine Mind," and there is no doubt that a good species is like a clear cut idea. At the other extreme of comparison, it is like a chemical element, but on a higher plane. As Goethe said: "The one thing nature seems to aim at is individuality; yet she cares nothing for individuals." If we personify "animate nature," it must at least be as an artist with inexhaustible imaginative resources, with extraordinary mastery of materials.

But in the prodigal wealth of individuality, it is not a demonic confusion, but a rational order that we see. The species are remarkably unique and discontinuous, each with a character of its own, yet they are often like stages in individual development, and they can often be classified in a logical series. Linnæus established his Systema Naturæ quite apart from any evolutionist conception, and though the fact of what we may call "blood relationship" lies behind every so-called natural classification, our present point is simply that orderly classifiability is undeniable. As Goethe said: "Each of her works has an essence of its own; each of her phenomena a special characterization; and yet their diversity is in unity."

Abundance and Insurgence of Life.

A second impression is that of wealth of numbers and of indomitable will to live. There are, indeed, organisms which multiply slowly, such as elephants, golden eagles, and century plants, but this is not the way with the majority. Most of the streams of life are ever tending to overflow their banks. Even the rarities may do so in appropriate conditions; thus a rather rare wingless glazier insect was recently found on one stretch of the mer-de-glace at Chamonix, in numbers almost equal to the population of Great Britain and Ireland. In the case of organisms of low individuation, which hold their own rather because they are many than because they are strong or wise, the prodigality of productivity is beyond all our powers of conception. From one infusorian there may be a million by the end of a week, and in some of the floating meadows of the sea there may be a quarter of a million units in a gallon of water. There is a well known British starfish, Luidia ciliaris, which produces at least 200,000,000 of eggs, and yet it is not what one would call a common animal.

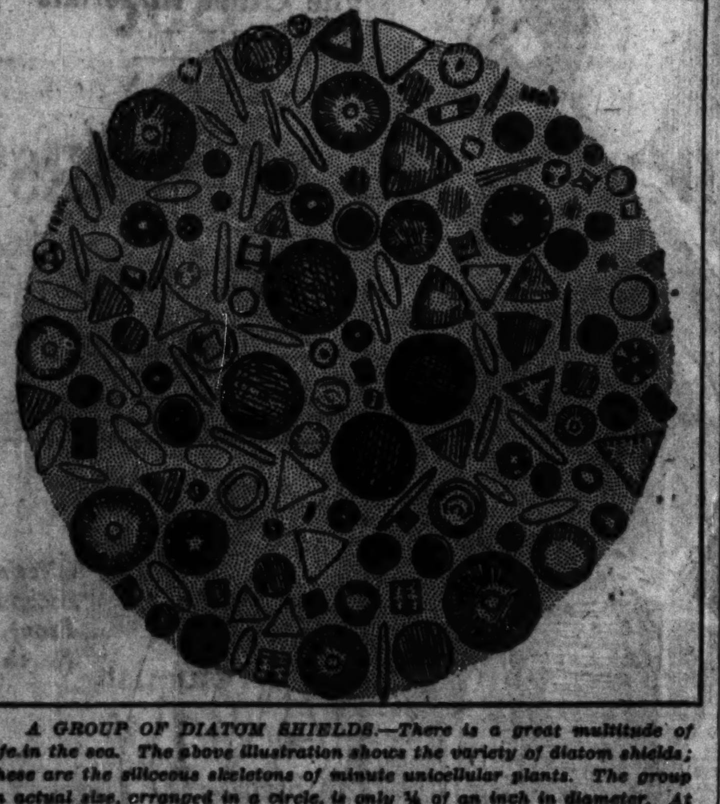
We are familiar with calculations of what would occur if there were no thinning of the crops—how soon the earth would be covered with a weed or the sea filled solid with a fish, or the sky darkened with an insect, and recurrent plagues of locusts, sparrows, rabbits, and moles remind us that a possibility may easily become an actuality. After allowing a prodigious mortality of 95 per cent it is computed that the 10,000,000 pairs of breeding rats in Great Britain on New Year's day, 1918, were represented by 40,000,000 pairs at the end of the year, and by 12,000,000 more pairs the following month! There is a grimness in the well known remarks of Linnæus that three flies will consume the carcass of a horse as quickly as a lion can. Prof. Woodruff observed the common asexual generations of the common slipper-animalcule (Paramecium) for five years between 1907 and 1912 and found that there were 3,029 of them, over three every forty-eight hours. Careful calculation showed that they had given evidence of the capacity of producing in the five years a volume of protoplasm approximately equal to 10,000 times the volume of the earth. This power of self-increase must be taken account of in our conception of living organisms and the resulting abundance of life must form part of our impressionist picture of animate nature. At the autumnal climax of productivity in lakes there may be to the square yard 7,000 millions of a well known Diatom, Melosira varians, so that the water is like a living soup.

We have to remember, moreover, the obvious but notable fact that we are dealing not with items like grains of sand, but with individuals, each itself and no other. Mendel put an end to the phrase "as like as two peas."

Individuals differ greatly in degree of complexity and of intergradation. Many an infusorian has an intricate organization and lives a by no means monotonous life, though it is only what we somewhat fallaciously call "a single cell." Hardly any larger than some infusorians are some of the rotifers, sometimes with about 1,000 cells; a minnow has its millions, and a bird its millions of millions. What a contrast between the very incipient integration of a sponge, the intricate division of labor in a Portuguese Man of War hesitating between colony and individual, and the compact coördination of the circumspect wren. As a recent student of the subject, Julian S. Huxley, puts it, we are confronted in nature with closed independent systems with harmonious parts and with capacity for continuance. Such are individuals. "Though the closure is never complete, the independence never absolute, the harmony never perfect, yet systems and tendency alike have real existence." The individual is unity in diversity—in what it is and what it does—a whole whose diverse parts all work together, insuring continuance. When it transcends the limits of its substance, Mr. Huxley says, that is personality.

But in addition to the abundance of life—alike of individualities and of individuals—there is the quality of insurgence. Living creatures press up against all barriers; they fill every possible niche all the world over; they show that nature abhors a vacuum. We find animals among the snows on Monte Rosa at a height of over 10,000 feet; we dredge them from the floor of the sea, from those great "deeps" of over six miles, where Mount Everest would be much more than engulfed. It is hard to say what difficulties living creatures may not conquer or circumvent. You may find insects in hot springs in which you cannot keep your hand immersed, or rotifers and other small fry under fifteen feet of ice in the little lakes of antarctica; you find brine-shrimp and two or three other animals in the Great Salt lake; you find a fish climbing a tree, and thoroughly terrestrial types like spiders having species living under water; there is, as Sir Arthur Shipley has shown, a [illegible] of life on the dry twigs of the heather. When we consider the filling of every niche, the finding of homes in extraordinary places, the mastery of difficult conditions, the plasticity that adjusts to out of the way exigencies, the circumvention of space (as in migration) and the conquest of time (as in hibernation), we begin to get an impression of the insurgence of life. We see life persistent and intrusive—spreading everywhere, insinuating itself, adapting itself, resisting everything, defying everything, surviving everything!

[Copyright: 1922: By G. P. Putnam's



A GROUP OF DIATOM SHIELDS.—There is a great multitude of life in the sea. The above illustration shows the variety of diatom shields; these are the siliceous skeletons of minute unicellular plants. The group in actual size, arranged in a circle, is only ⅛ of an inch in diameter. At the autumnal climax of productivity in lakes there may be to the square yard 7,000 millions of one well known diatom. [Photo: J. J. Ward.]

Eighteen—or eighty

Years rest lightly on the woman who goes through life perfectly corseted. She walks with poise and confidence, with buoyancy and charm—every motion easy, every posture graceful.

She has learned that care of the face alone does not spell youth or beauty; that comfort and well-being of the body as a whole is the true source of a radiant personality—of perpetual loveliness.

The proper corset made with this perfect fabric, with its all-way elasticity, gives to every woman the exact support required by nature, holding and moulding her figure without restraint.

Kenlastic, the knitted elastic, fits like skin itself, responding instantly and naturally to every change in position. Kenlastic lets your body breathe!

In America's finest corsets—your guarantee of lasting resiliency and unvarying quality. This uniform excellence is built into all Kenlastic. You are assured of it whether you purchase a model made with silk Kenlastic—the most luxurious corset fabric made—or a model made with cotton Kenlastic.

Presbyterians Will Name Moderator at General Assembly

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

THE 137th general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America will meet in Columbus, O., beginning next Thursday. The sessions will be held in Memorial hall. The retiring moderator, Dr. Charles E. Macartney, leader of the aggressive fundamentalists, pastor of Arch Street Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, will preach at the opening meeting.

In the afternoon the policy of the church regarding the doctrinal controversies now being waged will be tested in a vote for the new moderator. There are three groups which will be represented. The Philadelphia presbytery will represent the extreme fundamentalists, who not only take a fundamentalist position doctrinally as individuals, but advocate the exscinding of the New York presbytery and other liberals who sympathize with the Fosdick type of theology. The New York presbytery may be taken as representative of the liberal group, having in its delegation Dr. W. P. Merrill, Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, and representatives of the First church, who have from the beginning championed the cause of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

The third group is represented by the Chicago presbytery, which deplores the controversy while affirming its faith in the Westminster confession of faith and the infallibility of the Bible. There are liberals in Philadelphia and conservatives in New York and men allied on both sides in Chicago, but the cities mentioned may be properly named as typical of the three positions. The new moderator will at once take his position following his election and the work of the general church will then be considered.

The formal opening of the new Catholic parish of St. Theresa of the Infant Jesus, known as "The Little Flower," located at 80th and Wood streets, will take place today. The service marks the close of the novena in her honor and also the date of her canonization in Rome. There will be three early masses and high mass at 10:45. The devotions marking the close of the novena will be at 4 and 7:45 p. m. The Rev. Stephen E. McMahon, pastor of the parish, will be in general charge.

Boys will usher, read the service and lessons, and make the addresses today at the 5 o'clock vesper service at the Episcopal Church of the Atonement, 5749 Kenmore avenue.

THE RT. REV. MGR. FRANCIS C. KELLEY.
[Lavecchia Photo.]

Bishop Kelley, who is a well known church leader in Chicago, where he formerly resided as superintendent of the Catholic Church Extension society of which he was the founder, will lecture in Orchestra hall on Tuesday evening on the subject "The Catholic Church and World Politics." The proceeds of the lecture will be used by the school of sociology of Loyola university.

The boxholders include Mrs. William E. Dever, wife of the mayor, and many leaders in the social, political, and church world. Miss Gladys Swarthout of the Chicago Civic Opera company and George Hrusha, violinist, will furnish the musical entertainment. Miss Nellie Florence Ryan, president of the Loyola alumnae, and her assistants will have charge of the entertainment.

Bishop Kelley was consecrated and entered upon the Oklahoma see on Oct. 2, 1924. A farewell gift of $35,000 was bestowed on him in recognition of his services as the head of the Church Extension society. Bishop Kelley is the author of several books. He was an active participant in the Spanish-American war. For five years he was vice commander of the General Military Order of Foreign Wars.

The Immanuel Congregational church at Berteau avenue and Troy street will be dedicated today. The speakers will be: 10:45 a. m., Dr. J. R. Nichols; 3 p. m., Dr. J. A. Jenkins, and others, with the service of dedication, and at 8 p. m. a song festival with Fred Fisher as soloist. The Rev. Clarence B. Gould is the pastor and W. A. Rife is chairman of the building committee.

Lane Bryant—Only Store in Chicago Devoted Exclusively to Apparel for

STOUT WOMEN

The growth of a business is the surest proof of its success. No store can survive unless it renders a distinct service to its patrons.

Lane Bryant was established twenty-four years ago, enjoying continued prosperity and progress.

In that time it has grown from a small shop, serving only a few women, to a great National Institution known everywhere for its unequaled service to stout women.

For the fourth time in five years we are compelled to extend and enlarge our Chicago store.

We are now doubling our Beautiful Daylight Second Floor—extending it clear through to the Public Library on Washington Street.

While alterations are in progress we are offering our entire stock of seasonable Slenderizing Apparel at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES.

BUCK & RAYNER

Captain Gaynor, soldier of fortune, repulses the highwaymen, until he is rescued by the bodyguard of the beautiful Damaris Hollinstone. . . .

Rafael SABATINI writes

The GATES of DOOM

a new Blue Ribbon serial story

THIS latest masterful story of love, intrigue, and adventure tells of the romantic affairs of the handsome young Englishman, Captain Harry Gaynor, a soldier of fortune intent on placing a Stuart on the throne of England. The exciting situations surrounding the Captain's courtship of the beautiful Damaris Hollinstone, coupled with the breathtaking escapades which develop from his determination to organize the followers of the ambitious Stuart prince, make this novel a worthy companion to Sabatini's well known best sellers—Scaramouche, The Sea Hawk, and Captain Blood.

The Gates of Doom is a story of highwaymen and hangmen, of soldiers and traitors, of heroes and weaklings. Sabatini has an inimitable style and genius for producing novels of crisp adventure and feverish romance. His rare genius appears again in this never-before-published novel purchased at great cost as a new Blue Ribbon serial story for Tribune readers.

The Chicago Tribune spends hundreds of thousands of dollars every year in order to give its readers the best possible fiction obtainable. All of the novels and short stories printed in The Tribune are new stories. The Tribune was one of the first newspapers to present first-run fiction to its readers. Today its magazine section ranks high among all fiction bearing publications.

For pulsating, thrilling adventure, for fervent love, gay romance, and sinister intrigue, don't fail to follow this new Blue Ribbon serial story,

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A CAPABLE SALESMAN

seeking permanent connection with established firm in a permanent business will find this a perfect combination if he checks himself and us on these points:

Are you a consistent producer? Can you stand prosperity, Big Earnings?

Have you an open record for successful specialty selling for the past five years?

Are you accustomed to calling on Chief Executives and closing contracts in one interview?

Have you sufficient confidence in your ability to work on commission basis for full return on your efforts?

Can you keep the pace with 89 other Big Producers earning from $7,500 to $18,000 per year—every year?

Can you make a place for yourself in a growing organization composed of men in the best years of life, all of whom, including the President, have had actual selling experience in this line; whose executives earned promotion on their sales records, and whose continued growth insures further promotions?

To the one man who qualifies for this opening on the basis of his past record we offer thorough inside and outside training, immediate big earnings in exclusive territory, promotion possibilities, and a substantial future. We pay full commissions on Renewals.

If your selling experience qualifies you, give your age and selling record over a period of the last three years in the first letter. If satisfactory, we will then arrange for a personal interview. In reply state address, where you can be reached from the 20th to the 23d of May. All correspondence strictly confidential. Address H A 129, Tribune.

ARE

you satisfied with present earnings or seeking a new connection?

I may have something of vital interest to you; other men are making big money and so can you. No one but yourself can tell me otherwise. Anyway, my firm is more than a quarter century old, and all this time has made money; making specialties for merchants. Our device sells from $337.50 to $1,250.

We operate on a straight twenty per cent commission basis; our men sell from 4 to 20 machines per month. Only one sale per week of our smallest unit means $3,500 per year.

We advertise extensively both nationally and direct by mail. You get all the leads in protected territory. We sell more than twenty-five per cent of such leads.

We train you thoroughly to present our line; nearby territory available. Better look into this proposition at once.

See MR. WALSH, 108 N. Franklin-st., Monday, 9 to 4.

A PHENOMENAL OFFER

to distributors with ordinary sales experience to act as our jobbers. Few counties open throughout the union. Our 100% WINE grape juice is so pure, rich, and strong that we can show you how to reap a fortune. One distributor has already started the year by ordering 3,600 cases from us. Actual figures and references furnished by Bradstreet's, Dun's, or our bank, the biggest in Chicago, to show that we are actually the oldest and largest firm selling the pure juice of wine grapes and home bottling supplies in Chicago. Our products advertised from coast to coast with thousands of satisfied users.

Our only requirement is a small cash investment of $60 for stock and literature.

EXCLUSIVE SALES RIGHTS GIVEN IN YOUR TERRITORY. Free catalogue on request showing the many articles manufactured by us. We are also giving the sales rights of our own 26 wonderful cordials.

Get full particulars today. JOE GREIN & J. PAHLS, 130 W. Randolph-st., at La Salle-st. [47 years at this corner], Chicago, Ill.

A MESSAGE OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO THE MAN WHO THINKS.

I am looking for a clean cut, live wire, wide-awake Subdivision Salesman who will appreciate an opportunity to connect with a small organization in the capacity of Salesmanager and grow with the firm. Commissions, leads, property and co-operation very unusual. Man with a car living North or Northwest preferred. See MR. ROBERTS, Suite 1016, 36 S. State-st., 10 to 1 or 3 to 5.

A DEFINITE FUTURE FOR FIVE REAL SALESMEN.

We want five men, preferably 30 to 40 years, married, with good past records in sales field; preferably in lines that demand aggressive, intelligent presentations of ideas.

These men as a group will be placed on special work under an experienced supervisor and will be guaranteed an income from the start.

This is a well known national organization. The work is high grade and involves no traveling. Call between 9 and 11 for appointment.

MR. JONES, STATE 8177.

AGGRESSIVE SALESMEN.

Do you recall the feverish activity following the starting of work on the Niles Center extension? Hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property were sold in one day. The harvest of gold to salesmen was unprecedented. Men who had never made $2,000 annually in their lives before made $2,000 a month for a good many months. The actual beginning of work on the new North Shore Electric Line through the Skokie Valley to Lake Bluff last Monday morning has made our properties the greatest real estate values in recent years. Fortunate buyers here will make thousands of dollars, and so aggressive real estate salesmen who associate themselves with us now will do the same. HARRY SCHNITZER & CO., 307 N. Michigan.

FREE SCHOOL IN SALESMANSHIP,

Under the direction of Mr. George Landis Wilson, one of the most experienced and best known counselors in salesmanship in the country. The George F. Nixon & Co. have arranged A FREE COURSE IN REAL ESTATE SALESMANSHIP, available to men and women over 26 years of age, who want to learn how to profit from the BEST PAYING, THE HIGHEST GRADE, and MOST PERMANENT SELLING OPPORTUNITIES in Chicago.

Mr. Wilson, an experienced business man, A DIRECTOR OF THE ASSOCIATION OF SALES AND ADVERTISING COUNSELORS, formerly EDITOR, BUSINESS COUNSEL, AND EDUCATIONAL DIRECTOR OF THE SHELDON SCHOOLS, former PRESIDENT OF THE CHICAGO ROTARY CLUB, former PRESIDENT OF THE CHICAGO SALES MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION, and former PRESIDENT OF THE WESTERN EFFICIENCY SOCIETY, former ASSESSOR OF OAK PARK, and INSTRUCTOR OF THE EXECUTIVE CLUB OF CHICAGO, has given many weeks of intensive study to the real estate field and to the kind and character of properties that George F. Nixon & Co. presently will offer for sale along the line of the New High Speed Extension north of Dempster-st., Niles Center, construction on which has been recently announced.

These classes are held Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons from 2 to 4 and Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings from 7:30 to 9, for full time or part time workers.

These classes are conducted under the personal direction of Mr. George Landis Wilson and afford to salesmen and saleswomen a course in modern salesmanship, under the direction of one of the most competent men in the country, entirely free of cost or other obligation.

Requirements for enrollment are a clean record, an ambition to make more money, and an earnest willingness to be taught to do it under auspices of unquestionable reputation and record. There is nothing academic or theoretical. You are told and shown just how this valuable, well located, profit making real estate is sold every day to investors and to home lovers by successful Nixon salesmen and saleswomen. You can understand why.

Mr. Wilson will interview applicants for these free classes each afternoon or evening before the classes or Saturday afternoon between 2 and 4, or telephone for an appointment.

GEORGE F. NIXON & CO., Ardmore 3020. 4554 Broadway.

KRENN & DATO. DISTINCTIVE AND NEW. A PRACTICAL, INTENSIVE BUSINESS TRAINING COURSE.

Men and women who meet the public and "represent the firm of Krenn & Dato" need to know exactly what to say and how to say it when they speak our message.

We have spent many months preparing a definite, uniform, and constructive course covering just those things which men and women need to know in order to be effective representatives of a great, growing, aggressive business institution.

The training given during forenoons and afternoons each week is designed especially for those who are prepared to give all of their time to Krenn & Dato work.

The course given during four evenings of each week has been arranged so as to present part time workers only facts which they must know in order to use their energy to best advantage and profit.

All of the courses given are under the supervision of our Director of Personnel.

For detailed information call at the fourth floor, 936 N. Michigan-av.

WHO IS DOING THE WORLD'S WORK?

Not the genius, nor the man of extraordinary cleverness, nor the fellow with an occasional flash of ability, but men and women—just like yourself—people with everyday common sense and the WILL TO WORK.

And it is the average men and women who are selling real estate and earning large incomes thereby. They have been taught the business of selling real estate. YOU, also, can be taught. And YOU also WILL sell if you follow instructions and really WORK.

No experience is necessary. Come and show us that you really mean business—that you really want to work and earn the big rewards that go with it—and we will show you HOW. Our SCHOOL OF INTENSIVE BUSINESS TRAINING is FREE. We will spare no effort to make you a success and give you unlimited co-operation and a generous reward for services rendered.

Call or phone KRENN & DATO'S WEST SIDE OFFICE, 3244 West Roosevelt-rd., Phone Van Buren 7077. Ask for Otto Frankfort.

Monday.

Dear Marge:

I'm going to be a telephone operator.

Some one told me once that telephone work was hard—I know better now. I've been going to school and the work gets more fascinating every day. My instructor is so careful to see that everything is explained so that I can't help understanding; she ought to know, she was an operator herself. I can hardly wait to go to the practice board.

Marge, aren't our restrooms just dandy? I met some of the nicest girls on my noon hour—just out of high school.

Tomorrow my friend Irene is going to see Miss Allan. She had heard there were to be no more operators on account of the new machine switching system, but I told her differently.

We surely are lucky.

Love,
SALLY.

REAL ESTATE
SALESWOMEN.

I am organizing a special class for women to take advantage of the Free School in Salesmanship conducted by Mr. George Landis Wilson, referred to in another column. I invite women living on the North Side, either in Chicago or Evanston, Wilmette, Glencoe, Winnetka or Highland Park, to join this class in a group which will have my personal supervision to capitalize their knowledge in selling real estate before they have finished the course.

This group will be open to women who have all or only part of their time available, and I particularly invite women who have club, social or other such affiliations.

Classes will be held Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons from two to four, and Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings from 7:30 to 9.

I will meet applicants for these free classes before the classes each day and Saturday afternoon between two and four.

Ask for Mr. Fast.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

Many ladies today want to make money, want to be successful and independent, but really have not the confidence in themselves to actually start doing something, because they do not know what they are really fitted for.

Are you in this class? Do you sometimes wish to engage in some work that you would enjoy and which would bring in big returns, but you hesitate because you do not know what you can do?

We have engaged Lila Farrell, the nationally known character analyst, for the one purpose of reading the character of ladies to decide whether they are fitted to handle our special work. This free service should be worth much to you. You must be over 25 years of age to qualify.

Lila Farrell will be in Room 922 Chicago Temple Building, 77 W. Washington-st., Monday between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. only, for the purpose of rendering this free service to you. You are cordially invited to call on Miss Farrell and learn about yourself.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FREE COURSE IN APPLIED PSYCHOLOGY,
ABSOLUTELY FREE.
SUNDAY NIGHT,
MAY 17TH, 1925,

At 8 p. m., in Parlor "H," at Hotel Morrison. [Look for announcement on bulletin in Hotel Lobby.] Dr. T. J. Masterson, widely known as the "Success Specialist," will lecture on

"POWER PLUS."

Dr. Masterson is a world traveler and student of business and personal problems. His presentation of Scientific Psychological Phenomena in simple everyday language enables all to grasp the wondrous potentialities of the Super Consciousness as a constructive agency in the life of the individual, making it possible for any one to apply its great motivating forces to do what they wish to do, to get what they wish to have, be what they wish to be. Come, bring your problem.

HOUSES—NORTHWEST SIDE.

ROBERT VOLK OFFERS AT $6,950 22 NEW 5 ROOM BRICK BUNGALOWS.

All on paved street, with all street improvements in. These buildings are perfect in construction, some with large brick porches across the entire front and others with smaller porches and large sun parlors. All basements are double in construction, with one section partitioned off for vegetables or preserves. No better houses than these can be built. They are now ready for inspection. Take Grand-av. car to Harlem-av. and see these buildings at cor. Neva-av. and Diversey-av. or cor. Monticlare-av. and Wrightwood-av.

All are 2 or 3 blocks north of the Grand-av. car line and one and two blocks east of Harlem-av.

I have never before been able to offer such perfect 5 room brick bungalows at the low price of $6,950. Any one can be bought on a small cash payment and balance monthly less than rent.

If you wish, you may call at my office at corner of Neva-av. and Medill-av., which is one block east and one block south of the end of the Grand-av. car line, where an automobile will show you 150 buildings which I have lately built and sold in this locality.

FOR SALE.

Gentleman's Beautiful Country Estate

Flossmoor, Illinois.

Very choice estate, about one acre in size, located in the most desirable portion of the exclusive Flossmoor district.

There is no more beautiful tract than this large wooded lot with its majestic oak, spruce and elm trees. The gardens, formal and vegetable, and lawns, landscaped under the able direction of Mr. Harry Collis, filled with well matured Lilac, Rosa Rugosa, Honeysuckle, Peonies and Roses, form an ideal setting for the house, at the end of a long winding concrete driveway.

There is a substantial six room modern frame house with large screened living porch. It is completely furnished, ready for immediate occupancy.

Two extra buildings provide a delightful recreation; the one a charming three room playhouse for children; the other, a 12x12 outdoor sleeping room with accommodations for four.

This property has had constant and diligent attention and is in perfect condition.

The physical properties are all modern and consist of bath and lavatory, water and gas radiators, cistern, electric pump, septic tank, instantaneous water heater, etc. Grounds are enclosed.

The property is worth considerably in excess of the selling price, the land alone having a valuation of $20,000.

The estate is on a private road adjacent to the Flossmoor Country Club, and is within a mile of eight golf clubs.

Price $37,500.

As an investment or speculation it has unlimited possibilities.

For further information apply to Goss, Judd and Sherman, 40 N. Dearborn-st. Ph. Central 0024.

Glencoe.

AN OLD COTTAGE

in Glencoe is offered for sale. It contains 6 rooms, including 3 bedrooms and complete bathroom on the second floor, and then there is a large glazed sun porch off the living room. It is livable in its present condition, but almost any one purchasing it would want to spend some money in remodeling and redecorating. The lot is 165x240 ft. and contains many unusual trees and shrubs, and there is about 300 ft. of frontage on a very attractive park.

The house is so located that there is ample room for another residence on the lot.

Possession may be obtained at once, for the house is vacant at the present time.

SOME OF THE NORTH

Shore's most beautiful lake frontage can be found between Racine and Milwaukee. This land is almost in its virgin state and for beauty of scenery, bluffs, ravines, and sand beaches it is unexcelled anywhere else on the North Shore. This beautiful property for fine country home purposes is nearer Chicago today than Lake Forest was thirty years ago.

I have for sale 300 acres with eight thousand feet of Lake Michigan frontage, wide beaches, high bluffs, commencing about 4 miles north of Racine, lying east of Sheridan-road and the C. & N. W. R. R. at the end of six and seven mile roads. Prices $1,000 per acre to $3,000 per acre. Will sell from five acres up. All with lake frontage.

MARMON

20% Reduction SALE Going Big! PAY ONLY 20%

and drive the automobile that offers the greatest form of luxury in transportation at the lowest cost per mile. The public has never been offered Marmon automobiles at these prices and on such unheard of terms. Do you know why this sale is going big! The values are the answer.

Marmon Offers LUXURY at Lowest Cost

Marmons do not look old-fashioned after 2, 3, or 5 years of service. Confidence of the maker in its body style is your best style assurance. Marmon light weight and motor efficiency give you 16,000 to 20,000 miles on tires, 12 to 14 miles per gallon of gasoline. Automatic lubrication and oilless bearings make it the easiest car to care for. Perfect balancing results in an absence of side sway—skidding or whip-lash motion, less wear and tear on tires and mechanism. Marmon accelerates from 10 to 50 miles an hour in less than 20 seconds and may be toured in with a feeling of security at a speed from 50 to 55 miles an hour. Marmon's easy, even motion on all roads is not due to any single feature, but a combination of correct engineering, ample wheel base, power for any emergency, and comfort for all passengers.

A Typical Value: $220. And $76.11 Monthly

FOR 10 MONTHS.

buys a 1922 Model 34 Touring Car that we will back up with our guarantee. Its original finish is like new. It rides and handles like new, and gives you more of every desirable motor car quality than any other car, new or used, within $1,500 of the price. Easy on tires, stretches gasoline farther, ideal for city or country driving, and its correct design saves the car from the incessant hammering and jarring from road conditions.

All Types Available

We are offering Sport Sedans, 4 and 7 passenger Phaeton Tourings, 2 and 4 passenger Speedsters, Coupes, Chummy Roadsters, Limousines, and Suburban Sedans in this special sale. Nearly all are newly finished in Duco—the most practical finish made. All are in exceptional mechanical condition. Some have balloon tires, 4 wheel brakes. All are guaranteed to be as represented. We have put them on our main floor showroom. Our entire sales staff to serve you. No Waiting. No hurry. Take all the time you want. Expert Marmon instructors will demonstrate any car of your choice. Come in early.

FRANKLIN

STUDEBAKER, '20, 7-PASS. TOURING WITH SEDAN TOP. Equipped with seat covers, 6 excellent tires (3 very near new), cowl lights, clock, tools, lock, snubbers, etc. Paint good. In sound mechanical condition and can be put into immediate active service with no expenditure other than the purchase price. $175 cash balance, easy.

BUICK '24 ROADSTER, 6 CYLINDER. Here's a car that is difficult to tell from new. It is the model with 4-wheel brakes. The paint, a beautiful Sagebrush Green, is new, bright parts replated, and throughout it has that fresh appearance of a new car. We consider its mechanical condition 100 per cent. Equipped with 5 excellent tires, automatic windshield cleaner, mirror, Biflex bumper, winter front, tools, etc. $500 cash, balance easy.

FRANKLIN, 2 PASS. ROADSTER. This very late 9-B roadster can be put to the hardest kind of driving because of its elegant mechanical condition. Top, upholstery and paint all excellent. It is equipped with brand new Goodyear Cord tires all around, clock, step plates, tools, etc. See this smart looking roadster at once. $275 cash; bal. easy.

FRANKLIN, 9-B, BROUGHAM 5 PASS. A distinctive, perfectly balanced, well proportioned 5 passenger that is in wonderful coach and mechanical condition and a body style rarely available. Equipment includes 2 bumpers, excellent tires, clock, tools, etc. Offers you easy riding, easy handling, big gas and tire mileage, perfect cooling, and a mechanical performance not equalled by any other car of American or European manufacture. An especially good value in a very popular model. $425 cash; bal. easy.

FRANKLIN, 9-B, SEDAN 5 PASS. The ideal winter and summer car, offering real comfort for all passengers, unsurpassed economy and dependability, and a car that is good for years of service. Paint, upholstery, and tire conditions are most excellent. Equipment consists of bumper, excellent tires, squeegee, clock, lock, tools, etc. Why not enjoy distinct Franklin advantages for what you would have to pay for an inferior new car that could not satisfy your requirements as ably as the Franklin would. See it today. $325 cash; bal. easy.

JORDAN

CADILLAC TYPE 61 TOURING, 1923. Traded by original owner because he wanted a Jordan Great Line Eight Play-Boy. Mechanically it operates smoothly and quietly and should render high class service for a long period of time. Top, upholstery and tires in good condition. The paint is dull. If you are looking for mechanical performance, and not paint, you'll want this one. $1,200.

JORDAN 7 PASS. TOURING MODEL "F." We have not had a 7 passenger open Jordan to offer for months and this one will be sold quickly taking into consideration price, performance and condition. Top and upholstery are unusually fine, dark gray finish, nickeled radiator, Biflex bumper, motometer and bars, automatic windshield cleaner, mirror and 5 good tires. Dependable, roomy, easy to drive. $600.

MAXWELL DE LUXE SPORT. This is a new car in everything except the price. Mileage very low. Mechanically 100 per cent. Has khaki top, vermilion body and running gear, black fenders, nickeled radiator. Tires like new. Disc wheels, trunk, mirror, spare tire at side, motometer. Come see this snappy car, you'll wonder how we can offer it so cheap. $600.

HAYNES '23 CALIFORNIA TOP EQUIPPED 5 PASS. TOURING. An ideal car for any season or weather condition, and different from the average car because of its individual fenders and steps; stylish permanent top with dome light, and glass sides. Paint, interior, and tires are in excellent shape, and equipment includes 2 good spare tires, 2 bumpers, motometer and bars, visor, spotlight, heater, clock, ash receiver, Cowl ventilator, stoplight, steering post lock, snubbers. First class mechanically. $700.

MOON 1923 SPORT. Here is a sport car creation that words cannot describe. You must see it and ride in it to appreciate it. Its mechanical condition is 100%. The color is beautiful Italian cream, black fenders, red Spanish leather upholstery, disc wheels, spare wheels and tires at sides; trunk at rear. It is not often we have as good a value in this popular model, and for this reason we suggest immediate inspection. $850.

CHEVROLET 1924 UTILITY COUPE. Less than 6 months old and received in new-car condition mechanically. Finish and upholstery perfect. Tires like new. Spare tire, motometer, 2 bumpers, spotlight, large wheel and lock. You can save better than 50% at our price. $400.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

GLENCOE PLANS WORLD'S FINEST WOMAN'S CLUB

Will Be Surrounded by Village Park.

BY AL CHASE.

MRS. SHERMAN M. BOOTH.

What is expected to be the finest, best equipped and most beautiful, though not the largest, clubhouse of its kind in the world is planned for Glencoe by the Woman's Library club, the fourth oldest woman's club in the United States.

It will be the first building to be erected to conform to the Glencoe village plan and its Tudor style of architecture will determine the future development of the municipal group of civic and commercial structures. In fact, several buildings now being erected harmonize with the architecture of the club building.

Encircled by Park.

An unusual and interesting development in connection with the acquirement of the site for the new club was the purchase by the Glencoe park board of property on each side so that the clubhouse will be perpetually surrounded by open spaces.

The club lot, bought in September, 1923, is 200x246, situated about midway between Vernon avenue and the Chicago and Northwestern railroad and adjoining on the south the alley parallel to and north of Park avenue. This alley is to be widened into a sixty-six foot street to be known as Tudor court.

Find Women's Clubs Too Small.

The new club, a picture of which is shown in a nearby column, will be the result of many months of the most painstaking study of various clubs, hotels, churches, community centers, etc., in many cities by the club women. The principal fact they discovered was that every woman's club visited needed more rooms and larger auditoriums.

With this in mind, George W. Maher & Son, also authors of the Glencoe plan, have designed a club for Glencoe which seems to have looked far into the future. For instance, the auditorium will not only seat 1,000 but by throwing open other parts of the first floor it can accommodate many hundreds more.

The kitchen, a part of clubs visited found to be usually much too small, will be a big affair.

The second floor will be devoted entirely to six large meeting rooms, some of which can be thrown together into even more spacious gathering places.

In the basement will be commodious and attractive quarters for the Men's club of Glencoe; a clubroom, 50x32, with a fireplace; a men's smoking room, a meeting room, checkroom, etc.

Club Organized in 1874.

Glencoe was organized as a village in 1869. Five years later, in 1874, the Woman's Library club was organized. Today it stands as the fourth oldest woman's club in the United States. It began as a reading circle, grew into a circulating library and then into a literary club. It was chartered in 1893 and affiliated with the Federation of Women's Clubs.

The drive for subscriptions for the new clubhouse has been deferred for the present, there being an active campaign now in progress for a Glencoe school auditorium.

Mrs. William A. Fox is president of the club and Mrs. Sherman M. Booth is chairman both of the plan committee and the building committee.

LA SALLE STREET BANKER TO TALK TO REALTY CLASS

Edgar N. Greenebaum, a member of the firm of Greenebaum Sons Investment Co., will speak on "Mortgages and Building Loans" before the Chicago Real Estate board's classes in real estate practice at the Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce, 19 South La Salle street, on Tuesday evening. Mr. Greenebaum was scheduled to deliver this lecture several weeks ago, but it was postponed on account of his absence in Europe.

Beg Your Pardon

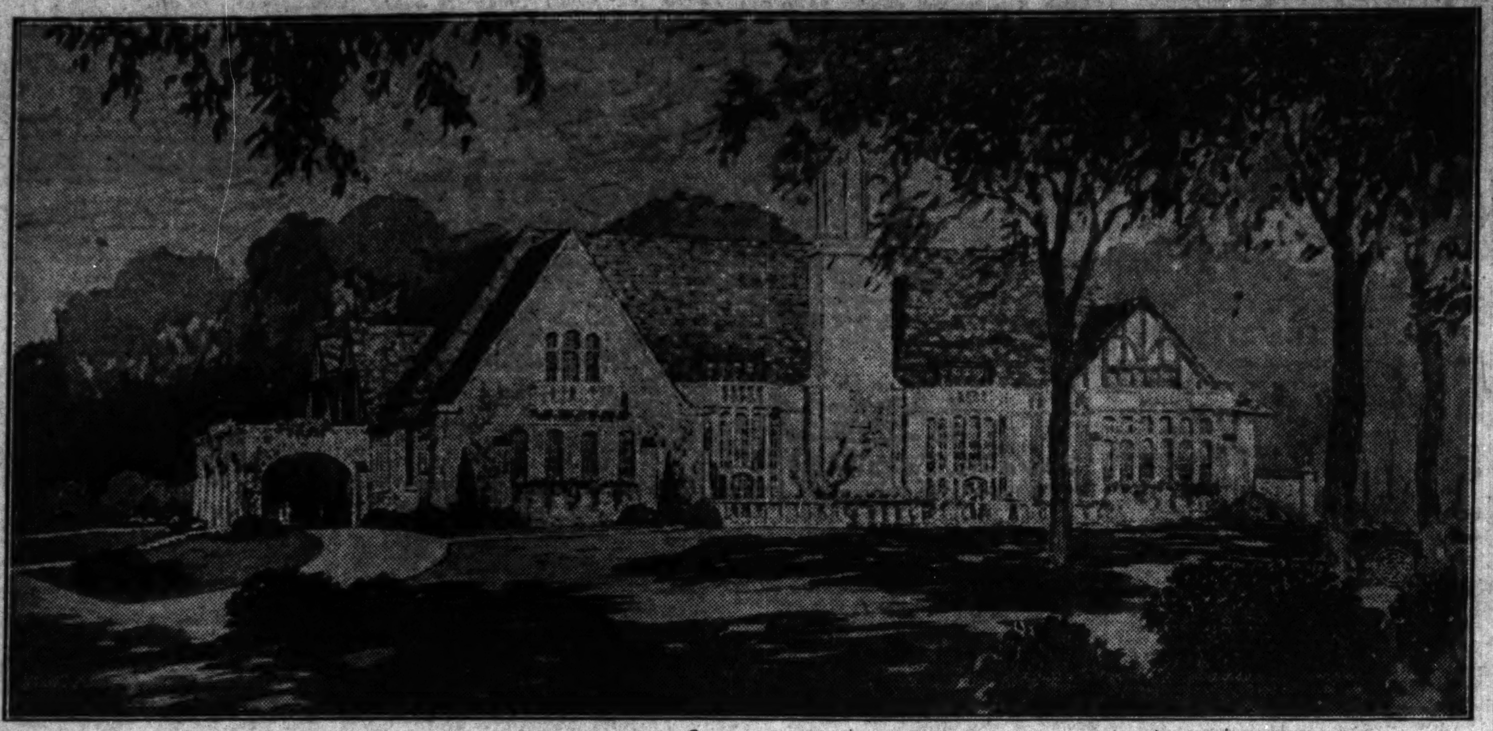
The caption over the cut of the three story business block to be built by O'Connor, Burke & McDonnell at the southwest corner of 59th and Kedzie, as printed in last Sunday's real estate department, incorrectly gave the location as 79th and Kedzie. The text under the cut, however, gave the correct location.

Benjamin B. Gage, executive secretary of the Knollwood club, writes that Henry Bencke did not buy any property in the recent sale of lots around the club, as reported.

News of the Architects

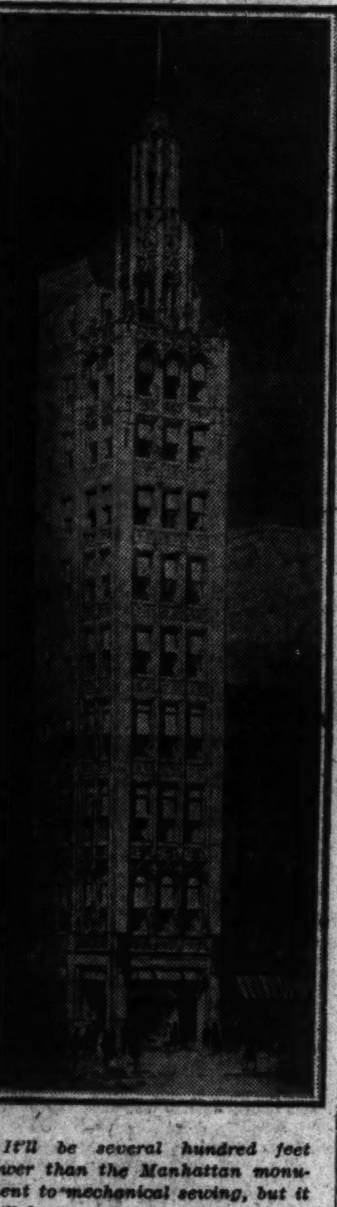
Francis M. Valerio and Clarence A. Ullrich have formed the architectural firm of Valerio & Ullrich and have opened offices at 5 North La Salle, suite 1022. Their phone is Franklin 5070.

$200,000 Clubhouse for Glencoe Women



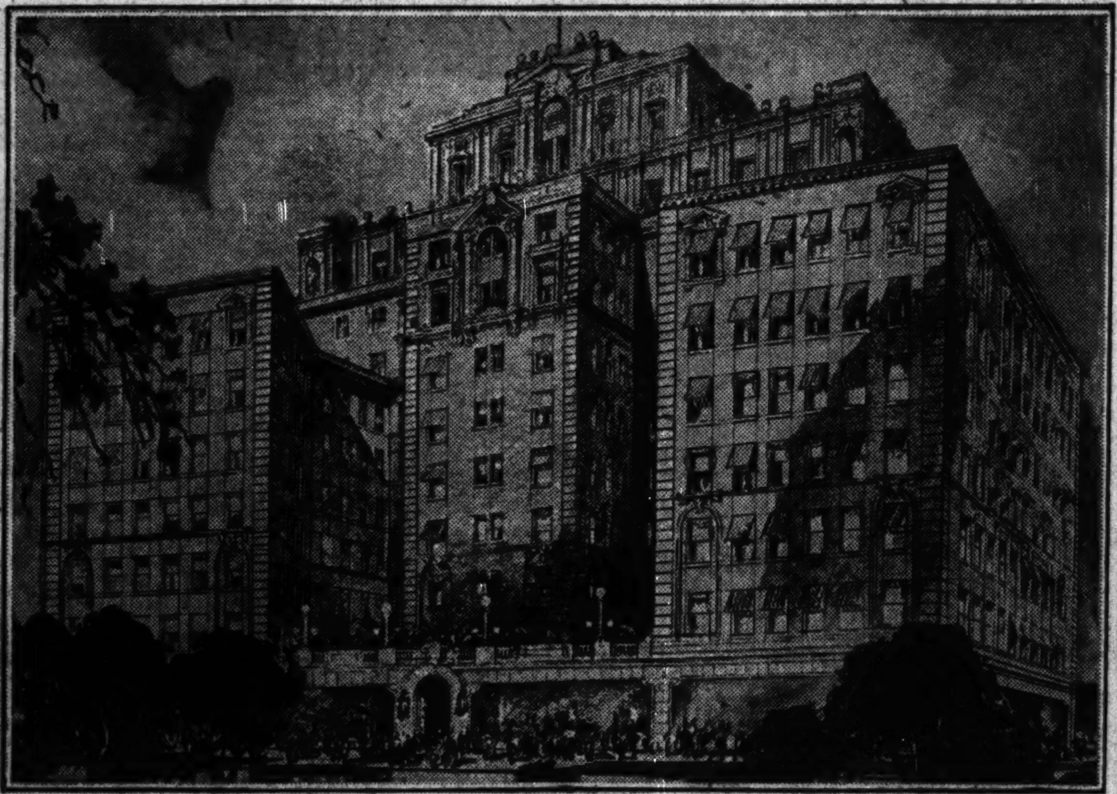
Above is the proposed building of the Woman's Library club of Glencoe, which the members hope to erect if the necessary funds can be secured. The drive for subscriptions has been deferred for the present, there being an active campaign now in progress for funds for a school auditorium. George W. Maher & Son are architects.

Chicago's Singer Tower



It'll be several hundred feet lower than the Manhattan monument to mechanical sewing, but it will be an attractive architectural addition to State street. It will replace the old Singer building destroyed by fire a short time ago. Mundie & Jensen have designed a ten story structure to cost approximately $350,000. The first floor and the two basements will be used by the Singer company as display and stock rooms for sewing machines. The remainder of the building will be shops and offices. The site is just north of and across the alley from The Fair department store. Charles V. McErlean will manage the property and have charge of the renting. Completion date is set for Jan. 1, 1926.

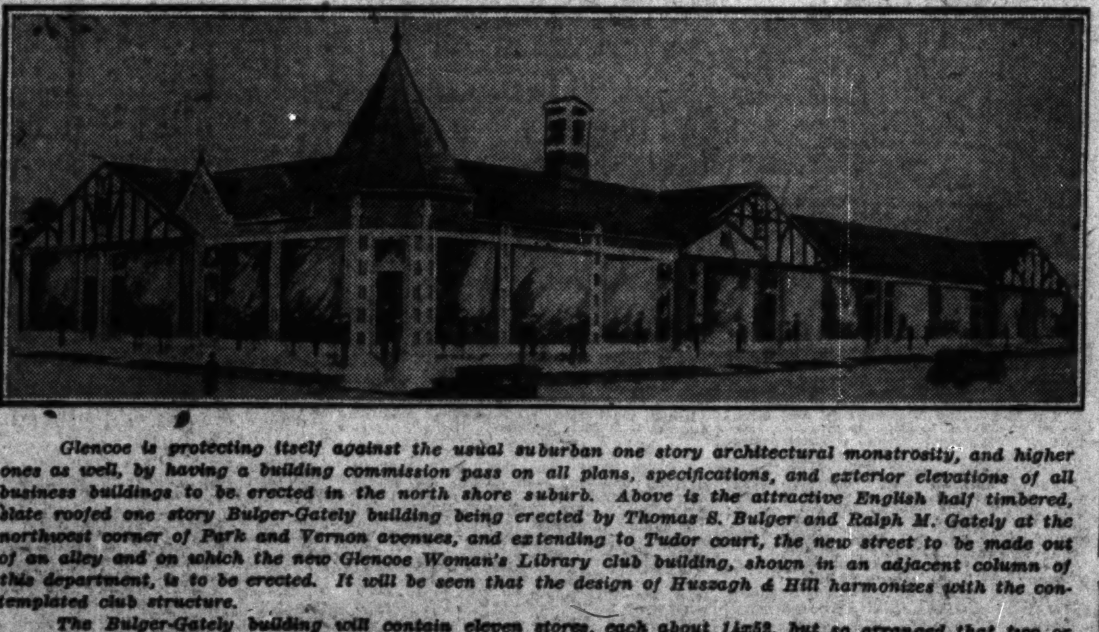
North Park Hotel—Overlooking Lincoln Park



Work is to start June 1 on the above North Park hotel, at the southwest corner of North Clark, Ogden avenue, and North Park avenue. Walter W. Ahlschlager, Inc., has designed an eleven story structure, with setbacks and wings, so that all rooms will have an outside view. It'll not be a "shirt front building"—every outside wall will be of the same quality of brick, with cream colored terra cotta trim. There'll be shops on all the street fronts, with a lobby in the center and hotel entrances on Clark and North Park. The building will have 200 furnished apartments of two, three, and four rooms.

John Calvin Love of Evanston is president of the North Park Hotel corporation. The entire project will represent a reported investment of $2,500,000. The Continental First Mortgage Bond company has underwritten a $1,500,000 bond issue at 6 1-2 per cent. The North Park will be ready for guests May 1, 1926. A picture of a much more modest project for this corner was shown in this department on April 15, 1923.

Wonder Why All Suburbs Don't Do This!



Glencoe is protecting itself against the usual suburban one story architectural monstrosity, and higher ones as well, by having a building commission pass on all plans, specifications, and exterior elevations of all business buildings to be erected in the north shore suburb. Above is the attractive English half timbered, slate roofed one story Bulger-Gately building being erected by Thomas S. Bulger and Ralph M. Gately at the northwest corner of Park and Vernon avenues, and extending to Tudor court, the new street to be made out of an alley and on which the new Glencoe Woman's Library club building, shown in an adjacent column of this department, is to be erected. It will be seen that the design of Huszagh & Hill harmonizes with the contemplated club structure.

The Bulger-Gately building will contain eleven stores, each about 14x52, but so arranged that two or more may be combined into one. McGuire & Orr, who sold this corner to the owners, will have the management of the building on its completion, which will be about June 15.

Elks Buy Site for Antlers Golf Club in Du Page Co.

Another golf club for Du Page county. The Brown farm of 117 acres, about two miles south of Wheaton and a mile and a half west of Mark Morton's place on the Naperville road, is to be the home of the Antlers Country club, to be composed mostly of Elks from Oak Park and other western suburbs.

An eighteen and nine hole course will be laid out at once and a club house built next spring. James J. Lalla, wholesale grocer, is president. The membership will be 550.

Dr. Lloyd C. Ayres Buyer of Frederick Countiss Estate

On September 5, 1924, it was printed in this department that the Frederick D. Countiss estate at Lake Geneva had been sold. No details could be learned. This property, known as Loramoor, and once the country home of James Hobart Moore, has been sold to Dr. Lloyd C. Ayres, according to a statement made yesterday by George S. Ballard & Co., who negotiated the sale. The forty-eight acres and residence were sold for approximately $250,000, it is claimed.

$30,911,442 IN FARM LOANS.

The annual statement of the Prudential Insurance Company of America shows that during 1924 the Prudential advanced $5,393,184 on farm properties in Illinois, and at the end of the year had a total of $30,911,442 invested in such property.

ANNEX FOR EVANSTON WAREHOUSE.

Work has started on a $75,000 addition by the Evanston Fireproof Warehouse company on East Railroad avenue, Evanston, from plans by George Kingsley.

Brokers' Notes

Lewis B. Hughson, formerly of Hughson & Simpson, 1622 Devon avenue, and W. P. Herrick, who was associated with the above firm for three years, have opened a new office, under the firm name of Hughson & Herrick, Inc., at 6234 Broadway. Their phone is Sheldrake 9100.

J. P. Nixon and William C. Boyd, formerly with George F. Nixon & Co., have formed a partnership under the firm name of Nixon & Boyd, with offices opposite the Dempster street terminal, and will specialize in Niles Center property.

Phillips & Co. have moved from 5 North La Salle to 105 South La Salle street.

Burke & Lynn have moved to 4721 North Kedzie avenue.

Patrick & Co. announce the opening of another office at 2409 West 63d.

P. W. MacKay & Co., builders and real estate, have moved to their own building at 2255 Milwaukee avenue.

William P. Morris, formerly with Krenn & Dato, is now director of sales with Joseph E. Freeman.

Shirt Man and Attorney to Build South Shore Flats

Lawrence Joslit, general manager and treasurer of the Bedford Shirt company, has bought the 50x190 at 6835 Paxton, and Charles K. Schwartz, attorney, has purchased the vacant 60x190 at 6931 Paxton. Each will erect a three flat building and will occupy an apartment in his building. Each structure will have a ballroom and billiard room in the basement. Mr. Schwartz was attorney in both deals.

Will Remodel Building at Clark-Division Corner

The Portes Drug Co. has leased the three story building at the northeast corner of Clark and Division from Mrs. Catherine Spohrer for ten years at a reported $102,000, and will remodel the entire structure from plans by Architect Joseph H. Klafter. The first floor will be used by the lessee for its fifth Chicago drug store. The second floor will be for offices and the third into apartments.

FEDERAL STREET LEASE.

The Weber Storage and Distributing company has bought from Stuart D. Boynton and others, for a reported $275,000, buildings at 2020-42 South Federal street. W. R. Kavanaugh of Frederick T. Hoyt's office was broker.

Subdivision News

W. Hayden Bell, Evanston subdivider, has bought a fifty acre tract bounded by Archer, Kedzie, 43d, and Clifton Park for a reported $200,000, through Chandler & Montague, and will subdivide it at once into 440 lots. Contracts have been let for sidewalks, water and sewers. A tree will be planted on every lot. The subdivision will be restricted to two flat buildings or larger. Work is expected to start on twenty-five buildings within sixty days. This property is just south of the Crane plant.

A syndicate headed by Ernest Lyons has bought 160 acres near Flossmoor, at Crawford and Vollmer road, for a reported $58,500. Newton B. Lauren & Co. and A. W. Tatge were brokers.

KIMBALL ARMS SOLD.

The recently completed Kimball Arms at 4644 North Kimball has been sold by M. J. Goldstein and Samuel Vihon to Attorney Herman S. Landfield of Landfield & Levin for a reported $140,000, subject to $80,000. There are twenty-five flats. The buyer is to install a ballroom for tenants and a play room.

BUILD ON MAGNOLIA AVENUE.

Marcus Weil has bought 50x125 vacant on Magnolia between Berwyn and Balmoral and may build later. Andersen & Andersen were attorneys.

PLANS 10 STORY HOTEL BUILDING ON SHERIDAN RD.

Furrier-Owner Will Use First Floor.

Another tall building is announced for the Wilson avenue district. Jack Glasser, an uptown furrier, now at 4645 Sheridan road, has bought the 50x143 at 4826 Sheridan road from Mrs. Jennie De Tamble for an undisclosed consideration, and intends erecting a ten story building shortly.

David Saul Klafter has drawn plans for a building to contain a hotel in the upper stories. Mr. Glasser will occupy the first floor store with modern fur storage vaults and other equipment of what is claimed will be one of the finest fur shops in the country.

Another Furrier to Build.

The purchase of the site involved the transfer of Mr. Glasser's twenty-nine flat building at 931 Leland to Mrs. De Tamble for an undisclosed consideration. Harrison & Riedy represented all parties in both transactions.

The same firm reports selling the 50x143 at 4836 Sheridan road, improved with a three apartment building, for William G. Gray to Irvin G. Klein, furrier, now in American building, for $100,000, subject to $15,000. Mr. Klein also is planning a high grade seven story business building on his new property, partly for his own use. He also will have modern fur vaults in addition to his retail store. Schein & Beckwith were attorneys in the deal.

Lawrence Avenue Deal.

Harrison & Riedy also report selling the six apartments at 915 Lawrence for Morris Hoffman to Hyman Halper for $55,000, subject to $25,000. I. E. Glaseman & Co. represented the buyer.

KOHLER COMPANY LEASES SOUTH STORE IN TRIBUNE TOWER

The Kohler company, with executive and general offices and works at the model garden town of Kohler, Wisconsin, has rented the south half of the first floor of Tribune Tower for ten years as a showroom for the exhibition of plumbing fixtures and private electric plants manufactured by it. It is expected the showroom will be completed and occupied in about sixty days.

The store will have a tile floor, rough plastered walls and ornamental plastered ceiling and was planned by Brust & Philipp, Milwaukee, architects, who are the general architects of the company at Kohler.

The company recently moved its Chicago offices from the McCormick building to the twenty-second floor of the Tribune Tower. It has occupied office and showroom space in office buildings in Chicago for approximately twenty years, but this will be the first ground floor showroom to be installed by it here. It maintains offices and showrooms in sixteen other American cities and London, England.

The Tribune Tower showroom will be maintained for the benefit of the public and the trade, although there'll be no sales of plumbing fixtures made direct to the public, as the company markets its products to the trade through the jobbers of plumbing supplies. The Kohler company employs more than 3,000 men in its Wisconsin factories. The Chicago offices are in charge of J. B. Murphy, vice president.

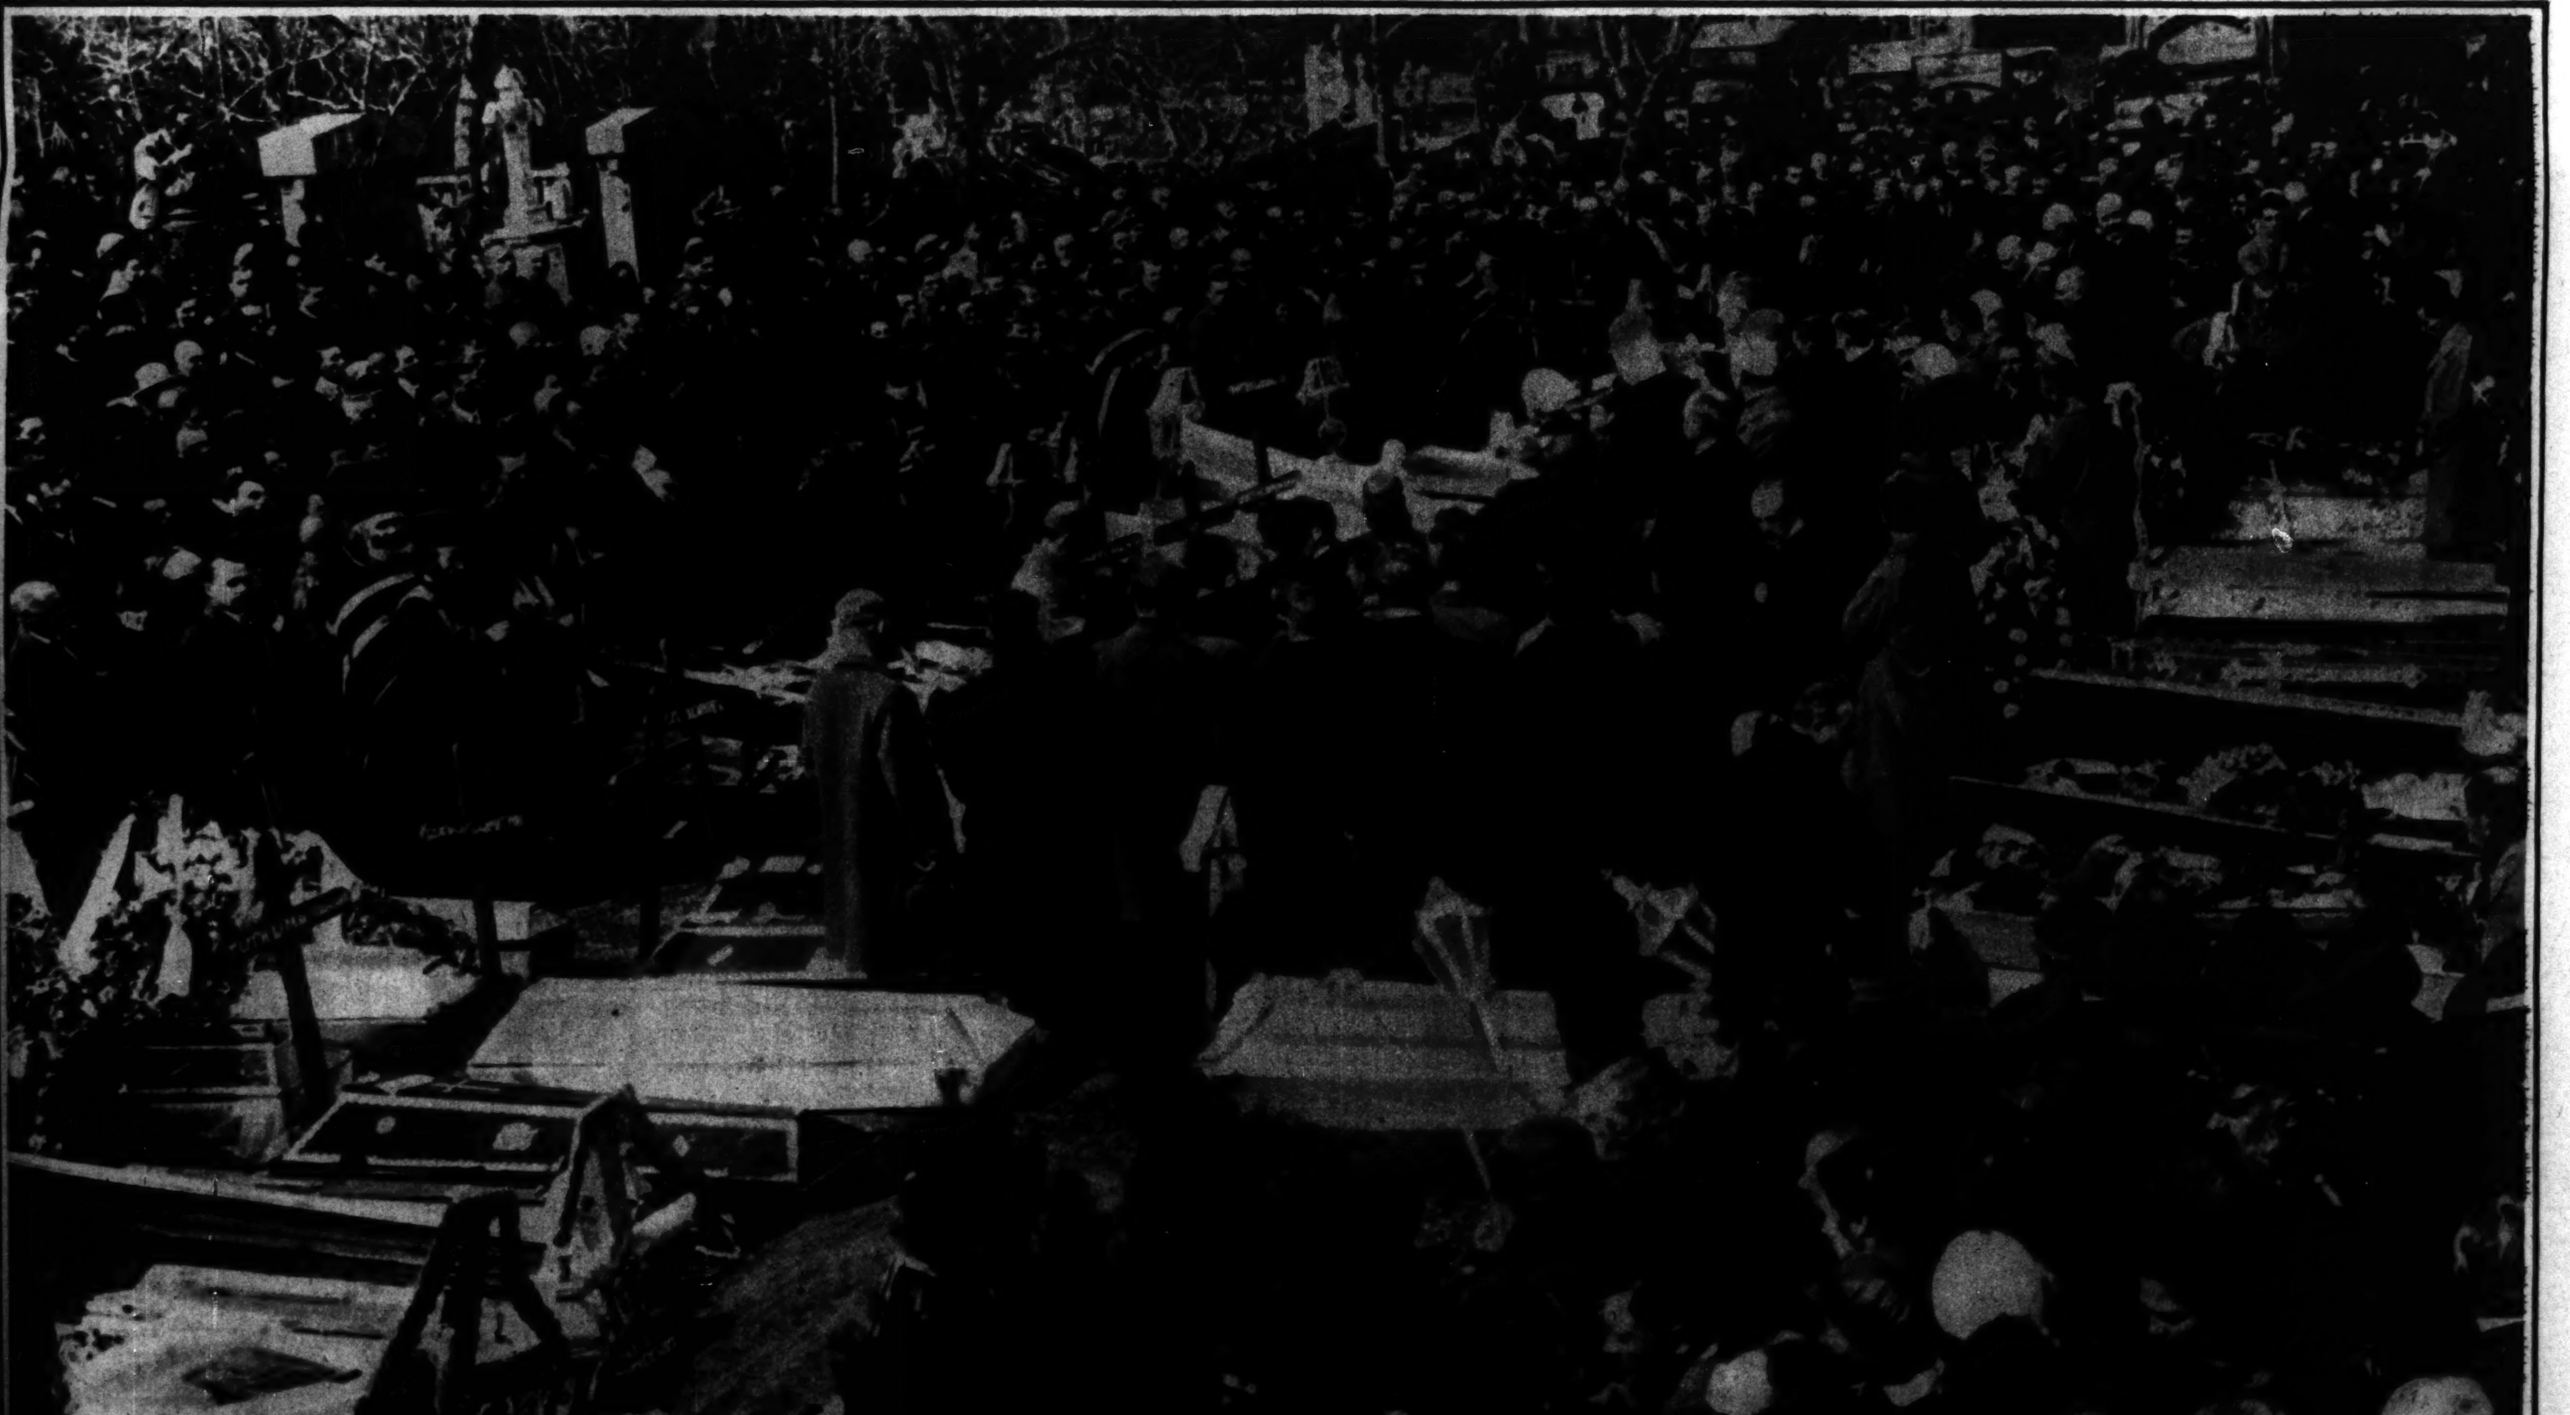
THANKSGIVING IN BULGARIA—The Bulgar cabinet, headed by Premier Zankoff, congratulating King Boris on his narrow escape from death at the hands of assassins when the royal automobile was ambushed in a narrow pass. Boris (the central figure in uniform) had literally missed death by a hair; part of his mustache was clipped away by an extremist's bullet. Gen. Georghieff, who accompanied the king, was slain in the ambush; and it was during his funeral, in the Church of St. Nedelia, in Sofia, that communists perpetrated the ghastly bombing that horrified the world.

(Photograph from Kadel & Herbert.)



THE LAST CHAPTER IN THE SOFIA TRAGEDY—Public burial of the 160 victims who lost their lives when communists exploded a bomb on the roof of St. Nedelia. A heavy guard was stationed by authorities during the funeral, a precaution considered necessary by reason of the incessant war upon suspected authors of the outrage.

People pay $20,000,000 a year to see these famous Movie smiles

10-Day Test FREE
Mail the Coupon

How your favorite screen stars now practice a new art in "makeup" and gain those amazingly white, glistening teeth that make smiles worth fortunes... how you can prepare your own teeth in the same way, and attain a beauty you probably never knew you had before —the most remarkable of dental tests.

MAE MURRAY

Mae Murray tells us that the daily use of Pepsodent is an essential part of her makeup. "I learned long ago," she says, "that ordinary cleansing methods won't keep teeth clear—that is, so as to photograph white and gleaming." Her famous smile is admired by literally millions.

MALCOLM McGREGOR

Malcom McGregor says he will never go on a set without first lightening his teeth with Pepsodent. Sometimes he brushes them as often as six or eight times a day. "That," he says, "is the best way I know to keep a clean, attractive smile; the camera shows up harshly the slightest discoloration or film."

A personal gift from

VIRGINIA VALLI
to readers of the Chicago Tribune
(Note the coupon)

VIRGINIA VALLI is one of the most envied women in the world—on the stage or off—for her wonderfully clear and beautiful teeth. She receives thousands of letters from all over the world asking how she gains them. Now, as a personal gift to readers of the Chicago Tribune, she agrees to do more than tell how. She offers to give an actual test tube of the method she herself uses to all who mail the coupon below within a reasonable time from today. Readers are urged to mail coupon early.

CLAIRE WINDSOR

Her dentist first told Claire Windsor of Pepsodent, and since then she has recommended it to many friends. "The Klieg lights instantly show up imperfections," she says. "I play safe—my teeth are always gloriously clear. Thousands of film fans have asked me how I do it!—The answer is Pepsodent!"

RICHARD DIX

"There is a difference between ordinarily cleaned teeth, and those Pepsodent cleaned," says this popular star. The audiences can tell, he claims, and adds that for years he has insisted on Pepsodent, using it "on the lot" several times a day in addition to regular use at home.

PRISCILLA DEAN

Millions know the bright smile of Priscilla Dean. She says, "I used to think my teeth were as clear as they could be. But a few days with Pepsodent showed me otherwise. After old methods the difference is amazing." For clear, white, filmless teeth she tells her friends "Use Pepsodent!"

Why you may already have beautiful teeth and not know it—the remarkable effect of removing an almost imperceptible film that covers your teeth and clouds them.

HAVE you ever wondered how Priscilla Dean, Virginia Valli, Richard Dix, Mae Murray and other screen stars, famous for their smiles, manage to make their teeth look so wonderfully clear and white?

You note a great difference between the color of their teeth and those of the average person you meet. A flashing clearness that has literally made these people smile their way to fame and fortune.

Now this offers you a test of the precise and exact method they use as an essential part of their "makeup." Oddly enough, for the reasons noted below, you may have just as beautiful teeth as they have—and yet not realize it. You can quickly find out in this way.

Smiles in the cinema world mean everything or nothing. Gleaming, clear teeth are essential. So they use this method, not only for the personal satisfaction they gain, but as a matter of business to gain an urgent commercial asset.

Dull teeth made to glisten. Cloudy, discolored teeth given new clearness and color —and with a tenth the trouble the average woman takes in ordinary "makeup"!—that is the most recent attainment in modern dental science.

Thousands of us have really pretty teeth without ever realizing we have, or even revealing them.

This is why:

There is a film on your teeth which absorbs discolorations and mars or hides their natural whiteness. (Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel it.) Beneath it are the gleaming teeth you envy in others. Ordinary dentifrices cannot successfully remove and combat it, no matter how careful you are to use them regularly.

Remove it, and you'll be surprised at what you find. Thousands of people who despaired of ever having beautiful teeth have made this test with remarkable results. Thousands of men and women are needlessly handicapping their business, social and domestic lives with unattractive teeth.

What that film is—how it invites tooth troubles and decay

Film is a viscous coat that is ever present, ever forming on your teeth. Most tooth troubles now are traced to it.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It also holds food substance that ferments and causes acid. And in contact with teeth this acid causes decay. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

That film, too, absorbs stains .... stains from food, from smoking, from various causes. And that is why your teeth look "off-color."

You must remove it at least three times daily. And thus combat it constantly. Results in whiteness, in clearness and lustre are a revelation.

Now modern science offers a new way that works wonders on your teeth

For years men of science have given their best in seeking an effective combatant of that film.

Ordinary tooth pastes do not cope with it adequately. Gritty substances were discarded as dangerous to enamel. Numerous methods have been tested and found wanting.

Now modern dental science has found two new combatants and embodied them in the modern tooth paste called Pepsodent.

Its action is to curdle film. Then, harmlessly, to remove it. A scientific method different in formula, action and effect from any other dentifrice.

* * * *

Throughout the civilized world leading dentists urge this new method.

To millions it has proved the folly of dull and dingy teeth. To millions it offers daily a better protection against pyorrhea, tooth troubles and decay.

If you want whiter teeth you will mail this coupon

Send the coupon for a 10-day tube free. Then note results yourself. Note how your teeth become whiter after a short time.

You will note a difference. Your friends will note it, so remarkably apparent it will be.

Millions have made this test. Men and women famous on the stage, prominent leaders of social and diplomatic life, have found results beyond their hopes.

Make the test. It will cost you nothing. You'll thank yourself many times in years to come for the new conception of the more beautiful and healthier teeth it will bring.

REMOLDING THE CITY'S FACE—An airplane view of the great south side lake shore improvement, revealing the status of the project to date. At the left the new breakwater creeps southward to connect with another in the distance. The space within the breakwater is to be filled in and will bear the new inner drive of the Grant Park-Jackson Park system. In the foreground is the Twenty-third street bridge, to be opened this summer, crossing the Illinois Central tracks and connecting by a ramp with widened South Park avenue. The latter extends to the right and upward in the picture, connecting with Grand boulevard where the double parkway begins.

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON—Mahatma Gandhi's crusade of passive resistance to British rule in India is paralleled in South Africa under the leadership of his son, Manilal Gandhi, whose likeness appears here. Like his father, the younger Gandhi is followed by hundreds of thousands of passive resisters. Unlike his father, he is single, though 30 years old. His parent married at the age of 12.

CUPID LINKS LITERATURE AND DIPLOMACY—Alan Rinehart, son of Mary Roberts Rinehart, the author, and of Dr. Stanley M. Rinehart, and Miss Gratia Houghton, niece of Alanson B. Houghton, ambassador to Great Britain, whose betrothal is announced. Young Mr. Rinehart is a writer on his own. Miss Houghton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Houghton. She is a lover of sports, an excellent horsewoman and tennis player.

TY COBB—Harvey Woodruff is conducting a symposium in his column as to who is the greatest ball player that ever lived. We nominate for this Hall of Fame, Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the Georgia Peach. First, remember that Ty will be 39 years old next December—he's an old man, as baseball ages go. And just recently he smashed out three home runs in one game, then hit two more the next day, setting a modern major league record with five homers in two consecutive games. That spurt likewise gave him a record of 1,456 extra base hits, passing the old world's record of 1,448, set by the great Hans Wagner. Ty also now holds the world's record for singles, the world's record for total bases, the world's record for total hits, and the record for runs scored. (TRIBUNE photograph)

MOUNTAIN WATERS have a way of turning abrupt corners and breaking the speed limit generally, members of the Wenonah Canoe club discovered in their recent annual paddle from Suffern, N. PURSUED BY 92 WOMEN GOLFERS, Miss Joyce Wethered, 1924 winner of the British women's open golf championship, will defend her title tomorrow when championship play opens on the Troon, Scotland, course. STEPPING HIGH, WIDE AND HANDSOME, Leighton Dye, track star of the University of California, cracked the Pacific coast record for the 120-yard low hurdles at the recent Rainbow Division, American Legion, meet in Los Angeles. His time was 14 7-10 seconds, or 3-10 of a second over world record time.

WHERE THERE AIN'T NO TEN COMMANDMENTS pomp and pageantry of long ago still hedge royalty about, conferring a beauty on ancient courts that never fails to impress the visitor from another world. This scene during a festival at Bangkok, capital of Siam, for example. Brown oarsmen in a dragon boat pause with oars upraised before the royal palace, outlined in artistic relief against a shining lagoon.

How often do you use bicarbonate of soda?

THINK for a moment . . . how many times have you used bicarbonate of soda in the last six months? A little checking up on this much-used medicine cabinet requisite will surprise you!

Then the importance of highest purity and palatability is obvious. Any product which is so frequently used should be pure beyond question, and pleasant to take.

Squibb's Sodium Bicarbonate is a highly purified, clean, snow-white powder. It is entirely free from impurities which impart the bitter taste to ordinary bicarbonate of soda. You will find it unusually palatable. It will not irritate the stomach.

Here then is a product for your medicine cabinet that your physician will approve. E. R. Squibb & Sons have served the medical profession for nearly seventy years. Every Squibb Product is pure. From the raw material to the finished product, each step in manufacture is under rigid control. Squibb Household Products possess superiorities in product and packaging that you will appreciate.

Buy Squibb Household Products for your medicine cabinet from your druggist—Squibb's Sodium Bicarbonate; Squibb's Castor Oil (Tasteless); Squibb's Epsom Salt Special (slightly effervescent—palatable); Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil (vitamin tested); Squibb's Milk of Magnesia (free from earthy, alkaline taste), and Squibb's Dental Cream.

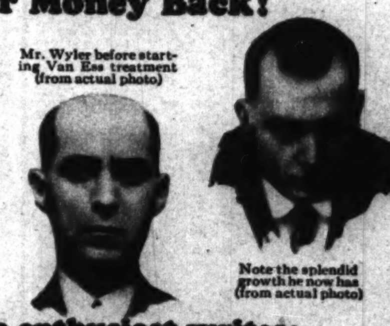
Does Van Ess Actually Grow Hair?

Yes—or Money Back!

800,000 men and 600,000 women have tried Van Ess Scalp Massage.

These users say: YES!



Mr. Wyler before starting Van Ess treatment (from actual photo)

Note the splendid growth he now has (from actual photo)

Here's what one enthusiast writes:

Los Angeles, California, November 18, 1924.

Van Ess Laboratories, Inc.
Dear Sirs:

Was so bald headed that I used a Turkish towel to comb my hair until after using Van Ess Scalp Massage. You can see results from photos. There are three things I would not part with—my wife, tooth brush and Van Ess Scalp Massage.

If they will follow directions and be patient it will do all that it is advertised, and now my friends are all using it as I have proven to them what it will do. I travel quite a bit and always have a bottle of Van Ess with my tooth brush. It is a family remedy for all scalp troubles.

Yours truly,
C. WYLER,
950 West 59th Place, Los Angeles, California.

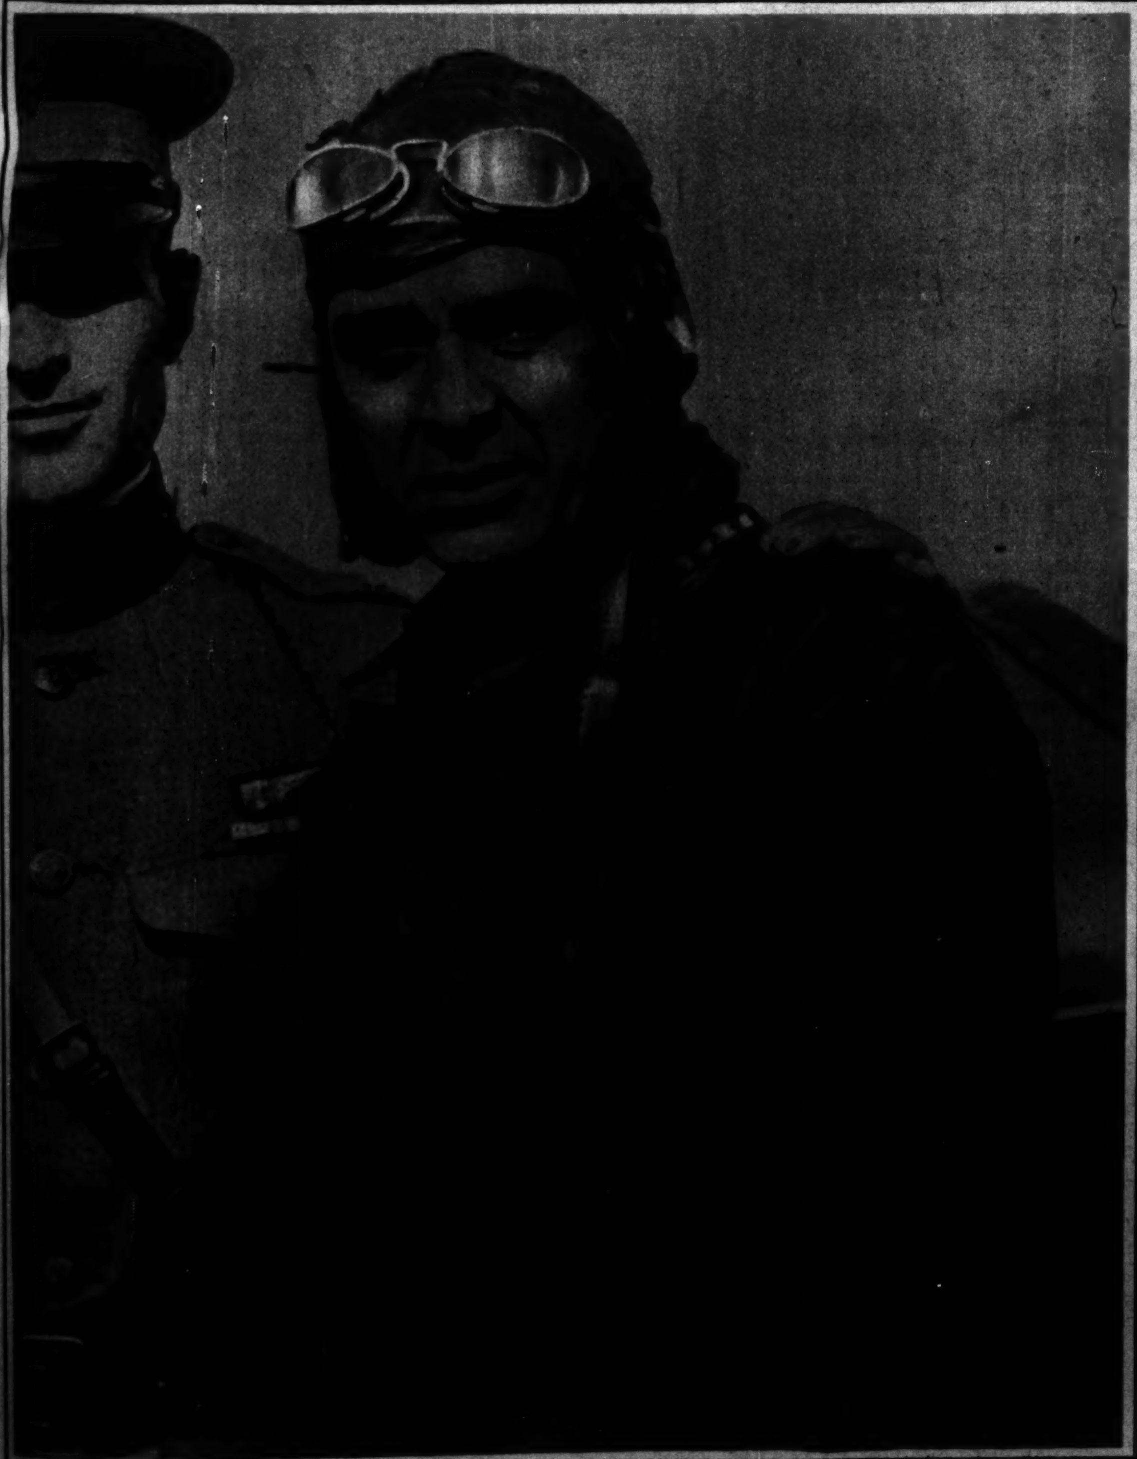
SAILING DOWN TO RIO has an everlasting charm, as may be realized in this lovely glimpse of Botafogo bay from a high promontory in its exotic frame. In the distance the peak of Corcovado climbs 2,300 feet above the sea, while closer at hand the Church of the Immaculate Conception sends its white spire high against the green hillside. A beautiful motor road, the Aveinda Beira Mar, skirts the whole bay and its white city. (Photograph from Ewing Galloway)



A FATAL PLUNGE to the mud flats near East Boston airport robbed Lieut. Alexander V. Macauley of the "Safest Flier" medal he was about to receive from the Massachusetts National Guard May 2. GOLDEN BELLS AND SILVER BELLS rang on the same day for this family. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heineman of West Hoboken, N. The father and mother are 71 years old; Leo and his wife both are 48. The youngsters are Jack Adams and Katherine Ghilaine, grandchildren of the older couple. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)

WHEN kings of finance meet captains of industry
WHEN women of wealth and fashion gather
WHEN strangers see the splendors of Chicago

WHEN menus represent the finest markets of the world
CRISPO products are served

WHEN men who command millions of dollars and control great enterprises lunch or dine together in Chicago . . when Chicago society leaders who have entree to the smartest circles in New York and Newport, in London and on the Continent meet . . when Chicago entertains the cosmopolitan guest, who knows the little restaurants of Paris and the famous English inns . . here menus represent the finest markets of the world.

When you order canapes pate de foies gras (Strasbourg); a lobster bisque; capon; tomatoes in aspic; baked Alaska; Stilton or Cheddar cheese; here where the connoisseur expects every delicacy, in or out of season, you are served with Crispo crackers, cookies, wafers, cakes, baked in Chicago. Crispo Lily Soda Crackers, freshest and crispest of salted crackers, with soup, with salad, with cheese. . . When warm weather suggests the simple lunch of fruit, crackers and milk, you are served Crispo Biscuit (the unsalted soda crackers) or appetizing Crispo Graham Crackers. . . With light deserts, the Crispo Fig Bar; with rich ice creams, the Crispo Sugar Wafer.

Crispo products are the finest baked

What is the reason for this selection of Crispo products by managements that must cater to quality tastes? Why do women who know and buy highest quality choose Crispo?

It is simply this—Crispo products are without exception the finest baked.

All ingredients used in making them are supremely good. Strictly fresh eggs, pure creamery butter, pure granulated sugar—everything is the best that money and professional knowledge of the markets can command. No detail of perfection in production is overlooked. Proportions are always exact, never is there substitution or skimped measuring. Mixing is an art in the Crispo plant, baking a science, and this means master baking!

You can have complete confidence in the excellence of Crispo products and in their purity and cleanliness, whenever and wherever you buy them. Trying them convinces you at once of their freshness—you don't have to wait to "decide about" these crackers; you are sure of their goodness the minute you taste them.

Get several kinds from your grocer and keep them on hand. It's economy to buy home tins! With the outdoor days here and the picnic season at hand, you want the Crispo Lily Soda Crackers for surprise sandwiches, peanut butter, jelly, cheese-and-olives. The Crispo Biscuits or the Crispo Grahams with milk make a wonderful cool lunch or supper—fine for the youngsters, good for the whole family. Answer the what-to-have-for-dessert-today question with Crispo Fig Bars, Crispo Vanilla Wafers, Crispo Juliette Wafers, Crispo Macaroon Wafers, Crispo Sugar Wafers, Crispo Cocoanut Bars, or other Crispo staples or specialties your grocer suggests. Remember, it costs you no more for this extra-special Crispo quality, and Crispo products are always fresh.

Ideals in commercial baking

To have the highest quality and to keep it uniform—that is the policy of the Crispo bakery. To keep to this ideal, I make it my business to inspect the bakery every day. I know for a fact that every ingredient is as good as it can be; that the equipment is in the finest condition, and that every baker and every worker measures up to our standards of cleanliness and efficiency.

Signed,
F. G. SALERNO,
Master Baker.

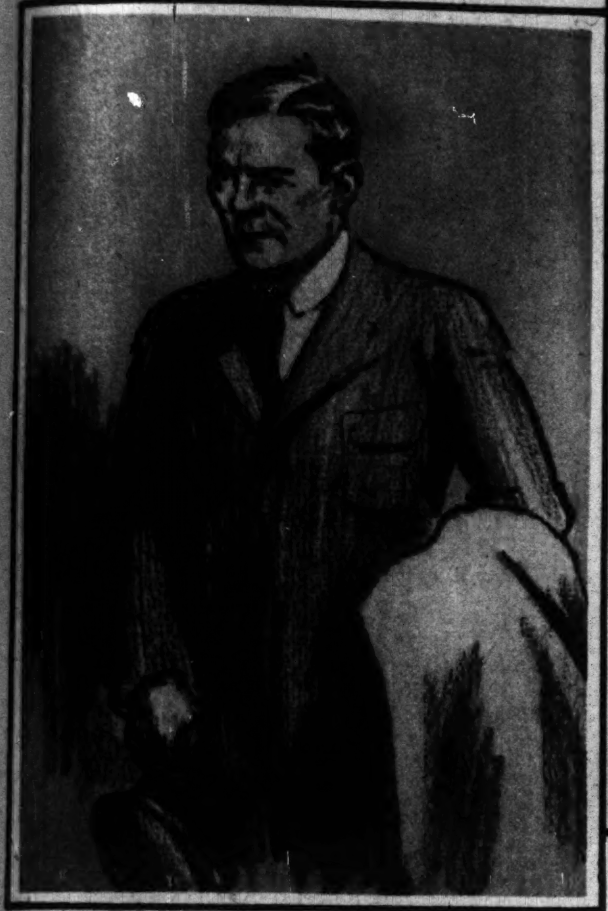
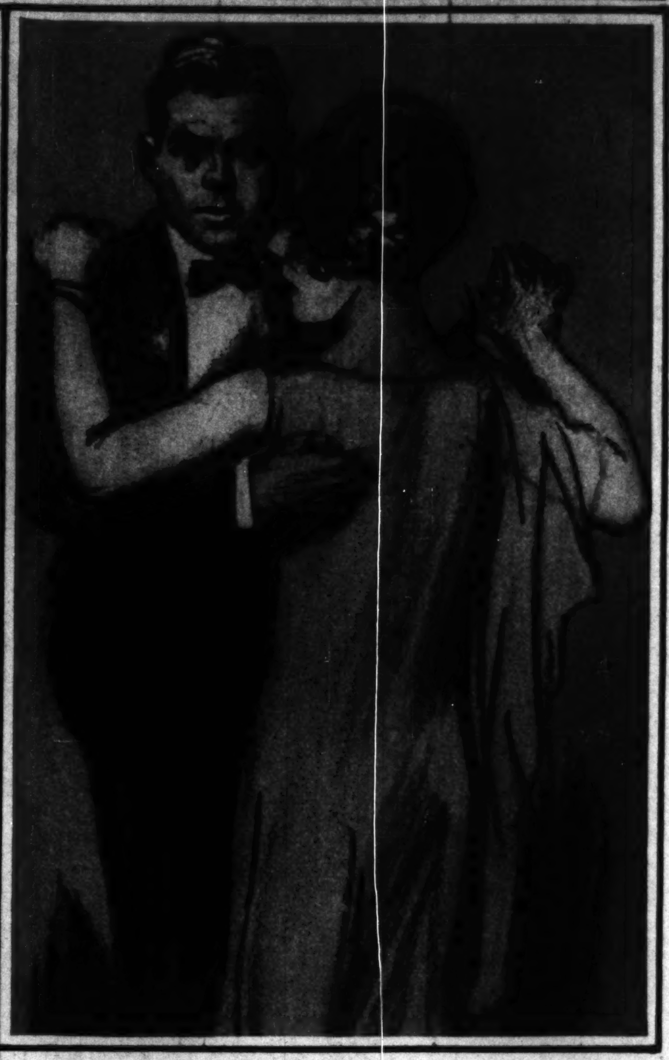
Country Cousins and City Cousins

By W. E. HILL

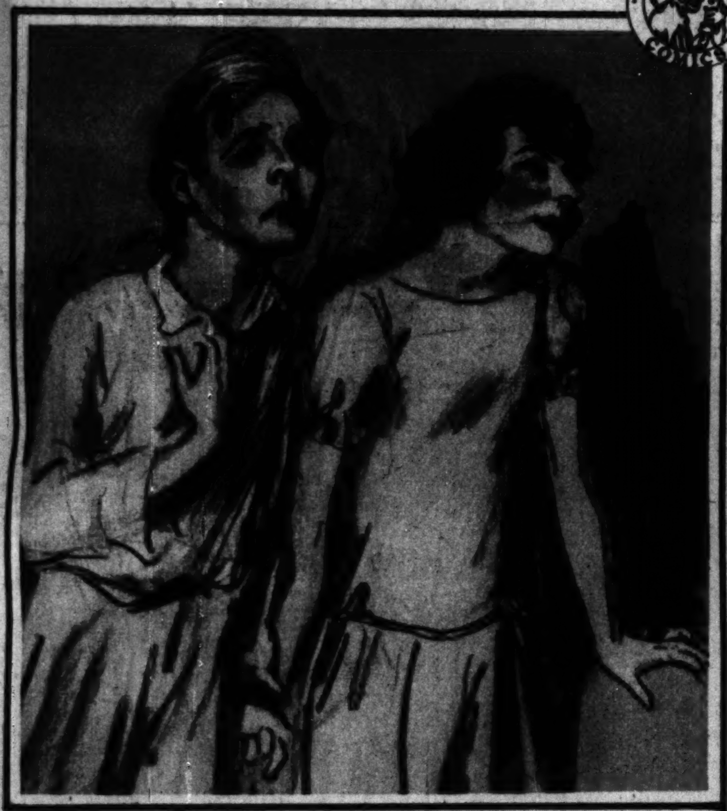


The country cousin's chauffeur doesn't like the city—especially the city cops. He is homesick for the home town.

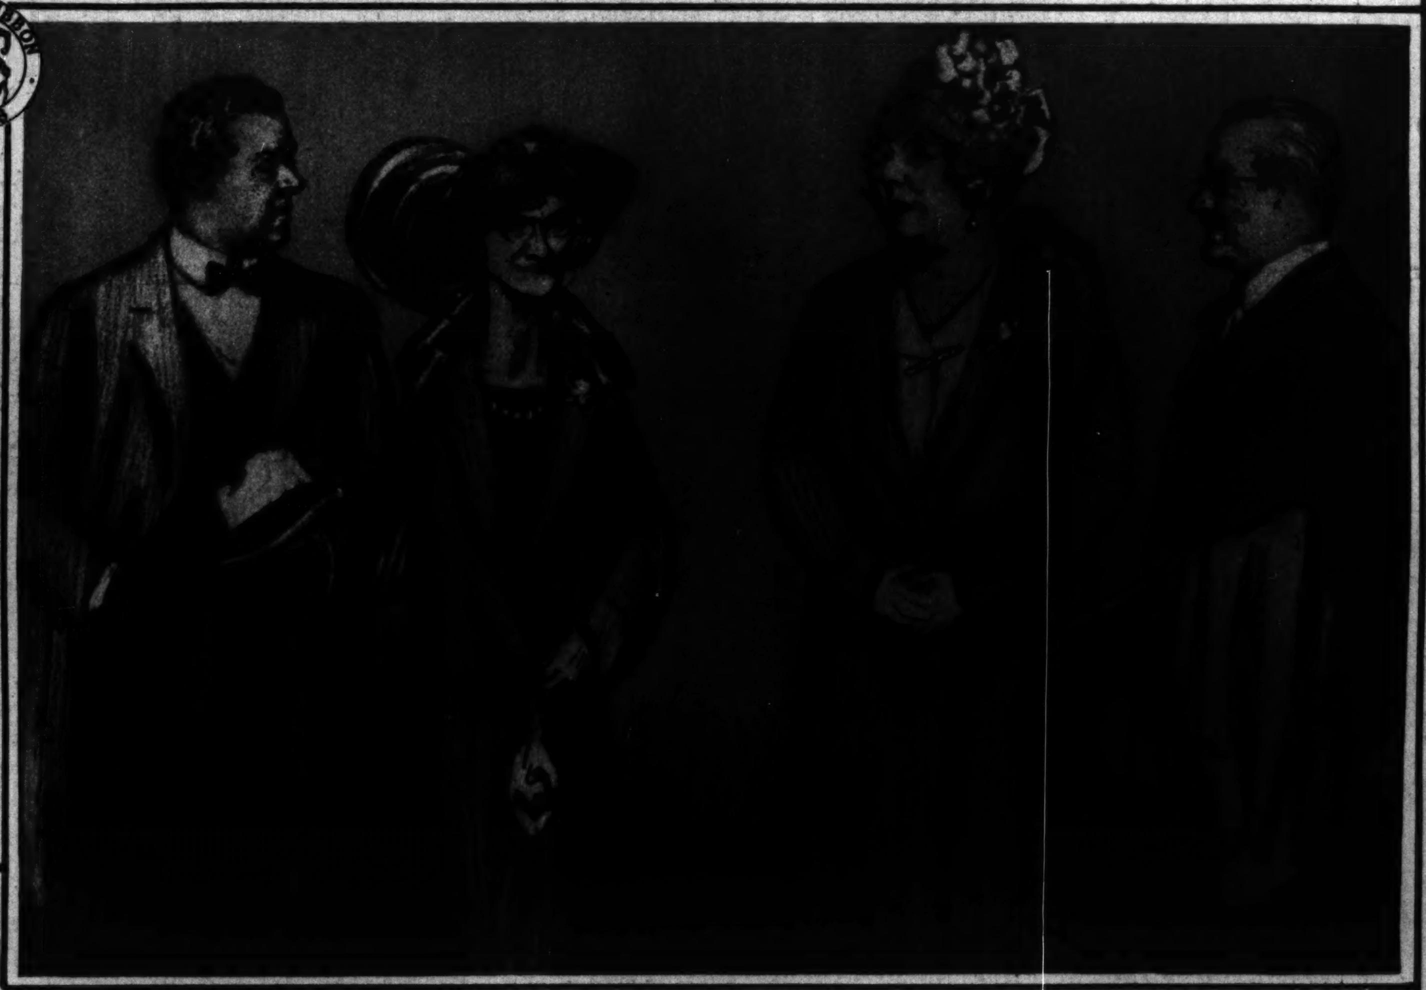
"O auntie, it can't be Gloria Swanson! And even if it is—the man with her doesn't look a bit like a marquis!" City cousins take an almost civic pride in pointing out celebrities, and otherwise impressing the visiting country cousins. And very often they get it all wrong.



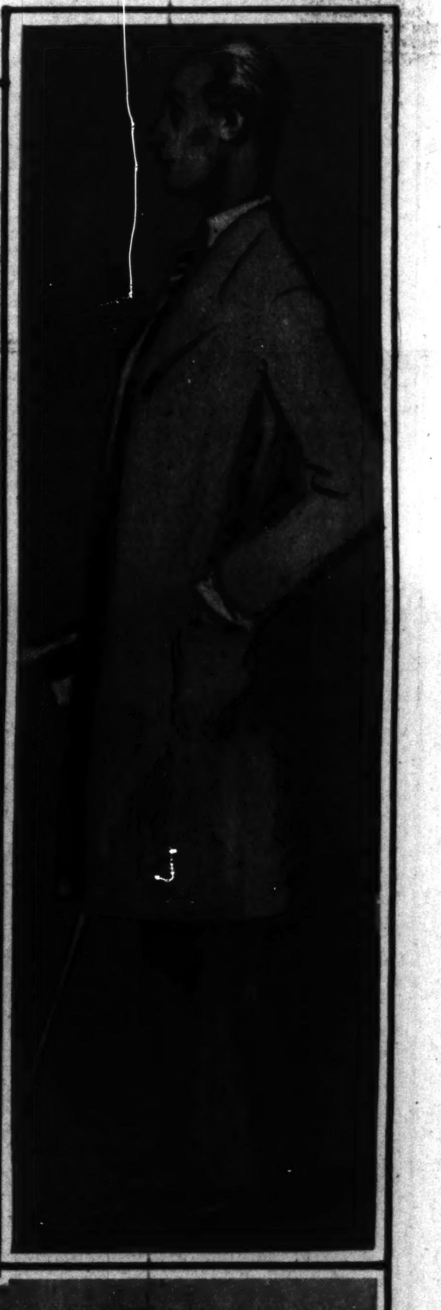
Cousin Frank is taking kid cousin Letty from the country around to see things in the city. Cousin Letty wants to stay up late. Country cousins have much more endurance than city cousins, who have to go to bed now and then, and get a good sleep.



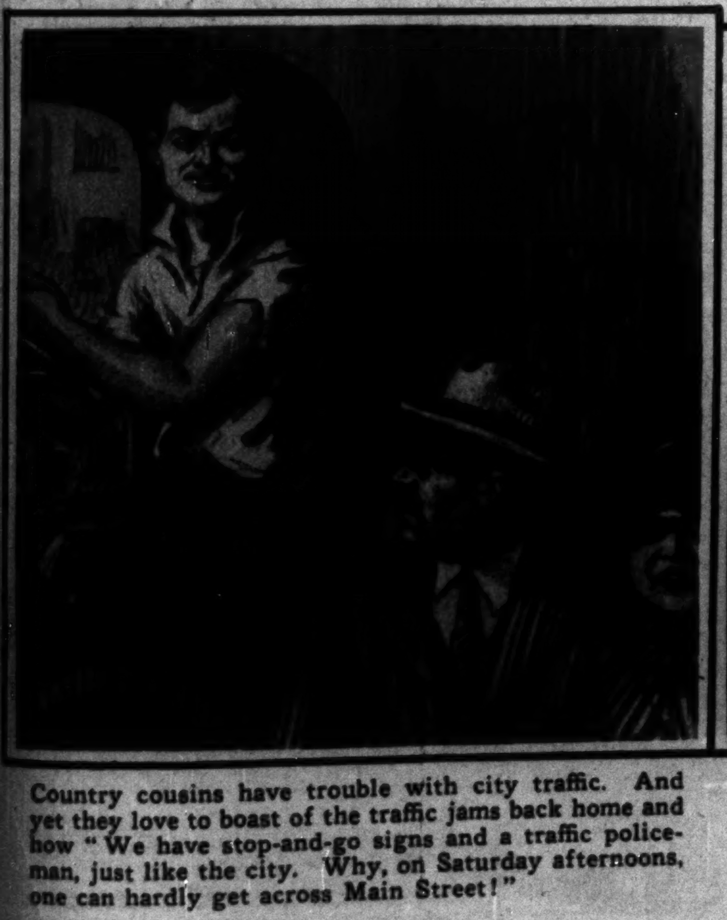
The kind of a play to which city cousins must never take country cousins. One of those hick plays, all about depression in the Carolinas. The heroine, who has the mind of a child of five, says, in the first act, "Mammy, I'se feared," you know the sort. Country cousins like big expensive girl revues. "We get all that other stuff," they say, "at home at our Little Theatre club."



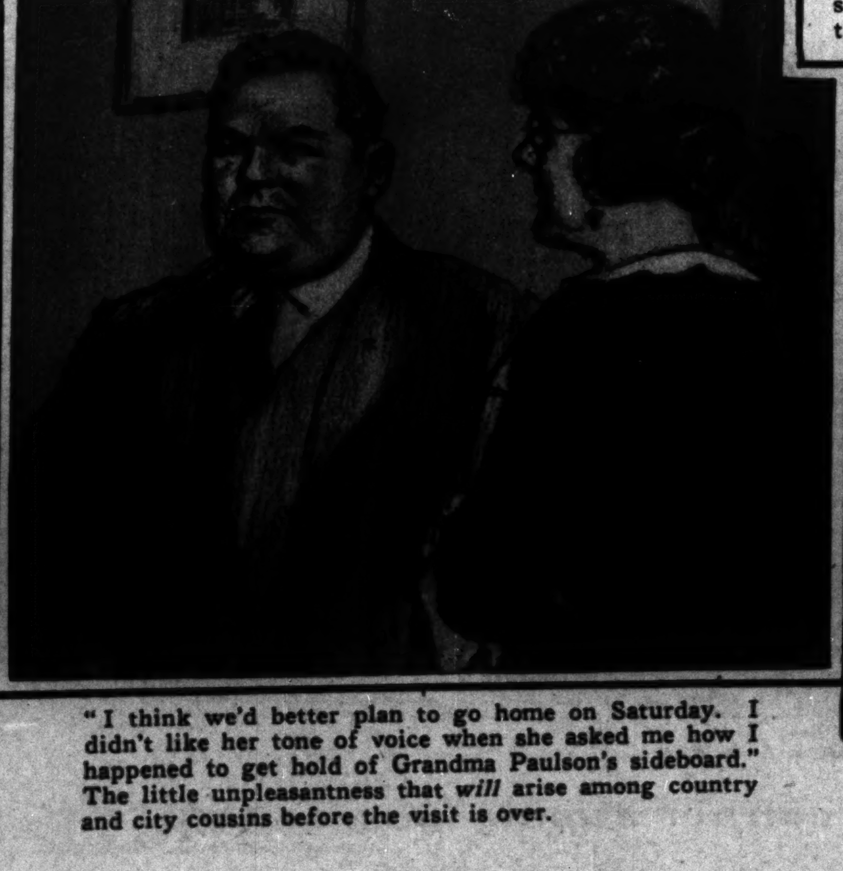
Country cousins are always looking up other country cousins in the city. Observe Mr. and Mrs. Mears and Mr. and Mrs. Crotan, about to start for a musical show. It took Mr. and Mrs. Mears half a day to find which hotel the Crotans were at.



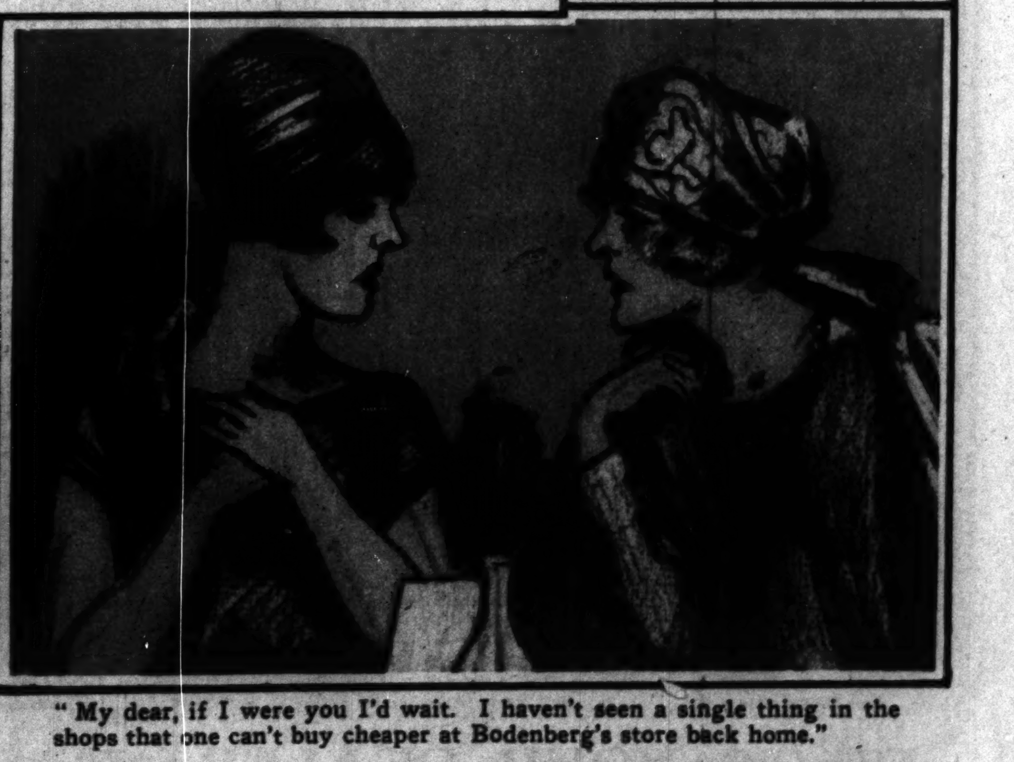
A city cousin waiting hopefully at the wrong station for the country cousins. Consequently there will be a slight coolness later on.



Country cousins have trouble with city traffic. And yet they love to boast of the traffic jams back home and how "We have stop-and-go signs and a traffic policeman, just like the city. Why, on Saturday afternoons, one can hardly get across Main Street!"



"I think we'd better plan to go home on Saturday. I didn't like her tone of voice when she asked me how I happened to get hold of Grandma Paulson's sideboard." The little unpleasantness that will arise among country and city cousins before the visit is over.



"My dear, if I were you I'd wait. I haven't seen a single thing in the shops that one can't buy cheaper at Bodenberg's store back home."

COLE'S GAS RANGES

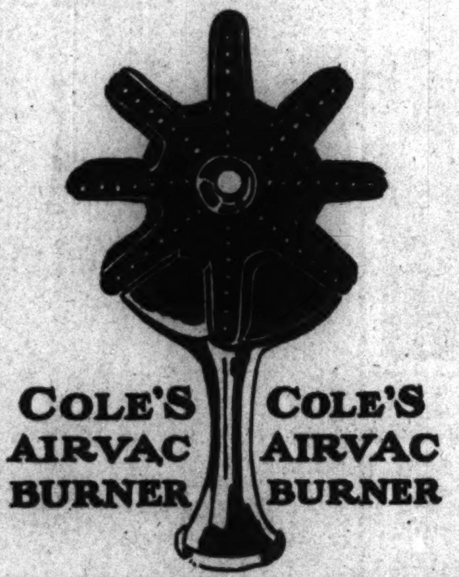
Good Cooks Become Better Cooks

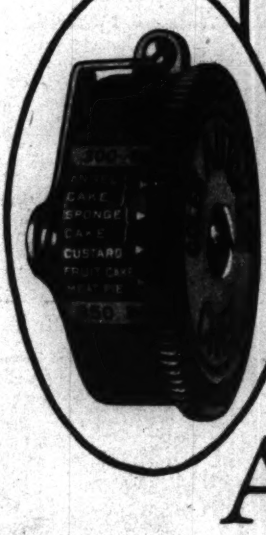
Cole's famous Automatic Chef makes it easy to serve successful dishes every time. Set the dial at the point indicated for the dish you are preparing, and forget the kitchen. No more worry. No more guesswork. The heat is measured with scientific accuracy. You'll get perfect results with perfect equipment.

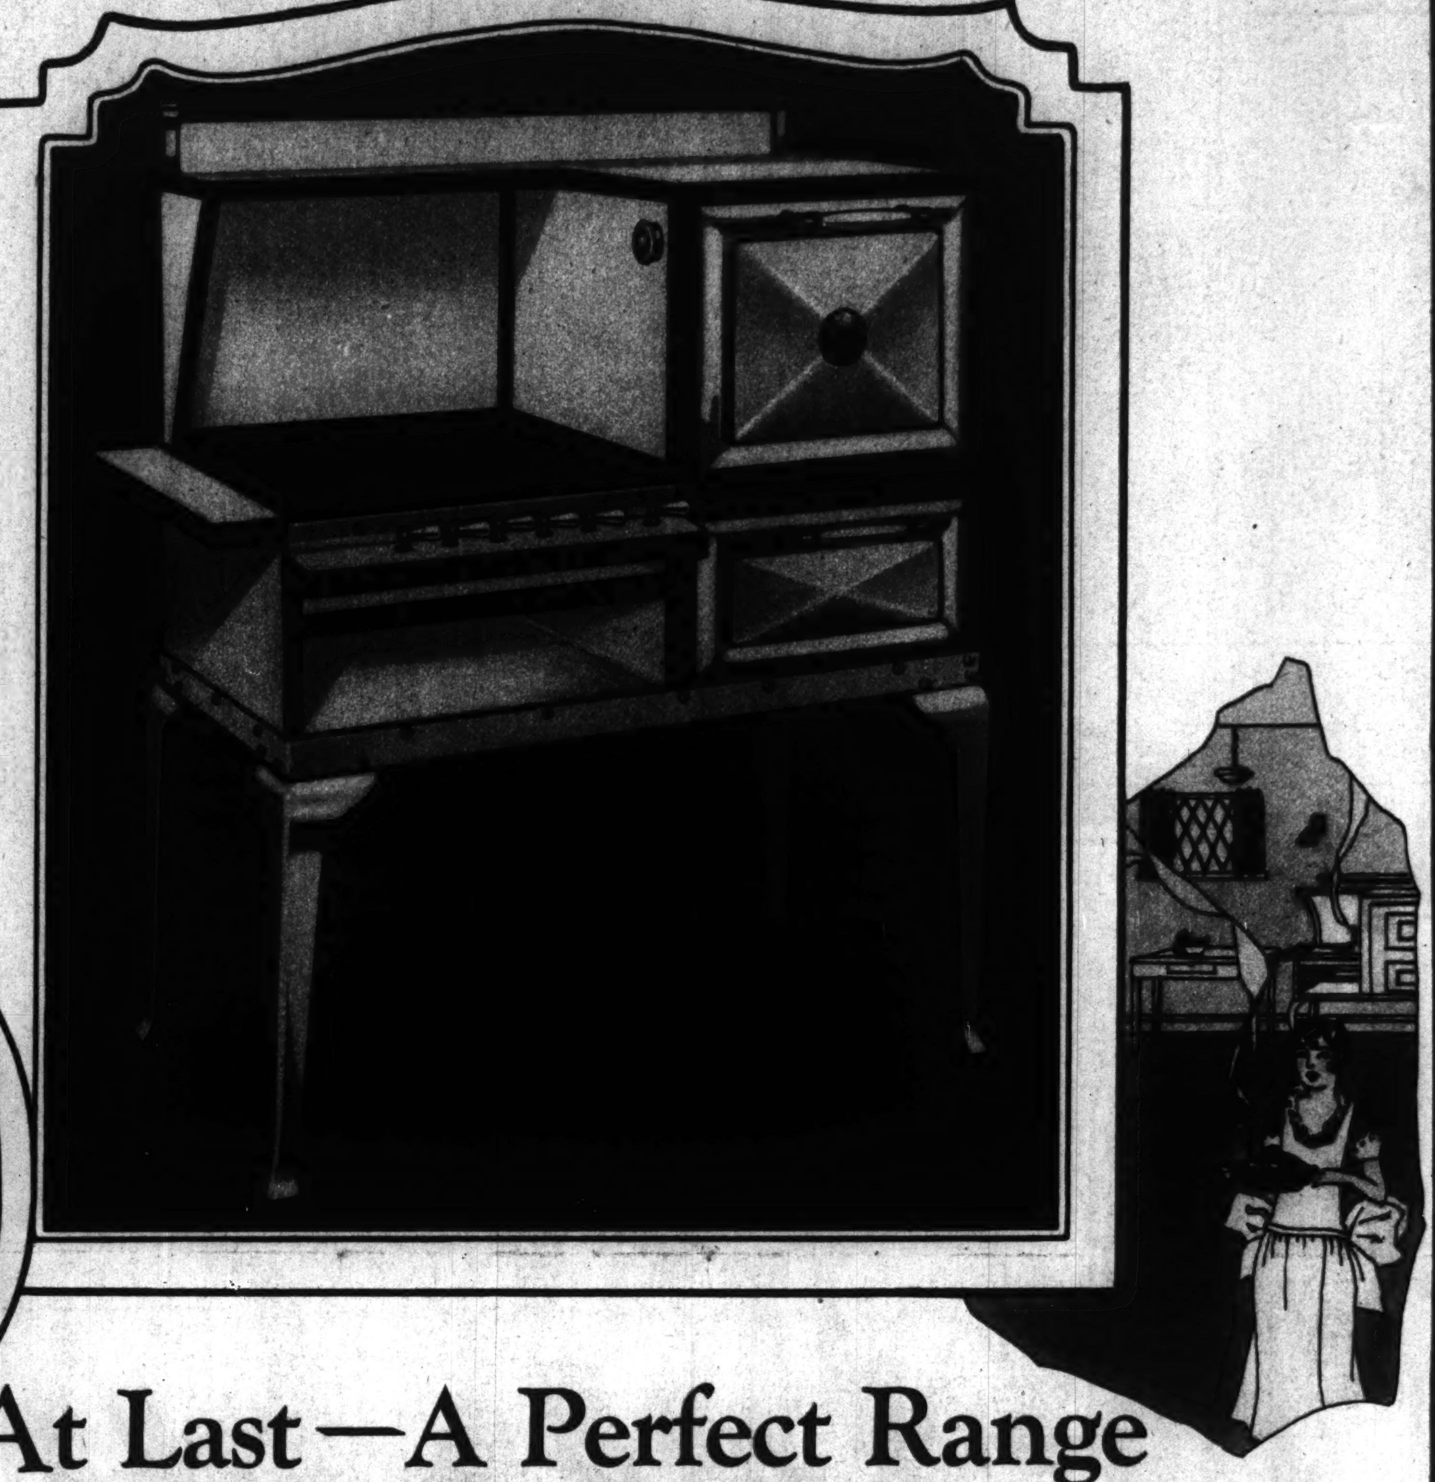
ARCHITECTS: Cole's Ranges fit the modern kitchen. Unique compactness in design saves valuable space in the smaller kitchens of today. A thoroughly up-to-date range with every possible convenience. Recommend the Cole for both houses and apartments.

A Gas Burner Distinctly Different

Cole's patented Airvac Burner is a real saver of gas. Around this exclusive feature Cole's beautiful Gas Ranges are built. The Airvac Burner is your positive guarantee of lower gas bills. The bottle neck design gives you a more intense heat, with an even flame from every port-hole. The large reserve chamber insures a perfect and economical mixture of gas and air. This burner is the latest development of Cole's combustion laboratories and of forty years' study of scientific combustion and fuel saving.







At Last—A Perfect Range

For Your Snow-White Kitchen

You will be delighted with the shining white beauty and graceful lines of this wonderful range. The neat compactness of design brings new attractiveness to your kitchen and gives you a new understanding of cooking convenience. You will actually have more working space in a range that occupies less room—a great advantage in the smaller kitchens of today.

You will quickly appreciate the unequalled cooking qualities of this beautiful range. Cole's fresh air oven circulates heat evenly and constantly so you will have ideal baking conditions. Cole's Automatic Chef measures and controls your heat with scientific exactness and makes it easy to prepare successful dishes every time. Perfect results because your range is perfect! You will find that cooking becomes a real pleasure again on the dazzling white Cole's Range.

Make sure to visit the Cole's dealer before furnishing or refurnishing your kitchen. He will show you in detail just why Cole's Ranges are better ranges. You will see and approve the comfortable working height and extra shelf space. You will discover that Cole's are much the easiest to keep spotlessly clean. Even the enameled linings of the oven walls are instantly removable for washing. Only in Cole's Ranges will you find every modern improvement to shorten and lighten the preparation of meals. Buy a Cole's Range, the safest and wisest investment for your kitchen.

Don't try to "get along" with an inferior gas range. No single household utility is as important in your home. Cole's Ranges are planned in terms of your convenience and satisfaction, and are moderately priced. They serve you best in every way. See the Cole's dealer.

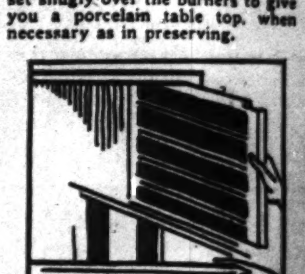
Practical Reasons Why Cole's Are Best

1. Cole's Fresh Air Oven. The circulating shield underneath the bottom plate takes heat from the back of the oven and discharges it at the front, heating all corners equally and giving perfect baking conditions. A four-wall oven consisting of an outer wall, a circulating air space, and a two-wall enamel lining. The oven measures 20 inches deep, by 16 wide and 14 high, giving you 1/5 more oven capacity than the standard oven.

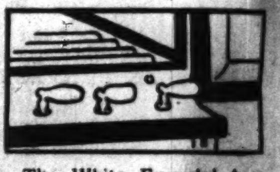
2. The Bottle Neck Burner of vitreous enamel gives you a very hot, even flame from every port-hole. A perfect and economical mixture of gas and air. A focused flame from the greatest fuel saver ever put on a gas range. Instantly removable, finished in enamel, these burners of special Cole design are far the easiest to keep clean.

3. Cooking Grids of vitreous black enamel, oversized and instantly removable for washing. Perfect cleanliness made easy. The Cooking top is longer and wider than in standard ranges, giving the maximum working space. The range is unequalled for compactness of design. Only 43 inches over all, but every inch is useful.

4. Oversized Shelves, an immense convenience. The drip pan can be set snugly over the burners to give you a porcelain table top, when necessary as in preserving.



5. Easily Removable Linings in both the oven and the broiler are a special feature of Cole's Ranges. No trouble at all to keep these enamel linings always spotlessly clean.



6. The White Enameled Apron over the gas manifold is a feature of Cole's Ranges that adds enormously to the appearance of your stove, and makes it easier to keep clean. The apron protects the burner connections, and keeps them spotless.

A GLORIOUS MEMORIAL TO THE GREAT T. R.—One of the finest tributes America has conceived to keep alive the memory of her fighting President is the new Roosevelt international highway, which stretches across the country at our northern boundary and reaches into Canada. This is a picturesque bit of the Roosevelt road in Oregon, where the highway skirts the Pacific ocean.

THREE GUESSES on this, and the layman who guesses right deserves a handsome prize. It's a new weapon of defense developed by the army. The four queer horns are giant sound detectors by which a land force determines the distance of airplanes above it. The picture was taken during the army's anti-aircraft defense game at Fort Totten, Staten Island, N. Y.

RUMBOAT CHASERS lined up for inspection at the coast guard academy at New London, Conn. An official of the prohibition department is looking over the coast guard patrol with members of the academy staff. The boats are being tuned up for renewed raids against the rum runners who ply their trade off the Atlantic coast.

BORN TO BE KINGS, these two young chaps, and the one at the left, Crown Prince Alfonso, is still in line for the somewhat shaky throne of Spain. The other boy is Wilhelm Friedrich, eldest son of the former Crown Prince of Germany. It is young Wilhelm whom the monarchists of Germany hope to install as kaiser some day. The picture was secured while Alfonso was showing Wilhelm about Madrid recently.

Flannel Ponchos

To Take the Place of Sweater, Sports Coat or Jumper Dress

Slip into a Poncho . . . and you have a complete and refreshingly "different" costume. This smart little flannel coat answers that ever difficult problem of the summer wrap which adds protection without adding weight . . . put it on over a tub silk or printed crepe de chine and it creates as smart an ensemble as you could desire.

Made of America's very finest flannel, so soft, so velvety is its twilled finish that the surface won't attract dirt and dust. Every one of the rainbow of colors popularized in sports attire for this summer . . . and such soft-hued tones as will blend with any costume. Won't soil easily, cleans beautifully, wears so well that you'll find your Poncho still radiantly new at the season's end.

Plain shades . . . or figures . . . in belted or beltless models. A range and variety of styles and patterns for every woman . . . from the Miss in her teens to the Matron. Misses' sizes 14 to 20 . . . Women's sizes 36 to 44.

Men realize that the best is the most economical —naturally they choose Nettletons

It is just the difference between immediate saving and ultimate economy—the difference between buying three or four pairs of questionable quality and of buying one pair of known quality—Nettletons.

Well dressed men are again respecting fashion in men's shoes. Tan or black leathers during the day. Black leathers only for evening. Your nearest Nettleton dealer will show you the proper shoe for each occasion.

Three Normandy Voile Patterns—new and charming for women's and children's frocks

You'll make a cool, lovely picture in a frock of

NORMANDY VOILE

Nothing is lovelier for warm weather wear than a frock of sheer-textured voile. And no voile is so lovely as Normandy, because its distinctive little raised dots give the fabric just enough weight to hang perfectly—without wrinkling or clinging to one's underthings! New lovely colors and patterns are ready—and the dots are guaranteed absolutely fast. Look for "Normandy Fabric" on the selvage, or the "Normandy" label in the ready-to-wear frock!

ENGLAND HONORS FRANCE'S WAR DEAD—King George bows in silent tribute to the heroes of France after placing a wreath at the tomb of the unknown soldier in Paris. The gay French capital gave the king and Queen Mary a notable reception when they stopped there on their way back from their Mediterranean tour. The trip greatly improved the health of King George. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

THE MARLBOROUGH HEIR, the Marquess of Blandford, prepares for a famous hunt in England while Mrs. Ewen Wallace looks on. Lord Blandford was born in 1897, the first son of the ninth Duke of Marlborough and the former Consuelo Vanderbilt. Quite the perfect British noble, isn't he, girls? O, yes, he's married. His wife was the Hon. Mary Cadogan, daughter of the late Viscount Chelsea. (Photograph from Henry Miller service.)

ULSTER OPENS ITS PARLIAMENT with a pomp and ceremony rivaling the gorgeous spectacle that attends the king's opening of the British parliament. Banish Mouth Germs and you remove the main cause of Tooth Decay

This preserves teeth by destroying germs

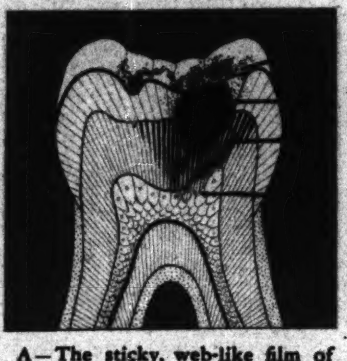
By IRA DAVIS JOEL, B. S., M. S., Department of Bacteriology

YOU brush your teeth faithfully. You brush them carefully. Yet when you visit your dentist you are often surprised at the number of cavities his instruments reveal.

You feel baffled. Others seemingly no more careful than yourself enjoy the blessing of sound teeth. What is the trouble?

The trouble is that your teeth require a certain kind of protection which you are failing to give them—the protection they need is adequate dental care and the daily use of a germ-killing dentifrice.

The protection they need is the germicidal protection of Kolynos Dental Cream. Kolynos not only keeps your teeth white and glistening, but its main properties are highly antiseptic—extremely important properties if you are to have sound teeth, teeth free from dangerous, offensive, and painful cavities.



A—The sticky, web-like film of germs, mucin and food particles begins to form. B—Acid then begins to eat into the enamel rods and separate them, before it finally destroys the rods themselves. C—Germs swarm in through the break in the enamel and attack the dentine under it. D—When the decay reaches the pulp which surrounds the nerve, toothache follows

Kills germs—washes them away

Did you ever watch snowflakes collect upon a window-pane? That is the way germs collect upon your teeth. The first few find it hard to cling, but soon they build up rapidly. First Bacilli Acidophili lodge on the enamel. They are tiny, short threads of germs. In your saliva is a sticky substance called mucin. Little flakes of this adhere to the teeth. Thus a close, sticky, web-like film spreads across the enamel, a film of malignant germs that cause decay.

These germs multiply with amazing rapidity. Each produces tiny quantities of harmful acid. The film holds this acid against the teeth while it gradually eats into the enamel.

Kolynos checks this. To begin with, it kills germs. It breaks up the film. It washes away the film, with its multitude of germs. It leaves comparatively few germs in your mouth; hours pass before there are again enough to be dangerous to your teeth. And even then, so thoroughly polished are your teeth that it is very much harder for the germs and the mucin to cling to the glossy enamel surface.

{ FREE—Enough Kolynos to brush your teeth 22 times, ½ inch to the brushing. }

While You Sleep~

Nature takes her toll while you sleep. While you are resting in peaceful slumber, thousands of decay germs are relentlessly working to enter the 30 private recesses between the teeth left untouched by your tooth brush. Your teeth are in danger. Your beauty is at stake.

A sure preventative is FLOSSY, the handy little device that easily reaches those thirty trenches between your teeth where decay and pyorrhea begin. It removes the cause and helps you to keep your teeth in good health, keeps the breath sweeter and saves you many a painful date with the dentist.

Get the FLOSSY habit and your sleep will be more peaceful.

They Call California the "Magic Summerland"

Come This Summer, to See

THE U.S. Weather Bureau has recorded summer temperatures for 48 years in a central (inland) city in Southern California and averaged them as follows: 48 Junes, 66 degrees, 48 Julys, 70; 48 Augusts, 71; 48 Septembers, 69—grand average 69 degrees for 192 summer months!

Thousands from the East who know these facts now come here every year to enjoy this summerland supreme and its unending fun. They go to mountains, lakes, sea shores—they camp, ride horseback, hike, swim, sail, play golf and motor. And all these summer sports are at their best in this great natural playground.

Its an invaluable change—of air, of environment, of interests. Motor roads and a remarkable system of trolley lines take you wherever you want to go. Here are broad ocean beaches, old Missions, palm trees, strange foliage and flowers, orange groves, a desert like Sahara, stupendous panoramic views, outdoor philharmonic orchestra concerts—and perfect weather all the time! What more could one ask in summertime?

Special round trip tickets on sale from May 15th to September 30th (with return trip privilege to October 31st) make it easy to come. Ask railroad ticket agents for full information, or mail coupon below.

IT'S ROUGH ON THE LIGHTHOUSE that gets in the way of one of these giant modern liners. Here's the wreck of one off Bremen, Germany, after it had been hit by the British steamer Anglo Columbia. The lighthouse was almost toppled off its foundation; the ship was practically undamaged.

WHEN "OLD FAITHFUL" BLOWS in Yellowstone park, out spurts a stream of steam and water that shoots 150 feet straight up in the air. It looks a good deal like those tornado pictures we've been seeing lately. They tell us the phenomenon occurs every sixty-five minutes, day and night, winter and summer. One could almost set his watch by its blasts.

FAMOUS PUPILS HONOR AN OLD MUSIC MASTER—A gathering of musical geniuses such as is not seen once in a century appeared at the testimonial concert given in honor of Leopold Auer in New York City. Prof. Auer played publicly with his pupils for the first time in twenty years. After the concert these celebrities of the world of harmony were pictured in the Auer residence. Standing are Josef Achron, Jascha Heifetz, Ossip Gabrillowitsch, Serge Rachmaninoff, Josef Hofmann, and Paul Stassevitch. Seated are Prof. Auer and Efrem Zimbalist.

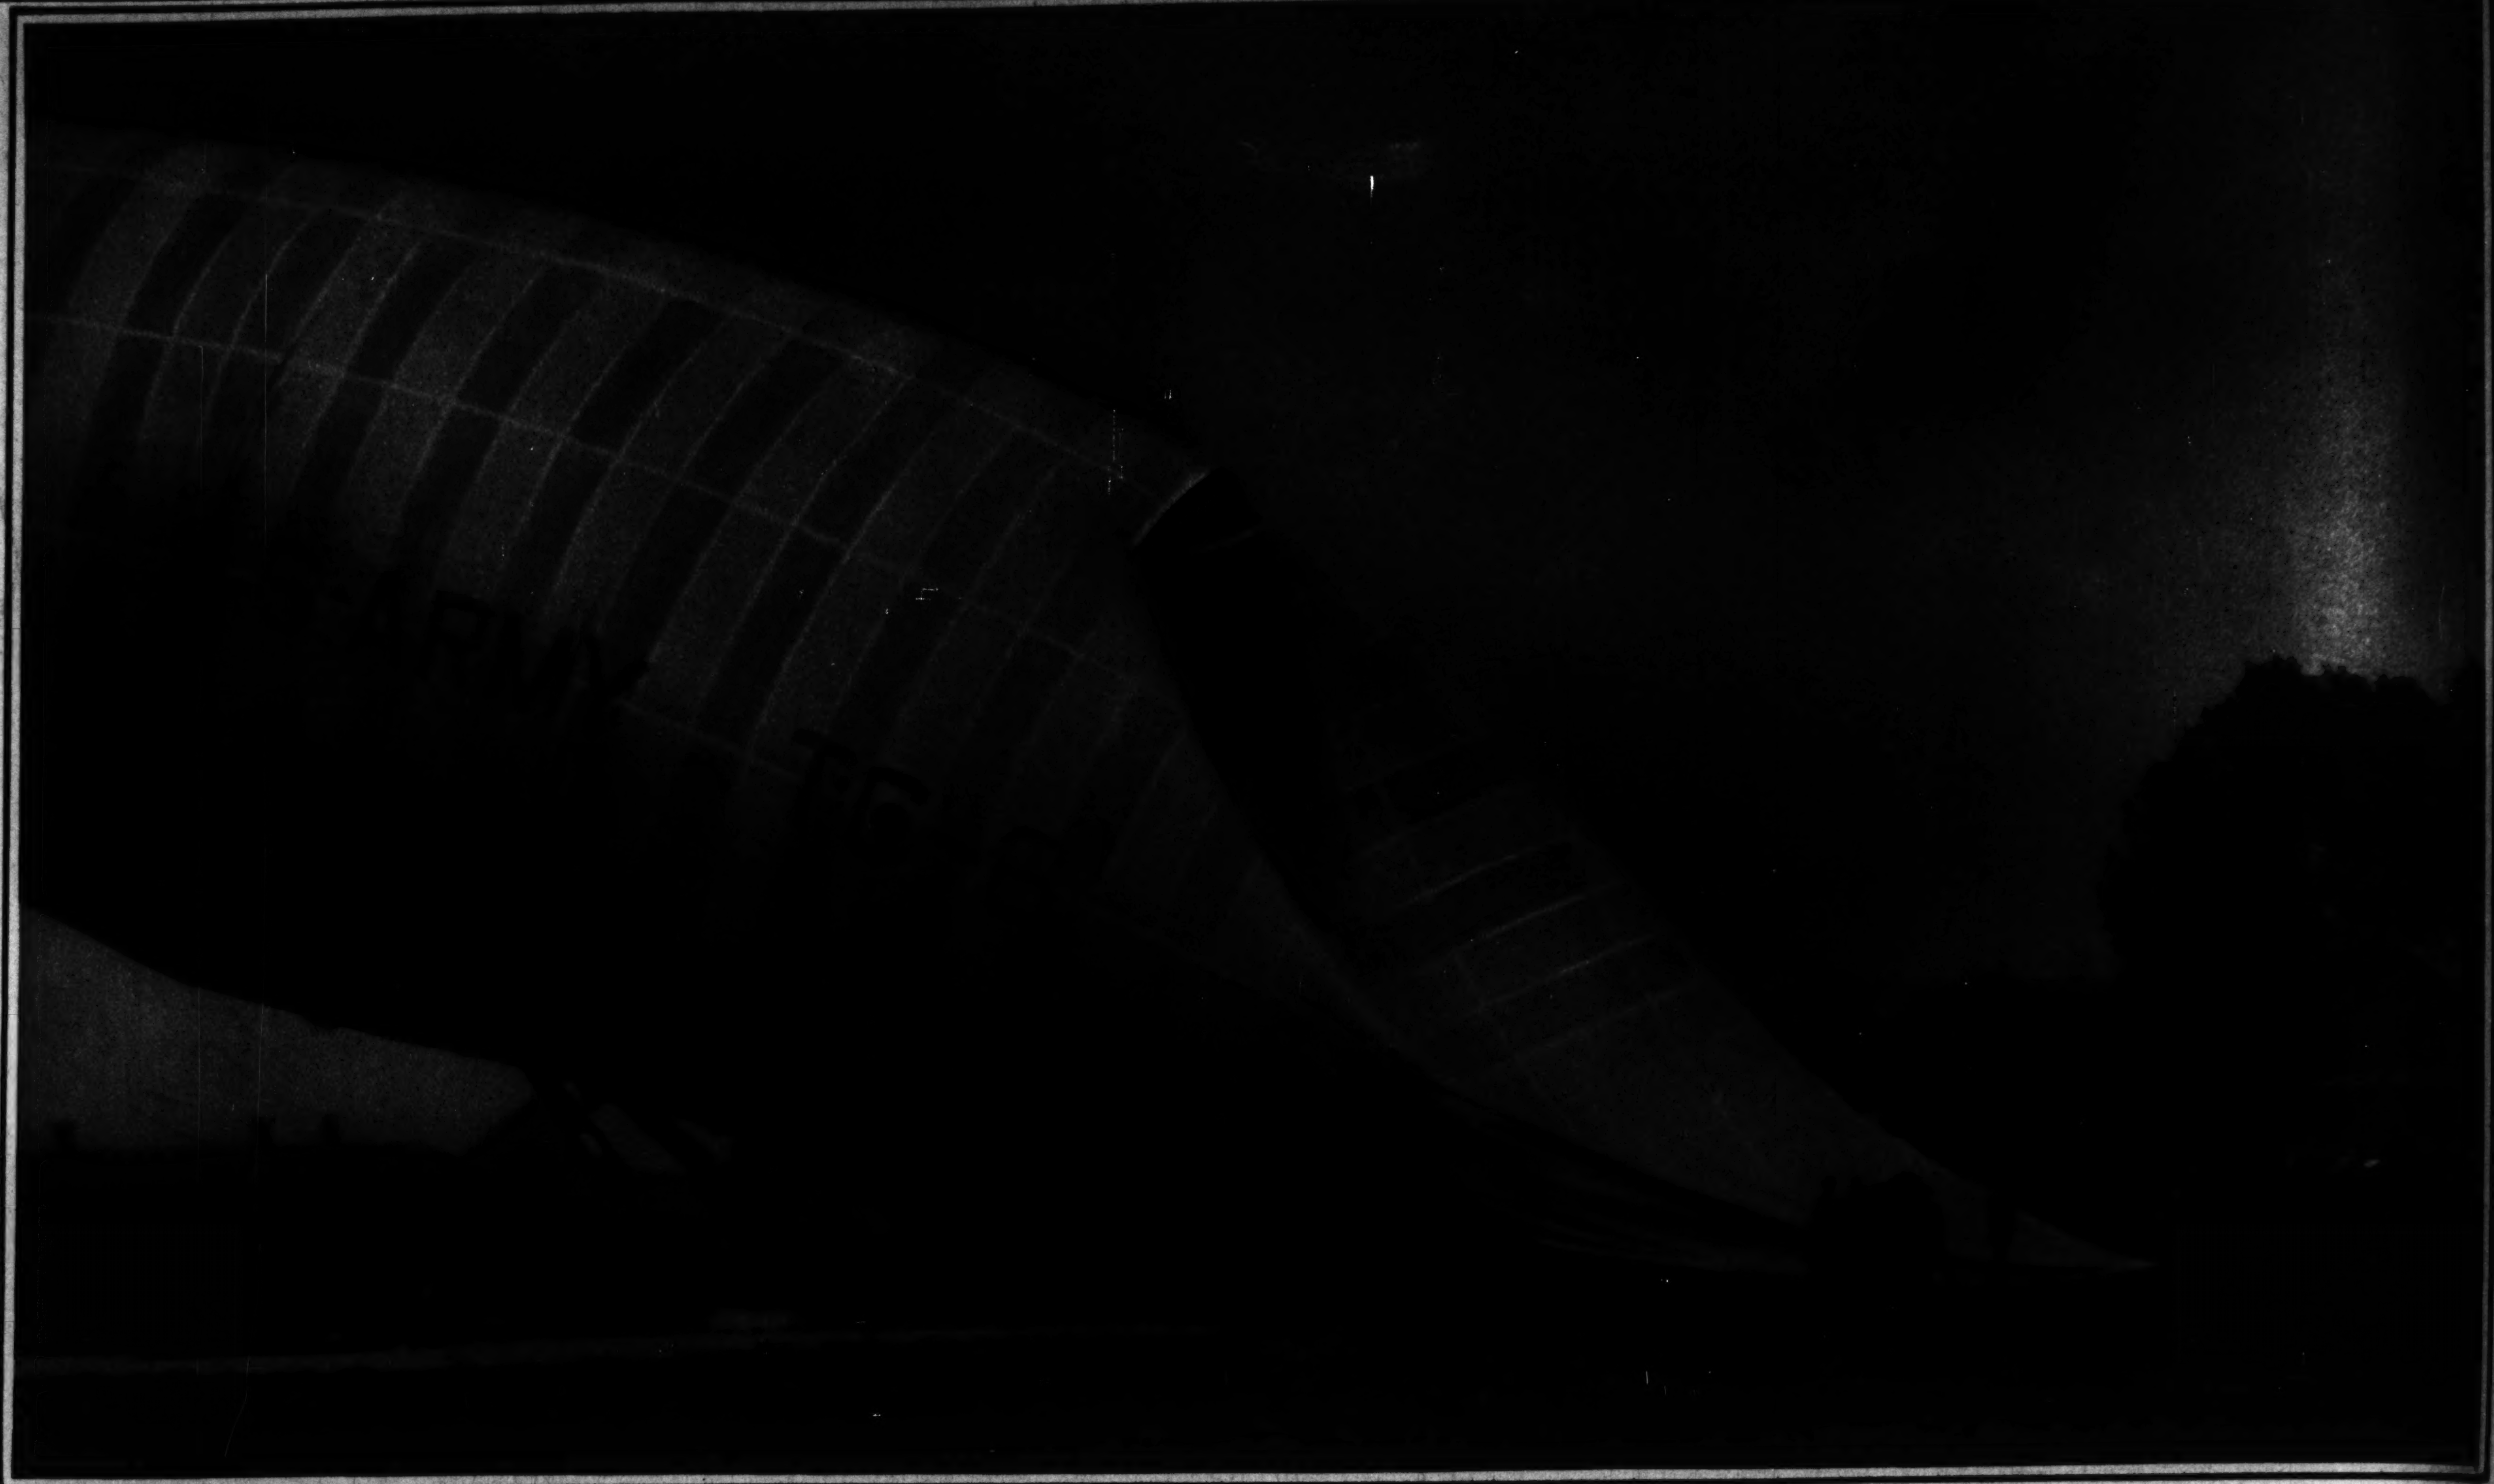
THE PRODIGAL AND NAOMI are impersonated respectively by Buster Collier and Katherine Keel in Paramount's new production, "The Wanderer." Here you see them in character—Jether and Naomi.

LOVELY MAY McAVOY has the role of Esther in "Ben Hur." The blonde wig is quite as becoming as her own dark, curly hair, if one is to judge from this picture.

LOUD LAUGHTER rarely greets the performances of Adolph Menjou, but his appearances seldom fail to draw that greater tribute, the tickled chuckle that will not be repressed. He knows how to be such a slick, smooth, suave, dryly humorous philanderer! Mr. Menjou has gone to Europe with his wife and son on a vacation.

ERNEST TORRENCE has one of the principal roles in Paramount's "The Wanderer." Gaze upon this picture well and give three guesses as to the part he plays!

A "DIFFERENT" ADVENTURESS is Aileen Pringle's contribution to the screen. She plays "straight" parts sometimes, but as a rule you see her as a naughty lady—whom you can't help liking and shedding a sly tear over.



A FIVE MINUTE STORM FINISHED THIS BLIMP, the army dirigible TC-6. It was on a trial flight from Scott field at Belleville, Ill., when a sudden wind blew up at Fort Cook, near Omaha, Neb., and wrecked the great bag completely. A lucky camera shooter got this picture just as the ship hit the ground. A few minutes later all its 160,000 cubic feet of helium gas had escaped, and the huge envelope crumpled over the debris that had been the engine.

Why the Miller girls are never late to school

MOTHER times their leaving with a faithful clock. Day in and day out, it ticks off the hours with precision—never slow, never fast.

It is a Gilbert Clock. Its wheels and gears are die-cut from selected brass. All the mechanical genius of the clockmaker's craft is concentrated in the Gilbert shop to produce clock movements you can bank on. Before a clock can leave the Gilbert shop it is wound and run for forty-eight hours. With it goes the well-known Gilbert guarantee.

You can get Gilbert Clocks in dozens of exquisite styles, both large and small—with mellow-toned Normandy Chimes, Cathedral Gong, or without a strike. It is easy to find a merchant who sells them. And Gilbert prices will surprise you pleasantly—eight to thirty dollars.

A glorious treat in a quiet spot when the table is set for two

A MAN and a maid and a table set for two . . . the soft lights shimmering on napery and silver . . . a dinner ordered with discerning care and served as only Henri can serve it. . . . Music . . . a polished floor . . . heads bent close in conversation . . . periods of eloquent silence . . . the charm of a woman's laughter, low and sweet!

And then, as if to crown it all, "Canada Dry"—sparkling, bubbling, glorious "Canada Dry." What memories it stirs as you pour it into the thin-edged glasses!

For this is no ordinary ginger ale, but a ginger ale with an honored and an historic past. For years upon years, it has been served in the Houses of Parliament in Ottawa, in the residence of the Governor-General, in the Royal Canadian Yacht Club and at smart functions everywhere.

A thoroughbred among drinks—an aristocrat—a drink that bubbles with life and laughter—the accepted choice on every occasion where smartness vies with pleasure.

Pale—like champagne in color—"dry," like an old wine—piquant, yet mellow—it is the most delightful and refreshing beverage you ever have tasted.

Try it soon! It is indeed "The Champagne of Ginger Ales"—the finest ginger ale ever sold in this country.

"CANADA DRY"

The reason for the phenomenal success of "Canada Dry" can be told in ten short words—"It is real ginger ale made from real Jamaica ginger." Furthermore, it is one ginger ale that does not contain capsicum (red pepper) in any form. That is a most important point to remember when selecting a beverage for your home.

"I AM A LIFE-LONG NEWSPAPER MAN. Following several years of travel and residence in remote sections, I became afflicted with chronic indigestion and other ills which caused almost constant distress. I began taking two cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily. In a short time relief was afforded, until after two or three months no more was needed. I am now in fine condition in every respect."

(George F. Weeks, Washington, D. C.)

"AS A GRADUATE of a Chicago hospital, I have had the great advantage of working with some of the most eminent men in the medical world. But diets, treatments and exercises, invaluable to many others, failed to give me any permanent relief.

"For years I fought a chronic constipation and I firmly believe that in the past two months yeast has accomplished what faithful dieting and regular exercise had failed to do.

"Despairing of ever being entirely well, I began eating yeast, merely to satisfy a friend who had urged me to try it. At the end of two weeks—skepticism gave way to amazement. My chronic constipation and dull headaches had begun to disappear. In one month I was feeling better than I had for ten years. And now at the end of two months I am absolutely normal.

"In my position as supervising nurse in the health department of a large utility company I find constipation one of the most common ailments among our employees. And I consider yeast the best remedy that I can advise for it."

(Miss Gayle Pond, R. N., Chicago, Ill.)

What They Say Has Been Said By Thousands

Energy restored — Constipation, skin and stomach disorders banished — with one simple fresh food

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense —Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion — clear the skin — banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. 689, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York.

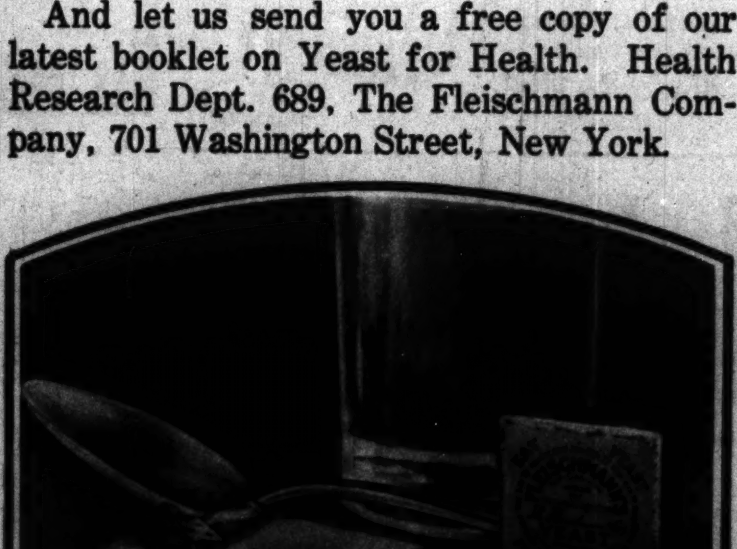
"I WAS IRRITABLE, nervous, weak, an old young man with a blotchy face. I applied for a job in a R. R. shop. Each day I was about to quit, for I felt I couldn't do a man's job. Intestinal poisons clogged my system. My wife suggested Fleischmann's Yeast. I began taking one cake in hot water regularly before I ate. I was rewarded. Not a blotch remains. I am a new man, full of stamina, pep, vigor—ruddy complexion and master of my job."

(M. J. Barton, Deer Lodge, Montana)

"SINCE CHILDHOOD I have suffered from chronic constipation, and the condition became more pronounced as I grew older. To alleviate the trouble, I did as too many people are doing constantly—resorted to laxatives which gave me temporary relief but which did not get at the cause of the trouble. I lived by the 'Physic bottle' as religiously as Robert Louis Stevenson ever did. I was nervous and irritable; my appetite was poor, and the food I did eat was not properly digested. I was alarmingly under weight.

"Three years ago I began the use of Fleischmann's Yeast. I ate a cake shortly before each meal. Results were not instantaneous, but I held tenaciously to the hope that it might help me. It did. At the end of six weeks I felt much better; the daily laxative had become a thing of the past; I had a ravenous appetite, and I was gaining in weight. I continued. Fleischmann's Yeast has put me in a state of excellent health."

(Glen C. Anderson, Minneapolis, Minn.)



EAT 2 OR 3 CAKES regularly every day before meals: on crackers—in fruit juices or milk—or just plain. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) night and morning.

"AS A PROFESSIONAL WOMAN, housekeeper and clubwoman, health and appearance are of paramount importance to me. Last January, after a severe cold, I was threatened with a breakdown. I was below par in efficiency and appearance, constantly constipated and accumulating fat. I tried Fleischmann's Yeast. Just half a cake added to my usual breakfast and half a cake for luncheon. How splendid the effect! Constipation gone—no further tendency toward fat—normal vitality, efficiency, appearance."

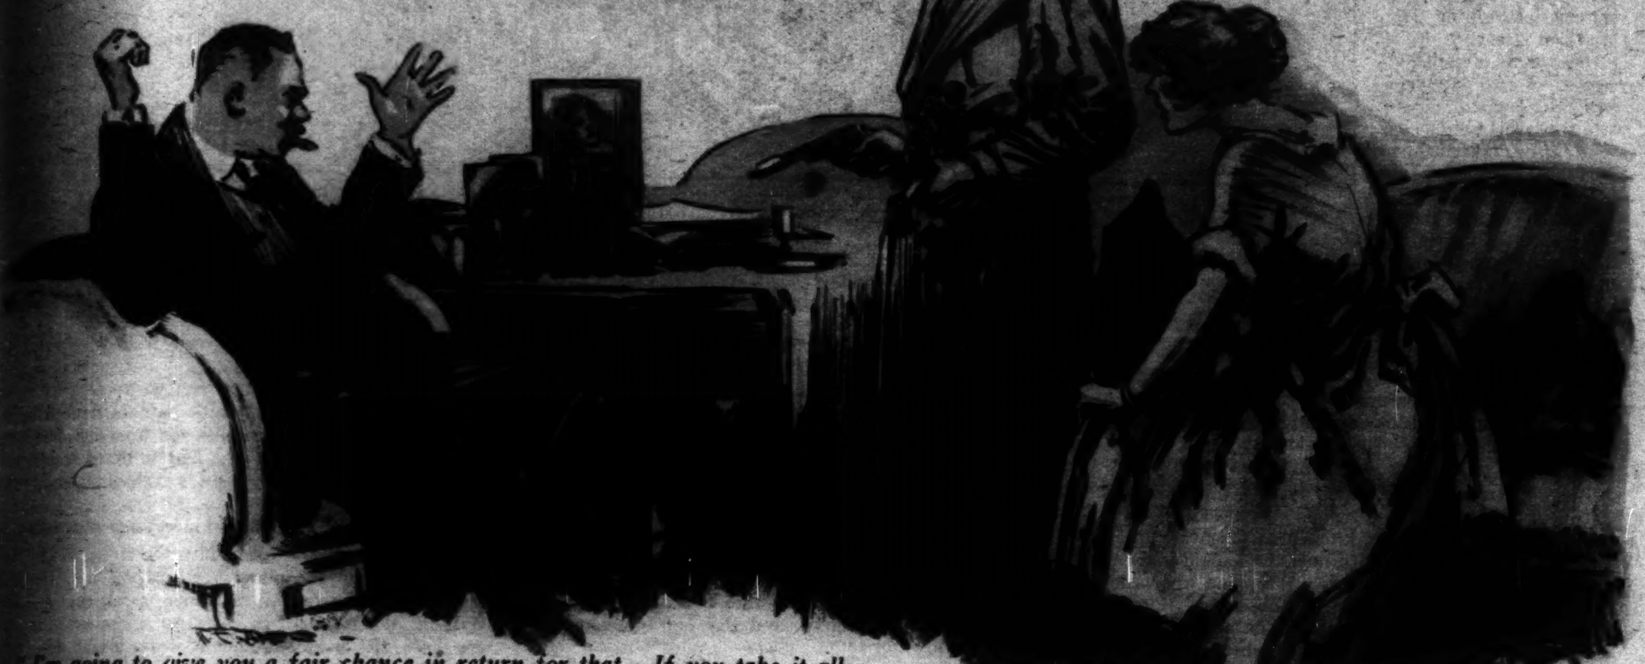
The Fair Chance

by JAMES HAY JR.

The Law Wanted Her and Hunted Her for Seven Years; and Then Her Husband Took the Law into His Hands



"I'm going to give you a fair chance in return for that. If you take it, all right. If you don't, I'll kill you where you sit."

SHE opened the door of her flat, and at once stood face to face with the [illegible] of her world. It came as she pictured it a thousand times. Unexpectedly. Suddenly. Without a chance to save herself.

The man whose ring had brought her to the door [illegible] without taking off his hat, staring at her out of [illegible] eyes, an inoffensive smile drawing up the corners of his mouth. His round, slightly fat face conveyed an impression of habitual watchfulness. In the seven years that had passed since she had seen him, he had not changed. The long, stubborn line of his jaw was the same, as was the suggestion of lionlike strength in his slightly stooped shoulders.

"Hello, Mayme," he said in a rumbling baritone, the [illegible] of his lips scarcely perceptible.

For a moment she could not speak. She leaned with her right shoulder against the door casing, her left hand still on the knob. Her face had gone instantly cold and gray, like a winter's twilight. She looked at him dully.

"Leavit," she said at last, slowly; "Leavit, the detective."

"Yes; Steve Leavit," he said. "Guess I'll have to come in, Mayme."

Unsmiling now, he was a man intent on his business, making no attempt to exult over her. He acted as if the offense for which she was wanted had been committed that day instead of seven years ago.

Resistance was out of the question. She stepped back and drew the door farther open. Prematurely gray hair and the lines that come from courageous fighting against hardship made her look older than her twenty-five years. But, even with the pallor of fright, she was almost handsome. Her face had strength in it.

When the detective had crossed the threshold, he waited for her to close the door and precede him down the narrow hall. She went with flying feet. On her way to answer his ring she had seen that the clock on the bookcase in the living room pointed to six minutes to six. And her husband was invariably home by six! The thought drummed through her brain: "George will be here any minute—in five minutes at the outside! I've got to make it easy for him, be worthy of him!"

As she traversed the short distance of the hall her mind worked with incredible swiftness. Her whole beloved past flashed into view: her wedding day four years ago; George's saying he would never believe bad, not even a little bad, of her, no matter what anybody might tell him; the happiness of being trusted and honored always! She locked her teeth against the moaning cry, "My dear happiness!"

IN the well kept but cheaply furnished little living room she turned and faced Leavit. She noticed with surprise that she was weak, like a woman suffering heat prostration. Her tongue was rough, as if it had sand on it. Irregular, jagged patches of white fire flashed past her eyes. She put her hand on his arm.

"Mr. Leavit, give me a fair chance, will you?" she implored him, the words coming in a rush. "I'm married now, and my husband will be here any minute, and I don't want him to see me arrested. The shock, the grief of it, would kill him! Don't take me before eight-thirty! Give me till eight-thirty! That's only two hours and a half, Mr. Leavit. I'll make him go out by then, and then I'll leave a note for him and go with you!"

Leavit took off his black derby hat and put it down beside the clock on the bookcase. The living room was so small that, when he did that, he could sit down in a chair beside the center table without taking another step. He did so, moving with a slowness that tortured her.

"What do you mean by a fair chance, Mayme?" he asked, looking up to her standing on the other side of the table. "Ain't seven years a fair——"

"I mean a fair chance to make it as easy for him as I can, to get away so it will hurt him as little as possible!" she interrupted, through her clenched teeth. "He'll be here in three minutes now. In three minutes or sooner! He——"

Leavit put up his hand. "Not so fast, Mayme! Not——"

"I'm not Mayme any more!" she corrected him. "I was Loula Bentley when he met me, out in Chicago, making my own living. His name's George Paxton. He's a bookkeeper. And we've been married four years. And he loves me. Loves me so! And I—O, my God, Mr. Leavit, I love him so it's going to kill me having to leave him this way and tell him I—I was on the books at headquarters for stealing! And I never stole a thing in my life. Not a thing! You, you who've hunted me for seven years, Mr. Leavit, you know I'm innocent! I——"

"But," Leavit objected, with a lift of his shoulders, "you were indicted for stealing, and you jumped your bond. You——"

She interrupted him again, coming around the table and taking hold of him, grasping his arm with both of her hands.

"I didn't do it!" she said fiercely, her utterance so hurried that she spoke in a hoarse whisper. "I didn't! I was living among crooks because I couldn't help it then, but I never did a crooked thing in all my life. I stayed straight. You know it! And you've got to give me a chance——"

He shook himself free of her grasp, showing his impatience.

"Why?" he demanded. "Why have I got to?"

The question infuriated her. She fought down an impulse to laugh in his face, to revile him.

She went back to her chair opposite his, and looked over his shoulder at the clock on the bookcase. Two minutes to six! Two minutes more! In a second she prayed out her whole heart wordlessly: "O, to be worthy of George! To make this easy for him!"

Her chest hurt her. Her tongue was sanded again, and thick. But she answered him without hesitation, pleading.

"Because you're a human being!" she said, leaning toward him, her weight on her clenched fists resting on the table. "And you've got a wife! And you've hunted me for seven years, and a few hours more won't matter to you, but they'll mean a little less of hell for me—and for my husband!"

She went back to him and, sinking to her knees, clasped his right shoulder. Her fingers dug into his muscles until they bruised him.

"I saved your life once, Mr. Leavit!" she said. "You remember that, don't you? I was sixteen years old then. 'Hump' Browning had it all framed to get you; and I got on to it; and I went to you and told you about it. Yes, you do remember it! You know you do! So I'm asking you now to pay me back for that—such a little pay! He'll be here in a few seconds! Just a chance to write him a note and explain and keep him from seeing a policeman lead me away! It isn't much. Just two hours and a half so I can ease this blow to the man who's built and furnished and kept up heaven for me. Do that for me, Mr. Leavit! Do——"

THEY heard footsteps in the corridor outside the flat. She clung to him, her fingers kneading his shoulder.

"He's coming!" she said in a whisper. "Just the two hours and a half! I'll tell him you're an old friend of mine, just dropped in, just found out where I was!" She shook him, staring with hot eyes into his.

"All right, Mayme," he growled quickly. "But no tricks; remember!" He caught her hand and made her feel, through his coat below the left arm, the outline of the automatic pistol slung there.

She got to her feet and, as she rose, put up a shaking hand to smooth back her disheveled hair. Her husband, who got away from work later than she, always left the latchkey to her. He was ringing the doorbell now.

She went to the door into the little hall and gave him her usual welcoming hail, "Coming, Georgie, pronto!"

Her wish to succeed in this desperate play was so intense that it hurt her like a burn. She thought, "I've had to do some good acting before; I can do it now." And at once her mind seized a greater measure of command over her body. She felt the tide of her blood thrust the pallor from her cheeks. The thickness went out of her tongue. By the time she got to the front door and opened it her hands were steady, her voice nearly normal. Only her breathing betrayed her; it was still fast from the pounding of her heart. He noticed it as she stood on her tiptoes and put up her face for his kiss.

"Why, you're——" he began, with a look of worry.

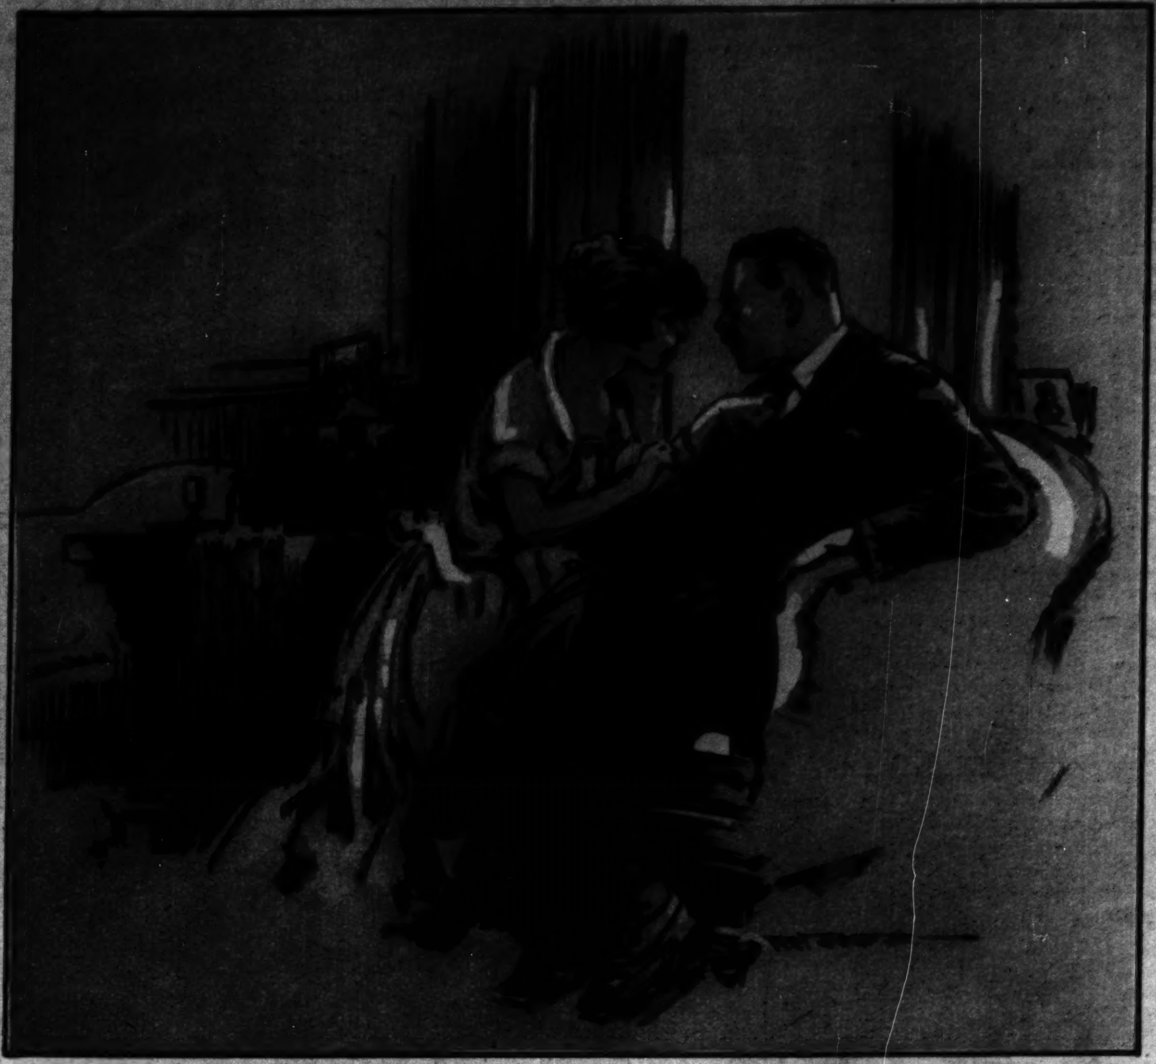
"Excitement!" she answered his unvoiced inquiry gayly, and stood aside, drawing his attention to the other end of the hall, where, she knew, the plain clothes man was standing watching her every move, listening for even a hint of treachery to her bargain with him. "Here's a surprise for you, George!"

She went forward with him a step or two, and introduced him. "This is the great and only husband, Steve!" she said, a proud playfulness in her tone. "And George, this is Steve Leavit, an old friend of mine, an old playfellow even when we were kids in Philadelphia."

Paxton put out his hand, with a warm smile. He was a pleasant faced fellow in his early thirties, slender and a little taller than the average. His paleness from constant indoor work, was in striking contrast to his black hair and eyes.

"I hadn't seen him for nearly eight years," she rattled on, preceding them into the living room. "He hadn't an idea I was in New York! Just happened to run plump into me on Thirty-third street!"

She found herself possessed of two intelligences. Her laughing chatter to the two men was a curtain behind which she flayed herself with the scourge of bitterness. Why, she asked herself contemptuously, had she been fool enough to believe that the affrontery of living under the New York authorities' noses would be her greatest protection? Why had she trusted to her white hair and a retired life to save her? In view of this catastrophe now, her folly made her frantic.



"I saved your life once, Mr. Leavit!" she said. "You remember that, don't you?"

Leavit played his part naturally. The gameness of the woman compelled his admiration. He caught himself wondering whether she would last it out or give him the job of carrying her off in screaming hysterics.

But he watched both her and Paxton with incessant keenness; and once his alertness was rewarded. Before she went back to the kitchen to finish her interrupted task of getting the dinner, he caught sight of their reflection in a mirror above the piano when they evidently believed themselves unobserved. Paxton, with lifted eyebrows, flashed her a look of inquiry and mock jealously, a move of his head indicating the visitor. Her reply to that was a moue, a mouth puckered as for a kiss, and widened, laughing eyes, all of which said as plainly as words could have done, "He's all right; and don't you dare to pretend even that you're jealous!" The intimate understanding in this byplay, the unqualified loyalty and devotion of each to the other expressed in their interchange of glance and smile, gave the detective a clear idea of how great their happiness must be. He was glad he had given her her chance.

HIS vigilance, however, did not relax. For seven years this woman, who had successfully defied his skill and the resources of the whole country's thief hunting machine, had never been entirely out of his mind. Her escape had been a blot on his record. Now she was under his hand at last, he proposed to give her no opportunity to get away a second time.

His surveillance, he knew, was flawless. During his entire stay in the flat, save for that one brief scene reflected in the mirror, she made no attempt to speak a word or make a sign unknown to Leavitt; and Paxton, reassured by her moue, devoted himself to making his wife's friend feel at home.

While she was in the kitchen, putting the chops and the two vegetables into dishes, she worked automatically, her mind busy with the unceasing resolve, "To be worthy of him in this! To make it easy for him!"

The men went together to the bathroom to "wash up."

When she called them into the little box of a dining-room, the meal was on the table. Throughout the dinner she led the talk, making it almost entirely a series of reminiscences of her early girlhood in Philadelphia, with frequent descriptions of persons and places that kept Paxton interested.

Leavit, saying little and maintaining his hawk-like scrutiny of them, noted their good comradeship. He saw, too, that her hand never once trembled. Her voice had a fresh and girlish note in it, an overtone faintly suggestive of bubbling laughter. Experienced as he was in the fears that come into human eyes, he could detect no shadow of anxiety, even in hers. The longer the thing lasted, the more he admired her.

Under her surface show of happy remembrance she was calculating desperately, "I've got to keep it up only till eight-thirty! Only till eight-thirty! If I can hold out that long! O, my God! If I only can!" At intervals which seemed to her ages long she allowed herself the painful luxury of a turn of her head and a glance into the living room to tell, by the clock on the bookcase, what time it was, how many minutes more of this heart breaking pretense she had to endure. Now and then she flexed the muscles of her arms and legs to throw off the clutch of a lethargy heavy as paralysis. The forced smiling made her lips stiff; they felt like cardboard. She was alternately flaming hot and freezing cold.

"Seven-thirty!" she thought, as they finished the pie which she had brought from the delicatessen on her way home. "Seven-thirty; and I've got to make the next play!"

She looked across the table at Paxton, and spoke in a tone of banter.

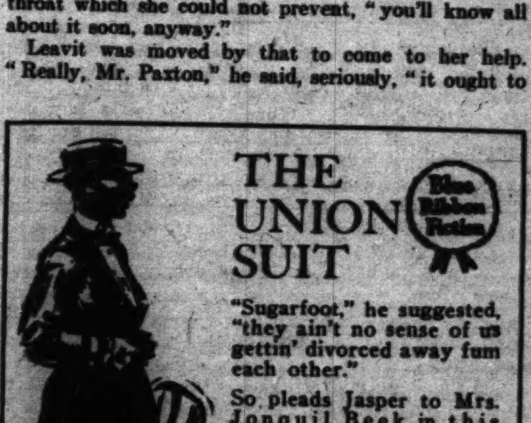
"George," she said, with a slant of her eye and a low laugh that made Leavit partner in the teasing, "here's where you get a pleasant surprise! I'm going to send you out to the movies now all by yourself! My meeting with Steve has brought up something I want to talk over with him."

Paxton gave Leavit a swift, keen glance before he looked at her, a flush stealing into his cheeks. He laughed, like a man embarrassed.

"Talk over what?" he asked her.

"O, be a good sport!" she said, urgency sounding through her levity. "Be a sport, and get out for the evening. All joking aside, this may bring us some profit. And," she concluded with a slight catch in her throat which she could not prevent, "you'll know all about it soon, anyway."

Leavit was moved by that to come to her help. "Really, Mr. Paxton," he said, seriously, "it ought to do you good, and me too. You'll see later why I wanted to talk about it first with only your wife."



THE UNION SUIT

PAXTON hesitated, undecided. She had an agonizing longing to catch him by the throat, to shake him into speech, to shout, "Yes! Yes! Yes!" to throw off all this terrible burden of fear and caution.

"O, George," she said sharply, "don't be silly! Have you forgotten I know as much about business as you do?"

To Leavit's surprise, Paxton did not answer that at once, but sat looking down at the tablecolth, the line of a frown deepening between his eyebrows. The detective saw that, in this pause, Mrs. Paxton's lower lip hung a little away from her teeth, that her eyelids lifted and fell rapidly.

She was thinking: "Why doesn't he say yes and go out of here? I can't stand it! I've got to stand it! Nearly an hour more! One hour!" She prayed with an intensity which, she thought, would lift her husband out of his chair.

Paxton recovered himself handsomely. "I beg your pardon, both of you!" he said with a start from his abstraction. "I had made another appointment for this evening, for both of us—but I can arrange it." He turned to Leavit with a smile. "It's a meeting with a fellow and his wife that might mean a little money for me. But, before I go, have a cigaret."

Leavit heard the long, quivering sigh with which the woman welcomed her husband's decision. She thought, "The worst is over now!" But with even that small degree of relaxation the white patches danced before her eyes again; the faintness, as from extreme heat, was upon her in waves. She had to brace herself, like a man setting himself to resist a rush of superior numbers.

"Yes; thanks," Leavit said, accepting the cigaret.

Mrs. Paxton led the way into the living room. She made no move to follow her husband into the hall, where, on coming in, he had hung up his coat and hat. Without the strength to carry on a conversation during these, the crucial moments of her loving deception, she heard him shuffle his feet while getting into his heavy coat and then, with quick, even stride, go down the hall to the corridor door. Leavit, in his chair by the center table, was watching her, the everlasting wariness in his face.

When the door slammed, she sprang out of her chair as if propelled by an outside and irresistible force. Her movement was so unexpected and violent that Leavit started half from his seat to put a hand on her shoulder.

She smiled at him pitifully, drooping against the table. Her face was crimson, her eyeballs suffused with blood, her lips abnormally red and full.

"Nervous!" she explained, her voice thin and weak. "It's been terrible, Mr. Leavit!"

"I guess it was," he said, "but——"

"I'm burning up!" she complained, moistening her thickened lips with the end of her tongue. "Burning up! But I did get away with it, didn't I?" she asked him, a pathetic pride in her voice. "Didn't I do all right?"

"Yes; you've got nerve all right," he said. "But your time's up now. Let's go."

He made a move to push his chair back.

She went with slow, tottering step from the table to the little desk in the corner on his left.

"No," she begged; "not yet! You said you'd give me a fair chance, a chance to make it as easy for him as I could! Don't spoil it, Mr. Leavit. Let me write him the note explaining. Just a short note! You wouldn't be so rude to——"

"All right," he stopped her, his impatience growing. "But don't be long! There ain't much etiquette in arresting people."

SHE sat down at the desk and picked up a pen. Tears were in her eyes at last. They welled over, falling down her cheeks. She made him uneasy. Going on like that, she might lose her self-control any minute!

"Oh-h!" she wailed, and, dropping her voice, appealed to Leavit. "What can I say to him? How is a woman to tell her husband that she's gone, gone for

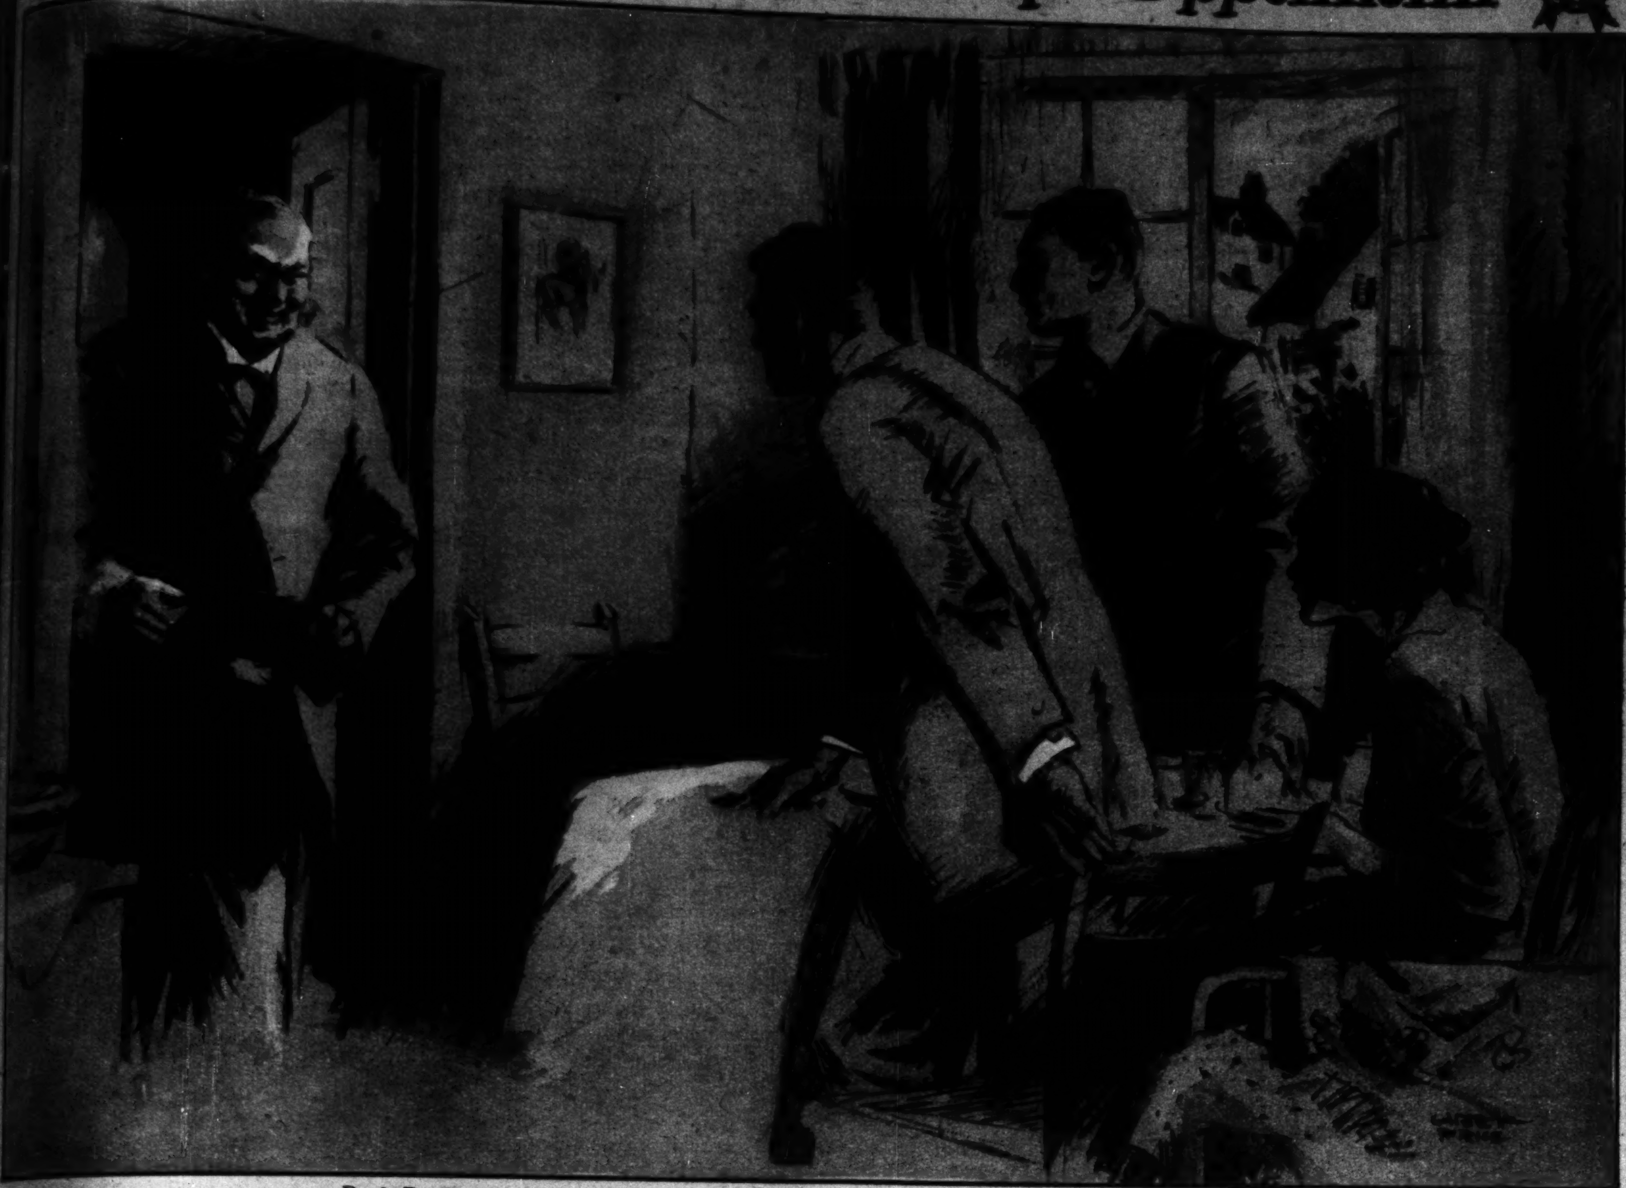
The Golden Beast by E. Phillips Oppenheim



Both Reuben and Samuel had risen to their feet and were staring at the newcomer.

What Has Gone Before.

CECIL FERNHAM, son of Israel, the first Lord Honerton, seduces Margaret Heggs, daughter of the Fernham gamekeeper. Chastising Cecil, old Heggs hurls him to the stone floor and kills him. Through Lord Honerton's vast influence, Heggs is hanged. Margaret curses all the Fernhams. Thirty years later Ernest, youngest son of Joseph Fernham, the second Lord Honerton, disappears. Ernest's beautiful sister, Judith, becomes engaged to Lord Freddie Amberleys. Judith meets Sir Lawrence Paule, the brilliant but mysterious young chief chemist at the great Fernham patent medicine works. Paule later provides drugs for old Samuel Fernham, brother of Lord Honerton, and for Samuel's dissolute son, Samuel Jr. After a dose of Paule's drug, young Samuel also vanishes mysteriously after he has become engaged to Lady Joyce Cloughton.

Paule invents a new nerve tonic, Neurota, which makes a fortune for him and for the Fernhams. At the works Paule has a private suite, from which even the owners are barred. Peeking into his secret chamber there, Lady Judith faints. The room is lined with skeletons, which Paule says he uses in his research work. Judith at last pierces Paule's odd reserve, and he kisses her. That night she breaks her engagment to Amberleys.

Joseph Fernham then disappears, just as had Ernest and young Samuel. Meantime Inspector Rodes of Scotland Yard, after inspecting a picture of old Israel Fernham in his youth, traces a likeness between Israel and Lawrence Paule, and discovers Paule is the child of Margaret Heggs. Before Judith Paule admits his ancestry, but defies Rodes to prove he is connected with the disappearance of the three Fernhams.

The story shifts to Reuben Klask, a small dealer in herb medicines in a poor quarter near London. Reuben had come to the section a year before, with no memories of his past life. He is married now to Bessie Pank, a factory girl, who met him first when she shielded him from an attack by a gang of bullies. They have a baby. Reuben's herb business is growing steadily when into his shop walks Samuel, whom Reuban recognizes as his cousin. Samuel calls him Ernest and puts up two hundred pounds for a share in the herb business. Samuel's mind, too, is a blank concerning his past life.

INSTALLMENT XII.

The Man Responsible.

IT was Samuel who, one morning some months later, undid the padlock and threw open the door of the small factory. Reuben stood a few yards back, his hands in his pockets, studying with eager interest his new acquisition.

"A neat little place, Samuel," he pronounced, "and cheap. Just what we were looking for. Twenty pounds a year and rates and taxes nothing to speak of. We should make money here, Samuel."

They wandered over the two storied building, planning how to make the best use of it at the least expense. It had once been a small shoe factory and the wholesome smell of leather still haunted the place. They discussed eagerly the most economical way to make the necessary repairs. The painting of a wooden sign outside was a matter for serious consideration. Presently they locked up, passed down the entry, and into the street. A somewhat dilapidated looking Ford car with "Klask's Remedies" painted in white on either side of the bonnet, stood by the curbstone. They mounted and drove off. Samuel took the wheel, and Reuben leaned back with an air of enjoyment.

"Wonderful," he murmured, "just wonderful! When I think how my back ached with pushing that old bicycle. Samuel!"

"Yes, Reuben."

"Push back the throttle a little, so! We use less petrol than in the city. We don't need to go fast, Samuel. Bessie ain't expecting us till seven o'clock."

They made their way along the narrow crowded streets, past the cobbled by-ways down to the river, and on to an outlying part of the city, a suburb marked down by the speculative builder for defilement and abuse. There were rows of houses in process of construction, each with a small patch of garden; houses all exactly the same, with white plaster walls and rustic porches, a tribute to the artistic yearnings of the garden suburb fanatic. The roads themselves were unfinished, barrels of mortar stood about and piles of bricks. In front of the house where Samuel presently brought the car to a standstill, however, everything was neat and clean. Grass seed had already been sown by the side of the tiled path, and in the window facing the street was a row of bottles, each bearing the name of one of "Klask's Remedies." There was a name plate upon the gate, another in the window. It was impossible for any one to go by without knowing that this was the home of Mr. Reuben Klask. No ordinary home, either; a carpet even in the hall, a carpet in the front room, a carpet in the back one.

There was a gramophone, too, framed oleographs upon the wall, a case of stuffed canaries upon the sideboard, and a suite of furniture fresh from the factory, very new and shiny, the padded seats of which, without the closest inspection, might well have passed for leather. It was all highly polished to the point of stickiness, without a speck of dust anywhere. Reuben looked around with an air of delight, almost of reverence. Then he closed the door, and the two young men made their way into the back room where Bessie was laying the cloth.

"If you two didn't give me a start!" she exclaimed. "What's the news, Reuben?"

"They've accepted," he declared. "We've got the factory. We've been to order some drugs in first thing in the morning, and maybe Samuel and I will spend a day manufacturing instead of selling."

"If you two aren't the lads!" Bessie cried, admiringly. "Why, we're wholesale now!"

"Wholesale and retail manufacturers of drugs," Samuel interposed. "'Klask's Famous Remedies' will soon be known the world over. Maybe we make them Fernhams in London take notice of us by and by."

"Where's the kid?" Reuben demanded.

"Upstairs and listening for you," his wife replied. "Go and fetch him down if you like while I dish up the supper. Samuel, your room ain't straight yet. If you want to wash, you'd better go in the back kitchen."

THE young men separated. Reuben, after an incoherent conversation with the fat and wholesome replica of himself, descended the stairs in triumph with the infant crowing upon his shoulder. Bessie, better looking now than in the days when she had worked at the clothing factory, took her place behind the tea tray, and, Reuben's attention still being distracted by his young charge, Samuel seated himself at the other end of the table and served the fish. They all talked a great deal and very fast, and they were all in a state of high good humor.

"Samuel," his cousin declared, "you'll have to get a girl. Maybe there ain't another like Bessie, but we'll try and find you one as near as can be."

"There's Dolly Higgins," Bessie murmured reflectively. "Her father's in the coal and green grocery half way down the hill. She's crazy to get married and I don't think she's a bad manager."

Reuben shook his head doubtfully.

"I don't think she's saving enough for Samuel," he said. "She'd want to be going to the pictures all day long. What a man wants," he went on earnestly, "is a wife who understands what money means. The worst of women as a rule is that they love to spend money. I hate to spend it even when I got to."

"So do I," Samuel echoed.

"Money was meant to keep and make more money," Reuben continued. "When you have to buy anything, then you ought to buy it so cheap that you can always get the money back for it when you want to. Hold up your finger a minute, Bessie."

Bessie obeyed, and Reuben looked ecstatically at the gem which glistened upon her finger.

"Fourteen pounds five I gave for that," he announced. "Fourteen pounds five, a hot brandy, and water, and glass of beer is just what it cost. It's worth forty pounds if it's worth a penny. That's the way to spend money, Samuel, if you must spend it."

"It isn't all of us has your opportunities," Samuel complained.

"You can all make them," Reuben insisted. "To buy cheap is as easy as to buy dear."

"I wonder whether Mollie Bentley would do for Samuel?" Bessie suggested. "Her father, maybe, hasn't got as much money as Mr. Higgins, but she's real careful and she's looking for a steady chap to keep company with."

Samuel laid down his knife and fork. Up to then he had been too busy to join whole heartedly in the conversation.

"I don't want a girl at all," he pronounced. "They're nothing but an expense to take round and I'm not for marrying."

"That don't seem natural to me," Bessie objected. "A young fellow like you, Samuel, ought to be thinking about it."

"You want a family, don't you?" Reuben put in. "There ain't anything in life like seeing plenty of them round the table. That's what I tell Bessie and get my ears boxed for it."

"And serve you right, too," the young woman retorted, "with your brazen talk."

Samuel was looking thoughtful. There was an expression in his face which had more than once puzzled his cousin's wife.

"It seems to me," he said slowly, "I've a kind of feeling as though I'd got a girl somewhere."

"For land's sake!" Bessie exclaimed. "Perhaps you're married."

"No, I ain't married," Samuel replied confidently. "All the same I got a girl somewhere. Seems to have passed out of my memory where she is just now, but I got the feeling just the same. I shall just wait. She'll come along some day."

"It do seem to me as though you two were crazy sometimes," Bessie declared, replenishing the teapot. "It's a good thing for you both I ain't a curious person, for two more mystical young men about your early days I never met with. Why, we've been married now goodness knows how long, and Reuben hasn't as much as told me where he was brought up! Might have dropped from the skies into Norwich, or been let down in one of them airplanes. And now there's you, Samuel, very nearly the same. It's a skeery business!"

Reuben leaned over and patted her hand. There was a quality of earnestness in his face which made him almost good looking.

"That doesn't need to worry you, Bess, old girl," he assured her. "The great thing is that you and me are husband and wife. We've got the youngster to start with, and if I'm a bit hazy about my folk we'll soon have a family of our own. Aye, and a fortune, too!"

"If he isn't off again!" Bessie laughed. "Why, who's this?" she went on. "That don't seem right for any one to be walking in on us so casual."

THE front door had been opened and closed. There were steps in the passage. The door of the room was opened. Joseph stood on the threshold, looking in upon them.

"Good-evening, Ernest; good-evening, Samuel," he said. "I thought I should find you here."

There was a moment's awed and rather wonderful silence. Both Reuben and Samuel had risen to their feet and were staring at the newcomer. There was no surprise in their faces, only a curious anticipatory interest. Bessie, on the other hand, was frankly bewildered.

"It's dad," Reuben exclaimed softly.

"It's Uncle Joseph," Samuel echoed.

"Your child, Ernest?" Joseph asked eagerly, making his way round to the other side of the room and bending over the bassinet.

"Mine," Reuben assented. "My wife Bessie, dad—the best in the world."

Joseph handled the baby for a moment affectionately, and the child responded to his advances with spirit. Then he replaced it gently in its bassinet, turned to Bessie, and kissed her on the forehead.

"Well, well," he murmured. "I'll take a cup of tea, my dear, and a plate of fish, Ernest, if you've got it to spare."

"His name's 'Reuben,'" Bessie protested wonderingly. "Why do you all call him 'Ernest'? Samuel did when he first came."

"'Reuben Ernest' he was christened, my dear," his father explained. "We didn't care so much for 'Reuben' as he grew up, so we generally called him 'Ernest.' 'Klask' was my name a long time ago—a very long time. I changed it. I really don't remember why. This is good fish, Reuben, and well cooked, daughter-in-law."

She was trembling a little—as well she might. This middle aged man, with his quiet manners and general air of having slipped so naturally into the place, baffled her completely. Reuben had sometimes seemed to her a mystery; Samuel and his coming had often perplexed her; but this was the most amazing happening of all. Nevertheless, she remembered her first duties. She made his tea carefully and cut him bread and butter.

"Have you come far?" she asked.

"My dear," he confided, "I don't know. To tell you the truth, I'm in a curious position. I was somewhere—perhaps it was in London—when I suddenly felt I must find Ernest. Now we're all three here together—Samuel, too. Capital! We might start some business. I've brought money with me, Ernest."

"Thank heavens you all bring a bit!" Bessie gasped. "But I wonder how many more there are of you?"

"Yes, quite a little money," Joseph continued, eating his fish all the time with appetite.

"Dad," Reuben intervened abruptly, "there's some one I want to ask about. It doesn't quite come back to me. It hurts because I want to know."

"Your mother, of course," Joseph declared, skillfully filleting his last piece of fish. "Your mother and Judith. Your mother has been ill, Reuben. She troubles a great deal for you. Judith, too, is troubled. But what can one do? There they are and here we are."

"Why can't they come and see Reuben, or why can't he go and see them?" Bessie demanded. "Of all the mystical creatures!"

JOSEPH looked at her with a blank expression. Reuben shook his head as though she had asked an absurd question.

"They're over on the other side, my dear," Joseph explained kindly. "Perhaps we shall be able to let them know some day. It doesn't depend upon us. Or they may come, too. We never know."

Bessie glanced from one to the other of them.

"You talk of yourselves as though you were ghosts!" she exclaimed. "I should be properly scared, only I don't reckon that ghosts could eat fried fish."

"Ghosts?" Reuben repeated vaguely.

"Now, what does she mean by that?" Samuel asked.

Joseph, who had finished his fish, helped himself to another piece of bread and butter. He stirred his tea noisily and drank it. Then he leaned over and patted Bessie's hand.

"You're a very nice girl, Bessie," he said. "I like it that my son should have married you, and you have brought him a beautiful baby. I think we shall all be very happy together."

Bessie returned the grasp of his fingers a little tremulously.

"I like you, too," she confided. "I have always been ready to welcome Reuben's father. I should like to know his mother, too. Why doesn't she come?"

Joseph smiled at her quite kindly. Then he pointed out of the window. Below, in the valley, the lights of the city spread up the hillside. Above was an early star.

"You know what keeps that star in its place?" he asked.

Bessie shook her head. Her father-in-law smiled triumphantly.

"We none of us know," he declared with the air of one who has finished the argument.

THE vagueness had entirely departed from Joseph's manner on the following morning when he had studied the list of 'Klask's Remedies,' admired the Ford motor car, been conducted to the newly acquired factory, and been allowed a cursory examination of Reuben's much prized ledger.

"We make a little business together, what?" he suggested—"me and you two boys?"

They were seated on cases in the, as yet, unfurnished office. Reuben coughed. Samuel stroked his stubbly moustache.

"That's all right, dad," Rueben declared. "We'll make use of you very likely. Samuel and I, we've got some money in this."

"And why not, indeed?" Joseph exclaimed. "You two boys don't think I'd propose coming in with you unless I brought my share, do you? I've got money, too," he went on, tapping the place where his pocket book obviously reposed—"a little money, that is to say," he added hastily. "As much as you lads very likely."

"That makes it easier," Reuben acknowledged.

"Makes the thing sound better to me," Samuel echoed.

"You see, dad," Reuben continued, "relatives are relatives and all that, but business is business. I started this first—made up small bottles in a four roomed cottage down in the city, and took them out to sell on a bicycle with a wicker trailer behind. Then I married Bessie and she had money. We spread a little, made more money. Then Samuel arrives. He brings money. Samuel has worked very hard. We make good profits. The business is good."

"I can make it better," Joseph assured them. "There was never any one knew how to sell medicines better than I did—and as for money—well, let's hear about it. What have you boys got?"

"Samuel brought two hundred pounds," Reuben confided, "and I reckon that his share of the profits up to date comes to close on another hundred. You might put Samuel down at three hundred."

Joseph stroked his chin meditatively.

"What's his share of the profits and how much does he draw a week?" he asked.

"He gets a third and he draws two pounds a week, out of which he pays Bessie thirty shillings for board and lodging," was the prompt reply.

"And what about you, Reuben?" his father inquired.

"My own capital was two hundred," Reuben explained, "but as well as that I put two hundred of Bessie's in. That's four hundred, and I got my two-thirds of the profits to add to that. How much money have you got, dad?"

Joseph smiled confidently.

"I got five hundred pounds," he announced. "I'll put that in with you other boys and we all go together, eh? You keep me at home, Reuben, and I draw one pound a week."

"And me ten shillings!" Samuel protested loudly. "Not likely!"

Reuben shook his head.

"You've forgotten the good will, dad," he pointed out. "I worked like a slave to start this business. After me comes Samuel, and he works, too. He gets a small share in the good will, but I got a bigger. You haven't any."

Joseph was a little staggered.

"Ain't I to stand in a third?" he asked.

"Not likely," Samuel objected once more.

"Seems to me a quarter would be fairer," Reuben propounded.

JOSEPH looked thoughtfully out of the dust-begrimed window into the untidy yard. There was something wrong about this somewhere, some things he ought to be able to say, some things from the past of which he ought to be able to remind Reuben, but they were gone. There was that black pool which remained just behind, and a lot of things down at the bottom of it. Reuben was a little hard. Had he been like that when he was young? Still, it was the principle he had taught them. Every man must look after himself. It was the principle upon which even he had been acting. He patted the roll of notes in his breast coat pocket.

"Maybe I make it six hundred and fifty," he announced with a sigh.

"What, you got more than that five hundred, dad!" Reuben exclaimed.

"Cheese it, uncle!" Samuel cried. "Trying to come it over us!"

Reuben glanced at his cousin, who coughed in an embarrassed manner and looked away.

"How much have you got, dad?" Reuben asked suavely.

Joseph produced his roll of notes.

"I got eight hundred pounds, less the price of a cup of coffee, a bun, and a fourpenny cigar," he confessed, spreading it upon the table. "You don't want to be too hard on me, you boys. I'm not so young as I was, and I like to keep a five pound note tucked away in case of a doctor being needed. You lads have got health. Seems to me I've seen you when you didn't look near so well, somewhere. I get giddy fits, and I empty feeling at the back of my head."

Joseph considered these statements cautiously.

"Don't you want to work at all, dad?" he asked. "With that bit of money you could stay with us quite a long time. There's a strip of garden to look after, and Bessie'd be glad of some one to take the baby for a walk now and then."

Joseph was silent for quite a long time. Reuben laid his hand upon his shoulder.

"Sorry, dad," he apologized. "What's the good of talking sick? You're as strong and well as [illegible]

"I'm agreeable to let the old man have his third," Samuel conceded. "After all, it's in the family."

"A third it shall be," Reuben pronounced. "We'll go down to the bank now, and afterwards we'll buy some wood cheap—I know where there's a factory being broken up, and we'll get this place into shape quickly. Then we'll plan our rounds. We'll make some money here, dad. You watch our banking account. We none of us ain't going to spend. You watch."

Joseph passed his hand across his forehead. He was smiling amiably, but he looked worried.

"All the while," he murmured, "I keep thinking it's the second time. Ain't it queer, lads?"

[illegible] out a little later than the usual hour when the evening meal was served at the house of Klask. Nevertheless, at the newcomer's [illegible], the youngest member of the family reclined in his basket and contemplated the proceedings with a mildly tempered interest. The three men were tired but cheerful. Bessie flushed with leaning over the fire, was still as neat and attractive as ever. She smoothed back her abundant hair and drew the teapot towards her. Joseph stretched out his hand.

"Wait," he enjoined. "You got any wine glasses?"

"There's five belonged to my aunt in that cupboard there," Bessie replied.

Joseph stooped down, and from between his feet lifted up a black bottle which he placed upon the table.

"Port," he announced reverently. "Bought it at the best wine shop in the city. Fetch the glasses, Bessie."

His daughter-in-law obeyed promptly, Reuben produced a corkscrew, whilst Samuel eyed the bottle with an air of keen anticipation. There was, nevertheless, a slight atmosphere of gravity engendered by this reckless proceeding.

"You boys don't need to worry," Joseph assured them as he filled the glasses. "I bought this out of that five pound note you let me keep. I ain't going to be sick on this day, when we all start in business together; I got a new daughter and a new grandchild there—why, it's a great day! You don't need to fear, Reuben, that I'm extravagant. This is the first and last time, and I got a gold watch and a diamond ring we ain't said anything about yet—maybe the ring will be Bessie's some day—until the kids grow up."

Reuben's face cleared.

"That's all right, dad," he assented as he stretched out his hand for his glass of wine. "I tell you what, Bessie, if you just put that tea into a bottle and cork it up tight, it will do for breakfast just as though it had never been made."

Bessie accepted the suggestion good humoredly.

"You don't suppose I was going to waste that, Reuben Klask, I hope," she observed.

Joseph raised his glass. He looked at them all, but longest at the infant, who had turned over in his cradle and was apparently taking an absorbed interest in the proceedings.

"To 'Klask's Remedies,'" he proposed. "May we make money!"

Joseph, appointed orator for the day, paused for breath, to remove his hat and wipe the perspiration from his forehead. As usual the stallholders were almost in a state of revolt. Practically every lounger and most of the purchasers in the Fakenham weekly market were gathered around the Ford car, from the back of which Joseph was addressing the crowd. In the intervals of his eloquence Samuel and Reuben were fully occupied in dealing with a line of customers on either side. Presently the oracle recommenced.

"I want you all to understand this," Joseph proceeded. "I want you to get it right here," he added, tapping his forehead. "I am anxious to make my living and to help my son and nephew make their livings, but, believe me, there's more than that to it. Ancestors of mine have sold medicines—sold them to the rich and given them to the poor—since the days when we Jews lived in Palestine. We make a living by it and a pretty good one, but we sell you good medicines and we sell you medicines which do what we claim for them.

"Why, I could cover the sides of this car with testimonials received in one morning from people who've been rheumaticky all their life and who've thrown away their sticks now and given thanks to the Lord and 'Klask's Remedies.' It ain't miracles we work, but it's something like it. We've kept the secret in our family of how to mix these things and there ain't anybody else can do it just like we do. Is there any one here with corns? Speak to my son Reuben there, and you need never have another. Any one with a bilious attack? Well, we'll keep you free from biliousness for a month. Have you got any form of nerve trouble? We're handling a little preparation behind which beats all the phospherine which was ever made—something which will make a new man of you. Tell us what's the matter with you. Stick to us and we'll cure it. We ain't hucksters. We've been medicine men since the days of the Old Testament and we're proud of it."

A quaint figure Joseph was in the spring sunlight as, for a moment, he lifted his hat—a silk hat, not too elderly, yet which had lost its first glossiness. His untrimmed beard gave him an almost patriarchal appearance; his cheeks sagged no longer; he was thinner by a couple of stone. His pause was the signal for a rush toward the car. He stood there as though enjoying the motley scene, the gray market place, the two comfortable hotels, with their line of carts drawn up in front of each, the market women with their piles of produce, the little county court headquarters with its flagged court and old houses around, almost like some miniature close.

AND just at that moment a great touring car turned the corner and swung into the London road. Joseph stood there still, a gentle smile upon his lips, one hand stroking his beard, the other holding his hat. Across the little crowd of people Judith looked at him from the car—looked with eager and penetrating eyes, as though seeking to solve the meaning of some startling allegory. She leaned forward in her seat. The last glimpse she caught as the car turned the corner out of the square was of the two young men dispensing their bottles on either side and of an elderly huckster of pleasing appearance, who strongly resembled Joseph Fernham, second Baron Honerton, smiling vaguely across the sunlit space.

"You saw something that interested you?" Paule asked politely.

"I suppose you think I am still imaginative," she answered. "I thought that I saw a vision—a quaint vision, too, in this old market place."

He held her hands under the wrap. Somehow or other the firm touch of his fingers checked that passionate desire to bid the car stop, to turn round and listen to the old man selling his medicines. She leaned back once more in her place.

"You will laugh at me more than ever when I tell you," she continued. "The old man there and the two young men in the car—they seemed to me like what I have heard of my grandfather and my father when they started selling drugs forty years ago. They were nothing but hucksters, you know—they started like that, although it was with packs on their backs instead of even a Ford motor car."

He nodded. There was a quiet smile upon his lips.

"The allegories of life are full of humor," he declared. "Those three, the father and two sons, probably, are striving to amass what you today have made up your mind to dissipate."

"You think I am right?" she asked.

"For your greater ease of body and mind, without a doubt," he assured her. "The Socialists will gibe. It isn't what they want. What does it matter? They don't really count."

"You, at any rate, will keep your word," she murmured.

"I shall keep my word," he promised.

They sped on between flower starred hedges and hedgerows, past the meadows ripe for the hum of the reaping machine, across a network of streams fringed with marigolds, on to the opener country, the land of gorse and heather, where flowers were few, but the pines shook out their odor in the west wind. They paused for luncheon—a picnic meal—by the side of the road between Newmarket and Royston, in a spot near some village garden where the bees droned and a painted lady flew out from amongst the butterflies. Their chauffeur brought a bunch of wallflowers from the cottage where he asked for some water, and Judith carried them with her to London. As they drew near the outskirts of the city and approached the suburb where the great works were situated, Judith showed her first sign of nervousness.

"You're coming to see me through it," she reminded him.

"I am coming," he assented. "You know I cannot stay long. I must catch the boat train to Paris."

"And after Paris?" she murmured.

He made no immediate reply. It was not until they reached the great entrance gates to the huge plot of land on which the factory stood that he spoke again. His tone amazed her. It seemed to her, thirsting so long for something of the sort from him during the last few days, exquisitely human, full of the promise of all that she desired in life.

"After Paris, I set myself to keep my word to you, dear Judith," he announced. "If I fail, there will be grave things upon my head. If I fail, we shall probably not meet again."

She laughed joyously.

"If you fail!" she repeated, with the supreme confidence of the woman who believes.

IT was a specially summoned conference in the great board room of the works, to which they had come. Samuel was there, frail and dumb, but gently acquiescent, two members of a famous firm of accountants, the representative of a bank, together with the usual heads of departments, managers, and sub-managers. With all these people present, it was Judith who spoke. She stood by Samuel's side, her slender white fingers resting for a moment upon his shoulder, marvelously at her ease, without the least throb of nervousness in her voice. There was not the slightest air of any preparation; her tone was entirely conversational.

"I want to tell you all," she began, "that Mr. Samuel Fernham—my Uncle Samuel—and I, who at the present time seem to have become the sole representatives of the firm, have decided to wind up this business. When I told my friend Mr. Lumsden here," she went on, glancing toward the accountant, "that we wished to wipe our hands of it for ever and ever and take our chance of being scolded if what we still ventured to hope should take place, he laughed at me. He wanted us to turn it into a company. He assured me we could get five millions for the business as a going concern, and that this was the proper thing to do. If the business is worth five millions, we do not want the money. It belongs to you who have helped with those others to make it what it is."

There was a moment's spellbound silence. Then Judith continued.

"Of course, I haven't any head for details and I shall not attempt to offer them to you. Mr. Lumsden has drawn up the scheme. Every brick and stone of this place, every ounce of drugs and every penny of book debts, belongs to you all in proportion to your length of service. We Fernhams have all the money we need or ought to have. Mr. Lumsden tells me that there is a balance of assets over liabilities of nearly a million and a half, which he says will easily be sufficient working capital. There is a gentleman from the bank here who will assure you that any more capital you need will be yours. I wish you all prosperity. You are, every one of you, going to be better off by a great deal when you leave this room. I am glad of it. It is very, very much better that two thousand of you should be better off in various degrees than that any more money should come to my Uncle Samuel, to me, or to those others who are not here. The business is a present to you from us all. Work for it, do your best for it, but try to remember if you can what some of us have forgotten; that the money you make and the wealth which grows is worth having, not for itself, but for what it brings you. Of course, that is very trite, but most true things are trite, and the truer they are the more likely we are to forget them. And now Mr. Lumsden is going to explain the scheme to you."

There had been rumors of something sensational, but Judith's offer was so amazing that, for the most part, every one was stunned. The accountant wisely began to deal with the figures almost at once, and Judith slipped away. Paule followed her.

"The newspapers the day after tomorrow should explain everything to you," he told her, as they stood for a moment in the circular hall outside the conference chamber. "I shall follow them within twenty-four hours."

"You are very serious," she said, clinging for a moment to his arm, as he walked with her to the entrance.

"I have meddled with a serious affair," he confessed.

"I shall be anxious until the time comes."

He watched her drive off, and went back to his where Futoy was packing his clothes for Paris.

"I go with you, master?" he asked.

"You go with me," Paule assented. "I may you. Telephone for a taxi."

At Victoria they had a quarter of an hour to Paule was on his way to the barrier when he touch on his arm—a touch, light but stiffened with apprehension as he turned slowly. It was the one dreaded eventuality—the dredth chance. Nevertheless he remained unmoved.

"Can I have a few words with you, Sir Lawrence" Rodes asked.

"Have you a warrant this time?" was the joinder.

"Nothing," Rodes confessed. "I am in a however——"

Paule stopped him and pointed to the clock.

"I must go to Paris by this train," he insisted. morrow I have to speak at a world congress tists. You may have heard of it—the greatest which has ever been held in Europe. When I have what I have to say, all those things which you understand at present will be made clear to you. —if you interfere now you will do incalculable everybody concerned. Travel down with me to stone and hear my proposition."

"There's a twenty thousand pound reward," said thoughtfully, "and I know the man who is sible for their absence."

"I give you my word of honor," Paule "that you shall earn that twenty thousand within ten days."

"I will travel with you to Folkestone," decided.

THE FAIR CHANCE . . . . By James Hay Jr.

ever, for years, to jail, to the penitentiary on framed up evidence? How can I——"

She was halted by a stentorian command, sharp as the crack of a whip.

"Put your hands up, Leavit!" ordered her husband, at whom she was gazing now over Leavit's head, her bloodshot eyes big with bewilderment.

Leavit, wheeling in his chair to face the hall door in which Paxton stood, reached at the same moment toward the pistol under his coat.

"Stop it, or I'll shoot!" Paxton said, in a clipped, tense voice. "And put your hands up! And you, Loula; don't you move!"

Leavit, having seen Paxton's revolver, obeyed and sat motionless. Paxton came into the room and stood beside his wife.

Leavit, watching her now with an acuteness surpassing his previous shrewd intentness, noted that she, absorbed in her husband's movements, was in reality utterly surprised. Employing to the utmost all his genius for observation, he saw, in the next moment, suspicion born in her eyes, and on top of that came her fear. Not the same sort of fear with which she had recognized him at the door two hours and a half ago. This was a bitterer fear, a more devastating thing. He saw that it crushed her; her chest sank in; her shoulders came closer together; and an artery in her neck, as she held her head back to watch her husband's face, throbbed as if to beat down its walls.

Thought travels fast in a moment like that. The detective, clearly realizing his own helplessness, was able also to follow the woman's feelings. They were, he perceived, a troop of torture. She realized, he saw, that she had endangered her husband's trust in her by mercifully trying to hide her past from him; she was horribly afraid that he was convinced of her guilt.

But what guilt? Leavitt saw her eyelids flutter wider to the shock of that speculation, saw even that she asked herself, in her lightninglike analysis of this new thunderbolt fallen upon her, whether Paxton, groping in the dark of suspicion and ignorance, had not tried her unheard and doomed her to punishment for a crime worse than that for which she had been indicted.

After Paxton's command, she was the first to speak.

"No!" she said in a half choked voice. "Not that, George! You've got it wrong! I'll tell you exactly—Mr. Leavit will say I'm telling the truth."

"Be quiet," Paxton interrupted her, keeping his glance always on Leavit. "Keep quiet, Loula," he repeated, without harshness.

"NOW, sir!" he said to Leavit. "There won't be much etiquette to this, either!" He addressed his wife again. "Loula, take that pistol away from him and give it to me."

She did so with trembling fingers, putting the gun into Paxton's left hand. She sank slowly into the chair nearest him, her eyes never leaving his face. Leavit could see that he, himself, meant little to her now; that bewilderment and fear of her husband were equally lively in her expression. It was as if she wept aloud, "How will this man whom I have deceived punish me?"

Paxton spoke to Leavit. His voice, pitched low and tense, carried a deadly and unqualified menace.

"I could have killed you just now and got away with it," he said, "the moment I heard you identify yourself as a copper about to arrest my wife. You see, this gun's got a silencer on it. But I heard her say just now that you'd promised her a fair chance. That stopped me long enough to find out what it meant. Loula, what was it?"

"It was this way," she explained breathlessly, without a glance at Leavit. "He was going to take me to the station house before you came in, but I knew it would break your heart to see me arrested, and I asked him to give me a chance to write you a note explaining, to make it as easy as possible for you, darlin'. We would have met you on the stairs if we had gone out then. And he did just what I asked. He was fine, George; just fine! And I've never stolen a cent in all my life!"

"I see," Paxton resumed, ignoring her disclaimer. "Now, then, Mr. Leavit, I'm going to give you a fair chance in return for that. If you take it, all right. If you don't, I'll kill you where you sit, as sure as the sun rises."

His manner displayed an inevitabiltiy that was unmistakable. There was no bluff in him. Leavit, looking up into his eyes, knew that he would do what he said.

"Put your hands down if you want to," Paxton suggested. "Now, to let you understand what this fair chance means, I'm going to explain things to you. Unknown to my wife, I've known for five years that she was a fugitive from justice and indicted for theft."

Leavit, with a swift side glance at her, saw her lips fall open and her left hand go to her heart, as if to crush down its leaping pulse. A great wonder was upon her. She might as well have cried out, "How much more splendid is this man than I have ever suspected!"

"But that," Paxton was saying, "didn't mean anything to me, because I knew her. She is a good woman. I know she wouldn't steal and has never stolen. She's my woman. She's my whole world and all my life, because, without her, the world wouldn't be worth fooling with. Do you get that? Understand what this woman, my woman, means to me and what I think of her?"

"Yes," Leavit replied curtly.

"Good," said Paxton. "Then you understand that I will do anything to save her. She's worth saving. She loves me. I am not low lived enough to hand her over to the law to make a disgraced, sorrowing, and broken thing of her when she's got every right under the blue sky to live out her life, happy, loved, and useful. It's my duty to save her. It's your duty," he said, contempt in his pronunciation of the word, "your duty to hand her over to ruin and wreckage.

"But before I'll stand for that," he added, through his set teeth, "I'll kill you. I will, so help me, God! Now, here's your fair chance. If my wife will say that you can be trusted to keep your promise, I'll let you walk out of here the moment you say you will never arrest her or tell anybody else who or where she is."

Keeping both gun and eye on Leavit, he asked his wife, "What do you say, Loula?"

LEAVIT did not look at her. For all the two of her, she was alone in the world, unprompted, guided. She tried to think and could not. vague feeling was thankfulness that her husband the upper hand. She found herself saying again and again, "Thank God! My dear Thank God!" The ticking of the clock was the sound in the room. The men were motionless,

After a long pause she managed to say aloud, and then with greater strength, "Yes, O, yes! on the level."

Leavit gave no sign of relief.

"All right, then," Paxton brought the thing climax. "What do you say, Leavit?"

The BUBBLE

by FREDERICK ARNOLD KUMMER

The Story of a Red Haired Flapper Who Knew Her Way About on Thin Ice

IN the hot July sun the beach at Westhampton gleamed like a huge old fashioned flower garden. Vivid parasols, billowy red umbrellas, sweaters, and bathing suits of incredible hues blossomed in the gayest confusion from the clubhouse steps to the edge of the surf. Betty Howell, shapely as a naiad in her close fitting suit of peacock blue, lay with her head pillowed on one arm, watching the antics of a group of bathers, who were performing feats of gymnastics on the hard wet sand with the lighthearted gayety of children.

"Amazing!" the man beside her exclaimed, propping himself up on his hands. "Positively amazing!"

"If you mean Stanley's recent attempt to turn a [illegible]," Betty laughed, "I call it pitiful."

"Stanley! Nonsense! I wasn't talking about your husband. It's that Griffith girl. Look at her."

Betty Howell sat up and allowed her gaze to dwell contemplatively upon the slim white figure with its mop of brilliant red hair that just then flashed into the surf. A breathless group followed, trying with varying degrees of success to duplicate its leader's [illegible] performances.

"She is wonderful," Betty smiled, as the girl stood on her head in the wash, her slender legs kicking [illegible] about in the air. "Her mother, you know, happens to be one of my oldest friends. I'm supposed to be chaperoning her."

"Sort of a family affair, it seems to me, with your husband doing all the honors."

Betty Howell gave a slow, lazy laugh.

"She'll do Stanley a world of good, my dear, provided she doesn't kill him outright first. He's been a changed man ever since he met her. I'm twenty-eight and therefore young enough to know better, but Stanley, poor dear, is forty and thinks he's as good as he was before Sallie Griffith was born. She's only eighteen, you know. Fancy his trying to travel her pace! Just look at him now—on the verge of apoplexy. Yoo-hoo! Stan! Here we are!" She waved a scarf.

Stanley Howell cast himself upon the sand beside them. He was breathing heavily.

"Wind's bad. Smoking too much," he growled. "Aren't you going in, Dean?"

"No. Not today. A bit off my feed, I'm afraid. I've been keeping Mrs. Howell out as well." He glanced at his companion's dry bathing suit.

"Betty doesn't care much for it," Mr. Howell remarked.

"O, yes, I do, Stan, if by 'it' you mean swimming. The acrobatic stunts I leave to you. When the kindergarten performances are over, let me know, and I'll [illegible] you all out to the life raft."

THE flashing legs of Miss Griffith approached in a whirlwind of sand.

"We're going to do a marathon to the lighthouse," she announced. "First prize, the handsome hand painted waffle iron. Are you on, Stanley?"

Mr. Howell rose. There was a suspicious weariness about his knees, but in his eyes shone the light of battle.

"Sure. Great idea. How about it, Betty? Coming?"

"No, thanks. I'll stay here and talk to Mr. Dean. He has a little restorative concealed somewhere about his person which you may need when you get back. So long." She waved a tantalizing hand. "Be careful of him, Sallie. He has a weak heart."

Mr. Howell growled an indignant denial, and they raced on. Herbert Dean gazed after them reflectively.

"You're taking chances, Betty," he observed, with an amused yet cynical smile.

"With his heart, you mean?"

"Precisely."

Betty sat up, yawned.

"So is he." She flashed her companion a provocative glance. "Still, I'm not really worried. Sallie Griffith is a dear. There's a blazing vitality about the girl that is bound to attract any man, but she doesn't make use of it—consciously. She's fine all through, in spite of her tomboy manners. It's just her way of letting off superfluous steam, I guess. I'm devoted to her, even if she does make Stanley swim a mile on a dare, or play three sets of tennis in the broiling sun. You see, her mother asked me to look after her, on this house party, and I feel a certain responsibility."

"So you turn her over to your husband, on the theory that he is harmless."

"Not at all. Stanley is by no means harmless. He's a man. But—I don't think Sallie quite a fool, and with her beauty, her charm, she isn't likely to get seriously excited over a married man of forty. Now, if it were you, for instance——"

"What superior attractions am I supposed to possess?"

"You are thirty-five, unmarried, and very well off—to say nothing of being an unusually charming person in other respects. I've wondered that you haven't made a play for the delectable Sallie yourself."

He groped for her fingers under the sand.

"Perhaps I find the charms of some one else more delectable," he murmured.

BETTY HOWELL did not withdraw her hand. She swept the long wet curve of the beach with an inscrutable smile.

"Stanley has remarked upon the fact," she said pointedly.

Mr. Dean removed his fingers at once.

"You mean he's actually jealous?"

She nodded, sprang to her feet.

"He says I'm flirting with you—outrageously."

"Isn't that merely a counter offensive, to cover up his own rather spectacular pursuit of Miss Griffith?"

Betty made a little moué of disappointment.

"Do you think so? I'd hoped we'd really made him jealous."

Mr. Dean got up rather stiffly, dusting the sand from his flannel trousers.

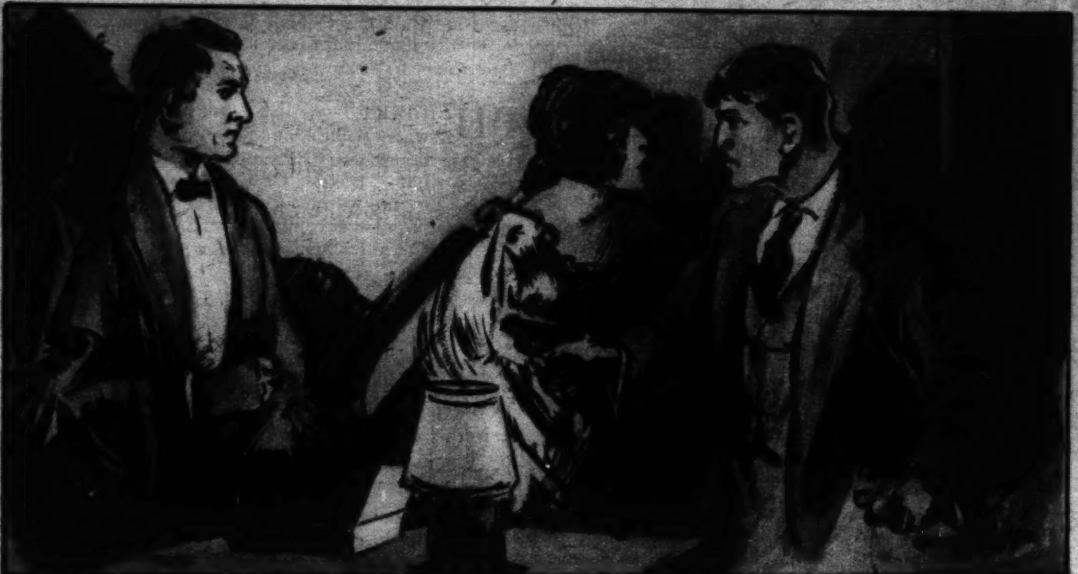
"So that was your reason for encouraging me?" he growled. "I thought——"

"Well, Herbert—just what did you think? That I regarded your attentions seriously?"

"Well, at least I hadn't supposed I was being used merely as a stalking horse."

She placed a fleeting hand upon his arm.

"Herbert," she said, "if you honestly want to go in for the real thing, why not try your hand with Sallie Griffith? She's adorable. Look at her." She pointed to the vision in scarlet and silver that sped toward them with the effortless grace of a fawn. "Doesn't that gorgeous mop of red hair inspire you? I really think Stanley has monopolized the child quite long enough."



"Stanley!" she cried, "You must listen. It's all a dreadful mistake."

THE Pennington house party was a small affair but tremendously intensive. Bathing and tennis, dancing and golf, flirting and poker and bridge, with prewar vintages at every possible interval before and after and between, made it notable for gayety, even though it might be lacking in size. Griswold Pennington and his madcap young wife preferred small parties but merry ones; quality rather than quantity. Six couples there were in all, three married, three single. Herbert Dean had been invited for Sallie Griffith; Mrs. Pennington thought perhaps they might make a match of it. That Stanley Howell had rushed in on the first afternoon and appropriated the divine Sarah for himself did not disturb his hostess at all, after she found Betty and Herbert holding hands in a dark corner of the veranda. Once the initial crystallizations of that first evening had taken place, everything moved smoothly. The division into couples had been automatic, following no accepted lines of cleavage, and every one seemed entirely satisfied with the results.

At dinner that Saturday night, however, certain minor changes in the usual arrangements were discernible. The entire party was dining at the Allisons' and for the first time Herbert Dean took Sallie in to dinner. How he managed it, no one knew—no one, that is, except himself and the sphinx-eyed Betty. She had given him a clear field that afternoon by dragging her unwilling better half off to call on a newly discovered aunt, and Mr. Dean had lost no time in taking advantage of his opportunities. It was too hot for tennis; even Sallie was obliged to admit that, and golf had somehow lost its savor, but Mr. Dean's thirty footer was anchored in the harbor and there was a fresh southwest breeze. The combination proved irresistible. Sallie took her bathing suit and insisted upon hanging from the bobstay while the green bow waves curled and foamed over her slim young body, much to the edification of the two Swedes who made up the crew. Dean did not join her, but smilingly helped her on board again when she found the task of reaching the deck beyond her strength, with her arms almost pulled from their sockets.

As a result of the little trip they arrived home late, and by the time they were dressed the others had gone and Dean drove her to the Allisons' in his roadster. It was all very satisfactory, he reflected, as he gazed across the table into Betty's enigmatical eyes. That Stanley failed to find it so only added a dash of flavor to the episode. Herbert Dean mentally patted himself on the back; he had made Stanley jealous in two entirely different directions. He hoped Betty was satisfied.

"HAVE a good time this afternoon, Herbert?" she laughed up at him in the intervals of a dance.

Herbert Dean's gaze swept the room until it met the eyes of a slim goddess in ivory. Slits of jade, they seemed, beneath her mop of wickedly red hair.

"Yes," he said shortly.

"What did you do?"

Dean told her. Betty's face became grave.

"I'm not sure, Herbert," she said, "that I was altogether wise in turning Sallie over to a conscienceless heartbreaker like you. After all, she's only a child, and it was hardly the thing to take her off on your boat alone—without a chaperon. O—I suppose the days for that sort of thing are past, but Sallie is awfully young, and your reputation is against you. People will talk, you know."

"You think her safer with Stanley, then? From the way he's looking at her now, I should be inclined to doubt it."

Betty followed his gaze. Stanley Howell was quite as near to kissing his partner as he possibly could have been without making the affair a fait accomplir. Betty frowned.

"He's been furious with me all the afternoon," she said uneasily, "and I'm sorry to say he's been trying to drown his sorrows in a perfectly absurd number of cocktails."

Dean paused in front of one of the long windows, and they stepped out upon the veranda. As he turned he caught the frown with which Mr. Howell favored him.

"Do you know, Betty," he said, "your good husband is as jealous of my attentions to you as he is of my little flyer with Sallie. The man has the versatility of a Mormon."

Betty Howell laughed, but she was not entirely satisfied. The duel between her husband and Herbert Dean for the irresponsible Sallie's attention became an open and deadly affair. And to the secret delight of the rest of the party, Sallie encouraged it, deliberately, flagrantly, and seemed to find a huge enjoyment in it. Her provocative eyes flashed secret encouragement, unmentioned promises, to each of her suitors in turn; she played with the fire of their ardor shamelessly, openly, until the two men were ready to fly at each other's throat; and Betty, watching the little drama from a distance, came to the disquieting conclusion that Sallie was not by any means as much of a child as she had supposed.

Stanley, by steady application to the Allisons' champagne punch, had brought himself to a state of recklessness that made him ready to throw aside all restraint; while Herbert was cool, with a grim, vicious coolness that in other days would have meant rapiers, or coffee and pistols for two, by morning.

BETTY went to the girl, took her aside.

"I'd be a little more careful, dear, if I were you," she warned. "Stanley and Herbert aren't quite themselves, and——"

"Really, Aunt Betty," she exclaimed, "I don't know what you mean. Stanley is married—your husband. Mr. Dean is single. How they can be jealous of each other I don't see."

"Then you must be blind," Betty snapped.

Sallie Griffith flung her cigaret over the veranda rail. "For Stanley to be jealous of anything I might do —anything—would be an insult. It would imply either that I was trying to break up your home—to marry him—or that I was an immoral woman. That's true, isn't it?"

"Yes," Betty admitted; "but——"

Sallie gave her a quick, impetuous kiss.

"Then why not tell him so?" she laughed, and danced through the veranda window straight into Stanley Howell's arms.

Betty did tell him so, although not in just those words, on the way home. She knew her husband was in a dangerous, irrational mood; knew that the devil in Sallie, harmless though it might be, had roused in him a storm of emotions more deeply rooted than any conventions. It was not a pleasant thing for a wife to contemplate, but Betty was an extremely intelligent woman who loved her husband, and did not mean to give up that love because of any momentary flare of passion lighted by sea green eyes, a bewitching figure, and the potency of too many champagne cocktails.

Stanley received her suggestion that he was making a bit of a fool of himself in silence. He had given far too much credence to the veiled promises in Sallie's insolent eyes. It is a weakness of middle age, born of vanity, to believe too readily in the promises of youth. Among Sallie's intimates, the business of playing upon the passions of men had been reduced to a fine art, and that, too, without any sacrifice of self-respect on their part. The girl was as honest as an alarm clock; if she ever told a man in as many words that she loved him it would be because she meant it and was prepared to live up to it, but she reserved the right to say anything she pleased with her eyes, and took an unholy delight in the readiness of masculine vanity to believe her.

IT was long after two when the stragglers finally gathered on the Pennington veranda. It had been a strenuous day, and most of them were ready for bed. Betty decided to go up at once, and tried to persuade Stanley to go with her; but he mumbled something about a poker game and disappeared with Mr. Pennington in the direction of the smoking room. Betty looked about for Sallie, but saw nothing of her; a little later she overtook Herbert Dean, slowly mounting the stairs.

"Where's Sallie?" she asked.

"I don't know, really." Mr. Dean did not seem inclined to be communicative; he was nervous, ill at ease—something in his manner told Betty he wished to be alone. She left him at the open window at the head of the stairway, gazing out upon the shadowy upper balcony, and went to her room down the hall. It seemed good, after all the excitement of the day, to take off her clothes, let down her hair, relax. Was Stanley really playing poker, she wondered, as she swept the comb through the glossy chestnut masses that lay heavy about her shoulders? Or was it merely an excuse, to continue his insane pursuit of Sallie Griffith?

Betty was not greatly alarmed on the latter point. Her belief in the girl's honesty, her innate fineness, had not wavered. It was madness, of course, for young girls to play with the emotions of men in this way, but she knew in her heart that Stanley was far more to blame than Sallie. He was the one who had lost his head. She smiled a little wearily as she thought of his inevitable awakening. He would expect consolation then, expect her to comfort him with kisses. Ah, well. Men were just—children.

For one thing only did she blame Sallie. The girl, like all those of her ultra-modern set, was quite able to take care of herself, her superb young body; but was she equally able to take care of that far more fragile thing, her good name? In spite of all new ideas, certain old fashioned conventions remained. People still would talk. There were limits which even the flapper could not overstep without damage to her reputation. Like a beautiful, iridescent bubble, it would float safe, serene, in the sunshine; yet a single breath of scandal might destroy it.

Herbert Dean, she reflected, had not done wisely to take the girl out, alone, on his yacht. She had changed to her bathing suit while on board. There was a stateroom, of course, but—Betty laughed at her charming reflection in the glass and wondered if she was becoming old fashioned, evil minded. The sudden closing of a door, footsteps, told her that Mr. Dean had decided to turn in as well. His room adjoined the one occupied by Stanley and herself.

MANY minutes later Betty, moved by some sudden, vague alarm, went to her door and looked out. A faint sound, as of some one moving in the corridor, had startled her; she thought it might possibly be Stanley, after a plethora of nightcaps, groping uncertainly toward their door. As she opened it slightly and peered into the shadowy corridor she saw something that froze her to sudden and horrified silence. A woman, wrapped in an embroidered kimono, was just entering Herbert Dean's room. A shaft of light, coming through the doorway, turned her mop of bobbed hair to ruddy gold.

Betty Howell staggered back, noiselessly closed her door. The thing was unbelievable, and yet she had seen it. She remembered Herbert Dean's nervousness, his evident wish that she should leave him, when they had met on the stairs. Had he arranged this rendezous with Sallie during their drive home?

She had not thought Herbert a cad, willing to use his large experience with women, his charm, to captivate, possibly to ruin, a silly, rattle brained girl. She could not think it now. There must be some explanation. And yet the stark fact remained that Sallie Griffith, whom she had promised to look after, to protect, was in the next room, alone with Herbert Dean, and for fifteen years Herbert's achievements with the opposite sex had been the subject of the spiciest of boudoir gossip.

The thought was unbearable. Sallie had no business to be where she was, no matter how innocent her purpose might be. If others knew what she, Betty, knew, the bubble of the girl's reputation could not escape swift destruction. And others might know, might have seen her go in—might yet see her on her way out. There were several doors upon the long corridor. Suddenly Betty made up her mind that the only way to save Sallie from the consequences of her folly was to follow her into Herbert Dean's room.

All these thoughts raced through her brain while she was automatically twisting her hair into a hurried coil, thrusting her arms into the wide sleeves of a negligee. An instant later she was tapping softly on Herbert Dean's door.

For a moment there was silence. Then she heard Dean's voice asking who it was. Betty had no mind to answer—to cry her name down that silent corridor, or to stand where she was for long. Without replying she pushed the door open, went in.

Dean, wearing a dressing gown, stood beside a table, lighting a cigaret. When he saw Betty's face he allowed the match to flutter to the floor.

"Good—God!" he stammered, staring at her. To her amazement he was alone.

"Herbert"—Betty held his eyes, her own very grave—"I haven't any right to be here, in your room, but you must know I didn't come without a good reason. Where is Sallie Griffith? I want to speak to her."

"What do you mean?"

"Just what I say. It isn't difficult to understand, is it?"

"I'm afraid it is. Miss Griffith isn't here."

It was like him, to say that, Betty reflected. He had no means of knowing she had seen the girl come in.

"HERBERT," she said, regarding him steadily, "when Sallie's mother permitted her to come on this house party, it was with the understanding that I was to look out for her—be responsible for her. It isn't any use to tell me she isn't here, because I saw her come in, not two minutes ago. I love Sallie. I'm not going to allow her to get into any trouble, if I can prevent it. I came here, absurd as it may seem, to chaperon her. I'll say, if the matter ever comes up, that we came in together, for a nightcap you'd promised us. That will make everything right. So, before there's any harm done, get Sallie out of her hiding place and give us the drink. When I leave, I'm going to take her with me."

Herbert Dean's eyes were like tiny, flickering mirrors.

"What did you do?" he asked, "when you saw Sallie come in here?"

"I went back to my room and put on a negligee. Why?"

"That explains it. Sallie did come here for a moment, to borrow some cigarets. She was flat, she said. I gave her a pack and she went away. She must have gone while you were putting on your negligee."

"Is that true, Herbert?" Betty looked straight through him.

"Yes."

"Then—I—I'd better go." With a shudder of alarm she suddenly realized her own position. What if Stanley had come upstairs! With Sallie in the room, they would both have been safe enough, but—she was here alone, in a negligee, at three o'clock in the morning. It stirred a grim sense of humor in her to realize that she had come to save Sallie Griffith from a compromising position, and in so doing had walked into an infinitely worse one, herself! Sallie at least was not married, with a jealous husband likely to appear at any moment.

"I—I'm sorry, Herbert," she gasped. "Please don't mind. I've got to take care of the child. Now let me get out of here, quick." Her knees were weak. What if Stanley, the poker game over, should happen to be just coming up the stairs!

THE reality was infinitely worse than her imaginings. She had not reached the door when it was suddenly thrust open. Stanley Howell, his face drained of blood until it resembled a death mask, entered the room, closed the door behind him. For a long, terrible moment he stared at his wife. She heard Herbert Dean draw in his breath sharply. Then she saw Stanley take his right hand from the pocket of his coat. In it he clutched an automatic pistol!

The paralysis which held Betty in its grip was suddenly swept away in a storm of fear.

"Stanley!" she shuddered. "Wait! Let me explain!"

He said nothing, but stood facing her with a certain dull, grim patience. And then Betty realized there was no explanation she could make. To tell the truth, say that she had come looking for Sallie Griffith would seem childish, absurd. What was there to support such a story? Stanley would regard it as merely a trivial subterfuge, an attempt to excuse her own derelictions by blackening the character of another woman. She glanced helplessly at Herbert Dean. He stood motionless, the unlighted cigaret still crushed between his fingers.

"Well," Stanley said in a strange, rasping voice. "I'm waiting."

Betty went up to him.

"Stanley," she said, her voice earnest, [illegible] here not five minutes ago, to—to ask Mr. [illegible] tion." In spite of their truth, she [illegible] sounded pitifully unconvincing. "I [illegible] when you arrived." A flimsy excuse to [illegible] husband. Stanley received it with a [illegible] laugh.

"Can't you think of anything better [illegible] he asked.

"It's the absolute truth!" Dean [illegible] for the first time. His words, his voice, [illegible] Stanley Howell of his self-control. [illegible] in his eyes.

"By God, Dean!" he shouted, [illegible] scoundrel!" The hand which held the [illegible] up in a swift yet deliberate movement. [illegible] Betty clutched his arm.

"Stanley!" she cried. "You must [illegible] a frightful mistake!"

He thrust her almost roughly aside and [illegible] Dean, his face twitching.

"It is a mistake," he muttered, "and [illegible] going to pay for it. I heard my wife's [illegible] Dean, when I got to my room. That's [illegible] to have this pistol. I took it out of my [illegible] brought it here to kill you. Now I'm [illegible] Again he raised his arm. Dean did not move.

"YOU'RE not going to do anything [illegible] Stanley," a cheerful voice broke in. [illegible] husband, both turned impulsively toward [illegible] from which it came, but Herbert Dean [illegible] tionless, a queer smile twisting his thin, [illegible] Across the room the door of a huge [illegible] wide. Before it stood Sallie Griffith, calm, [illegible] insolent, her flowing kimono disclosing [illegible] jamas, her tumbled hair like a great red [illegible]

"What's all the shooting about?" she [illegible] ing the room with long quick strides and [illegible] pistol from Stanley's drooping fingers. "It [illegible] done this season." She tossed the weapon [illegible] and helped herself carelessly to a cigaret. [illegible] she turned swiftly to Dean, "you wouldn't [illegible] beans, even to save yourself from being [illegible] you, old dear? I like you for that." [illegible] up to Betty and kissed her.

Stanley Howell watched her, fascinated, [illegible] no attention to him. Betty was amazed by [illegible] unconcern. No thought of the way in which [illegible] tossed her reputation to the winds to save [illegible] tion tamed the insolence of her smile; the [illegible] that flamed in Stanley's eyes seemed if [illegible] increase it.

"I suppose you'll want to shoot him [illegible] account," she laughed, taking a puff at her [illegible]

No one spoke. The situation was still [illegible] to at least two of them. Even Herbert [illegible] bewildered. With a swift movement [illegible] herself cross legged on the bed.

"Well, Stanley," she said, her fathomless [illegible] on his, "that last cocktail of yours must [illegible] a dash of dynamite in it. You're absolutely [illegible] bursting in here, threatening to shoot up [illegible] How do you get that way, anyhow? Aunt [illegible] here for a damned good reason—at least, [illegible] it was a good one—to save me!" Her [illegible] put joy into Betty Howell's heart; no girl [illegible] "saving" could laugh like that. "Do you [illegible] ley, dear? To save me! I heard all [illegible] I was hiding in the closet. She'd seen [illegible] you know, and as soon as she could [illegible] per she followed, to dig me out. [illegible] and a gentleman, hid me in the closet [illegible] some one at the door and told her [illegible] you blew in. That's all there is to it—[illegible] more." She tossed her cigaret into the [illegible] rose. "Except one thing, why I came [illegible] first place. Nobody knows—not even [illegible] Herbert. I didn't have time to tell him, [illegible] came in so quickly. I wonder if you can [illegible] eyes, as she faced Stanley Howell, were [illegible] green slits.

He wrenched his gaze from hers; a [illegible] crossing his face, but Betty did not observe it.

"What difference does it make?" he asked.

"None, to you. But it makes a lot to me. [illegible] have Aunt Betty and Mr. Dean thinking me [illegible] So here's the long, sad story. Just as I was [illegible] bed—my room, you know, happens to be [illegible] hall—somebody came to my window—it's [illegible] window and opens on the upper porch. I [illegible] who it was and I didn't stop to ask. I just [illegible] of my room as quick as I could and dashed [illegible] hall to what I thought was Aunt Betty's [illegible] guess I made a mistake, because when I [illegible] wasn't Aunt Betty's room at all but Mr. [illegible] that's that. Amusing, don't you think? [illegible] one thing I've got to ask you. Don't [illegible] breathe a word about this, please. It [illegible] all. Not only because it might make trouble [illegible] ever it was came to my room—unless, of [illegible] a burglar—but because Jimmy Hunter [illegible] morrow, and—well—we're engaged, you see, [illegible] nobody knows about it yet, and Jimmy [illegible] to want to beat somebody up. So that's [illegible] now I think I'll shove off and get a [illegible] sleep, so Jimmy won't be disappointed [illegible] me in the morning. Good night, everybody. [illegible] worry about that burglar. I'm going to [illegible] ley's pistol, just to be on the safe side."

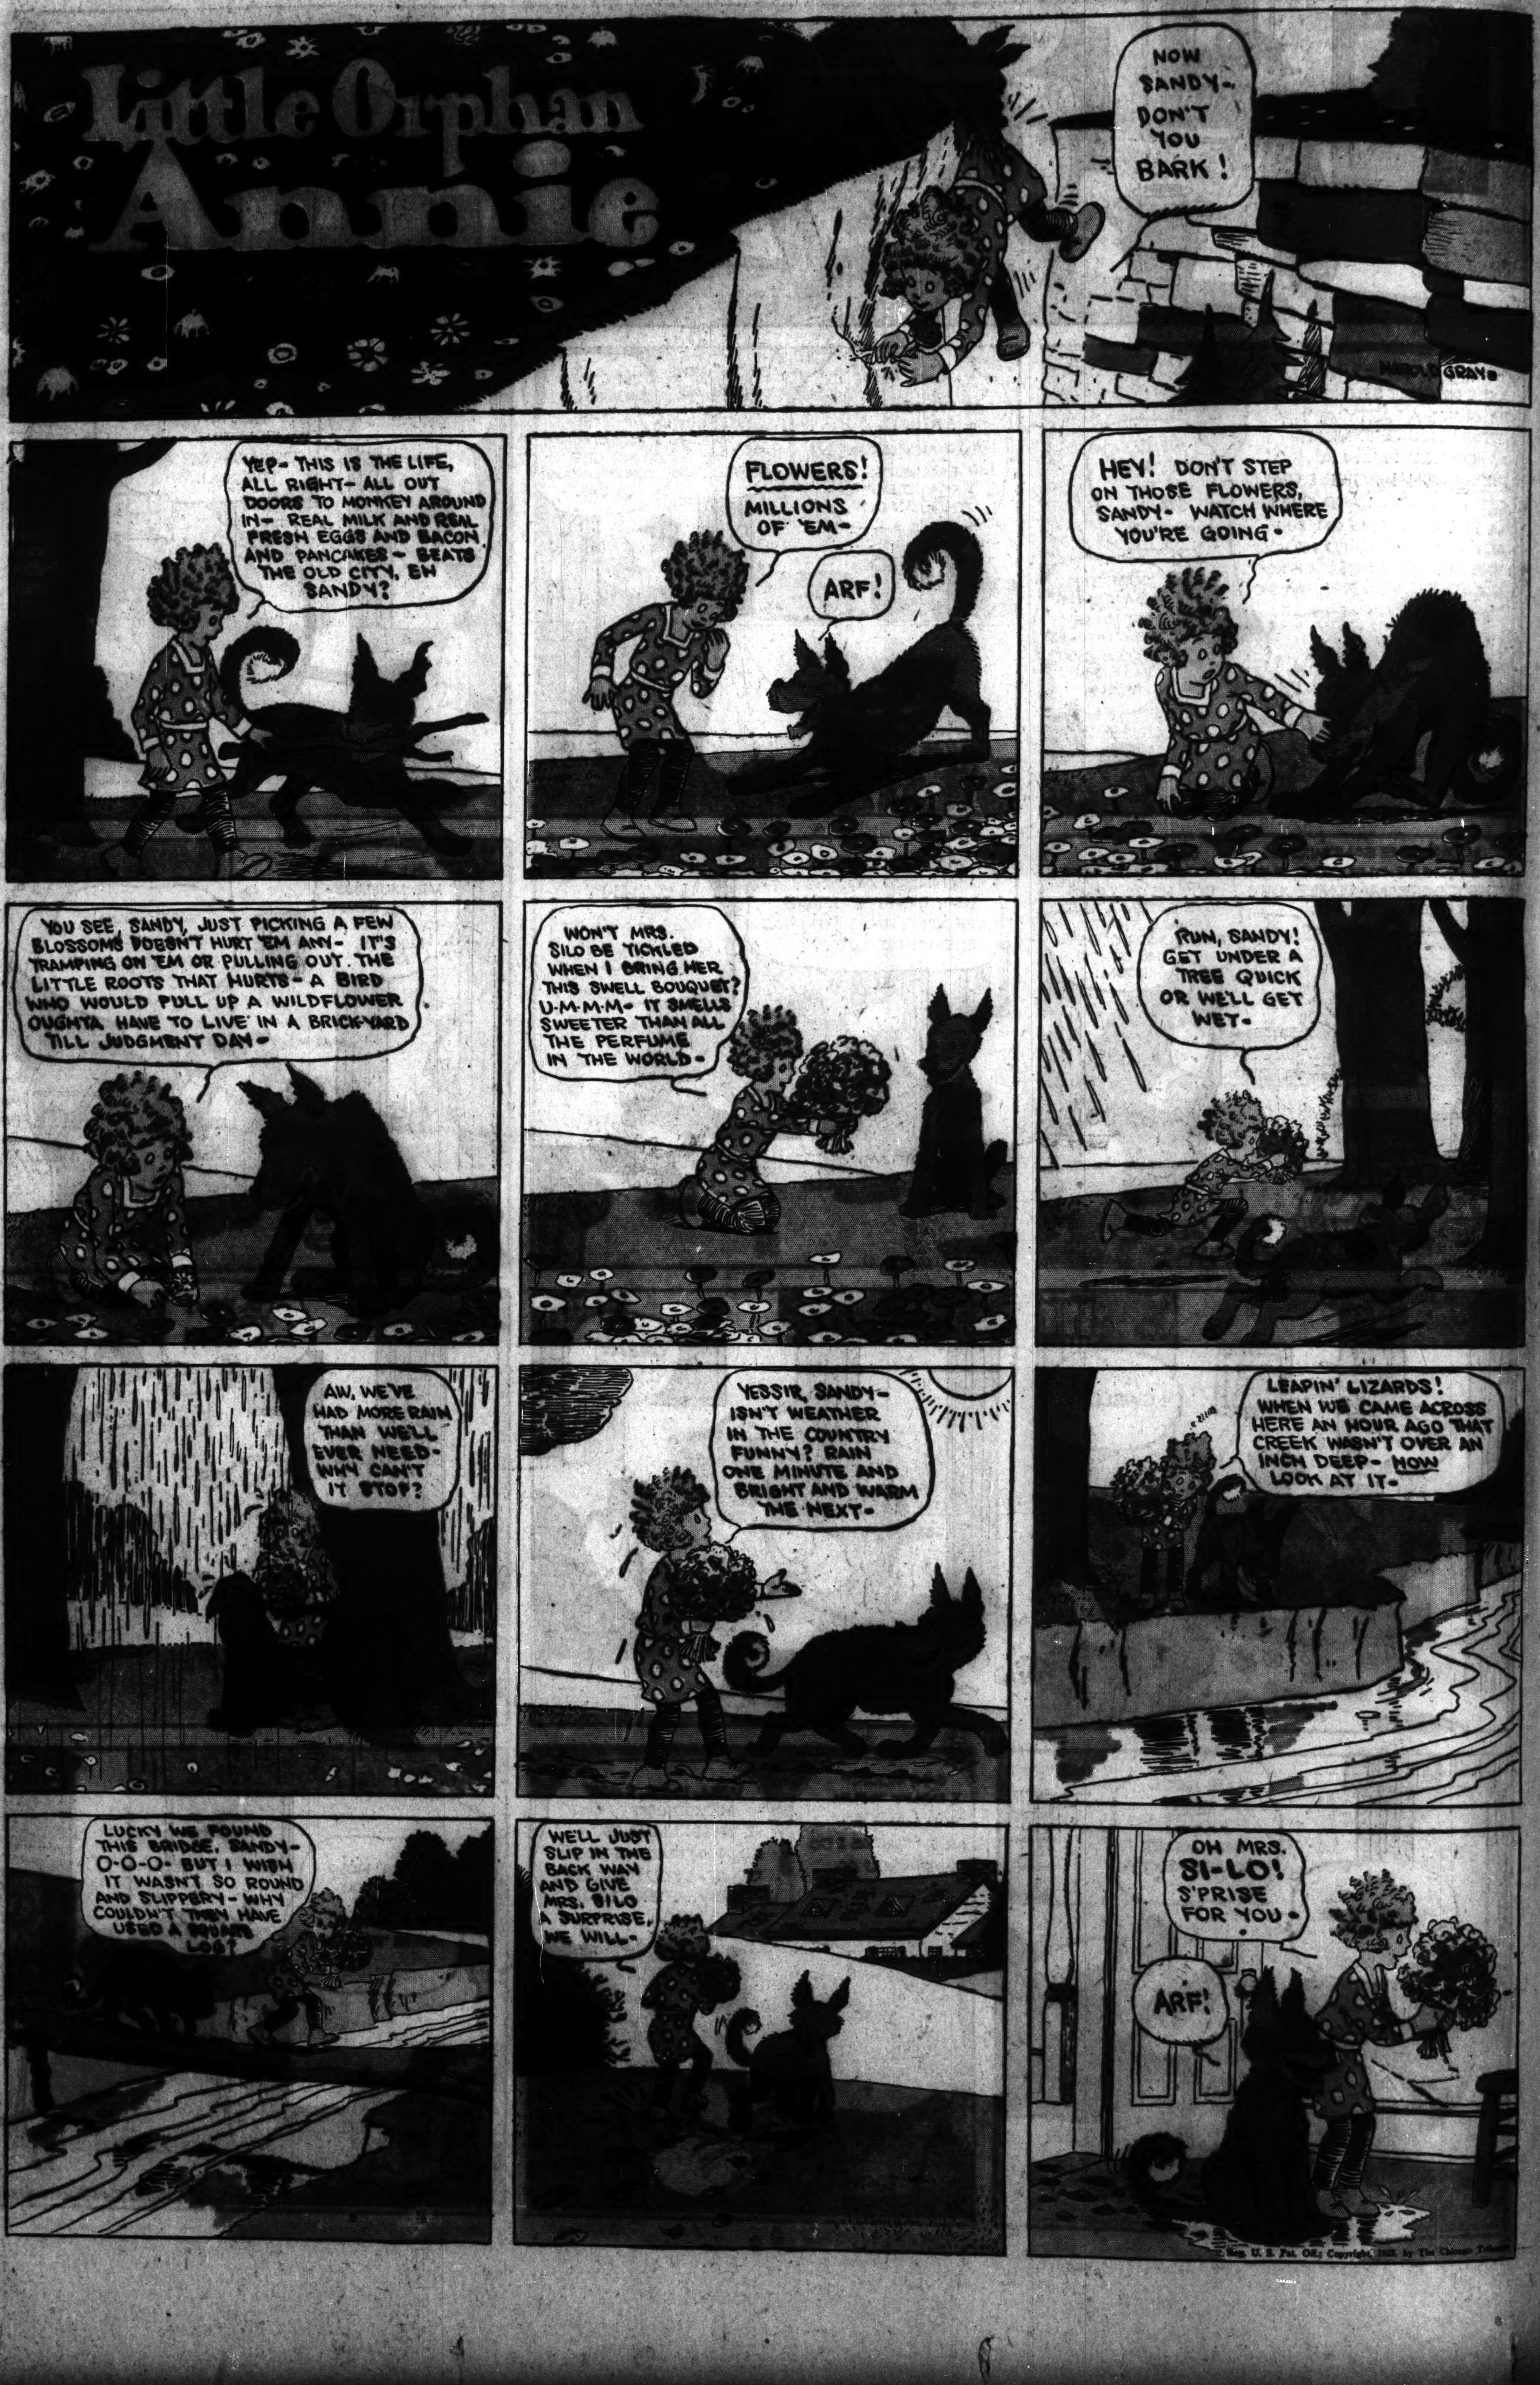
EXCUSE ME-JUST A MINUTE, MR. MULLINS- I WILL RETURN IMMEDIATELY AND REHEARSE MY ACT FOR YOU.
LOOK! THE SANDWICHES, THE PICKLES, THE CAKE, EVEN THE ICE-CREAM-SOMEBODY'S EVEN BEEN INTO IT.
WELL, DON'T ACCUSE THAT LITTLE BOY HE COULDN'T HAVE EATEN A THIRD OF ALL THAT. THIS PUNCH GOES IN THE OTHER ROOM.
WHERE'S YOUR MANNER'S AT, KAYO? WHY DIDN'T YOU TAKE OFF YOUR HAT WHEN YOU SEEN THAT LADY??
I COULDN'T SEE- I HAD IT FULL OF SANDWICHES AN' THINGS.
ALL RIGHT, MR. MULLINS- I WILL START MY ACT IN A MINUTE, NOW.
TAKE YOUR TIME, JUDGE. TAKE YOUR TIME.
SWELL!
GREAT!
CLAP! CLAP!
ATTA BOY! JUDGE- ATTA BOY!!
YOUR ACT'S A WOW JUDGE! NOW WHAT COMES NEXT?
WELL?
SAY, MOON- I DON'T THINK YOU HAVE SO-MUCH FUN AS I DO WHEN YOU GO AROUND THEM SWELL PEOPLE'S PLACES-
WELL, UNTIL I GOT KICKED OUT I THINK I HAD AS GOOD A TIME AS YOU DID AT JUDGE BELCHER'S THIS AFTERNOON, KAYO.
THEN HOW COME YOU AIN'T GOT TH' STUMMICK ACHE TONIGHT?



Little Orphan Annie
NOW SANDY- DON'T YOU BARK!
HAROLD GRAY
YEP- THIS IS THE LIFE, ALL RIGHT- ALL OUT DOORS TO MONKEY AROUND IN- REAL MILK AND REAL FRESH EGGS AND BACON AND PANCAKES- BEATS THE OLD CITY, EH SANDY?
FLOWERS! MILLIONS OF 'EM-
ARF!
HEY! DON'T STEP ON THOSE FLOWERS, SANDY- WATCH WHERE YOU'RE GOING-
YOU SEE, SANDY, JUST PICKING A FEW BLOSSOMS DOESN'T HURT 'EM ANY- IT'S TRAMPING ON 'EM OR PULLING OUT THE LITTLE ROOTS THAT HURTS- A BIRD WHO WOULD PULL UP A WILDFLOWER OUGHTA HAVE TO LIVE IN A BRICK-YARD TILL JUDGMENT DAY-
WON'T MRS. SILO BE TICKLED WHEN I BRING HER THIS SWELL BOUQUET? U-M-M-M- IT SMELLS SWEETER THAN ALL THE PERFUME IN THE WORLD-
RUN, SANDY! GET UNDER A TREE QUICK OR WE'LL GET WET-AW, WE'VE HAD MORE RAIN THAN WE'LL EVER NEED- WHY CAN'T IT STOP?
YESSIR, SANDY- ISN'T WEATHER IN THE COUNTRY FUNNY? RAIN ONE MINUTE AND BRIGHT AND WARM THE NEXT-
LEAPIN' LIZARDS! WHEN WE CAME ACROSS HERE AN HOUR AGO THAT CREEK WASN'T OVER AN INCH DEEP- HOW LOOK AT IT-
LUCKY WE FOUND THIS BRIDGE, SANDY- O-O-O- BUT I WISH IT WASN'T SO ROUND AND SLIPPERY- WHY COULDN'T THEY HAVE USED A SQUARE LOG?
WE'LL JUST SLIP IN THE BACK WAY AND GIVE MRS. SILO A SURPRISE, WE WILL-
OH MRS. SI-LO! S'PRISE FOR YOU-
ARF!

SLIM HAS GOT TO GET RID OF THAT SAXOPHONE - I CAN'T STAND IT ANY LONGER.
NOW BRUCE DO BE REASONABLE.
THE FELLOW WHO INVENTED THE SAXOPHONE MUST HAVE HAD A GRUDGE AGAINST THE WORLD. IT SOUNDS LIKE A SICK CALF YELLIN' FOR A HOT WATER BOTTLE.
IT'S A GREAT DEAL BETTER TO HAVE HIM HOME PLAYING ON THE SAXOPHONE THAN TO HAVE HIM HANGING AROUND POOL ROOMS.
BRUCE, BRUCE, WAKE UP - THERE'S A FUNNY NOISE DOWN STAIRS.
KEEP QUIET AND I'LL GET THE GUN AND SNEAK DOWN.
NOW BE CAREFUL AND DON'T SHOOT YOURSELF.
BY CRACKY IT'S A BURGLAR. I'LL SLIP DOWN, SWITCH ON THE LIGHTS, AND NAB THAT BIRD.
THROW UP YOUR HANDS.
I'M GOING TO TURN YOU OVER TO THE POLICE.
I AINT TOOK NOTHIN'. LET ME OFF DIS TIME AND I'LL QUIT STEALIN'.
WELL I'LL LET YOU FREE IF YOU'LL TAKE THAT DERNED SAXOPHONE WITH YOU.
I TAKES ANYTHING I KIN GIT BOSS.
SO LONG BOSS. TANKS FOR DE BAND.
THE PLEASURE IS ALL MINE.
WHAT WAS IT BRUCE, A BURGLAR?
AT LAST THAT BLAMED SAXOPHONE IS GONE.
IT WAS A BURGLAR - I SAW HIM GO THROUGH THE WINDOW WITH SLIM'S SAXOPHONE.
SOMEONE IS KNOCKING AT THE FRONT DOOR.
I JUST SAW A GUY SLIP OUT OF YOUR PLACE - I YELLS AT HIM TO HALT AND HE DROPS THIS HORN AND MAKES A GET-AWAY.
OH! IT'S SLIM'S SAXOPHONE.

OOH LOOKIE! WAIT MAYBE SKEEX GET SOME.
NICE—A BLOON ASKA DA POP.
QUICK, UNCA WALT! TEN CENTS—BLOON MAN!
WELL, I'LL SEE IF WE HAVE A DIME ON US.
SKEEX WANT NICE YELLOW ONE—YA, THAT ONE!
NOW REMEMBER, IF YOU LET GO OF THE STRING IT WILL GO ON UP AND YOU'LL LOSE IT. I'LL TIE A LOOP FOR YOUR FINGER.
WON'T IT LOOK FUNNY TO SEE PAL GOIN' UP IN THE AIR!
HE AIN'T GOIN' UP!
ATTABOY PAL EAT 'EM UP!
NO PAL, DON'T RUN AWAY WITH SKEEX BLOON.
AW!
WELL, THERE IT GOES!
NUDDA BLOON, UNCA WALT. PAL LET GO OF STRING!
